Stirling

STIRLING — River Valley Women's Institute has planned a Hallowe'en party for the people of the community at the school house.

On Friday evening a large number of relatives, friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Bush for a double presentation, as Mr. and Mrs. Bush are moving to their new home in Stirling in the near future. They were the recipients of a lovely radio. The newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bush, who will reside on the farm, were presented with an occasional chair from the community and also a television stool from the charivari group.

Mrs. J. L. Donohoe will be hostess on Thursday, November 7th, at 2 p.m. for the monthly meeting of River Valley Women's Institute. The conveners are Miss Marion Carlisle and Mrs. Gerald Brooks. The topic is agriculture and Canadian industry. The special motto will be based on the thought "The Farmer, God's Partner in Giving the World the Food It Must Have."

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Irven and Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Bush of Stirling R.R. 4, attended the ploughing match near Simcoe and visited Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Melville at Sarnia.

Mr. Harold Bird is constructing an up-to-date pole barn on his property on the Anson Road. Just recently he purchased over thirty head of Hereford steers in Calgary. WATCH THIS CLUB!

Don't sell these Ottawa-Hull Canadiens short.

Much has been written and aired about the respective qualities of the Big Four with the Dunlops being taken for granted, but little or nothing has been written or said about Sammy Pollock's up-and-coming Juniors.

The big test comes tonight when the Junior Habs open their Eastern Ontario Senior League schedule as guests of the Cornwall Chevies.

The Canadiens who play all their senior "A" schedule games in the beautiful new Hull arena, will probably open the home season against the McFarlands on Nov. 10, since Sammy Pollock has announced the ice will not be ready before the second week of November. He also announces the postponement of the Cornwall-Ottawa game scheduled for Hull on October 30.

Sammy won't ice any pros or senior-age players this year and by the looks of the junior aggregation he has rounded up, he won't worry too much.

His only trouble and it probably is a temporary one, is the goaltending chore. After Sammy wielded the axe the other night he had Harold Hansen, a Newfoundlander, and 16-year-old Eric Reid left for the wet-minding job. And Sammy's not too happy about either of the youngsters.

It seems that Hansen after fine performances against Toronto Maple Leafs and the Montreal Canadiens, fell by the wayside when he allowed nine pucks to either past him in a game with the Quebec Aces. And Ookie Samivel was not happy. Hansen, a student at Carleton College, cannot explain his sudden lapse. A long shot went past him in the second period and after that he was a sitting duck.

Young Reid, however, is down with the flu, and Pollock must use Hansen in the league opener. In all probability the kid will come up with a job that will reinstate him in the Pollock good graces.

In addition to Reid, Pollock has added seven new faces to his beardless backstreet. Included are defencemen Jacques Beglin and Bob Olajos, centres Yves Sarazin and Dick Dawson, left winger Jean Claude Trembley and right fielders Bob Boucher and Terry Gray.

Most of the newcomers on the team came from the Montreal Metropolitan League. One exception is Dawson who hails from Campbellton, New Brunswick. Three Ottawa players, Andre Despard, Brian Smith and Andre Charron will continue to practice with the club but will be assigned to farm teams later.

Pollock has only Backstrom and Carter as regular centres, but says he will give Annable, Dawson and Sarazin a crack at the pivot spot. He will carry six defencemen, with either Nick Murray or Don Johns rounding out the sextet.

The Ottawa-Hull club makes its first appearance in Belleville on Saturday, November 23.

JUDO AT THE Y

Jimmy Driscoll informs us that there will be quite at show at the YMCA on Coleman Saturday evening. It seems the city Judo Club is having Judo expert Frank Hatashita and his Toronto club here to give a demonstration of judo and self defence. The public is invited to see this eye-pleasing show.

Jimmy, who is a judo man himself of no mean ability, says that Hatashita can toss a 250-pound man around something like a boy tosses a baseball.

And, get this — Jimmy says two young ladies, the Misses Rita Polestra and Shirley Fleming are members of the local club. These young ladies wrich around the 100-pound mark and says James "you really have to see it to believe it just how easy they can toss 200-pound men around." That should be an attraction in itself.

Members of the two local clubs will also see judo action and will attempt to improve their grading. It should be quite a show. Starts at eight o'clock.

Dutchmen Tie London Lords In ORFU Game

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — London Lords and Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen battled to a 13-13 tie through mud and rain Wednesday night in an Ontario Rugby Football Union contest.

Kicker Don Wright kept London in the game. He kicked a field goal in the third quarter, then tied the contest late in the fourth with a convert after Import Dave Doane had plunged over. Lords scored their other points on a single by Jim Thompson and a safety.

Dean Prentice Scores Twice In Toronto's 5th Loss in 6; Free-for-All Features Game

By MARTY GOODMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Coach Phil Watson of New York Rangers recently pondered publicly whether Boston Bruins would lose a game in the National Hockey League this season. They were that good.

At the time Watson's Rangers were having trouble getting untracked and Bruins were coasting toward a four-game win streak.

Take a look at today's standings and notice which team is in third place, one point behind Boston.

New York Rangers, of course, with three wins, two losses and a tie.

Phil's smooth talk took the pressure off his club after a 6-2 belting by Boston last week and it responded with two straight victories, including a 3-0 whitewash over Toronto Maple Leafs Wednesday night. It was Toronto's fifth loss in six starts.

CAN MOVE AHEAD

Bruins get a chance to improve their standing and jump into a first-place tie with Montreal Canadiens when they play Pittsburgh Detroit Red Wings at Detroit tonight in the only action scheduled.

The Ranger spree came while Bruins were dropping two straight games. That's typical of the results from Watson's root 'em and rap 'em comments in the last two seasons.

His alternate praise and sarcasm have driven Rangers to third and fourth-place finishes. This season, with Montreal picked way ahead and everybody else bunched, his tactics could bring New York up to second. That would be its highest finish since 1941-2 when it led the league.

A YOUNG CLUB

New York has most of the same faces from the last two seasons and still is essentially a young team. It has the line of Andy Bathgate, Dean Prentice and Larry Popein ranks as one of the best.

Left-winger Prentice is shining brightest now. He fired the first two goals against Toronto, matching his output against Chicago Monday. He scored in defenseman Lou Fontinato's drive for the first one converted Bathgate's pass for the second while Rangers were shorthanded.

New York's third goal came while Leafs' Ron Stewart was off. Camille Henry's sizzler was blocked by Ed Chadwick and Guy Gendron flipped home the rebound. Dave Creighton also received an assist.

Some 9,158 fans watched the first game between the teams this season and Rangers' Lorne Worsley's first shutout he made 26 saves while Toronto's Chadwick handled 17 shots.

There were 12 penalties in the game, seven of them to Rangers. Five came during a five-for-all in the third period. Gendron and Al MacNeil began punching and Fontinato shoved Noel Price, playing his first game with Toronto. Lou also took on Brian Cullen before the Rangers were separated.

Gendron drew a major and minor and the others were tagged with majors. Leafs' George Armstrong drew a delayed minor three minutes later to complete the penalty box.

The teams meet again at Toronto Saturday.

Hershey Ties Springfield 3-3

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — Hershey Bears and Springfield Indians tied 3-3 in a sudden-death League game Wednesday night. Indians missed their goals in the first period with Jim Anderson, Harry Pidhirny and Cal Gardner scoring.

Len Haley scored for Bears in the first, Dunc Fisher narrowed the gap in the second and Les Duff scored in the final period to send the game into scoreless overtime.

Trappers, Wolves Deal Is Off

NORTH BAY (CP) — Sudbury Wolves of the combined Senior A Ontario and Northern Ontario Hockey Associations have withdrawn from a deal by which the club would give up defenceman Lennie Speck to North Bay Trappers.

Trapper officials said the Sudbury club authorities agreed verbally to end Speck's contract to Trappers. Speck motored down from his Kirkland Lake home Tuesday to join the North Bay team.

But Wolves coach Vic Lynn says there will be no deals made for Speck, who has declined to report to the Sudbury camp.

Lynn said Speck will play for Sudbury or sit out the season. He has been a rearguard mainstay with Sudbury teams for five seasons.

Lady Curlers From Scotland To Play Here

TORONTO (CP)—Plans were reported under way today for the visit of a team of 16 women curlers from Scotland to Canada and the United States early in the new year.

The team would spend a week in Quebec before playing its first match in Ontario at Peterborough Jan. 20.

In Toronto the Scottish women would play at the Granite and Royal Canadian clubs. Later they would visit Niagara Falls, Hamilton, Guelph and London, then they would move on to the United States.

Varsity Tops Redmen in Track Events

TORONTO (CP) — University of Toronto Blues Wednesday piled up 57 points for a 20-point margin over McGill Redmen and top honors in seven events of the Intercollegiate track meet.

Collecting seven firsts en route to their victory, Blues had no trouble outdistancing their competition. University of Western Ontario finished third with 36 points, trailed by Queen's with 20 and McMaster with 11.

In intermediate competition, Ontario Agricultural - Veterinary college retained possession of the Guthrie Cup by a 17-point margin . Ryerson trailed the winners' 53-point total in second place. Varsity was third with 31, Queen's fourth with 22 and Assumption last with 21.

Top individual competitor at the meet was Varsity's George Stulac. He placed first in the discus and the shot put, and was second to McGill's John Whalen in the pole vault. Stulac's total of 13 points was enough to earn him the Hec Phillips trophy, emblematic of individual track supremacy in the college loop.

Among the senior point-getters for Queen's were Hodkinson and Maycock. Hodkinson won the 220-yard low hurdles in 26.8 and was second in the 120-yard high hurdles, Maycock captured the three mile event in 16:05.

In the intermediate events, Porter was second in the mile and the 880-yard races; Kostash was second in the 100-yard race and third in the 220; and the medley relay team was third.

Booster Club Donates $500 Towards Purchase of Player

The McFarlands Booster Club made its first major contribution to the hockey team at its meeting last night, presenting Manager Drury Denyes with a cheque for $500 toward the release contract of Barton Bradley, late of the Seattle team of the Western Hockey League.

Bradley, 27, is a centre player and comes highly rated. He is expected to arrive in town within the next few days.

An anonymous "suggester" won the slogan prize with her "More Macs, More" contribution. If the lady in question will get in touch with sports editor George H. Carver he will see that she gets the prize of tickets to tomorrow night's game.

Manager Denyes expressed his appreciation of the Club's gesture in presenting the team with the funds. Alderman Claude Tice, chairman of the arena commission, voiced the thanks of that body.

Plans were made for the "Gasorama" to be held at the service station of Dale Ashley, corner of Coleman and West Moira Street on Saturday, November 2. Mr. Ashley will donate five cents of the purchase price of every gallon of gasoline sold that date to the Booster Club. Members of the club will "man" the station under the supervision of Mr. Ashley and his staff. It is expected some of the team members will be on hand.

Club treasurer Harry Rollins stated the club was in a fine financial position as the bank balance of $850 after the $500 was paid to the club. Ways and means committee chairman Jim Ward told the club the draw for the season tickets netted the club over $500. The tickets were donated to the Boosters by the hockey club management.

President Dick Beare expressed his appreciation of the efforts of the club to date, which, Jim Matthews told the meeting, now has a membership of 550. President Beare urged the club to continue its efforts "for we can play a big part in helping the Mac's to win the championship. Let us keep rolling."

Jim Matthews was delegated to arrange plans, if possible, to secure the services of two pipers and a drummer of the Quinte Pipe Band for tomorrow night's game against the Whitby Dunlops. Manager Denyes also told the club that opening ceremonies will see CHA president Norman Cook of Kingston, Worship Mayor H. J. McFarland and Reeve Lee Knapp, Mayor Jane Forrester face off the first puck of the senior hockey season in the city tomorrow night.

Bobby Boyd Gets Decision Over German

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—Onetime top middleweight contender Bobby Boyd of Chicago outpointed Franz Szuzina of Germany for a unanimous decision Wednesday night in a 10-round bout that saw only the referee hit the deck.

Szuzina, who weighed 159, sent referee Joe Palmer to the canvas after the seventh-round bell as the official was trying to break the fighters. Boyd, 34 years old today, was a pound over the middleweight limit at 161.

It was Boyd's fifth victory since Joey Giardello cracked his jaw in a fight in Cleveland a year ago last September. He now has a record of 46-7. Szuzina, the favorite of the crowd but not the bookmakers, has a 41-19-13 record. The small gathering of fans cheered when Palmer slumped to the floor in the mix-fire after the seventh round ending.

It was a right hand that caught me on the back of the head," Palmer said. He said he thought is was more surprise than power that decked him. "I've been hit harder than that," he said and laughed.

PRINCE HAL NEARS ANOTHER CROWN

HAL PATTERSON

Montreal's incomparable Hal Patterson is practically conceded the Big Four Individual scoring crown this year, but the battle for second place is being hotly contested. Ottawa's Gary Schreider, in second spot with 55 points, is far off the sizzling pace of 72 points in 11 games ret by Patterson. But Schreider, though Rider kicker, has a one-point lead over Hamilton's Cookie Gilchrist, who hopped into third place with five touchdowns in the past two weeks.

Kingston Edges Whitby 4-3 In Eastern League Opener; Win It in Last Five Seconds

By The Canadian Press

The Ontario Hockey Association Senior "A" eastern division got off to a sizzling start Wednesday at Kingston.

Kingston CKLA's, after blowing a 3-1 lead, scored with five seconds remaining in the final period to shade Whitby Dunlops 4-3 in the league opener.

In the only other senior hockey action, Sudbury Wolves blanked North Bay Trappers 6-0. The win moved Wolves into a second-place tie with Trappers and Soo Greyhounds in the OHA-Northern OHA Senior A loop. Each has four points, two behind Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen.

Bellringer also scored once with the others going to Mike Bukacheski and Bill Colvin. Bob Attersley got a pair for Whitby and Charlie Burns one.

Brian Webber, Nick Tomiuk and Chuck Zorico were the marksmen for Sudbury. Johnny Athari stopped 20 shots to get the shutout.

Cornwall Unveils New Faces In Chevies' 5 dition

By FRANK ORR
Sports Editor Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

The Cornwall Chevies will unveil many new faces for the 1957-58 season in the Eastern Division of the Senior OHA. The Chevies, who finished second last season to the Alan Cup champion Whitby Dunlops but were eliminated in the semi-finals, have added at least eight newcomers to their roster.

The first big change for this season was in coaches. While the Chevie brass felt that Gerry Plamondon, last season's mentor, did a good job, they also agreed that he wasn't the colorful leader type needed for the club. The man who got the job is Joe Lepine, veteran pro and amateur defenceman who played last season with the club. Joe was hired in September and immediately started looking for new talent for his hockey club.

Joe played for several seasons in the Maritimes so as a result the big m[illegible] turned there to unearth some [illegible] players and he came up [illegible] loop there performers [illegible] Jean Denners Doug McPhee and Frank Dorrington, left winger Bob Leger and defence[illegible] forward Hughie Campbell. From the Cincinatti Mohawks the Chevies added Reg Grieg, a centre; from the Stratford Indians, George Aitkens; from the OHA champion Guelph Biltmores, Ted Szydlowski, a rugged defenceman, and to cap it all off they purchased veteran pro goaler, Paul Frederick.

Returning from last season's club are centres Moe Savard and Guy Henri, leftwinger Ronnie Muir, defencemen Joe Lepine, Bob Bingley and Neil Burke, Goalie Gerry Devaney is still with the club. Other local boys, Pete Payette and Rhesl St. Jean returned for a whirl.

In goal the Chevies are strong. Ray Frederick is a proven veteran campaigner who has seen action every pro league in hockey and several senior clubs while holding for his services but the Cornwall club purchased him from Chatsmtinl. Frederick saw action with Chicago in the NHL, Buffalo in the American League and Ottawa and Chicoutimi in the Quebec League. He has impressed everyone with his work in camp.

On defence playing-coach Lepine will headline the brigade. Joe has chopped his weight down and has been driving hard to get in top shape. He expects to reduce to 210 come opening game. Joining him at the blueline are Ted Szydlowski, a standout Junior with Guelph last season; veteran captain Bob Bingley, Hughie Campbell, a six-foot-four-inch 220 pounder from the Maritimes; Carman Marshall, star of former Cornwall senior clubs who is trying a comeback, and Neil Burke, back to Cornwall after turning down a contract with the Montreal Royals.

On one line Moe Savard will centre George Aitken and Doug MacPhee. Moe needs no introduction as he has been a top performer for the last four years. Aitken is one of the best left wingers in senior hockey after five seasons with the Stratford Indians. MacPhee notched 37 goals in the Maritimes last season and is an exceptionally fast skater.

On a second line Guy Henri will pivot Ron Muir and Frank Dorrington. Guy Henri is another top performer in senior ranks and is a good goal scorer and penalty killer. Muir was one of the best rookies in the loop last season and figures big in Chevies' plans. Dorrington, a rangy six-foot 190-pounder, topped the Maritimes with 40 goals last season.

On the third line Reg Grieg will team up with Bob Leger and Rene St. Hilaire or Hugh Campbell. Grigg has had five thirty-goal plus season with Cincinnati and the rangy centre has been the most impressive Chevie this year with the Chevs. Leger notched 37 goals in the Maritimes' loop and can really move. St. Hilaire was out with Belleville but will likely join up with the Chevies.

The other forwards in camp have been Pete Payette and Rhesl St. Jean.

Hockey interest is at its best in years here in Cornwall as all the fans look forward to a keen year. Season tickets went well and a sportsmen dinner with King Clancy and Maurice Richard as guest speakers got the club's financial plans moving.

There is much optimism in this season's club and many people believe the club to be a top contender to follow Whitby's trail to the Allan Cup.

Decision in Aragon Case Is Reversed

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Boxer Art Aragon's conviction in a fight fixing case was reversed Wednesday.

The Appellate Court reversed the conviction against the 26-year-old welterweight on the ground that instructions to the jury by Superior Court trial judge, Herbert V. Walker, were prejudicial to Aragon. A new trial was ordered.

This is up to the district attorney's office, which declined immediate comment pending a study of the appellate decision.

Aragon was convicted and sentenced last February to one to five years in prison on a charge of offering welterweight Dick Goldstein $400 to take a fourth-round knockout in a bout scheduled for last December 12 at San Antonio, Texas. The fight was not held because Aragon became ill.

Aragon steadfastly denied during the trial that he offered a bribe to Goldstein. Aragon then was ranked No. 3 nationally. Goldstein was unranked.

The Appellate Court opinion said in part: "The judge took occasion more than once to make statements to Aragon's counsel which verged on ridicule and which strongly indicated he was leaning in favor of the prosecution. Counsel for Aragon was also unduly limited in his cross examination of Goldstein.

BOXER INJURES HANDS

LONDON (AP)—Dick Richardson, British heavyweight, suffered injuries to both hands in his losing 10-round fight with Willie Pastrano of New Orleans Tuesday night.

Braves' Haney Named National Manager of Year

WILLIAMS, Ariz. (AP)—"It's a surprise to me," Fred Haney said Wednesday night when informed he had been named National League manager of the year in the annual Associated Press poll.

Haney, who led the Milwaukee Braves to their first pennant and world championship, was resting in his motel room in this Northern Arizona community when he first heard the news.

Haney said "Naturally I'm honored and very happy about it. We are on our way to Los Angeles and just stopped here for the night. I hadn't heard a thing about it."

Haney won in a close vote over Fred Hutchinson, pilot of the second-place St. Louis Cards.

Haney received 90 votes and Hutchinson 84 of the 180 cast by members of the Baseball Writers Association of America. Mayo Smith of Philadelphia Phillies was named on five ballots while Bill Rigney of New York Giants on one.

Americans Lead Canada Cup, Japs Next, Canadians Fourth

By WILL GRIMSLEY

TOKYO (AP)—A course-record 67 by Sam Snead and a fine 69 by Jimmy Demaret sent the United States off to an imposing five-stroke lead over a surprising Japanese tandem today in defence of the international Canada Cup golf championship.

Nine points back of the Americans were Canada's Stan Leonard and Al Balding, whose 145 total scored for a tie with the Australian entry in fourth place.

Putting for the Kasumigaseki Country Club's rough koral grass greens as if they were marble-topped, Snead and Demaret collassed handpicked professionals from 29 other nations in the opening round of the 72-hole medal play tournament.

Five strokes back came Toraichi Nakamura and Koichi Ono, who finished to the applause of a partisan gallery of some 6,000. Nakamura, 42, a "teaching professional, shot a 68, and Ono a 72 for 141.

RECORD WAS 69

The competitive course record for this picturesque 6,895-yard layout previously was 69, held by Tokyo players.

Two strokes back of the Japanese at 143 came the young South African team of Harold Henning and Gary Player, who shot 71 and 72, respectively.

Australia's twosome of Peter Thomson, three-time British Open champion, and Bruce Crampton, was nine strokes back at 145, tied with the strong Canadians. Thomson shot 72, getting 3 pars, and Crampton had 73.

Leonard of Lachute, Que., shot a one-under-par 71 and Balding of Toronto a 74.

"I didn't play well at all—I was fortunate," said Leonard. "It was bad driving and more bad driving all day long," he added.

The English team of Peter Alliss, Jr., and Ken Bousfield tied for sixth place with the twosome from Wales, Dai Rees and David Thomas. Both teams scored 146 with each member shooting a 72.

Snead was exuberant after his round although he said "I was driving poorly."

Jimmy and me were putting those greens like they were bent grass. I've got a big old heavy-headed putter so I just drew back and whacked it and the ball went home."

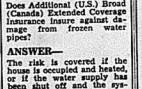
Demaret said his early pulling troubles were due to his timidity in stroking the ball.

"On the back nine I started hitting the ball solid," Demaret, 47, Kiamesha Lake, N.Y., professional, said. "And boy they just went straight into the cup. But I never saw a man putt like that Snead."

Snead, 45, of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., sank two putts of 25 feet, another of 12 and made a sensational recovery on the short 18th hole when his drive embedded in the sand, almost out of sight.



Both Demaret and Snead finished dramatically by sinking birdies on the final hole when the Japanese crowd lining the fairways and framing the green watched in complete silence.

The tournament decides championships in both individual and team competition, the latter based on combined scores of the two representatives. The International Trophy is awarded to the individual winner and the Canada Cup to the team. Snead and Ben Hogan won last year at Wentworth, England.

The tournament ends Sunday.

Flanked by the two new cars she won on "Who Am I?" Mrs. W. P. Hurley of St. John, N.B., happily accepts the rest of her prizes, a cheque for $1400. Mrs. Hurley is the latest winner on "Who Am I?", Canada Packers popular radio quiz, heard on radio station CJBQ every Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 11.15 a.m. Shown are, left to right, Jim Armstrong, of CFRB, Saint John; W. K. Tait, Sales Manager of Austin Motor Car Company, F. A. Baxter, Saint John Manager of Canada Packers and Mrs. Hurley.

AT THE BELLE — Mary Fickett tells her divorced husband, Bing Crosby, that she intends to fight for the custody of their young son, in "Man on Fire". The Sol C. Siegel production for M.G.M. unfolds a gripping drama of the effects of divorce on a boy and his estranged parents. Inger Stevens, E. G. Marshall and Malcolm Broderick, are starred in the new film, continuing tonight, Friday and Saturday at the Belle Theatre.

AT THE PARK — Railroad detective Alan Ladd, up against a gang of train wreckers, gets a worried handshake from William Demarest in the above scene from "Whispering Smith", spectacular Technicolor Western opening a repeat engagement today at the Park Theatre, which lasts until Saturday. Ladd gives an unusual portrayal as he co-stars with Robert Preston and Brenda Marshall. And on the same program Hunte Hall and the Bowery Boys in "Looking For Danger", a Belleville first showing.

Three Superb Singers Badly Let Down by Variety Writers

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — Many of the popular singers who are presenting their own television shows must have awakened to a disturbing fact by this time. They are not being judged only as singers and performers, as hosts and hostesses; they're also being judged on the basis of their alleged comedy scripts.

It's an unfortunate state of affairs in this season of "variety" programs — unfortunate for the public as well as the stars.

There was a time when a singer simply sang, when a host hosted and a hostess hostessed. But not any more. Now they're asked to get hearty laughs as comedians and comediennes too. Possibly they could do it if their writers handed them the material—which, by and large, they haven't thus far.

THREE EXAMPLES

In the last week, for example, three superb singers and performers launched a new season on TV programs. As singers and performers they were excellent. But two, and to a lesser degree the third, were badly let down by their writers.

Dinah Shore returned to a new season on NBC-TV, happy to report. She has the same sparkle and winsomeness that always marks her performances. When she sang numbers such as I'll Never Say Never Again, it was the entertainment.

Her guests were well-chosen, too: Nanette Fabray, Danny Thomas, Tab Hunter, Dean Jones. Thomas wisely always brings in his own material with him. But the others, including Miss Shore, were caught in an embarrassing predicament when the script called for hearty laughs and they couldn't supply them. It wasn't there. The writers completely missed the essence of Miss Shore's and Miss Fabray's personalities.

Caught in a similar predicament was Frank Sinatra, who has started his own program on ABC-TV (Fridays, 9 p.m., EDT). He could have been finer than Sinatra singing such songs as The Lady is a Tramp.

His principal guests seemed wisely chosen, too: Bob Hope and Kim Novak. But all three were entangled in a long and humorless sketch that involved Miss Novak, being chased around the world by Sinatra and Hope. Miss Novak's boredom with it was showing. You couldn't blame her.

It was not actually a comedy script which was handed to them.

The third singer who made her debut with a regular TV program was Patrice Munsel (ABC-TV, Fridays, 8:30 p.m., EDT). It was a delightful show. Relatively, she was the most successful of the three.

Why? From this corner because she did not strive as hard for comedy as the others.

'Ole Archie' Meets Spieser In Detroit

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit, which hasn't had a championship boxing match since Ezzard Charles decisioned Jersey Joe Walcott in 15 rounds on March 7, 1951, has officially been awarded a January light heavyweight title bout.

The contracts were officially drawn up and signed Wednesday. Moore and his co-managers, Doc Kearns and Charlie Johnston, have a choice of a $100,000 guarantee or 40 per cent of the net receipts, including TV money.

The 28-year-old challenger last fought in April and was knocked out by Tony Anthony in three rounds at Olympic Stadium. Anthony in turn was knocked out by Moore in seven rounds a couple of months later in Los Angeles.

Should Spieser defeat Moore, the contracts call for a return bout within 90 days, again in Detroit. The Detroit fighter gets 20 per cent of the net receipts.

Lady 'Rasslers' May Be Banned In Montreal

MONTREAL (CP)—The Montreal Athletic Commission has initiated legal steps believed aimed to stopping female wrestling bouts.

Promoters Lawrence Serchuck and Sylvio Samson were ordered Tuesday by Judge Omer Legrand to appear at a later date.

Serchuck is to be charged with not having the necessary permit for a wrestling card held in the east-end Palais des Sports last week. Samson is accused of not having paid sums required by law to defray certain costs set by the commission for city arenas. Four occasions are cited.

Female wrestling is not specifically listed in the charges but it is understood to be behind the court action.

Inger Stevens Is Compared To Ingrid Bergman, Kelly

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Being a Swede, Inger Stevens has naturally been compared with Ingrid Bergman. Being fresh-faced and blonde, she has been compared with Grace Kelly.

"Though they are complimentary, I hate comparisons," says Inger. "I suppose they are the result of a laziness of description: people can't think up new adjectives, so they make comparisons. But I'd rather be known as Inger Stevens."

My bet is that she will get her way. Already she has made a fine impression as Bing Crosby's leading lady in Man on Fire. She went on to Cry Terror with James Mason, and now is playing opposite Yul Brynner in The Buccaneer.

What does she have?

She is strikingly beautiful, as Bergman and Kelly were. She is also a convincing dramatic actress. And Inger is warm and friendly, which the two noted expatriates were not.

What's more, she's got a dimple!

"Yes, I've always had it," she sighed. "I'm not so sure it's an asset. My grandmother used to say a dimple was a sign of a structural deficiency."

INTERESTING NATIONS

Inger is full of interesting notions. At lunch she took her fruit juice with a chaser — "the body can't absorb juice in such concentrated form." She is a great one for bran muffins and yogurt, and her lunch consisted of juice, green beans and rice. But you can't knock such a diet when you see the results on her.

Inger came to the United States at 10, lived in both Manhattans — New York and Kansas. She grew up in the latter, where her father was a teacher at Kansas State Agricultural College.

"I've been supporting myself since I was 15," she related. "I've done everything, including taking inventory at Montgomery Ward in Kansas. What fun it was —counting wool socks with the temperature 118!"

She went back to New York and tried her hand at modelling, posing for toothpaste commercials and acting in television. The latter gave her seasoning (as it did Grace Kelly) and brought her to the attention of movie makers.

Dodgers Get Big Welcome In Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Big league baseball has flown into Los Angeles and a tumultuous welcome.

Hundreds of spectators strained against ropes Wednesday night as the chartered plane carrying the vanguard of the Los Angeles Dodgers set down on the International airport runway.

A U.S. senator was jostled unnoticed in the crush. Even an old National League umpire, Beans Reardon, was smiling.

President Walter O'Malley was the first of the 23 Dodger officials aboard the plane to face the throng. His beaming frisk was greeted with a loud roar.

City councilwoman Rosalind Wyman stumbled through the maze of cameras and the tangle of television and radio wires.

"Welcome to Los Angeles," she shouted into a microphone.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER
(Author of the new "Astrology and You")

(Thursday, October 24)

"The Stars Impel . . . They do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you."

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Puzzling situation can today be brought into the open if you but think and talk quickly for developments. Get busy finishing any tasks relating to finances or property. P. M. put associate in joyful mood.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) If you plan to be with the person who means the very most to you today, you will know exactly what he or she is thinking. Put on a contented smile and let the other person do all the talking. This clarifies position.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) This is a day for activity crowned with fine results — be it making the vacuum cleaner hum, the typewriter sing, the customer happily sign on the dotted line, or getting bargains. Keep working busily.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21) Make the most of this fine day for you, since the planetary aspects are most favorable, and you can accomplish much in many ways. Tonight is also fine for sports, for pleasure or cavorting with beloved ones.

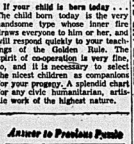
Leo (July 23 to Aug. 21) Anything you have desired to do in connection with your life or possessions can be put in motion today easily by utilizing plans already formulated in your mind and following good hunch. P. M. stay home and have fun.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) A fine day for learning just what your exact position is with partners and close friends. See to what extent they are willing to back you. Good time to spend studying, attending to social matters or those pertaining to general public, too.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Ideal day to make your environment more beautiful, practical, adding own touches which express personality best. Devise a healthful diet of new foods, and tone up system. Tonight, seek pleasure where you like best.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) The day is made especially for you, to have the stars are polced .Get in and pitch early. See everyone you know can help you with dreams and plans. P. M. meet new folks, be generous, wear a beaming smile. Have fun.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Your nature is that of a decided extrovert, but today is a rare day when introversion will help you discover the answers to any problems that have assailed you. Think them out carefully, make decisions, then act accordingly.



Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A fine day for being with dear people or with delightful number of interesting people and expressing yourself to fullest advantage. See that you co-operate intelligently and that what you're after. P. M. have more fun.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A great day for enjoying every moment at your particular, general tasks, entering the utmost therefrom, or for being sociable-minded. Things will go very well, especially if you think big and express others.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) Stop living in such a small trudging way. Step out and meet the fine people you should know, those of own class who can assist you quickly to get ahead. Don't be reticent. Co-operation is the key to real success.

If your child is born today . . . The child born today is of the very handsome type whose inner fire draws everyone to him or her, and will respond quickly to your teachings of the Golden Rule. The spirit of co-operation is very fine, to, and it is necessary to select the nicest children as companions for your progeny. A splendid chart for any civic humanitarian, artistic work of the highest nature.

Kinettes Hear Talk on Critics Of Education

TWEED — The regular meeting of the local Kinette club was held at the Hotel Tweed-muir on Monday evening with 19 members and 2 prospective members present.

The guest speaker, Mr. Gordon W. Nelson, Inspector of Public Schools, was introduced and welcomed by Janet Whitfield. Mr. Nelson gave a very interesting and beneficial talk on criticism handed out by the press, and individuals, of today regarding education. He told in great detail of the who's, where's and why's of the criticism given, who criticizes most and why. He further stated that if the criticism is of a constructive nature, it then is deemed helpful to the person or persons being criticized. Some folks, said the speaker, will constantly complain regardless of the subject or setting. The Canadian education stands ards are up to par, if not above those of any other countries, said Mr. Nelson. He was thanked by Virginia Barker on behalf of the entire Kinette Club.

Hostess Cournyea, at whose hotel the Kinettes hold their dinners, presented a prize suitable for a draw and the prize was awarded to Pauline Hughes. Two other prizes were drawn during the evening and these were won by Janet Whitfield and Trudy Silverthorne.

The tag day for the blind was a great success and it was voted at this meeting that $27 be donated to the tag day for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind from the club.

This photo by Osborne Cox of Toronto won first prize in its class in the 1957 Newspaper National Snapshot awards in Washington. There were over 35,000 entries from Canada, from U.S. and the Hawaiian islands. The two hippos greeting one another were snapped in the zoo.

GOVT. PROPOSES CASH ADVANCES ON STORED GRAIN

Clears First Hurdle By Vote of 138-3

OTTAWA (CP)—One of the government's major election pledges — a $100,000,000 proposal to provide Prairie growers with interest-free cash advances on farm-stored grain — has cleared its first Commons hurdle in a 138-3 vote.

The legislation, which Prime Minister Diefenbaker hopes to have in operation by Nov. 1, comes before the House today for detailed scrutiny. But Thursday's initial debate indicated it will get fairly swift passage.

A vote on the initial resolution preceding introduction of the bill showed opposition from only three Easterners Canadian Liberals: A. Wesley Stuart, Charlotte, N.B.; Wilfrid LaCroix, Quebec Montmorency; and Georges Villeneuve, Roberval, Que.

Three other eastern Liberals joined in asking the government to extend the benefits of cash advances—or some similar legislation—to farmers across Canada. They were J. C. Doucett, Yukon; J. Armand Landry, Dorchester; and E. Blake Huffman, Kent, Ont.

Mr. Stuart, a 55-year-old fisherman, opposed the measure on the ground that similar cash advances free of interest were not available to him or all other primary producers. Mr. LaCroix and Mr. Villeneuve did not speak in the debate.

PROVIDES PAYMENT

Introducing the Trade Minister Churchill, the scheme would provide western farmers with an advance payment of 75 cents a bushel for wheat, 35 cents for barley or 50 cents for oats, on the basis of a maximum six bushels for each specified acre of cultivated production. Maximum advance to any farmer would be $2,000.

Congressmen Discover People Deeply Worried by 'Sputnik'

WASHINGTON (AP)—The next session of Congress may well become known as the "Sputnik session."

Members have been travelling far and wide during congress off-season. The word is seeping back that they find the Soviet satellite a prime topic of public concern, right behind such local and more immediately pressing problems as jobs and prices.

This naturally will encourage the Democrats — who say that they need much encouragement — to hitch onto the satellite as an issue against the Eisenhower administration.

They can count on some help from Republicans. Only Wednesday Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire lit into President Eisenhower's foreign economic adviser, Clarence Randall, for calling Sputnik "a silly bauble."

Bridges said the Randall comment was "grossly misleading and irresponsible." The New Hampshire senator is one of a group of legislators who want Senate investigation of the country's satellite and missile program.

President Eisenhower himself has indicated concern over public reaction to Sputnik. He plans a series of speeches—rather urgent in tone, it appears—to reassure the American people about their country's scientific and military progress among other things.

Eisenhower has said that while Sputnik shows the Russians have a mighty rocket it doesn't indicate they've gone ahead of the country's security. Apparently he now feels it necessary to explain why he feels this way, in the light of evidence that his confidence is not too generally shared.

Eisenhower may be able to allay his speeches to take off some of the heat. The armed forces may do the same thing by some impressive demonstrations in the missile field. But the fact is the country is in a mood to listen the first to launch an artificial moon. And the question naturally arises: What else may they be first in?

DR. J. A. McCUE RETAINS LANARK FOR PC PARTY

Defeats Liberal By Big Majority

CARLETON PLACE, Ont. (CP) In a two-way fight that indicated its outcome with the first returns, country doctor John Arthur McCue of Perth has retained for the Progressive Conservatives the Ontario legislature's Lanark constituency.

The 45-year-old physician and surgeon defeated Liberal E. Scott Buchell, mayor of Perth and Lanark's deputy-reeve, in a byelection caused by the resignation of George Doucett, long-time Ontario highways minister.

Mr. Doucett vacated the seat to make room for a new representation when Dr. William G. Blair ran shortly after he was re-elected in the June 10 general elections. Dr. Blair had been Lanark's MP since 1945. Mr. Doucett won on acclamation.

When counting finished for the night the returns from 121 of 124 polls showed 8,662 votes for Dr. McCue, to 8,256 for Buchell, giving the victor a 6,408 - vote lead. Mr. Doucett's majority was 6,441 in the 1955 provincial election, when balloting was light.

SAYS "PATHETIC"

Only about one-half of the eligible 24,000 voters turned out in performance Mr. Buchell called "pathetic." Heavy rain fell throughout the day.

The campaign, in which provincial leaders of both parties participated, often turned upon the Progressive Conservatives' record since assuming power in Ontario in 1943.

At his Lindsay home Premier Frost said Dr. McCue's victory "will be a further incentive to us to carry on the good work in the government" of Ontario."

Macmillan Urges Mid-East Plan For Economic Aid

Wants Britain and States To Pool Assistance Work

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prime Minister Macmillan ends his crucial talks with President Eisenhower today on a note, it was reported, of urging a joint economic aid program for the Middle East.

Macmillan has a final afternoon meeting with Eisenhower at the White House before taking off for home. His schedule called for a stop in Ottawa, to talk to Canadian Prime Minister Diefenbaker, en route back to London.

As a luncheon guest, Eisenhower had Paul-Henri Spaak, secretary general of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Macmillan, Secretary of State Dulles and Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd arranged to join them at coffee time.

Spaak's presence symbolized British-American efforts to keep the talks, which started Wednesday, from appearing to shut out the other European Allies.

SEEK RED COUNTER

There was no definite advance word whether Macmillan and Eisenhower would issue a communique summing up the talks. But it was made clear by officials that the main burden was to seek ways of countering Soviet propaganda and political gains arising from the Reds' scientific advances.

The British are understood to have pressed for agreement on intermediate range missiles (about 1,500 miles). They were prepared to a supply at the Macmillan-Eisenhower conference in Bermuda last March. But no action has been delivered because of delays in development.

British dissatisfaction with the Eisenhower plan for the Middle East is no secret. Nor have the Americans made any bones about what they consider the misguided British intervention in the Suez Canal Zone a year ago.

Macmillan is reported to have brought to Eisenhower a suggestion that their two countries pool efforts to give economic aid to the underdeveloped but resource-rich Middle East.

But the major British concern has to do with science and the British would like it, it is understood, is a kind of international partnership with the U.S. under which the United States produced the world's first atomic bomb.

This, however, is impossible under present U.S. law restricting sharing of atomic secrets.

Dulles has called the law obsolete. Macmillan and Prime Minister Pres Clift Thursday it was outdated.

Eisenhower is expected to ask Congress to ease the restrictions, if it is high indications are that might be difficult to do.

The Americans are reported to have expressed interest in learning more about how Britain's nuclear-power industry operates. If any swap were in prospect, some officials said, it would involve Britain's peaceful atomic knowledge for U.S rocket missiles.

Swedish Prince Is Accused in Extortion Case

STOCKHOLM (Reuters) — Prince Carl Bernadotte of the Swedish royal family today was accused of complicity in an $85,000 extortion case.

The 46-year-old prince, first member of Sweden's royal family ever to stand accused in such a case, is charged with complicity in the crime.

The court charges Prince Carl with guilt of complicity in extortion because he "made no protest against the action" when Gutenberg tried to take advantage of the spinster's affection for him.

Gutenberg allegedly told Miss Stephens about being threatened with bankruptcy in which Prince Carl would be involved.

To save the prince, the prosecutor said, Miss Stephens signed two bills of exchange worth 425,000 Swedish crowns (about $85,000).

Lobbying Until Last Minute Before UN Debate on Syria

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) With the big powers lobbying to the last minute, the United Nations General Assembly was called into session today to resume the debate on the Turkish-Syrian crisis.

The actual issue for assembly consideration was Syria's formal complaint; made earlier this month, that Turkey was massing troops on the Syrian border and was planning an armed invasion as soon as this weekend's Turkish election is out of the way.

The complaint has resulted in some of the bitterest debate of the 12th assembly session which opened Sept. 17. More of the same was in prospect after Syria expressed her intention of taking the assembly floor again at the outset of the renewed discussion here.

RUSSIAN THREATS

Soviet army and navy units were reported manoeuvring on the approaches to Turkey. One repor. said ground forces are training in the use of atomic weapons. The army newspaper Red Star said manoeuvres were conducted successfully in the trans-Caucasus area where Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky has been placed in command.

The newspaper Dawn of the East, published in the Georgian capital of Tiflis, said the border troops are "studying the art of combat under difficult conditions, taking into account the use of atomic weapons and other means of modern warfare."

MEDIATOR'S RULE

The assembly had shelved the question for three days to allow mediation by King Saud of Saudi Arabia a chance to get under way without the distraction of public statements at the UN. But Syria's reluctance to participate in any talks in Saud's capital threw the question back to the assembly.

Hal Syria indicated that she might meet Turkish representatives under the good offices of the Arab monarch, the assembly probably would have continued the postponement of debate indefinitely. But the Syrian attitude since Turkey accepted the mediation offer has made clear that the Damascus government is more partial to the UN sounding board than any closed-door discussions on the substance of the border dispute.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis:

With a dome of very cold air centred over southern Saskatchewan, northerly winds and below freezing temperatures extend from Manitoba to Quebec this morning.

Only a slow southeastward motion is expected for this cold air, thus there should be little change in weather over the province through Saturday. Below freezing temperatures are expected to continue over all the province tonight.

Gets Two Years For Stabbing of Wife's Lover

BROCKVILLE (CP) — Brian Granton, 24 - year - old electrical worker, was sentenced Thursday to two years less a day definite in reformatory and six months indefinite for the knife-slaying of Edward Marchand, 20, of Windsor.

Granton, originally charged with murder, pleaded guilty to manslaughter a few hours before he was sentenced.

Mr. Justice Rene Dandi told the jury Granton had been driven to the act by the most extensive type of provocation possible. Defence Counsel J. J. Robinette said Marchand has taken advantage of his being a guest in Granton's home to seduce Granton's wife.

The jury announced its verdict of manslaughter without leaving the room.

No mention was made in passing sentence of the eight months Granton, a native of Paris, Ont., served while awaiting trial for the Feb. 12 slaying of Marchand, a former carnival worker.

Edwin McDonald Gets 7 Years in Narcotics Case

TORONTO (CP) — Edwin McDonald, 23, was sentenced today to seven years in Kingston penitentiary for possession of narcotics for the purpose of trafficking.

McDonald was remanded for sentence Thursday night after conviction by a county court jury.

Judge Samuel Factor said the court will hear a further charge against McDonald of abscondind $50,000 bail. McDonald failed to answer the drug charge in May, 1956. He was arrested in Weston, a Toronto suburb, last February.

The jury's verdict rejected a plea for acquittal by Defence counsel Malcolm Robb who said McDonald had been framed by the RCMP.

Radio Stations in Vancouver Face Possible Lord's Day Act Charges

VANCOUVER (CP) — If you can't watch professional baseball on Sundays in Vancouver, it may be equally illegal to play the city golf course or to participate in a civic-owned miniature golf course.

City prosecutor Stewart Mc-Mordan startled members of the Vancouver police committee Thursday night when he named the city, his employer, as a violation of the Lord's Day Act.

Brig. William Murphy, a committee member, urged that action be taken against radio broadcasting stations and the Vancouver Symphony Orchestra for breaking the law.

In December, 1955, the council asked voters by plebiscite whether they wanted to have commercial sport Sunday afternoons: The answer was an uncertain yes by a majority of 1,000 votes in the 2,000 in favor among 75,000 people who voted.

The league council decided not to press the provincial government for amendments to allow Sunday afternoon paid sport. The British Columbia government declined to act on the plebiscite.

This same reluctance to make the first move continued through last summer when Vancouver Mounties of the Pacific Coast League played three Sunday baseball doubleheaders here in defiance of the ban. The games were finally brought to court and fined $50 each on each of three counts of infringing the Lord's Day Act.

Get Wheat to Hungry Folk Socred's Surplus Solution

OTTAWA (CP) — Out of the continuing storm of Canadian protests about the United States agricultural surplus disposal program has come one voice in favor of it as a means of feeding the world's hungry.

"I think that the United States today is giving a wonderful example of what can and should be gotten to hungry people," Victor Quelch (SC—Canada) said in the Commons Thursday.

He said he does not agree with interpretations that refusal to accept is a possible solution to Canada's wheat surplus problem.

"I do not believe there is any necessity of reducing acreage," said Mr. Quelch, his party's agricultural spokesman.

"In the light of the world situation today, when 60 per cent of the population of the world underfed, our problem is to find ways and means of getting the wheat to the people who are hungry."

At another point he said:

"Instead of worrying about reducing acreage, let the government explore every means of getting wheat to the hungry nations who are unable to obtain it through normal channels of trade.

"Let the government make that wheat available to those that have not currency or by barter or—in the case of absolute distress—by gift."

Business as Usual Is Theme Where New War May Start

THE TURKISH-SYRIAN BORDER (AP)—Across the Turkish border is worrying about is full of soldiers, sunshine and business as usual.

Six divisions of Turkish infantry and armor are bunched in a belt 60 miles near the frontier.

Tents, trucks and tanks line winding Highway 36. Planes are busy with military traffic and tanned, tough Turkish soldiers guard the roads.

There are sheep in the fields as well as soldiers, and farm trucks are on roads.

But in Ankara the government watched anxiously the mounting evidence of a Soviet buildup in Syria. Last August, when leftists took over the Syrian army and the Red buildup increased, Turkey moved more of her army to the border.

The army is here, Turkey insists, on manoeuvres. But Syria and Turkey are threatening Russia have claimed the Turks are making Syria aggression.

Talks with Turkish and other military sources indicate Turkey would not attack Syria. She is taking defensive potential in light of the Soviet-Syrian buildup.

For the Turks have no fear of the Syrians. They are concerned with the Soviet buildup on the border and the possibility the Russians could use those arms against Turkey.

A visit to the border bears out these reports. The Turkish army appear placed here in defensive positions. There is no talk of aggression.

Murder Inc. Executioner Shot at Barber's

NEW YORK (AP) — Albert Anastasia, gangland chieftain, was shot and killed today by two masked men in a hotel barber shop.

The gunmen pumped three bullets into Anastasia as he sat in a barber chair, with the barber's white apron around him, at the Park Sheraton in the heart of Manhattan.

Anastasia, one of gangland's most feared men for 20 years, was reputed to be the chief executioner for Murder Inc., a hired kill-for-pay ring—Murder Incorporated. He had been implicated in at least 31 murders.

BROTHER TONY WEEPS

The killing took place about 10:20 a.m.

Scores of police immediately surrounded the hotel and kept everyone out of the barber shop. However, Anastasia's body for a time could be seen through glass doors of the shop.

Non-Operating Rail Employees Ask Wage Boost

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's 100,000 non-operating railway employees want to submit new collective agreement demands by November 15, it was learned today.

Chairman Frank Hall of the joint negotiating committee of 15 unions said the public should meet here next Tuesday to put forward "their own ideas" at the meeting earlier decided "substantial" wage increases will be sought, plus "certain revisions, and an eighth statutory holiday and a revised system of overtime-and-a-quarter plan begun last Jan. 1.

Mr. Hall said the details probably will be made public "about the same time" they are submitted to the railways. The latter are expected to oppose them strongly.

SOME SPORT

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — Assault charges were filed against 11 youths Thursday for alleged participation in a savage sport called "man rounding-up."

Clubbing of transients in Helena's hobo jungle, police said in a complaint, invaded the railroad area where hobos congregate and attacked the men without cause. Some were beaten with clubs, pipes and belts.

Housewife Refuses Gift of Castle And 20,000 Pounds-Can't Afford It

EMSWORTH, England (AP)—A romantic knight has turned down a 60-room castle and £20,000. She said she'd carry on with her family in their 10-room house.

Mrs. Anne Alington, 36, wife of a naval officer and mother of three, inherited Stansted Park at Wemyss at Skelmorlie, Renfewshire, by her uncle Lord Inverclyde, who died last June. He willed her the £20,000 on condition she live there at least 10 years.

Said Mrs. Alington:

"My husband and I have twisted all the figures round as hard as we can, but the answer is still the same — we can't afford it."

Under the will the castle, now will be offered in turn to each of Mrs. Alington's three younger children.

All three live in Scotland and none seems keen on taking over. They are Miss Margaret Dundas, 21, told reporters: "I'm not the marrying kind. Freer Trade With Japan, India Advocated by Speaker At Warden McLaren's Dinner

Freer trade with Japan and India, and a more earnest attempt by Western Democratic countries to help solve the problems of nations in the Middle East were advocated by Lord Lothian in raising the economic standards of these nations and prevent their turning toward communism.

This was the advice heard Thursday evening by guests at the annual Hastings County Warden's Banquet given by Warden Leslie McLaren at the Masonic Temple and attended by approximately 300 persons.

Guest speaker was Rev. George W. Goth, pastor of Metropolitan United Church in London, Ont., who has recently completed a two-month trip around the world visiting such countries as Japan and India, and the Middle and Far East.

"Japan needs our wheat, iron ore and Kenagami pulp, and if them we must be prepared to purchase in return some of the things which they can make much better than we can," he said.

This was merely the advice of an amateur in world economics, he said, as the work for the blind, Goth told his listeners.

"Talking to him about the title of "Why Christ Can't Read", Mr. Goth said people of the Western nations could not read because not see the handwriting on the wall. The Asian masses must be emancipated, he declared, or they would swing to communism."

COULD LOSE ASIA

"Asia could be lost to Democracy, all Asia would be lost and possibly all of Africa, he said.

India was looking to the West for help and if its second five-year plan succeeds there are good chances of its 400,000,000 people turning to communism would be remote, he said.

The people of India are in a surprising degree pro-communist, but the people were mad at the United States because they feel this country was driving them to communism against their will.

"There can be no peace in the East until the plight of the Arab refugee is solved, and to solve this problem the entire Middle East must be solved.

The reason for much of the unrest in Asian countries was that these people have learned of high living standards in the Western countries.

WANT HIGHER STANDARD

"They want food, they want to learn to read and write, they want a high standard of living and this is not to be denied to have."

"If we can help them we should — if we help them to grow we need not fear the future."

Hastings county councillors, county and district municipal officials, attended the banquet and heard tribute paid to the 1937 county warden, who was followed in his father's steps. Forty years ago—back in 1917, Peter McLaren of Tyendinaga township, served his county as warden. Last night, as the eldest living county warden, Mr. McLaren recalled that the McLaren roots went deep in Tyendinaga. The first township council meeting he attended was in his grandfather's house. He was happy that his son Leslie had followed in the footsteps of county warden.

Warden McLaren said that in looking back he had many pleasant memories of his year as warden, which, he said had been "one of the best years of my life."

He expressed his thanks to members of county council, committee members and county officials, who had done much to make the year's work a success. He regretted that through illness, Mrs. McLaren, Graham, of Tweed, was unable to be present.

RESPOND TO ADDRESS

Responding to the warden's address of welcome were Alfred Wetherell, Reeve of Thurlow; Reeve J. N. Brown, of Bancroft and Kenneth Yorke, superintendent of Hastings County home.

The toast to the guests was proposed by Reeve William Shannon of Marmora village, with response by Mayor Jane Forrester of Belleville; Melvin G. Fuller, warden of Prince Edward County and Mrs. Elmer Sandercock.

Mayor Forrester in her response, brought greetings from Belleville, which she referred to as the county seat of Hastings. She recalled early history of the county and said it was a privilege to be able to bring congratulations to Warden McLaren for what had been a year of achievement.

In bringing greetings from the county of Prince Edward, Warden Pulver referred to the splendid relations which existed between the two municipalities.

These good relations had been proven by the getting up of a joint committee to wait on the provincial government with the view of having the provincial take over what he referred to as the "white elephant", Highway No. 41, between Desoronto and Green Point on the Bay of Quinte.

He said the province would be asked to bear the cost of the bridge construction at this point, pointing to the necessity of this by the use of the equipment in the area which will come as result of the St. Lawrence Seaway.

SURPRISE VISITORS

A surprise visitor at the banquet was Dr. Smith, who is Ontario's new minister for External Affairs, with Senator George S. White and Mrs. White at his table.

Dr. Smith said he had been happy to respond to the invitation to attend the Hastings county Warden's banquet and paid tribute to the traditions of the Irish and Highland generations of his family present.

Such families were the very basis of Canadian strength, he said.

In lighter vein, and in veiled reference to the forthcoming by-election in the riding of the late Hon. Frontenac where he will seek a seat in the house of commons next month, Dr. Smith said that as this was not a political meeting he would say very little about politics.

"But in spite of the fact that I have a very strong opinion in my mind me, I am still looking for a seat," he said amid laughter from his audience.

And on a date when many of the male guests present were following deer, he also said he would be hunting, he said.

In closing he paid tribute to municipal governments which he said were closer to the people than any other form of government. The increasing problems said responsibilities of providing for various municipal services demanded that the highest calibre men be in these positions.

Perennial chairman of Wardens' banquets in Hastings, Clerk-Treasurer Orvis Dexter presided over the program and read a congratulatory telegram from Reeve Reeve Lloyd H. Price of Elzevir and Grimsthorpe, introduced guest speaker with thanks to Mr. Goth being expressed by Reeve Byron Hagerman of Sidney township. Mr. H. W. Rose, reeve of Frankford village, expressed thanks to the ladies of Melrose United Church who catered to the tuneful banquet. Response was by Mrs. J. Milligan, Mr. J. Robinson, pastor of Melrose church, who pronounced the invocation.

On behalf of the county council, Deputy Reeve Charles Lone of Tyendinaga, and Reeve James Kinsella of Rungeford township, made presentations to Warden and Mrs. McLaren, while family recognition was given by Marilyn from their grandchildren.

Professional entertainment compliments of H. J. McFarland Construction Company of Picton, was thoroughly enjoyed by the banquet guests.

Minister Will Present Report At Meeting

Hon. W. N. Nickle, Minister for Planning and Development for the province of Ontario, will present the department survey report of the Napanee River to the Napanee River Conservation Authority at a luncheon meeting in Napanee.

The meeting is scheduled for October 31st with invited guests only to attend.

Following the luncheon the various aspects of the report will be discussed by authority members. Slides of the various projects will be shown by Department officials.

Role of Foremen On 'Manpower' Subject of Talk

Guest speaker earlier this week at the October meeting of the Quinte and District Foremen's Club was R. H. Nicholson, director of personnel services, Ontario Hydro Commission, Toronto.

Introduced by Lin Johnston of Northern Cement, Mr. Nicholson spoke at some length on "Manpower" and how it affects the role of foremen.

Mr. Nicholson showed a profound knowledge of his subject and used many interesting everyday situations and occurrences to illustrate his address. As a man responsible for the manpower planning and training for the Hydro Commission, Mr. Nicholson brought his listeners a wealth of information relating to the work and responsibilities of foremen and supervisors. He stressed the importance of how men being much more than skilled workmen in their part of the job and explained that men in the capacity of foremen should adjust themselves to situation from every angle, so that the men over whom they exert authority will come to their best results.

He pointed out that because of specialization in industry today, the worker is becoming separated from management and ownership, and foremen now have greater part to play from the firing line and explained that foremen in the capacity of foremen should endeavor to see the effect your attitudes and behaviour are having on the manpower you come in contact with."

Mr. Nicholson said that because productivity of manpower within an organization. There is a growing need to a foreman's job than being a boss and seeing that the day's quota is filled. He must be a psychologist, cost accountant, father confessor and he must understand labor laws and be able to interpret them so that the department he is running will run smoothly getting the best and most from the manpower.

Finally, Mr. Nicholson explained that it is of vital importance that a foreman has a thorough knowledge of the services and activities of other groups that he has to come in contact with in the discharge of his duties. A foreman should at all times be ready to over-change his ing scene in industry and be ready to accept personnel adjustments when these changes occur.

"Many an otherwise smart man has failed to look sharp aside because he has not been willing or ready to adjust himself to sudden changes," concluded Mr. Nicholson.

He was introduced by Rudy Woodward of the Bata Shoe Co. and a hearty vote of thanks tendered to the Foremen's Club was given to Peter (Pete) Seibert, a charter member of the club. The presentation was made by Lionel Blaker, president.

The club's next meeting will be November 26 when John Harrow, general manager of the London YMCA will present "The Eternal Triangle." Next month's meeting will be the annual ladies' night.

Twenty-one new members were welcomed into the club.

Obituary

HAROLD OWEN McINERNEY

Stricken suddenly with a heart attack, Harold Owen McInerney, 49 MacDonald Gardens, died early today at his home. He was in his 62nd year.

A native of Richibucto, N.B., Mr. McInerney was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward McInerney. He was a graduate of St. Francis Xavier at Antigonish, Nova Scotia, and later took his B.Sc. degree at New Brunswick University where he graduated in engineering.

Before coming to Belleville about a year ago to live in retirement he was manager of the Price Brothers Paper Mills at Kenagami in Quebec.

A veteran of both World Wars, he served five years in World War 1 and for four years in World War 2 with the R.C.A.M.C., retiring from the Army with the rank of Lieut.-Colonel.

He was a member of St. Joseph's Parish in Belleville and also belonged to the Belleville Rotary Club.

Surviving are his wife, the former Mabel Carter, and two sons, Edward of North Bay, and Gerald of Kenagami, Que. Also surviving are two brothers, Burke of Ottawa, and Edwin of Moncton, N.B.

GEORGE H. KNOWLES

TWEED — The funeral of the late George H. Knowles took place Friday, October 22nd, from the Bush Funeral Home, Tweed, with interment in Victoria Cemetery. Mr. Knowles died on Tuesday morning, October 19, who was in his 88th year, was born near Bogart, Ont., and one of many children. His wife, the former Eda Brown, died in 1917 at Bogart.

The bearers were members of Tweed A. F. and A. M. of which he was a former member.

He is survived by two sons,

CHARLES PATRICK SMITH

STIRLING — The funeral of Charles Patrick Smith was held from the Duffin Funeral Home to St. Michael's Church on Tuesday morning, October 12, for Requiem High Mass at 9 o'clock, Father Canning officiating.

Interment was in St. James' cemetery.

MISS GENEVIEVE SHANNON

MARMORA — Requiem Mass for the late Genevieve Shannon was celebrated in Sacred Heart Church, Miss Hagarty, on Thursday morning at 10 a.m. Rev. W. P. Healey was in the sanctuary and sang the Requiem prayers. The bearers were Joseph Murray, James Reid, Bernard Doyle, Donald Shannon jr., Kenneth Courneya and John Shannon.

Interment was in Sacred Heart Cemetery.

ARTHUR GILKINSON CONDIE

MARMORA — The funeral of Major Arthur G. Condie was held Thursday afternoon from the Howden Funeral Home to St. Paul's Anglican Church for service by Rev. Canon G. D. Fleming.

The bearers were Norman Segsus, John Green, William Bonter, F. G. Loveless, Percy Gray, and John Robinson.

Interment was in Marmora Protestant Cemetery.

GEORGE G. VANDEWATER
Corbyville

In ill health for the past two years, George G. Vandewater, 1 Vandewater, R.R. 1, Corbyville, died at his residence on Thursday afternoon.

He was born at Plainfield 84 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Wellington Vandewater, and had resided near Corbyville for the past 61 years, where he was well known and highly respected.

He was a successful farmer in the community, moving to Corbyville district after living in Plainfield.

He was a member of Carmel United Church and surviving are his wife, the former Frances Simpson, and one niece, Mrs. Fred C. Vandervaart of Toronto, and Lyall Vandewater at home.

21 Members White Cane Club Enjoy Meeting

Despite the inclement weather 21 members of the White Cane Club turned out for their monthly meeting Thursday night at the YMCA.

After a welcoming speech by club president Clarence Morris, a short business meeting was held and a flower fun was taken up which netted $2.70.

October birthdays were announced for Mrs. S. O'Shea, Tom Simpson, Mrs. W. Maracle and Ted Rowe. Since Ted was the only one present a special song was sung to him.

Stories from the National News for the Blind and the CCB Outlook were read to the members. One story titled "How Can Do It Too," was a source of encouragement to the blind to help themselves. In reading of "A Small Boy's Prayer" was also enjoyed by the members.

The members were entertained by many delightful selections on the guitar and harmonica by Mrs. J. A. Kingston, Miss Hagarty, yodelling selections by Ted Rowe. The guests joined in a lively singsong and also a promenade.

A lunch, prepared by the Kinsmettes, was partaking which, a surprise cake, decorated for hallowe'en and furnished by Mrs. Black was brought in and described to the members before being cut and served.

Thanks were extended to the Kinsettes, Miss Hagarty and Mrs. Kingston by Jim Brennan.

Discover Body On RMC Grounds

KINGSTON (CP)—The body of Lieut. Robert Yule Williams, missing officer at Royal Military College, was found during the night by a watchman making rounds of the college grounds.

Cmdr. D. W. Piers, RMC commandant, said there was a gash in William's forehead and it was believed he died in a fall from a three-foot wall which surrounds a campus park.

Williams, 38, was born in Melita, Man., and served in the ranks during the Second World War. He re-enlisted in 1949 and was commissioned last year in the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps.

Williams' wife and three children live here.

A.O. Drysdale Gives Talk to H-S Assoc.

The regular monthly meeting of the Point Anne Home and School Association was held on Wednesday evening in the school auditorium.

The program opened with a duet by Linda Redmond and Vivian Lloyd "Brahms Lullaby" followed by "I Come to the Garden".

Thorold Horwood introduced the guest speaker, Mr. A. O. Drysdale. Mr. Drysdale said how proud all the parents must be to have the graduates in attendance and know they were continuing their education. He hoped they would go to universities and or colleges. Anyone, he said, who could get through high school with good grades should not find college too difficult.

He went on to say that the age of automation is here, and though only in its infancy must be accepted, that automation was made by man, maintained by man, to serve man. It could help create a higher standard of living. He said no one should be frightened of the thoughts of automation but accept it and prepare to adopt themselves to the new conditions which the automatic age will bring.

Mrs. Hart thanked Mr. Drysdale for his address and handed him the pins for the graduates. He presented these in turn to Joan Wilson and Douglas Ellis with complimentary remarks. Douglas Cox was absent due to illness. Mrs. Dorothy Hart, the president, acted as chairman. A social hour concluded the program.

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP) — Slaughter steers were fully 50 cents a hundredweight lower this week, reports the Ontario public stockyards. Heifers dropped in a 25-50 cent range from last week, with cows down 50 cents a hundredweight. Fed yearlings and bulls were firm. Replacement cattle, on a very light offering throughout the week, had prices steady with last week.

Calf prices were firm, with top quality vealers in demand throughout the week. Fat and heavy calves, however, were slow and lower. Hogs declined $1 a hundredweight at the close. They had previously been steady. Sheep and lambs were steady, with good sorting and handyweight lambs on a very close basis. Bucks were discounted $1 a hundredweight.

Cattle receipts were up 1,900 head from last week and down by 1,700 from the same week last year. Western Canada receipts totalled 940 head, a decrease of 280 head from last week. Stock calves, at 156, represented a decrease of 544 head from last week. Eight carloads were shipped to eastern Canadian slaughterers with five exports to the U.S.

This week's increased volume was made up primarily of weighty lower grade steers and heavier marketings of cows. General steer quality was plain with a number of buyers going short on good quality killers. However a fairly good cleanup was realized at prices 50 cents lower than last week.

Prices

Slaughter cattle: Choice steers mostly $17.25-17.75; with sales to good $16.50-17; medium $14-16; common $12-14; good heifers $14.50-15.50; sales on a few choice to $16; medium $13-14.50; common $12-13; boner steers and heifers $10-12; choice stable-fed yearlings $20.50-21.50; with sales to $22.50; good $19-20.50; good cows $11-11.50; a few to $12; medium $9.50-10.50; common $8.50 - 9.50. canners and cutters $7-8.50; good heavy bologna bulls $13-13.50; with sales $14; common and medium $9-13.

Replacement cattle: Good $17-18; common and medium $12-16; good stock calves $18-19 a hundredweight with sales higher.

Calves: Good and choice $24-27.50; fancy sales to $28; medium $19-22; common $14-18; boners $10-12; fat heavy calves were hard to sell, $16-18.

Sheep and lambs: Good handyweight lambs $20.50-21; medium and heavy down to $17; common $12-15; feeders $17-18; good light sheep mostly $7-8, with some yearlings up to $10; common and fat $3-6 a hundredweight.

Releasing of Lake Water Meets With Mixed Reception At Meeting of Authority

Release of water from the Lingham Lake storage dam in Elzevir township north of Tweed to improve the flow of water in the Moira river during the dry fall season met with mixed reception at the final fall meeting of Moira River Conservation Authority held Wednesday at Actinolite.

Two mill owners along the Moira expressed their thanks to the Authority for the increased flow which had allowed fuller operation of mills, while fishing enthusiasts were critical of lowered water conditions in Lingham Lake, which they said would prove detrimental to fish.

Opinion was expressed, however, by Ross Whitfield, fish biologist, that the spawning season of the black bass in Lingham Lake was early and the lowered water would have little effect. R. E. Pasmore, district forester at Tweed, said he approved use of stored water to increase river flow.

The meeting passed a motion to have Mr. Whitfield do a creek check on the Lingham Lake situation to determine the effect of the low water on the fish.

Another motion passed requested the Department of Planning and Development to survey the possibilities of more water storage dams on the upper tributaries of the Moira, principally at Wolfe and Duck Lakes.

The meeting was well attended by Authority members who enjoyed dinner at the Log Cabin, and then viewed the projects being made on the Price Conservation Area on the Skootamatta River where they were surprised at the work which had been accomplished.

OPEN NEXT SUMMER

Authority officials expressed the hope that the conservation area would be open for camping some time next summer.

Reports of the various advisory committees were heard, these outlining the work accomplished during the last year. Irwin McCoy, reeve of Marmora and Lake township, supported the program of the Parks and Recreation Committee, but suggested it may be found necessary to eventually charge a nominal fee for park usage to assist in maintenance costs.

Chairman Bruce Smith made strong plea for stimulation of other activities of the Authority besides reforestation and parks and recreation.

He suggested more work could be done in soil usage, farm ponds and farm planning and asked that a concerted effort be made for further work along these lines by advisory boards.

Next year's general program was discussed with members voting in the same levy and budget as for 1957.

The reforestation report revealed that 15,000 trees had been purchased this year at a cost of $5,263, including legal fees. Total acreage owned by the Authority is now 5,227, much of this area already having been reforested.

The school tree planting program for this year had been very successful and it was decided to use a similar program next year.

This had been evident from the big turnout at the official opening of the O'Hara Mill Conservation Area which had seen an attendance of approximately 1,200 persons.

The Moira River Movie has also been a very definite contribution in publicizing the Moira, having been shown many times at gatherings in various centres throughout the watershed.

Bernard J. Hunt, as chairman of the Soils and Water Committee, admitted that his committee had not been too active despite several drought conditions. He felt that the present farm pond subsidy was high enough to encourage farmers to excavate sometimes expensive farm ponds.

Chairman Smith also noted that other conservation authorities in the province were planning a delegation to wait on the new federal government with the view of seeking financial assistance for small flood control projects. He suggested that the Moira Authority be prepared to go along with this delegation when it visited Ottawa with the view of obtaining assistance for the construction of the proposed ice control dam at Belleville.

Bigger, Better Santa Claus Parade Planned

Chief Gerald Vance has announced that plans are in the making for a bigger and better Santa Claus parade this year.

Members of the Santa Claus Parade Committee have already done some ground work and will report at the first regular meeting of the Santa Claus Parade Committee.

This meeting is open to all persons interested in the Santa Claus Parade and is scheduled for Tuesday, October 29th at 10:00 a.m. at the Moira St. Fire Hall. Because this parade has developed into one of the best in the Province, much advance planning must be done with numerous people involved and it is hoped that the first meeting will get off with a big bang with a large representation.

Yeggmen Smash Stirling Safe And Steal Car

For the second time within three weeks yeggmen Thursday night smashed open the safe at Stirling Motor Sales in Stirling, making off with about $175 in cash.

Three weeks ago about the same amount was taken when the safe was battered open in the garage office.

Last night the yeggmen took a car from the used car lot at Stirling Motor Sales, then broke into the office and trundled the heavy safe out loading it into the auto.

Both the safe and the car were recovered this morning on the 9th concession of Sidney, about half a mile south of Stirling.

The thieves had gone south along 14 Highway, where they turned off at the foot of the Oak Hills and proceeded to the latter cut the bottom of the safe.

The investigation is under the direction of Ontario Provincial Police Corporal Douglas Sears of Madoc detachment. This morning the battered safe was checked for fingerprints by Cpl. Reginald Rackham, from Belleville O.P.P. headquarters.

Children's Foot Health Survey May Be Made

Directors of the Chamber of Commerce met Thursday noon and decided to act on a suggestion from Dr. R. R. Brain, chiropodist, that a children's foot health survey be made in the city.

Last spring Robert G. Hamilton, secretary-manager of the Chamber, conducted a survey among members which was designed to give him a better idea of some of the things they would like to see the Chamber engage in. Resulting from this, Mr. Hamilton said today, the Chamber has put in a very busy summer organizing programs which should benefit every Chamber member and the community-at-large.

Next month a general membership meeting is planned at which the directors of the Chamber hope to get better acquainted with other members. Problems will be discussed and, suitable suggestions followed up. Mr. Hamilton hopes to have a new film available from the Canadian Chamber of Commerce called "The Story of Creative Capital."

The Chamber is studying a suggestion from members that lectures be offered that will help them in their businesses. Mr. Hamilton said courses in labor relations and labor laws are being planned.

Chamber members have asked that the problems of milk distribution be studied and at the same time they suggested the Chamber should maintain its participation in municipal elections.

THE REDISTRIBUTION QUESTION

The Toronto Telegram earlier this week published an editorial asserting that a redistribution of Ontario Legislature seats is needed.

It quotes figures showing that in 1955 York East had 79,571 voters, York Humber 46,634, York South 63,138, Durham only 19,532, Glengarry 12,472 and Rainy River 12,350. More than a year ago, it says, it was estimated the six Yorks ridings had more people than the 22 smallest Ontario ridings. The assessment rolls give North York Township a population of 182,942, an increase of 17,500 in a year. With population increasing by more than ten per cent annually, it is obvious that the gap between the heavily populated metropolitan ridings and the sparsely settled rural ridings is widening. The Telegram thinks that this situation is unfair to urban voters. Since this is an opinion which The Ontario Intelligencer has already voiced on at least one occasion in the past, we are pleased to endorse the suggestion that a new Representation Act should be passed by the Legislature at its next session.

One would wonder how any person could defend a situation in which a voter in Rainy River has six times the voice in the province's affairs as a voter in York East. But there are those who do defend the present situation. The Muskoka Herald, says the Telegram, "demands that the Ontario Federation of Labor and The Telegram cease making comparisons on population basis. 'Urban ridings,' it says, 'cannot be considered on the same basis as rural ridings . . . It is the work the members have to do on behalf of their constituents. Why should a city member who can walk around his riding in a day be given a residential area equal in population to a country riding with its complexity of interests and its demands for roads and other public works?'"

The Toronto paper's answer is that "urban members may not agree that it is easier to serve, say, 182,942 persons than one-tenth that number in a rural area, or that the latter have a greater 'complexity of interests'."

We suspect that this is a sound answer but it has one drawback - - it leaves the question in the realm of a matter of opinion and people can be amazingly stubborn in holding opinions when their vested interests are at stake.

There is, though, a possible alternative answer to the Muskoka Herald and, as so often happens in questions like this, it is reached by getting the realm of the practical and becoming facetious.

Let us answer the Herald by saying that if the member for Muskoka has all he can do to serve the 14,442 voters in the riding, because of the physical size of the riding and the complexity of interests of its residents, then by all means let Muskoka have a member all to itself. But, in that case, what possible legitimate objection can Muskoka residents have to York East being represented by five members, instead of one, so that a voter in York East will have as big a say in the affairs of the province as has a voter in Muskoka?

If it is objected that this system would result in a Legislature with far too many members, there is a simple solution. Let York East continue to be served by one member, but let him have five votes. That would make a York East voter almost as influential in deciding government policies as a Muskoka voter.

We doubt whether the Muskoka Herald, or others who defend the present unbalance between the populations of urban and rural ridings, would approve either of these suggestions.

These solutions, though facetious, would then serve the purpose of enabling us to remark that if approval is withheld it might not be unfair to suspect that it is not the physical size of the ridings but the desire to wield a greater influence than an equal number of urban dwellers which makes residents of these rural ridings oppose redistribution.

A SIGNIFICANT OBSERVATION

The address to the United Nations General Assembly on Wednesday by Hon. Sidney Smith, Canada's new Minister of External Affairs, contained one sentence which seems significant.

"Whatever the correct view may be as to the possible harmful effects of radiation and fallout," said Dr. Smith, "I think none of us would want to discount the anxiety on this score felt by the peoples of all nations."

In this sentence Dr. Smith shows a recognition of an important fact which too many of the world's statesmen appear unable to grasp - - that although the facts about the effects of fallout are naturally the most important point at issue in respect to appeals to halt testing of nuclear weapons, the attitude of peoples throughout the world must also be considered. There can be no question but that many people in Japan and in other countries as well, believe their own health and the welfare of their descendants are being jeopardized by both the U.S. and Russian tests. Even if they are in error in this belief, the belief itself is almost certain to play an important role in determining their attitude towards international politics - - and this attitude may determine the course of events and the future history of the world and of mankind.

U.S.-Anglo Unity Not New

Montreal Gazette

Never in all history has a royal visit to the United States been made under more serious or urgent conditions. In paying tribute to the founding settlers at Jamestown, Queen Elizabeth is doing something far more than taking part in a picturesque and colorful quarian ceremony, or conveying the formalities of good will to a friendly country. She comes at a time of need — the need for an immediate drawing together of the Commonwealth and the United States, not only for goodwill, or for greater strength, but perhaps even for survival.

It might seem, historically speaking, strange and anomalous that the great-great-great-great-granddaughter of King George III — under whose rule the American colonies revolted and seized their independence — should now be moving through the United States, amidst cheering crowds. Or that in speaking at William and Mary College the oldest in the United States, she should pay tribute to the leaders of the American Revolution.

Yet the truth is that all these happenings at this present time do not represent a change. For underneath all the differences the friendship and bonds of union have remained. Today they are only being drawn tighter, in the face of a common fear and challenge.

For even the war against the American colonists, in the years of the Revolution, was waged by Britain with something less than firm resolution. The House of Commons itself voices — among them that of the great Edmund Burke — sympathy with the colonists for acting in the British tradition of liberty, in rising to maintain what they felt to be their rights.

When Queen Elizabeth now pays tribute to the leaders of the Revolution she is only following the precedent set by King George VI when flags of the British Navy went to half-mast in the event that George Washington was dead.

And almost 100 years ago her grandmother, Queen Victoria, visiting the United States as Princess Victoria, accepting with the image to Mount Vernon and laid a wreath on George Washington's tomb. Her husband, Prince Albert, also made their pilgrimmage to Mount Vernon in 1939.

Nor have these been merely formal gestures, the visits of royal members of the Royal Family to show that no ill-will has survived through the years. Behind each of these gestures has always lain the deep-seated feeling of unity of British and American peoples, as they have faced the problems and dangers of the world.

It was George III himself who lent some of the cannon of his Royal Artillery, bearing his monogram, upon them, to whom the United States when menaced by the manoeuvres of Spain.

Then, in 1823, came the Monroe Doctrine, which proclaimed that the intrusion of any European power into the Western Hemisphere would be regarded as contrary to the interests of the United States and would be resisted. But this fundamental American Doctrine was really a British suggestion, made in England as well as American interests. And considering how slight was the American fleet in those days, the doctrine was made effective only by the Royal Navy.

The readiness to express this sense of unity openly was gradually growing. On February 19, 1819, the British Ambassador in Washington, Sir Charles Bagot, was leaving for England. A dinner was given in his honor. Among those who had arranged it was Commodore Stephen Decatur, who had fought naval battles against the British on the Great Lakes in the War of 1812.

At that dinner was an arrangement never seen before. At the table were "little flags of the two countries united." Upon drinking the toasts, the band played "God Save the King." Sir Charles replied that this was "only infinite surprise and somewhat to my apprehension for the effect. But the effect was excellent. It standing.

Sir Charles then sent a message to the band to play the American national anthem the moment "God Save the King" was finished, "in order that it might be understood as a mark of the two national airs." Not a murmur of objection was heard.

All this took place when the American Revolution was still in the memory of old people who were there in 1814 was in the memory of even the very young.

* * *

There is nothing strange or unprecedented in the spirit of the recent royal visit. What is unprecedented is the visit of the Queen and the approaching visit of the British Prime Minister) is the spirit of one of the leaders of the American Revolution, Patrick Henry, who was writing to President Munro in 1823, concerning the British offer of reconciliation:

"Our co-operation is due to ourselves and to the world; and whilst it must ensure success in the event of an appeal to force, it doubles the chances of success without that appeal."

Must Put End To Jealousy

Hamilton Spectator

In toasting the Queen at the White House dinner the other night President Eisenhower significantly remarked that NATO organization should work together. NATO should not be thought of merely as a military alliance but as a way of grouping ability.

Mr. Eisenhower was also listen this as a hint that a NATO group of scientists will be suggested in the near future as a first step in competing with Russia's recent successes.

". . . We have the power," the President said, "the only thing to do is to put it together."

There is, however, something much more important than putting the power together, and that is keeping it together. It will not require much imagination to foresee the pretexts for future friction among scientists from fifteen different countries. Devotion to science is one thing; jealousy and international rivalry another.

The Western nations — particularly the U.S.A. — are under strong pressure to regain the scientific initiative seized from them by Russia when it launched its intercontinental ballistic and its artificial satellite. It is questionable whether this could be achieved by bringing together scientists from every land.

A central "scientific bureau," a clearing house for information on developments as they are reached might prove more effective in avoiding duplication of effort. It would depend for its success, however, on the loyalty of every one of the nations claiming membership. Furthermore, without complete security secrecy would be extremely difficult.

In this column the other day we termed the practice of politicians playing politics and votegetting before national well-being a "dangerous contradiction." It seems that scientific initiative has been going on in the United States where inter-service rivalry and jealousy has served to put the nation second and service first in all things. The result has been that the honors have gone to someone else.

No valid comparison can be made with the Manhattan Project, the Anglo-American partnership that finally produced the atomic bomb. That was done under the compulsion of war. As for the truth of the Darwinian evolutionary theory, one has only to recall how quickly the species have planned on co-operation when peace came.

The West has brilliant scientists, but if they are to outmatch the Russians they will obviously have to be freed from political, service and industrial interference.

And what is more, they will have to be provided with money and in abundance.

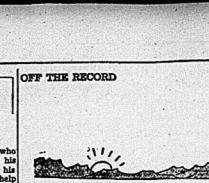
QUIET

No more baseball games to see,
Football maybe once a week;
Long the hours have grown to be;
Evenings, politicians speak,
Now and then a western scene
On the television screen.

Winter's near and action slows,
River races are no more.
All that's left: the movie shows
. . . that we've seen seen before.
Have a great desire to look
At lessons what and how to cook.



Now and then the President
Rises to speak which and hear,
But somehow I'm not content
Though he makes his purpose clear.

Even jumpers on their skis
Long ago have ceased to please.

Time moves on, and so does life.
Things grow old, and so do we Winter's near, and all's serene
On the television screen.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

OCTOBER 25, 1937

Mr. Peter A. Hayden of Bloomfield, Prince Edward County, celebrated the 95th anniversary of his birth on Saturday. On March 15th next he and his wife hope to observe the 75th anniversary of their wedding. They are believed to be the oldest married couple in Ontario.

Mr. Mac Haig will address the members of the Kinmen's Club at the opening of their fall meeting at the Queen's Hotel this evening. Norman Garbutt, the president, will preside.

From our file copy at this time in 1917: Mr. George Easterbrook and party will leave Tweed this week for Cobalt, where Mr. East-erbrook will operate a flour mill for Mr. Fred Lingham of this city, who has several interests in that country.

Mr. and Mrs. Court Miller have left on a motor car trip to New York City.

Mr. and Mrs. George Brown of Leaside, spent the weekend here with relatives.

Mrs. T. C. Hall, Purdy St., is spending a few days in Watertown, N.Y.

Flying duck made it very unpleasant to be on the streets today.

An enthusiastic meeting of the members of the Canadian Club was held at the YMCA last evening and the program for the coming season was discussed. The president, Mr. R. J. Graham, telephoned to Montreal and endeavored to arrange to have Rudyard Kipling to speak here but he found that Mr. Kipling's time is fully arranged for.

Dr. Coughlin, superintendent of the OSD, is spending a few days in Toronto.

Mr. C. Publow, cheese and sanitary inspector for Prince Edward District, has accepted the important position of Chief Dairy Instructor for New York State. Dr. Publow is the son of Mr. G. G. Publow of Elzaston, Canada's Dairy Inspector for Eastern Ontario and is a graduate of Queen's University.

All Tangled In Red Tape

Winnipeg Free Press

For centuries people have accepted as fact Archimedes' notion that the shortest distance between two points is a straight line. But one can, alas, no longer set down that line in the air except at the sir age as conceived by governments, this principle is sadly outdated.

One person to be thus disillusioned recently is Miss Caroline Sargent, who is to appear as guest conductor with the Winnipeg Symphony orchestra.

Sir Malcolm, who is a busy man last week in the Far East, found time for the trip to Winnipeg, he knew, would be delayed by the complexities about the fastest way to get here. Scandinavian Air Services, he was informed, has a flight from Copenhagen direct to Winnipeg.

But Sir Malcolm soon discovered what Winnipeggers know all too well. SAS does indeed have a stop-over privilege on its route to the United States, but unfortunately it does not allow ed pick up or put down any passengers here. All the Scandinavian line does is to refuel Winnipeg before the plane resumes its flight to Los Angeles would be the airport's international waiting room. Before he could get a ticket to Winnipeg he would have to make the 1900-mile return trip from Los Angeles with at least one change of plane on the way.

Which is all, of course, as the transport authorities want it, in order to make it almost impossible for anyone to get to Winnipeg "the modern way" without travelling at least part of it by TCA.

Major Operation Has a High Mortality

The death rate from tonsillectomy is still frightfully high, frightful to me, that is. For this reason I'd never consent to the strictly in any case.

Let no one infer that I'm opposed to surgery, for I'm fond of surgery. If or when I'm the patient and the doctor gives hints — my reaction is, well, what are we waiting for? Several times I have enjoyed — I mean enjoyed — skilful, painless surgery and I'm grateful for it. ills.

But don't try to tell me tonsillectomy is surgery. No matter who commits the assault, in my opinion, is it simply crude, blind dissection of the throat without warrant.

People keep sending me newspaper reports of fatalities from tonsillectomy, and I wish they wouldn't, I know and you know and the ever-ready operators should know that tonsillectomy is a serious major operation. In too many instances, the victim succumbs to shock, hemorrhage or "cardiac arrest" on the operating table or to septic pneumonia or pulmonary abscess inhaling foreign matter in the course of the operation. No amount of anesthetic can abolish the safety measure we use to prevent such complications and assure parents that their child will survive the atrocity, I choose these terms deliberately to convey an adequate picture of what happens.

There are three alternatives for tonsillectomy, and again, in my opinion, one or another requirement for which tonsillectomy may be proposed. They are:

1. Instantaneous tonsillotomy (by means of the tonsillotome), which is far more painful and no more dangerous than extraction of a tooth.

2. Diathermy (electro-coagulation, electro-dissecation), for infected tonsils, not for merely enlarged or hypertrophied tonsils.

3. Two-months of near-nudity, such as lucky youngsters get in the summer vacation. Tonsils which are very large in the spring will shrink during the summer vacation.

Here and there, good doctors give youngsters a break in respect to tonsils. They snip or clip enlarged tonsils when the simple operation is indicated to relieve or prevent obstruction of breathing, middle ear trouble, sinus trouble or impairment of voice. Or they treat tonsils in adults or adults with diathermy — In a series of office seances — without confinement to bed, patient daily activities and without subjecting the patient to the risk.

Formerly, I tried to maintain a directory service for correspondents who wrote to physicians who gave the treatment I recommend. It was lovely labor lost. It is only suggest that you ask your physician about it. If he says that it's off or says it's no good, there's nothing more I can do about it.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A good deal of nonsense is being talked about the old. The most casual glance will show us that the old are just as old as ever. In complimenting ourselves on the advances in medicine and public health, by reason of which life expectancy has been greatly increased, our first thought is that everybody will live to an older age. Actually, the statistics which mean by increased life expectancy is that more babies will survive to the age of 1, more teen agers will survive scarlet fever and live to twenty, more thirty year olds will beat pneumonia and live to the age of forty. Nobody except a few sixty year olds will live to seventy, and so on.

Lurking in the background of our minds, in this train of thought, is the curious idea that we will stay young longer. A doctor tells me there is little basis for this assumption so far. We are still growing old in the old-fashioned manner, and evidence is at hand in the statistics respecting hypertension and the popping off of businessmen in their fifties, that we may be growing old before our time, in the sense that being dead is really being old.

True, the elderly are perhaps more feisty than their progenitors. But this is largely mechanical. It is so much easier for them to get around. If my old grandad, who died around 1900 chasing a runaway cow, were alive today with all these motor cars, buses and other means of conveyance ever in place to place, he would appear to be, in fact would be, a great deal younger. He did not even have a telephone to call the corner drug store for a packet of Mail Pouch, his plug of chewing tobacco, he had to walk a mile.

Old people are not alive today because that was the easiest place to be. Old people can get around and do so much of it, in a way easier than staying home.

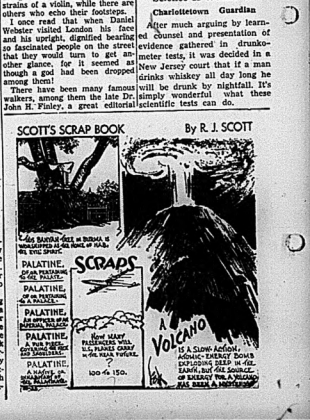
What we are really getting is not more life in years. We are getting more life per hour. And the catch may be that our bones, tissues and organs can take only so much life. Let's wait and see.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

WALKERS

For years I have studied the footsteps of people. The walk of a person is always very revealing. For instance, I read that the person himself has created. The walker is always putting something of himself into his walk. The seemed has a good had been dropped among them!



There have been many famous walkers, among them the late Dr. John H. Finley, a great editorial writer and educator, and the great football coach and athlete A. A. Stagg, recent guest of honor at his 95th birthday! Stagg once invited me to take an early five-mile walk with him.

Walkers not only do a great service to their bodies by habitual long walks, but they enrich their minds as well. All nature gives to them its charm, beauty, and every bird offers a serenade. Thoreau was a noted walker a good part of his life, and so was the great walker and usually wished to walk alone.

Traffic Problem Outlined By Insp. A. Witts, Toronto

CAMPBELLFORD — About 30 members and guests of the Campbellford Lions Club heard a talk on traffic safety at the regular meeting on Wednesday evening, from a man who probably knows more about Ontario's traffic problem than any other person in the province, Inspector A. Witts of the Traffic and Safety Office of the Ontario Provincial Police, attached to the office of the Attorney General in Toronto.

Inspector Witts was introduced by Cpl. Archie Eady of Campbellford detachment of the OPP, who said the guest speaker has served with the OPP for almost 30 years, during which time he has received a number of commendations and special appointments, presently acting as the Attorney General's office in Toronto.

In his talk on "The Traffic Problem," Inspector Witts said that the work of the Lions clubs across Ontario in sponsoring school safety patrols was probably one of the best approaches to highway safety. He said the patrols were "Striking the fore of the attack on the traffic problem, but because it starts at the beginning, it is therefore one of the most important." He said the idea stimulated an interest in safety in children, and even though the children themselves did not at present realize it, it gave them a background in which safety in traffic would be uppermost in their minds when their later lives.

URGED TO KEEP UP WORK

He urged the club to keep up their work with the safety program among school children. He pointed out that the use of "paddles" bearing the words "stop" or "slow" was frowned upon by his department. He said that injuries had resulted from the improper use of these paddles, and suggested that the club give serious consideration to their decision regarding the use of them. He pointed out that children of the safety patrol had no authority to stop or even to slow traffic at school crossings, and the purpose of patrols was to allow children to cross streets and intersections safely between breaks in the flow of traffic. He urged that patrol members use their hands and arms only in their duties.

Speaking on the traffic problem in general, the speaker said that at the present time the country enjoys a proper balance of power in law enforcement. He said the law enforcement officer at present has little more power than the citizen, in fact just enough to enable him to carry out the functions of his office, and no more. He pointed out that in the early stage of law enforcement officers carried perhaps too much authority, but now the balance of freedom under the law was more equitable. "The present system of law enforcement has been found best by test," he said.

The speaker traced the history of the Ontario Provincial Police from its first officer, John W. Murray, who was sworn in in 1877.

APPALLING TOLL

Inspector Witts said that the automotive engineers have progressed and improved speed and horsepower by leaps and bounds, until, at present, traffic safety experts are unable to keep up with them. He said that the number of vehicles in use has increased to such an extent over the years that roadbuilding has become a problem that is almost impossible to cope with. This fact, coupled with the fact that in many instances motorists lacked a proper knowledge of the rules of motor vehicle operation, and in many cases did not have proper training in the operation of their vehicles, led to an appalling toll of deaths and injuries on the highways. He said many highways were carrying a much greater flow of traffic than they were designed for, and that in many cases highways were carrying 100,000 motor vehicles per day at a given point. He said he expected a 40 per cent increase in motor vehicle registrations in Ontario in the next ten years, and that with the increased traffic, he could not see how the highway construction program could possibly catch up with the needs for at least 25 years.

The inspector told his audience that last year alone, there were 72,000 collisions between motor vehicles on Ontario highways. In these collisions, 26,000 persons were injured, and more than 1,000 persons died. He asked the members to stop and think of the grief and sorrow experienced by the families of those killed in highway accidents, and pointed out that the unfortunate part of it was that in many cases it was the head of the family who died. Accident figures indicate that four people are killed every day on highways in the province, and the inspector asked his audience to use care, courtesy and common sense, coupled with tolerance and the respect for the rights of others when driving.

ASKED TO SET EXAMPLE

He also urged that parents set an example for their teenage children by observing safety rules when driving. He said that many teen-agers were better and more careful drivers than their parents, but pointed out that the driving habits of tomorrow's teen-agers were based to a large extent on how their parents drive today. Speaking on the balance of freedom between law enforcement officers and the motoring public, the speaker closed his address by urging drivers to "keep the balance and enjoy the freedom."

PRESENTED WITH MEMENTO

Lion Les. Baker presented Mr. Witts with a memento of his visit to the club, and Lion President James Clark thanked the speaker.

Constable Clarence Duncalfe of the Campbellford police force, who co-operates with the Lions Club in the operation of the safety patrol, was thanked for his efforts during the past school year by the club. Mr. Duncalfe said he was happy to provide any assistance necessary for the successful operation of the safety patrol, or any other Lion project.

Albert Whitfield, assistant principal of Campbellford Public School said the club was to be commended for its work with the safety patrol, and that the project worked quite smoothly.

During the business portion of the meeting, the club donated $25 to the CNIB campaign, and arranged to turn over a new wheelchair to the Campbellford Memorial Hospital. The Lions Club ladies night will be held at Eagle water Park on November 13, when the guest speaker will be A. M. Laverty, Chaplain at Queen's University, Kingston.

Kitchener Annexation Award Is Confirmed

KITCHENER (CP)—The City of Kitchener was notified Wednesday that an annexation award of 3,835 acres of Waterloo Township land has been upheld, and a Waterloo Township councillor branded the decision "rule by a dictatorship."

Municipal Affairs Minister Warrenden notified the city an order - in - council confirmed the Ontario municipal board's decision. The board awarded the city the acreage last July on an original application for 12,000 acres.

Kenard Snider, township councillor whose farm lies within the annexed area, protested the award in a petition to the cabinet signed by township residents.

After hearing of the confirmation, he said: "This is certainly not democracy. It is more like rule by a dictatorship."

The 3,835 acres will become part of the city Jan. 1, expanding its size to about 11,435 acres.

Forgetfulness Places Car In Wrong Place

When he returned for it the vehicle was gone.

So city police listed it as a stolen vehicle and notified provincial police who put out an area-wide alarm.

The vehicle was recovered on Church Street near the C.P.R. station and then Mr. Quince remembered that this was where he had left it.

Gen. Rockingham Gets New Post

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Pearkes has announced a new posting for Maj.-Gen. John Rockingham, commander of the 1st Canadian Infantry Division. He also announced future organization of the division's headquarters is "under active consideration."

The announcements Thursday were seen as indication the division headquarters will be disbanded.

Gen. Rockingham, 46, is to take over the army's Quebec Command in December, succeeding Maj.-en. D.F.E. Bernatchez, also 46, who is to become chairman of the NATO military agency for standardization at Washington.

Army officers said a few weeks ago they believed division headquarters would be disbanded, following announcement the 1st Division would not hold manoeuvres next year. Instead, the division's three infantry brigades are to exercise independently at Camp Gagetown, N.B., Camp Petawawa, Ont., and Camp Wainwright, Alta.

He said he has no financial interest in one of the city's broadcasting companies.

"It is now our duty to enforce the Lord's Day Act in every particular," Brig. Murphy said. "It is inconceivable that we should enforce the act against one and not others, and I for one will have no part of it."

The secretary for the Lord's Day Alliance in B.C. and Alberta, Rev. Harold T. Allen, commented that he could not make it clear on the subject of broadcasting:

"The law states there shall be no advertising on Sundays. We say: 'Get them to broadcast six days of the week and broadcast without advertising Sundays.'"

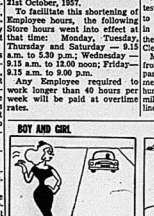
Any Employee required to work longer than 40 hours per week will be paid at overtime rates.

Crown's Case In Murder Trial Now Completed



SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—The Crown has wound up its case in the trial of Gilbert Clement, 53, charged with murder in the June 21 slaying of Erwin Grant (Gideon) Stocken, 23.

An American tourist Thursday testified Stocken, who was shot to death at Lochalsh, Ont., was in a resentful mood the night of the shooting and had threatened Clement with violence.

Milton R. Havens, an engineer from Cincinnati, Ohio, was at a party that night where the two men were present. Lochalsh is a hunting and fishing resort, 125 miles south of here on the CPR line from Sudbury.

A Message From Al Lipes
A PALACE ON WHEELS!
We feel assured that somewhere in Belleville there is a person who is looking for more than transportation in his choice of a motor car. He is looking for something which can rarely be found in a used car anywhere—distinction and superb quality, at a moderate price.
For your consideration, we can offer such an automobile, a 1953 Fleetwood Cadillac 4-door Sedan which we only describe as exquisite. This car has come out of one of the finest homes in Belleville and the present condition of the automobile bespeaks of a pride of ownership rarely found in other vehicles. The sole previous owner is presently driving the car put at the disposal of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth during her recent visit to Canada. This is just not a car to make you dream. We are in a position to price this vehicle realistically so that a person of good taste, but with moderate income, can really and truly afford to own it. This pedigree automobile will be sold for a fraction of its original cost but we will entertain accepting only that car in trade which has had as comparable good care.

WEDDINGS

O'CONNOR — TRUDEAU

Tall bronze standards of white gladioli and white chrysanthemums and lighted candles formed the lovely background in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, on Saturday, October 19th, at 10.00 a.m., for a lovely wedding when Jeanne Marie Trudeau, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Joseph Trudeau, became the bride of Michael Joseph O'Connor, of Vancouver, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. O'Connor, of Marmora. The marriage ceremony was solemnized by the Very Rev. L. B. Garvin.

Miss Dorothy Grant presided at the console of the organ and rendered the wedding music. She accompanied the soloist, Mr. Robert Burke, who rendered "Ave Maria," "Panis Angelicus," and "On This Day O Beautiful Mother."

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. John Joseph Trudeau, the bride was charming in a full-length gown of candlelight peau brocaded satin having a moulded bodice with portrait neckline outlined by appliqued brocaded pearls and jewels. The long, slender sleeves were lilypointed over the wrists and the softly flattering skirt was enhanced by princess panels which fell gracefully into a full sweep. A Juliet cap of white feathers held her fingertip veil of French illusion lace and she carried a semi-cascade of white gardenias, baby-pink Demure roses, feathered 'mums and trailing ivy.

Mrs. Albert C. Bunton, of Belleville, sister of the bride, as matron of honor, and Miss Shirley McKeown, of Toronto; Miss Cletus Trudeau and Miss Mary Jeanne Trudeau, of Belleville, bridesmaids, were attired alike in waltz-length gowns of velveteen in deep sapphire blue, fashioned with scoop necklines and cap sleeves, offset with matching satin cummerbunds ending in full-length streamers. They wore matching shoes and hats and carried crescents of white Shasta 'mums and ivy leaves.

Dr. Thomas J. McNally, of Trenton, attended the bridegroom; while Messrs. J. Patrick Devine, of Ottawa; Gerald McLean, of Toronto, and John Trudeau, Jr., of Belleville, brother of the bride, ushered the guests.

The reception was held at the Quinte Golf and Country Club at the bride's home, 140 George Street, where the bride's mother, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, received the guests.

The bride's table was appointed with a white damask cloth and centred by an all-tiered three - level pedestalled wedding cake decorated with white roses, and topped with a silver bell and lily-of-the-valley. Tall, white candles in silver candelabra and the bridal bouquets completed a lovely nuptial arrangement.

The bride's mother, for her daughter's wedding, chose an original afternoon-length gown of peau-de-soie, in Dior blue, with matching hat and accessories, and corsage of white gardenias, Sweetheart roses and Pinnebelle poms. The bride's groom's mother was attired in a French lace sheath in tones of dusky rose with matching jacket with bat wing sleeves and accessories being of Dior blue, and corsage of white gardenias and pale pink Sweetheart roses.

Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. O'Connor will reside at 990 Lagoon Drive, Vancouver, B.C.

Guests were present from Trenton, Toronto, Windsor, Ottawa, Marmora, Niagara Falls, Montreal, and Read, Ontario.

CARLETON — SHEARD

TWEED — The marriage of Marilyn Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sheard, to Robert Kenneth Carleton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Clarence Carleton, of Roslin, took place on Saturday, October 5th, in St. John the Evangelist Anglican Church, Kitchener. The rector, Canon C. W. Miller was assisted by Rev. F. C. Beazer, of Peterborough, who baptized the bride.

The bride wore a formal wedding gown of white faille and alencon lace motifs sprinkled with seed pearls. The bouffant skirt was appliqued with a front panel of seed pearls, dotted lace. Her waist-length veil was caught to a scalloped crown also edged with seed pearls, and she carried a white prayer book accented with a white orchid and heather.

The attendants were, Miss Charles Moule, of Toronto, matron-of-honour, Miss Barbara Duggan, of Kitchener, Miss Grace Carleton, of Toronto, and Miss Suzanne Colws, of Kitchener. All were gowned in red velvet, with matching feather bandeaux, and carrying white Shasta poms.

Mr. Gordon Morton Carleton, of Roslin, was groomsman, with Mr. Philip Orchard, Pickering, Mr. Donald Bates, Roslin, and Mr. Paul A. Paulter, of Waterloo, ushers.

Mrs. Edmund Carleton, of Stirling, aunt of the bridegroom, assisted the bride's mother in receiving the guests at the reception in the Walper Hotel, Kitchener.

Following their wedding trip to Eastern Canada and the United States, the young couple took up residence at 78 Weber Street, W., Kitchener.

'Ecuador—Gem of The Andes' Portrayed By Film, Narrative

"Ecuador—Gem of the Andes," with a colorful and educative travelogue, was portrayed last evening to an appreciative audience in the Collegiate auditorium by the Lions Club of Belleville and Sawnis Club of Belleville.

Mr. Paul Lyons, pleasing speaking voice aided greatly to which were shown, was born in the republic of plateau Bulgaria, educated in England; graduated in engineering from Zurich, Switzerland, and from the University of Bern with a degree in economics. Mr. Paul worked for three years in the Scientific Institute of Photography of the University of Zurich where he obtained his start in the field of photography. He has maintained close contact with the native population, and has succeeded in capturing the true unaltered social structure of the scenes filmed and known South America as a South American, and not from the tourist angle.

HUMAN INTEREST

Mr. Pavel's talk was rich in human interest, as with the delightful country with its towering mountains, the primeval mountain being Chimborazo, rising to a height of 20,703 feet, and Cotopaxi, the highest, rising some 19,500 feet. Most of the population, which is of Indian extraction, is found in the elevated regions of Ecuador, and the principal city, Quito, situated 9,000 feet above sea level, with a population of 200,000 people, is the largest. The two chief ports are Guayaquil and Esmeralda, with the former, with 200,000 people and, on the west coast, the Guayaquil.

Among the flora and fauna were shown exotic and colorful flowers, and the flaming birds of vivid blue plumage, and parrots. The reptiles included the huge boa, which is said could ride; coral snakes and rattlers. The mammals were shown carrying green leaves many times the size of themselves, which is their chief diet. Insects far food. Some small animals like the monkeys, and llamas and deer were noted.

The principal industry was the growing of the cocoa beans, which were dried in the open streets, and turned over to air by the natives walking through the beans in a shuffling manner. Bananas are grown and shipped by the banana boats to many parts of the world.

COCOA BEAN—BANANAS

Next to the cocoa bean trade is the growing of the banana; these are picked most carefully while green and shipped by boat loading wrapped in cello-phane cases, and sell at one cent per pound. Some of the finer variety as many as 60,000,-000 stems.

The banana is a plant, not a tree and takes from 12 to 14 months in growth, with three months in full maturity.

The chief wood is the balsa wood, light in weight, often growing to a height of 120 feet, and used in the making of toy aeroplanes and moving furniture which is easily tossed about and at others in rough and tumble scenes. The houses are also made from this material, as well as from the bamboo and sugar cane, and because of the risk of fire, the streets are extraordinarily wide. Their rafts and boats are also made from these commodities.

Mr. Pavel mentioned that the Indians, as a rule, were most industrious, but changeable in temperament. Would dance for days and days, with no particular dance steps, just a motion, the women carrying their babies and the men the ever-present, ing flask. One picture showed the making of a family dish, which was white, like milk in color and which was first chewed in the mouth and then spewed into the main container.

BEAUTIFUL ART

The Indian had a sense of the beautiful as exemplified in their art, some of which was as delicate as lace, fashioned from a thread from one solid piece of wood, whitened and then coloured exquisitely. These works of art included the saints, and the Virgin Mary, which made the Indian Catholic in faith. They are also noted for their fine pottery, which is made on crude looms; when a woman buys a skirt, it will last for life as do the old ones. Wool is obtained from the sheep.

The Indians of the Panama hat was also shown, and the delicately woven hats in different shades were as fine as linen. These hats were left with unbleached and when dyed became colored.

Following a brief talk by J. C. R. (Bud) Punchard, president of the Kiwanis Club, who welcomed the many present, Gerald Shiffert introduced the speaker to his audience.

13 Resolutions Passed at Final Meeting

SASKATOON (CP)—The 37th national Catholic Women's League convention ended Wednesday with 13 resolutions ranging from calls for stricter licensing of firearms to a request that the federal government denounce Communist regimes.

One resolution formally worded resolution said a petition will be forwarded to Prime Minister Diefenbaker and External Affairs Minister Sidney Smith urging the Canadian government "to use its influence to have the Russian free voice themselves" in China, Poland, Hungary and other nations "where more than one-third of the peoples of the earth are dominated by Communist regimes."

Other resolutions asked that a CWL member be appointed to the Senate, that a subsistence policies for immigrants be enlarged to include medical care in the first year of residence, and that the Succession Duty Act be amended to increase the exemption from $50,000 to $75,000 and provide for payment of succession taxes in annual installments.

The league urged greater supervision of the movies "because of immoral and other objectionable parts, particularly those dealing with crime and crime." The resolution also asked members to "express frequent letter of commendation to ... managers" to help them know standards which please.

Mrs. F. A. Bussieres of Sillery, Que., was re-elected national president of the league for 1957-58.

Others officers elected include fifth vice-president, Mrs. H. T. Donihee, Cornwall.

Best in Schools To Separate Twins Says Official

WINNIPEG (CP) — It is often best in schools to separate twins says A. D. Thomson, assistant director-consultant of the Winnipeg school district.

"Twins rarely enter a teacher's experience, but when they do one will be dominant and the other dependent," he said. "For one of the dependent one, it's best to separate them."

Mrs. R. N. Robertson, school trustee, agreed. "I'm the mother of identical but dissimilar twins," she said. "We saw problems arising when classmates started making comparisons.

"They've been separated at school for the past four years and the change has been good. People should never forget that twins are individuals."

Mr. Thomson explained the difference between identical and fraternal twins.

"Identical twins, born of the same heredity, are usually very alike in IQ, tastes and everything else," he said. "Fraternal twins have different characteristics and often differ as much as any other member of the family."

Mr. Thomson said: "Any child at school must be treated as an individual regardless of how developed that way. The same applies to twins and we try preventing anything that will mean the opposite for either twin."

Bridge Street AOTS Hears Heart' Talk

The regular supper meeting of Bridge Street A. O. T. S. Club was held recently with the regular members and six visitors present.

Mr. Bruce Reid outlined plans for the annual turkey dinner to be held on October 30 at 6.30 p.m. This dinner is prepared, served and served by the men of the church.

A dance notice was given of a New Year's Eve party to be held at Bridge Street church for friends of the church. The club will hold "Ladies Night" the last week in November.

Eastminster W.F. Hears History of Entomology Lab

The president, Mrs. J. Kuntze welcomed all and called on Mrs. L. Read to report on the plans of the fall tea and bazaar, which is to take place early next month.

Mrs. T. Riley read the minutes of the last meeting, and the treasurer, Mrs. G. Mayhew, gave her financial report. The ladies were reminded to start collecting rummage for a sale during November.

Mrs. A. McDowell took charge of the devotional period, the theme being "Commitment for Service," assisted by Mrs. A. Atkin reading the Scripture, followed by Mrs. N. Bolton reading the theme thoughts.

Mrs. McDowell led in prayer after which the hymn "Take Up Thy Cross" was sung, bringing the worship service to a close.

Mrs. G. Maybee introduced the guest speaker, Dr. J. S. Cosbington, Ph.D., of the Dominion Entomology Laboratory here in Belleville. Dr. Barlow spoke on the history of the laboratory, control of insects and the research that is carried on there, using slides to illustrate his talk.

Mrs. J. Cochrane thanked the speaker for giving such an interesting talk, after which refreshments were served and everyone enjoyed a social hour together.

St. Margaret's Guild E.B. Plans Fall Bazaar

The regular meeting of St. Margaret's Guild Evening Branch took place Monday evening in the church hall.

Mrs. A. Watson, Guild president, opened the meeting.

Mrs. J. Rose read from J. B. Phillips' "Letters to Young Churches".

Final arrangements were made for the serving of afternoon tea for the November meeting to be held at St. Margaret's Church.

Mrs. Watson introduced the present of the Eastminster United Church tea and bazaar to be held next month.

It was reported that the Girls' Auxiliary will convene the fall bazaar and a generous bazaar. A number of attractive articles were turned in to Mrs. B. Bishop, convener of children's clothes.

Mrs. J. Rose distributed articles to be made for the variety table. Bazaar tickets are to be handed in to Mrs. A. Staring.

P. Platt is in charge of advertising.

The remainder of the evening was spent by members busily engaged in bazaar work under the guidance of Mrs. E. Ritchie.

Refreshments were served by members of Mrs. P. Pickering's group.

St. Michael's PTA Elects Officers, Hears Health Talk

The regular monthly meeting of St. Michael's P.T.A. was held on Monday evening in the school auditorium.

The president, Mr. Ernest Cook, occupied the chair. Mr. Cook gave a brief resume of the activities at the annual meeting of the Kingston Archdiocesan Council of Parent Teacher Associations, and congratulated the Reverend Sister Mary Theresa, and Mr. Hendrick Brown on their respective elections as vice-president and treasurer.

The annual euchre and bridge party and turkey draw in aid of the P.T.A. and high school will be held on Wednesday, December 11.

It was decided that the next monthly meeting will take place Sunday, November 17th, following by a meeting party for the new Canadians in the parish.

The highlight of the meeting was a lecture by Dr. J. B. McSherry on "Health Problems of a Teen-Ager." Dr. McSherry traced the growth and development of a child during adolescence both mentally and physically. It was observed that the adolescents tire easily, and this is caused by the increased energy required for physical growth. Mental growth is rapid during adolescence and I.Q. tests show that a mental maturity is reached at 14 to 18 years of age, although the development of capacity to learn continues beyond this age.

NEEDS GUIDANCE

The importance was stressed upon the parents that the child should be guided and helped to form his own ideas rather than being forced into a pre-conceived pattern.

Dr. McSherry concluded by saying that with Catholic teachers concentrating the fundamentals of religion, laid down in Catholic classrooms, the P.T.A. has a responsible contribution to make. From this partnership will be developed and brought to strong religious maturity, the sons and daughters of God.

Dr. McSherry was introduced by Mr. Herbert Brown and thanked by the Reverend Sister Mary Justina.

The meeting closed with a social hour and refreshments.

Shannonville Residents Honored By Farewell Gift

On Wednesday evening a number of community neighbors and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Topping, Shannonville, to hold a farewell social evening and presentation in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Robert MacFarlane, who are leaving the district, to make their home in Belleville, after 25 years spent in the neighborhood.

The gathering, which was a complete surprise to the honored couple, enjoyed a social get - together and reminisced of by - gone days, after which Miss May Topping, daughter of the host and hostess, read the presentation address in which regret at their departure from their midst and wishing them much happiness in their new home, being sure they will not be too lonely for the feeling of the kind was expressed by all, and signed by Gladys Mae Topping and Beatrice Driver.

Mrs. Thomas Driver made the presentation of two chrome rocking chairs and other useful gifts, for which both Mr. and Mrs. MacFarlane most graciously expressed their appreciation and thanks.

Refreshments brought the evening to a close.

BRIDE'S FAMILY WANT GROOM'S FAMILY TO PAY HALF OF WEDDING EXPENSES

Mrs. Beechman:

My son is to be married in a few months, and he (and we also) would like to know what the groom is supposed to contribute financially toward the wedding expenses. That is, are there any definite rules as to what the groom is to contribute? We are of the working class, of Jewish faith, and as far as we are concerned a simple wedding would be appropriate. But the bride's parents are insisting on a large wedding, and have asked us to contribute one-half of the expenses. All their plans are for a wedding in grand style, for approximately 150 guests, and the expenses will probably run into several thousand dollars. Thank you for any information.

—The prospective groom and his family

Two important things to tell you:

Neither the groom nor his family should pay any part of the expenses of the wedding. Nor should they be asked to pay any part of the expenses. The bride's parents, because they are the hosts of the wedding, pay the entire cost of the wedding (with the exception of a very few items which are the responsibility of the groom). Only when a family have the privilege and responsibility of choosing the kind of wedding they can afford, and they should make the plans according to their budget.

(2) Yes, there is a very definite list of what the groom pays for the Wedding ring marriage licence wedding present for the bride. These flowers: bride's bouquet and her going-away corsage; corsages for both mothers, flowers for the bridal attendants, a contribution to the clergyman or rabbi who performs the ceremony. Presents to best man and ushers, also for a formal wedding, their neckties and gloves. Bachelor dinner (if he gives one). Transportation for best man and himself from house to place where ceremony is to be performed. Hotel accommodations, if any, for groom's out-of-town attendants, and for wives of attended attendants. All expenses of the wedding trip.

Millinery Trends

By ALICE ALDEN

Color and a movement toward the back are two distinguishing attributes of the newest millinery offerings. Mr. Arnold combines the two, perfectly, deftly in a young, pretty hat, the flowing drapery of ruby red satin drawn back over a matching red velvet colf and caught with a narrow bow of red velvet baby ribbon.

Readers' Friday Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

. . . I have always been a very active person until the last seven years. I have multiple arthritis. Now I am badly crippled. I have three children 18, 15, and 12. They are all going to school. I have an awful time getting meals for them and my husband. Could you please help me? My husband is a conductor on the C.N.R. and sometimes is away for a few days at a time. Other times he is home for a day or longer and often helps me out. What I would like is a few recipes for dinner at night when the children come in home from school. I have an electric fry pan and I keep it on the table where we eat in the front room. My husband made some stew for me the other day and put it in the freezer and I took it out and heated it tonight. He also mashed some potatoes and put them in there too so I had an easy meal to prepare. I need something to say because I haven't any strength at all and I'm in my wheel chair most of the time. One night I had chili con carne that I had made and put in the freezer and everyone seemed to like it. As far as dessert goes I generally have fruit as I find it hard to bake puddings . . . I will appreciate any help that you can give me . . . Mrs. T. L. F.

ANSWER:

After I read your letter I thank God my Heavenly Father for my good health and resolved never to complain about anything ever. Your stout heart and bright spirit are a challenging example to all of us. I am mailing to you favorite releases from this column which you will find useful: Quick Sauce Mix, Louise's Basic Mix, for baking quick breads, muffins, biscuits, waffles, etc., Automatic Oven Dishes, recipe for Chicken Tetrazzini, that will start you off . . . With three children over twelve, I suppose - I know - they would be glad to help preparing all of the vegetables for you that you need for a stew, for example. Or if there is not anyone home and your budget is not restricted, you could use canned diced carrots, onion flakes, canned potatoes, etc.

I will give you a double quantity recipe for a good stew, half of which may be refrigerated for a second meal.

TRADITIONAL CANADIAN BEEF STEW:

Four lbs. lean stewing beef, in 1¼-inch cubes, ¼ lb. salt pork (both chopped by butcher), flour, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon pepper, ½ teaspoon garlic powder, 1 cup chopped onion or flakes, 2 cups water with 4 beef or chicken bouillon cubes, 2 cups canned tomato juice, 4 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce, 1 teaspoon thyme, boiling water, 1 vegetables pared and cut in advance by children) 12 medium potatoes, 12 medium carrots, 1 cup diced turnip. Women's Activities

BRIDGE STREET E.A.

The Thanksgiving meeting of the Jubilee Evening Auxiliary was held in the Sunday School auditorium where Mrs. Schooley and Mrs. Wotten's group served delicious supper.

Mrs. Grace Kenny presided and opened the meeting, extending a cordial welcome to all present. After the minutes and treasurer's report, Miss E. Houston, Christian stewardship secretary, gave an interesting message from the story of "Mrs. Dowd's Mite." She closed her message with a prayer.

Miss Alexandra Gilmour, program convener, and group, gave a very interesting program on "Service."

Miss Pearl Campbell read the lesson from Isaiah 61:8. Miss Daley Young gave a reading from the Scripture lesson. Prayer was offered by Mrs. Bessie O'Neill. The worship service was brought to a close by the reading in unison of the Thanksgiving Psalm.

The new study books, "New Roads in Burma and Thailand, Lands of the Free," were introduced by Mrs. Betty Colden and Joy Nichols. Beautiful pictures of Malaya were shown and enjoyed by all.

Miss Grace Houston made a motion that the proceeds of the supper held last fall be sent to the hospital in Thailand, where Dr. and Mrs. Gordon Gray are doing such wonderful work. This was approved by all the members.

This interesting missionary meeting was closed in prayer by Miss Kenny.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Mrs. D.W. — My nieces have no decent family feeling.

Edna R. — We never seem to please her.

* * *

Mrs. D.W. — I am a widow, alone in the world. I married late in life and never had children. My only relatives are my two nieces. They are all I have.

Now I realize that these two young women are very busy with their families and all of that, but you would think they'd just once in a while find time to visit their aunt. I'm not thinking of myself. I don't care whether they come or not, but out of respect for their departed mother they ought to show a little interest. If their mother knew how they act she would be heartbroken.

Every time they do pay me a visit these girls are in a hurry to leave. They say they are so busy, busy, busy,

VANGUARD ROCKET IN SUCCESSFUL TEST FIRING

The U.S. Navy's Vanguard rocket, being developed to launch a satellite, roars upward from its launching platform at Cape Canaveral, Fla., in a test of its first stage engine. The rocket gives off a white-hot stream of fire and billows of smoke as it reaches for the upper spaces. During the flight the Vanguard reached a peak velocity of 4,250 miles per hour.

Greener Thumbs
BY JOYCE SMITH

You don't need an estate to have a small rock garden for growing and displaying special plants. Build one during the winter to be ready for spring planting. Rock garden needs well drained spot. Start by digging out soil a foot in depth; replace with cinders or gravel. Then build rockery stone by stone, large ones at bottom fitted solidly. Best type are flat or porous limestone, but any can be used. Fill in, and pack, between rocks with good soil, adding as it settles. Plant with alpine, dwarf bulbs and perennials.

SAYS KING PROPOSED TO DUCHESS

British newspapers have published a story of a proposal of marriage by Crown Prince Olav of Norway to the Duchess of Kent, aunt of Queen Elizabeth, a few months before Olav became king. The proposal was made through King Frederick of Denmark and was "graciously declined" by the duchess. The Duke of Kent, brother of King George VI, was killed in an airplane crash in 1942.

RAWDON

Young Couple Honored by Wellman's Folk

RAWDON — On a recent Friday evening a large number of community friends and relatives convened in Wellman's Orange hall and tendered the newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Craig Watson, a presentation party.

Mr. Frederick Beckett was the master of ceremonies. Vocal duets were contributed by Miss Lulubelle Mathews and her brother, Arnott, and by Misses Bonnie and Mary Dracup. Miss Clara Thain read an appropriate selection.

Misses Barbara Watson and Norma Tinney rendered a piano duet. Three piano solos were given by Mrs. Gerald Clancy, Miss Agnes McKeown and Miss Judith Oddie. Mrs. Kenneth Tompkins and daughter Jean, the Cotten sisters, and Mrs. Fred Beckett and daughter Carol each contributed vocal duets. The latter was with guitar accompaniment.

PRESENTATION MADE

Mr. James Rainie read an appreciative address and the presentations were made by Messrs Keith Clancy, Douglas Cotten and James Pollock. The gifts were an upholstered platform rocker and table electric lamp as well as individually wrapped gifts from other friends.

Craig and Betty expressed thanks for all the lovely gifts and for party and program and at the close the Wellman's folk served refreshments.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Eckardt of Toronto, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stewart.

Tightens Policy

TORONTO (CP)—In a continuance of its fight against pollution of Ontario's waters, the Ontario water resources commission has tightened its policy in connection with municipal construction of sewers.

Commission approval for construction of sewer extensions, additions or new projects will not be given until the municipality concerned embarks upon a program of sewage treatment, chairman A. M. Rowan said Wednesday.

The commission is required by the Ontario Water Resources Commission Act of 1955 to control the establishment of sewage works, or extensions or additions to existing systems, he said.

More powerful engines demand more powerful anti-freeze

"PRESTONE" BRAND ANTI-FREEZE

has all the protective power your engine needs

In the past ten years, the horsepower of car engines has gone up—and up—and up. It had to be—because the car you drive today needs more power—for today's performance. So you can see that with a more powerful engine there'll be more demands on the cooling system—and more at stake if anything goes wrong with that cooling system. In addition to the freeze-up protection that anti-freeze gives you, your car needs the complete protection that "Prestone" Brand Anti-Freeze provides.

You see, it's not only frost that can stop anti-freeze circulating in your radiator. Particles of rust can clog it—corrosion can cause a leak—the water pump can deteriorate. "Prestone" Brand Anti-Freeze protects against these risks, too. Special inhibitors prevent rust and clogging. A unique Polar Film coats every part of your car's cooling system—seals it against corrosion and deterioration. And a special anti-foaming ingredient makes sure that the anti-freeze will not foam out of the top of the radiator.

Your car should have the protective power of "Prestone" Brand Anti-Freeze—be sure you insist on it for trouble-free, Winter driving.

BRITAIN'S VULCAN BOMBER STOPS AT OTTAWA

At Ottawa's RCAF Station Uplands after a non-stop crossing of the Atlantic is the Avro Vulcan four-jet bomber carrying Air Chief Marshal Sir Harry Broadhurst, chief of the RAF Bomber Command, to the USAF's Strategic Air Command Bombing competition. The non-stop crossing, against 100 mph headwinds, took just under seven hours. One of these delta-wing bombers, carrying nuclear weapons, has greater hitting power than the total bomb load of all the 7,366 Lancasters produced during World War II. This one, first to visit Canada, dropped overnight in the capital.

TORONTO (CP)—Which is Ontario's fastest - growing community?

Reckoning from 1951 to 1956, Richmond Hill, just north of Toronto, takes the prize. Swollen by suburb-dwelling Toronto workers it grew to 6,677 from 3,164, a rate of 208.5 per cent.

Another Toronto suburb, New Toronto, grew the fastest from 1901 to 1956. It went to 11,500 from 208, a rate of 5,431.1 per cent.

Outside the Toronto area, Sudbury was the fastest grower from 1901. Starting with 2,027 it went to 42,462, a rate of 2,193.1 per cent.

ECONOMIC SURVEY

These bits of information come from the "1956 Economic Survey of Ontario," a fact-packed mimeographed volume of 370 typewritten pages compiled by the provinces department of economics.

The book wasn't designed as a handy answer to Ontario quiz problems. Its aim was to set out economic statistics for the province as a whole as well as for regions and individual municipalities.

Eighth annual such report, it sets out in detail the Ontario statistical story in 19 sections: Topography, population, income, production, agriculture, forestry, fisheries, trapping and fur farming, mining, electric power, manufacturing, construction, trade, tourist industry and transportation.

It reports such information as:

Ontario population growth from 1951 to 1956 was the highest ever, at the rate of 2.3 per cent a year. By the end of 1956 the total was estimated at 5,615,000 compared with 5,404,933 in mid-year and 4,597,542 in 1951. By 1957, it is expected to reach 8,186,000.

VITAL STATISTICS

Birth rate in 1955 was nearly 27 per thousand population and death rate at 8.8 was the lowest ever. Sturgeon Falls in northern Ontario had the highest birth rate of any municipality with 38.4. Lowest was the swank Toronto suburb of Forest Hill with 13.5.

Among cities, Sudbury had the highest birth rate with 36 and Brantford the lowest with 18.6. Easterday, an Ottawa suburb, had the lowest death rate, 5.6. Perth, in the Ottawa area, had the highest, 14.8.

Among centres of 10,000 population and over, St. Thomas had the highest median age, 33. Timmins was the lowest with 28.2.

In 1955, 74.3 per cent of Ontario dwellings were owner - occupied compared with 56.5 per cent in 1941. The Toronto suburb of North York topped the owner-occupied list with 89 per cent. Orillia was at the opposite end of the scale with 56.6 per cent of owner-occupied.

Weekly wages averaged $65.61 in 1956, an increase of $3.18 over 1955, the previous record year. Highest wages were in the primary mine and steel industry with $86.96, lowest in hotels and restaurants with $36.67. Greatest increase since 1939 was shown by forestry, chiefly logging, which went to one of the highest figures at $72.56 from second lowest at $15.35.

SUDBURY INCOMES HIGH

Based on income tax returns, Scobury residents had highest average income with an average of $3,767 and Sarnia was second with $3,763. Toronto was led with 3,703 and Sault Ste. Marie was second with $3,727.

Farm cash income in 1956 was $749,000,000, second only to the record of $778,000,000 in 1951. Income in kind, $129,000,000; was the highest ever. In its review of agriculture the report says:

Forestry industry products were worth $1,250,000,000 in 1956. Mining production was worth $583,964,021 in 1955 and the estimate for 1956 is $650,000,000. In 1957, it is expected to reach $700,000.

The province's manufacturing plants employed 645,000 in 1956, producing goods with a gross value of $10,200,000,000, a net value of $4,800,000,000. With one-third of Canada's manufacturing plants, Ontario accounted for roughly half the national production.

Accused to Hang For Slaying Of Waitress

HALLEYBURY (CP)—Wilbrod Jolivet, 32, of Kirkland Lake, is to be hanged Jan. 21 for the murder of Shirley Daigneault, 20-year-old waitress who was shot to death in a restaurant.

A Supreme Court of Ontario jury Thursday brought in a verdict of guilty with a recommendation for mercy. Mr. Justice W. F. Spence said he had no alternative under the law but to impose the death penalty.

The recommendation of mercy would be referred to State Secretary Fairclough.

The jury had been asked by defence counsel Gregory Evans to return a verdict of manslaughter with a recommendation for mercy. He said drunkenness and provocation contributed factors to the slaying.

BROKE DOWN

Jolivet, who broke down after testifying Wednesday, said: "All I wanted was to scare her."

Asked by acting crown attorney R. Cumming: "Did you shoot her?" he replied: "Yes, I did."

Mr. Cumming told the jury that Jolivet had intended only to scare Mrs. Daigneault, with whom he had lived, he would not have loaded the gun, and that he had not been drunk enough to forget his actions.

Hard to Find More Feared Symbol of Russian Power Than Marshal Rokossovsky

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Turks have a new and ugly worry, now that Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky has come to live beside them.

It would be hard to find a more feared symbol of Russian power than the 60-year-old warhorse, steeped in combat and Red politics.

Further, Rokossovsky's appointment as commander of Soviet forces bordering Turkey comes at a time when Russian policy in the Middle East has again taken a tough turn.

By sending one of its most honored soldiers to the area, Russia is dramatizing the claim that Turkey plans an attack on Syria—a claim vehemently denied by the Turks.

SAUD'S ROLE

Syria, in rejecting the offer of King Saud of Saudi Arabia to mediate its dispute with Turkey, is obviously going along with Russian wishes to make propaganda of the issue at the United Nations.

Much of Russia's propaganda success in the crisis so far has resulted from the fact that Syria's Arab neighbors have stood firmly on her side through racial loyalty. A pro-Turkish finding by Saud, who is slowly acquiring the reputation of a sort of patriarch among Arabs, might change this. It depends very much on the whole pattern little if any hope that Russian tyrannize will be lifted from Europe, Russia, flushed with the success of its great scientific advances, will exploit them to the limit, it is felt.

OIL FACTOR

These observers say a glance at the map is enough to explain Russia's threats and feigned rage toward Turkey. That unhappy country sits squarely between Soviet territory and Syria, which has fallen largely into Soviet influence.

Russia, with an eye on the political and economic importance of Middle East oil — much of which is carried across Syria in pipelines — will spare no effort to spread its influence, especially since plans now are under way for construction of trans-Turkey oil pipelines to bypass Syria.

Rokossovsky's arrival on this scene thus has ominous implications. The tough soldier was second only to Soviet Defence Minister Georgi Zhukov as a Second World War Russian field commander, playing an important role in the fighting at Moscow and Stalingrad.

ATOMIC WEAPONS

Following the war, he played a more hated role, in Poland, his native country. As commander of Polish armed forces, he became the detested symbol of Russian domination until his recall a year ago at the demand of the Poles.

Latest reports indicate he is losing no time at his new job: A Russian broadcast said his forces on the Turkish border are training in the use of atomic weapons.

Election Within Year Essential Says Sen. Haig

OTTAWA (CP) — Senate government leader John T. Haig said Thursday no federal government can operate effectively without an overall majority in the Commons.

He told the senate during the throne speech debate that "if we are to have a government that can formulate strong and far-seeing policies in this country we must, inside of a year, have a general election."

Senator Haig was referring to present party strength in the Commons as a result of the June 10 election.

The Progressive Conservative government has 111 supporters, the Liberal opposition 105, CCF 25 and Social Credit 19 with two independents, one Independent-Liberal and two vacancies.

MAJORITY NEEDED

Senator Haig, minister without portfolio in the federal cabinet, said he has no special knowledge or information about the prospects of another general election.

"Certainly, I have no political interest in it, and neither have my fellow senators," he said.

"But I am interested to this extent—that an over-all majority in the House of Commons is required to carry on effectively the government of this country."

He said he might be accused of making excuses to try to justify the present government making an appeal to the country. That was not his intention but he hoped the present government meeting until after the next election would have a clear majority in the Commons.

CAREFUL TREATMENT

Until there was an over - all majority in the Commons, the senate had to be "very careful how we treat the business that comes from that chamber, so that we will not mix up in the political struggle that may be going on there."

In the upper chamber there are 78 Liberals and 13 Conservatives, with two independent Liberals, one independent and eight vacancies.

Harness Racing Top Sport Draw for Maritimers After Many Hobbles Shaken Off

By ED SMITH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HALIFAX (CP) — Customs, comforts, stiffer regulation and just plain stable cleaning have helped shake off harness racing's hobbles to make it a multi-million dollar, top spectator draw for Maritimers.

An appreciative public has responded by playing the parimutuels as never before. It's estimated that horse-loving downeasters will bet about $6,000,000 before the 1957 season ends on seven major tracks in New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island. About half this amount will be bet here at Saint John, N.B.

The country fair flavor was also to go.

EARLY EFFORTS FAIL

Even the gradual introduction of the mobile starting gate, flood-lights and loud publicity failed to bring desired results. Many stables, owners of their trotters and pacers to New England tracks, suspicious public was not persuaded to look but not invest.

"We tried to build up and get rid of a main undesirable element at the same time," says Jack Cruickshank, race secretary and manager at Kentville Raceway, the Halifax raceway.

The early days with the trend toward faster purses, part-mutuel automation and stake races became perilous. But it had its humorous petites. But it was a 1955 gamble by a group of Halifax business men that rescued the racing game a little wider.

General Director B. C. Cruickshank made the motion with the $500,000 to give birth to the Downs, a modern grandstand with the accent on spectator conveniences.

"I wouldn't take a million for my share of it today," vows the Halifax president of the race track way company.

Truro, 13 miles outside the city, is built within a horseshoe toss of the original Sackville track. A shaky operation from the start, the original failed in two years after dissension among directors.

SYDNEY IMPROVEMENTS

Sydney, new pavilions and paved rooms have put resiliency into the game. Creditors hold Cape Breton Sports Centre Limited, properties that went bankrupt two years ago.

Track directors in the three provinces agree that the federal agriculture department decision to post plainclothesmen of the RCMP on a part-mutuel supervisors has helped public confidence. Their policy is to check that odds are posted fairly and swiftly, and that the bettor gets his proper rebates.

Last year operators raised a united cry at Ottawa for legislation to make saliva tests mandatory for all horses before and after a race. Ottawa's recommendations were shelved but another pitch will be made this fall.

"The saliva test will have to come," says Ferguson. "The government owes us that next step. It would be a 50-per-cent slice of our nightly handle. It will mean complete protection to the public."

TRAINING IMPROVES

Horse owners have had no kicks saying $50,000 is lean.

"They're taking a keener interest in the care and training of their animals," admits Otto Stevenson, manager of the Moncton Raceway, a good deal is being done to improve the selection and breeding of trotters and pacers, particularly in the centre of the city. Fans watch from automobiles between frosty hikes to a temporary part-mutuel booth.

Newsman Who Won Award Dies Before Same Presented

By JACK VAN DUSEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Tourist Association has decided to put off until a fate date the posthumous presentation of the Julian Crandall Conservation Trophy to Watson H. Porter, London, Ont., newspaper man and conservationist.

Mr. Porter, who was to have received the award today, died in his London, Ont., home Thursday. He learned of the honor before suffering a fatal heart attack.

CTA officials said award of the trophy, won by the late publisher of the semi-monthly Farmer's Advocate and Canadian Countryman, is to be officially announced tonight at a dinner closing the three-day association convention. The award is for "individual voluntary conservation achievement."

Another change in plans was substitution of Transport Minister Alvin Hamilton for Prime Minister Diefenbaker as principal speaker at the dinner.

MUST MEET BRITON

CTA officials learned Thursday Mr. Diefenbaker would not be able to address the meeting as planned because he is to meet with British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan arriving here to night for a one-day visit.

Mr. Hamilton was chairman of a two-day federal-provincial tourist conference here earlier this week.

Mr. Porter had been organizer and secretary of the Ontario Conservation Association since it was formed in 1936. In 1952 he was made a fellow of the Agricultural Institute of Canada "for distinguished service to Canadian agriculture."

He owned a farm south of Lambeth, Ont., and spent much of his life travelling through Canada and Great Britain studying farming.

In 1947 he was chairman of a steering committee which was instrumental in organizing the Thames Valley Authority, a broad program of flood control, conservation and reforestation in the upper Thames watershed.

RAPS GOVERNMENT

Thursday, convention delegate Dr. J. Lewson Mackie, Picton, Ont., farmer and expert cowman, lapped the government for not reating both sides of his "split personality" equally.

Dr. Mackie said that as a farmer he found it impossible getting government-backed loans for improvements but as a fruit grower was unable to borrow any money for capital expenditures except through "shylock methods."

"Our government is helping me to encourage me to grow more food to feed more people but it won't help me to build a processor—or put my tourist resort in a position to accommodate more tourists—and I've got to wait another year to eat the food I, as the farmer, grow, to feed them," he said.

Dr. Mackie said the federal government should consider the tourist trade as an industry so that businessmen can borrow from the Industrial Development Bank but "on the other hand we are acknowledged as the chief largest industry in Canada."

"We are not able to borrow money from chartered banks, loan companies, insurance companies or mortgage companies on long-term basis."

Houses Scarce At Petawawa

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Pearkes said Thursday that in the face of a housing shortage at Petawawa military camp, newly-arriving married troops are being allowed to live in married quarters within 500 miles of the base for a 33-day period.

The government official said later this means that special lodging and meal allowances will be paid to soldiers who are unable to find accommodation for their families in the area.

The official said that during the current rotation, replacing 300 married soldiers in the camp will be vacated while about 600 married soldiers with families will move in.

In the Commons, James M. Ager (CCF—Renfrew North) said the housing shortage is acute at the camp, 100 miles northwest of Ottawa. He said the defence department has postponed an agreement, made before the June election, for a contractor to build homes there at no cost to the government.

Mr. Pearkes replied that he has not heard of any such agreement. Some 150 married quarters were under construction at the camp.

Hog Producers Will Vote Of Future of Marketing Plan

TORONTO (CP)—Future of Ontario's controversial Hog Marketing plan will hang on a vote to be held next spring among hog producers.

The vote, to be held in March or early April, will give producers a chance to say whether the plan should be continued.

Mr. Goodfellow also released the text of a letter to HPMB chairman Eldred Aiken, saying there is "considerable opposition" to the plan as shown by protest meetings, newspaper articles and the constant stream of critical correspondence being received by this department."

The letter said:

"The responsible government can ignore this situation, particularly when the approval of the farmer majority required under the act has not been obtained before plans can be declared effective. . . ."

The plan and regulations were approved last June, supplanting the Hog Marketing Co-operative. There are 33,000 members and annual sales exceeding $100,000,000.

The marketing board now exercises control over hog sales in 12 counties.

One of the chief opponents of the province's hog marketing schemes has been producer Theodore Parker of Selbyville, Ont. He has waged a four-year fight against them, claiming compulsory marketing is undemocratic and works to hog-growers' disadvantage.

Managing Editor Country Paper Dies Suddenly

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Watson H. Porter," managing editor of The Farmers' Advocate and Canadian Countryman, key figure in the formation of the Upper Thames Valley Conservation Authority.

Mr. Porter had just received word that he was to be awarded the Julian Crandall Trophy for a lifetime of conservation work.

He was born in Nova Scotia and graduated from Ontario Agriculture College in Guelph in 1911 and accepted the position of secretary-manager of the Lambeth County.

He joined The Farmers Advocate as associate editor in 1913 and in 1918 advanced to the post of managing editor.

In 1947, Mr. Porter was chairman of a steering committee which was instrumental in organizing the Upper Thames Valley Authority, as a far-reaching program of flood control, conservation and reforestation in the Upper Thames Watershed.

Survivors include his wife and three daughters.

'Go Home Yankee' Slogan Almost Vanished in Japan

By ROBERT BLAZEY

Instead, large groups of Japanese — storekeepers, restaurant proprietors and land owners—are petitioning the United States authorities and the Japanese government for protection of livelihood and compensation for the losses they will suffer when the American troops withdraw.

Earlier this year, the United States government announced that all or most U.S. forces would be withdrawn from Japan as soon as the huge air and navy installations paved down preparatory to a complete pull-out as soon as the Japanese were able to take over the defence of their own country.

PREMATURE CHEERS

The initial outburst of cheering which followed the announcement died away as many thousands of Japanese directly affected began to realize the implications.

At Sendai, a country town in northern Japan which owes a large part of its prosperity to the soldiers of the U.S. 1st Cavalry Division, the Stars and Stripes flies. Commenting on the withdrawal of the entire division from its 14 camps in and around the town, the mayor of Sendai said that the economic effect on the town and the prefecture was equivalent to closing down a then employing 50,000 workers.

More than 2,000 camp laborers, who enjoyed good jobs and relatively high wages with the Americans, now are looking for work. They will work hard and earn a subsistence wage if they are lucky, but 60 per cent will have to live on the unemployment roll.

MANY JOBS

When the division was at full strength a few years ago, it employed 23,000 Japanese laborers, clerks and interpreters.

The eastern side of the town subsiding the camp areas has taken on the look of a gold mining centre where the gold has run out. Bars, cafes, souvenir stores, laundries and houses are deserted.

From Gotemba, a provincial town at the foot of Mount Fuji, the U.S. Marines are withdraw-

Charged With Murder

TORONTO (CP) — Glenville Dean Allen, 18, was brought here from Niagara Falls, Ont., Thursday night on a warrant charging him with the murder of laundry proprietor Ling Gee Lee.

He is the third man charged with murder in the slaying. Roland Carriere, 35, and William Fredericks, 27, were charged earlier this month.

Lee died in hospital without regaining consciousness 18 days after being found beaten and robbed in his laundry Sept. 20.

Reckless Hunters

DUNBARTON, Ont. (CP)—School principal John Tickle says reckless hunters are shooting at pheasants flushed from the grass by children walking through fields in a new school near here. Dunbarton is 20 miles east of Toronto.

Many of the children who cross the fields rather than walk an extra mile to school now are being driven to school by parents rather than allow them to brave gun fire," he said.

The pheasant season ends Saturday.

BOSS DELIVERS PAPERS

BONHAM, Tex. (AP)—Flu struck six regular carrier boys and their substitutes, but it didn't interrupt delivery of the Bonham Daily Favorite. Publisher A. L. McAllister and three members of the newspaper staff pitched in to deliver the papers.

SUES 14th MATE

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mrs. Beverly Avery, 48, is suing her 14th husband for a divorce. "I never give up hoping," she said after filing the suit Wednesday in Superior Judge Gabriel Avery, 47, a parking lot attendant, with cruelty.

BREAKFAST IN BED FOR THE 18 TREMBLAYS

For the first, and most likely last, time in their lives, the Tremblay family, 18 of them, had breakfast in bed together. Brought by a fire company from their home near Quebec, they were installed in a luxurious Toronto hotel and, to complete the luxury, were given maid service. Mr. and Mrs. Emile Tremblay have become the parents of 18 children in 10 years.

U.S. TO RETURN BASE

COPENHAGEN (CP)—Premier Hans Christian Hansen Wednesday told the Danish Parliament that the United States has agreed to turn over to Denmark the American air base at Narsarssuak in southern Greenland. No details and the transfer were made public.

GOVT. PROPOSES

The farmer would pay no interest on the cash he receives from the Canadian wheat board. This interest charge, which might amount to some $5,000,000, would be borne by the federal treasury.

But the wheat board, which would raise the money by borrowing under government guarantees, would have to cover administrative costs. This in effect will mean a cut to producers since the board's costs are a charge on sales of their grain by the federal agency.

NO HANDOUT

Mr. Churchill emphasized this will be no handout or subsidy. Farmers had good grain which they could not deliver because of congested elevators. They get initial payments from the board when they make deliveries. The cash advances scheme would give more money to tide them over until deliveries were made.

He said he is sure that sufficient wheat sales would be made in the crop year to cover repayment of the advances. When a farmer eventually made a delivery of grain, one-half his proceeds would be held to replace the amount of advance he had received.

If he defaulted in any way, he would be charged six-per-cent interest on the advance. If he made a false statement on an affidavit in asking for the advance, he would be liable to a maximum fine of $1,000 and six months in jail.

The advances would be available to some 231,000 producers, holders of grain delivery books. Payments would be made by elevator agents after the producer signed an affidavit that he actually had the grain on the farm and would deliver it when called.

SOME APPROVE

The scheme generally was hailed by the CCF and Social Credit parties and received some what less warmly by the Liberals. Rt. Hon. James G. Gardiner, former agriculture minister said the Liberals wanted to see the actual legislation before indicating approval.

"We are hoping that it will do all that the government hopes to have it do," he said. "If it does, it can only be helpful to the farmers."

But another statement by him that the Liberals would have proceeded with similar legislation if they had been returned to power June 10 brought roars of laughter from other parties.

Hazen Argue (CCF — Assiniboia) said he recalled that when the Liberals were in power they had claimed an arrangement of this kind would mean the end of the wheat board; that it could not be done; that all board members would resign.

"It was just as much poppycock at that time as it would be to say it now," Mr. Argue added.

DR. J. A. McCUE

Dr. McCue, a native son and father of two boys and now in practice, in two weeks' time so that during sessional absences his patients would not be unattended.

"From here in I shall do my best to represent every man, woman and child in the riding, regardless of politics," he said.

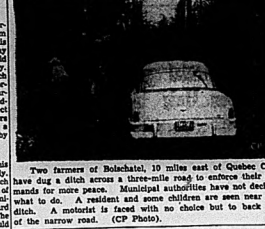
Mr. Burchell, father of five, became the third member of his family to lose a bid to capture the Conservative stronghold for the Liberals.

Mayor of Perth for the last three years, he said it was his first try in provincial politics. He hasn't made up his mind about another.

"The only thing that really disappoints me is the lack of interest that was shown," he said.

It had rained heavily, "but it is a pity nonetheless that people did not think it worth their while to exercise their franchise."

"It is almost pathetic," he said that the turn-out was so small. "No matter which way they lean politically they should vote. That is the only way democracy can survive."



Dr. McCue, an Anglican, graduated in medicine from Queen's University, Kingston, in 1936. After post-graduate work he set up practice in 1938 in Smith Falls his home town.

'Near Beer' Being Sold

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — "Near beer" is being sold at 20 cents a bottle over the counter at a Port Arthur cafe and police say nothing can be done about it at present.

The cafe owner said Wednesday he has ordered 100 cases of the near beer, sold under the name of Malteurt Brew and made by the Metropolis Brewery of New Jersey.

ROAD BLOCKED

Two farmers of Bolachatel, 10 miles east of Quebec City, have dug a ditch across a three-mile road to embrace their demands for more peace. Municipal authorities have not decided what to do. A resident and some children are seen near the ditch. A motorist is faced with no choice but to back out of the narrow road. (CP Photo).

Argos Meet Riders

Tigers Can Clinch Top Spot With Victory Over Alouettes

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The accent clearly has shifted to the defence in Eastern Canadian football.

In the Big Four, the Ontario Rugby Football Union and the Intercollegiate league, the leading team in the row with the least points scored against it.

The offensive leader is tied for second in the Big Four, third in the ORFU but leading the college loop.

Two of the defence-minded top teams—in the Big Four and Intercollegiate—are assured of retaining their spots no matter what the outcomes of the five games scheduled Saturday.

COULD CLINCH IT

Hamilton Tiger - Cats' four-point bulge over Montreal Alouettes and Ottawa Rough Riders could be enough to clinch top spot in the Big Four and a bye into the finals. Hamilton would have to beat Alouettes at Montreal while Toronto Argonauts knock off the offence - leading Rough Riders at Ottawa.

London Lords, ORFU leaders by a point over Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, are idle. Dutchies could take over the lead by beating third-place Sarnia Golden Bears at Sarnia. Bears' offensive record is 10 points better than London's.

University of Western Ontario Mustangs, 10 points better than McGill Redmen in the Intercollegiate points - scored column, move into Toronto against University of Toronto Blues with a two - point lead over McGill-Queen's Golden Gaels host Redmen at Kingston.

SIX-POINT FAVORITES

Hamilton, whose defensive unit was largely responsible for last week's 13-1 victory, are counting on the same men Saturday. Als are quoted as six-point favorites, their shortest home odds in a season.

Teats are in good shape and will be missing only guard Art Darch The flu bug still is flitting about Al camp and Tom Hugo, Herb Trawick, Joel Wells and Norm Hamilton all have ills. All insist they'll be in the game.

Ottawa missed a good chance to take over second place last week when upset by Argos. Coach Frank Clair figures on having all hands available. That'll include tackle Kaye Vaughan who dressed last week but sat out the game with a knee injury.

CANADIANS PROMINENT

Argos will be going with many of the Canadians who were so prominent last week. Import Pete O'Garra is out for the season and Dick Fouts will be missing this game while Fred Wyant probably will see only defensive action.

Western and McGill moved to the top of the college league last week when they blasted back the same clubs they're playing Saturday. Both clubs are picked to repeat and eliminate Toronto and last year's champion Gaels from the race.

Both Varsity and Mustangs have a couple of injuries but the offensive teams are all set. That includes Western's double - full-back offense of Bill Britton and Dale Creighton and Varsity's tossing quarterback Larry Joynt.

AERIAL ALL-STARS

McGill is primed for another top effort from quarterback Dick Carr and ends Joe Poirier and Johnny Bennett. They were good for three serial touchdowns last week and a similar performance this time could be enough to win all three first - string all - star spots. Carr and Bennett have made it the last two seasons.

Queen's are in as good shape as a college club can be with five proven senior footballers chosen to sit this season out. The loss has been too much to make up so far and even Ron Stewart hasn't been able to make them bothersome to any of the other clubs.

Have Football Pro Prospect Say Redmen

MONTREAL (CP) — Coach Larry Sullivan of McGill Redmen is confident that in Len Sigurdson of Winnipeg he has a football player who could move into a professional team's lineup right now.

"Why not?" asked Sullivan as he eyed his players at practice Wednesday. "Len has lots of ability, is very agile for a big man of 215 pounds and loves to play."

Because of lineup problems Sullivan has been using Sigurdson as offensive centre and defensive tackle "and he has been doing a great job for us although he is a natural guard."

Several others are pro prospects. One in particular is 200-pound Ike Brown from Cardinal, Ont., who has been having a good season at tackle.

On the Tracks

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Bornastar raced to a surprising two-length victory Thursday in the $68,020 Spinster Stakes at Keeneland, whipping the year's leading handicap mare, Pucker Up, and four other competitors. Her time was 1:49 1-5 for the 1⅛ miles.

Searching was third, nearly two lengths behind Pucker Up. The victory netted $44,460 for Bornastar, owned by J. Graham Brown. Ken Church, a late replacement jockey for Willie Hartack, brought his mount into the lead at the turn for home. She'd raced in third to that point.

Track, Field Meet Planned For Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—The British Columbia Track and Field Association is making tentative plans to bring some of the world's great athletes to Vancouver for a centennial track and field meet next year.

The meet would be tied in with year-long celebrations of B.C.'s 100th anniversary.

Highlight of the meet would be a "dream mile" in which 12 of the world's top milers would be asked to participate. They would include Derek Ibbotson, present holder of the 3:57.2 world's record, Ken Wood and Brian Hewson, all of Britain.

Milers from Finland, Sweden, Czechoslovakia, Australia and the United States also would be invited.

American League Attendance up Four Per Cent

CHICAGO (AP) — American League attendance this season jumped almost four per cent over last year and, for the seventh time in the last decade, passed the 8,000,000 mark.

Total home attendance for the eight baseball clubs was 8,196,218 compared with 7,893,683 last year the league disclosed Thursday.

Although the champion New York Yankees led all clubs with attendance of 1,497,134, the runnerup Chicago White Sox turned in the biggest increase over the previous year, 135,578, with a fourth-place total of 1,135,668. Yankees increased 3,350 over last year.

Second in total attendance were Detroit Tigers with 1,272,346, followed by Boston Red Sox with 1,181,087, Tigers picked up 291,184 this year and Red Sox increased 47,929.

Fifth behind White Sox were Baltimore Orioles, who climbed 128,380 to a total of 1,029,581.

Three Share OHA-North Lead

SUDBURY (CP)—Three North Bay players share the lead in the first individual scoring release from the Ontario Hockey Association-Northern OHA Senior series.

Trappers' Bob Barlow, Merv Gribbons and Chester Konecny each have eight points.

Tied with seven points are Sudbury Wolves' Joe Malo and Windsor Bulldogs' Frank Bathgate. Tied with five points are Johnny Offidani of Soo Greyhounds and Wolves' Jim Logan and Frank O'Grady.

Malo and Bathgate are the top scorers with five goals each. Barlow and Offidani have four each.

Three goaltenders have goals-against averages of two. Boat Hurley of the league - leading Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen has let in six goals in three games. Windsor's Marv Edwards and Chatham's Binnette have let in two goals in one game.

The statistics are based on games up to Wednesday night.

FIND'S CANADIAN DEBUT IS IN RICHEST RACE

Arriving in Toronto for the Canadian championship to be run Oct. 26 at New Woodbine, A. G. Vanderbilt's Find is led away to track by trainer Bill Winfrey. In competing in Canada's richest race, worth $60,000, the seven-year-old son of Discovery will be making his first appearance on a Canadian track. In the five years the American horse has been racing this has been his best season so far with four wins worth $229,500 to his credit. A dozen starters are expected to run the mile and five furlongs.

Cornwall Nips Junior Habs In Overtime by 6-5 Count

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen involved in a tug-of-war with Soo Greyhounds for the services of winger Tom Walker, have had their winning streak halted—by Tom Walker.

Walker Thursday night scored the goal which held Dutchmen to a 1-1 tie and gave Greyhounds sole possession of second place in the Ontario Hockey Association-Northern OHA Senior A series standings.

Thursday night also saw the second spell of action in the OHA Senior A eastern series with Cornwall Cheviies taking a 6-5 overtime win from Ottawa-Hull Junior Canadiens.

Walker's all - important goal came early in the third period. Dutchmen and Greyhounds had fought out two scoreless periods. The league-leading Dutchmen hit back and with five seconds left in regulation time Buddy Horne notched the equalizer. Neither team could score in overtime.

A breakaway goal by Doug Macphee after three minutes of overtime gave Cheviies victory over Canadiens who had tied the score six seconds from the end.

Rene St. Hilaire, Ron Murphy, Moe Savard, Frank Dorrington and Reg Gregg were the other Cornwall scorers. Bill Carter with two, Bob Boucher, Ralph Backstrom and Claude Ruel scored for Ottawa.

In OHA-NOHA action tonight Dutchmen are scheduled to visit Sudbury with Windsor meeting Chatham.

The OHA eastern division schedule has Whitby at Belleville and Pembroke at Kingston.

HIS SONS WERE FAMOUS

TORONTO (CP) — Benjamin Conacher, 90, father of the late Lionel «Big Train» Conacher and two other sons famous in the hockey world, died Wednesday night. Lionel Conacher was named athlete of the half-century in a Canadian Press poll covering the first 50 years of the century. The other sons are Charles and Roy.

Curlers Name Contests for Coming Season

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Curling Association has announced a list of official groupings for the main competitions it will stage during the 1957-58 season.

The competitions are the 84th annual Ontario Silver Tankard, the 64th annual Governor - General's Trophy, the 34th Burden Trophy, and the 34th Globe and Mail Trophy, all double - rinks competitions; the 21st British Consols Trophy and the 15th Colts competition, both single - rink events.

The Tankard and Governor-General's trophy events comprise 16 groups, each of which has to return winners by Jan. 24. Four four-group winners' playoffs will be staged Jan. 30 and the winners will playoff in Toronto Jan. 31.

The Tankard group - winners' playoff will be at Toronto Royal Canadians, Toronto Granites, Orillia and Hamilton Thistles. The Governor-General's - playoffs will be at Oshawa, Toronto, Guelph and Barrie.

TOP FIRST-GAME LOSERS

Losers in the first games in the Tankard Trophy group-winners' playoffs will compete for the Burden Trophy and losers in the Governor-General's will drop into the Globe and Mail Trophy event.

The Consols and Colts competitions are each divided into eight groups, each of which has to return winners by Feb. 8 with the eight winners in the Consols playing a round-robin at Oshawa Feb. 12-14.

The winner of the round-robin will represent Ontario in the Canadian championships at Victoria, March 3-7.

Division winners in the Colts must be decided by March 1. The eight winners will playoff at Toronto Granites March 13.

Cubs Wallop St. Kitts' B's

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Cubs of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series scored three goals in each period to defeat St. Catharines Levers OHA Senior B team 9-3 in an exhibition game here Thursday night.

Every Hamilton goal was scored by a different player as Henry Akerstad, John Price and Gerry Sullivan scored in the first period.

Lloyd Haddon, Howie Young and Brian Smith scored for Hamilton in the second while Garry Layben, Stu McNeil and Ray Preston added three more in the final period.

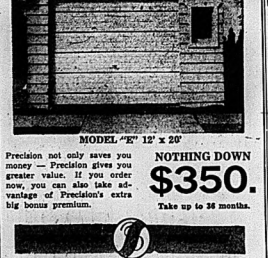
Prince Impressed With Football, American Type



SHEFFIELD, England (AP)—Prince Philip, who went with Queen Elizabeth to see an American-style football game a tBaltimore Saturday, says he was highly impressed.

Addressing the centenary banquet of the Sheffield Football Club (football here means soccer), the prince said Thursday night Britons have been "kicking a ball around since time immemorial!" and undoubtedly started the game.

"I suspect we started American football, too," the prince said. "I had the opportunity of watching a game last week. All I can say is that it is a distant relation of soccer.

"But it is a most exciting game to watch. It is very like a military campaign."

Pressure Eases On Adams, Sawchuk As Red Wings Win Two At Home

Sport Slices

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

A SURPRISE, WOT?

There were red faces in the "back room" late Wednesday night. The scarlet countenances belonged to the odds-makers who figured that Whitby would take Bun's cookies from Kingston by at least five goals. But Master Cook pulled a bunny out of his hockey chapeau and the famed favorites from Whitby went home with a 4-3 defeat tacked on their hamstrings.

True, the Dunnies were minus their ace goalie, Long John Henderson and two or three other key men, but there was no denying the fight and drive of the CKLCs. It was a great win for Bun Cook's men and Kingston fans in general.

Things, apparently are happening in the Whitby camp. Pete Handley released after Wednesday night's game, but the noted Bus Gagnon is no longer with the Dunlops. It was stated that the fiery winger was on the block and the CKLCs had been given permission by Manager Wren Blair to dicker for Gagnon's services. There is a good chance, Handley said, that Kingston will obtain Gagnon "at a fat price."

Another report had it that all has not been well between Blair and Gagnon since the former coach was relieved of his status during the playoffs last year and was "demoted to the ranks," so to speak. Blair took over the coaching duties and steered the Dunlops through to their successful climax.

It does, however, seem a bit of a shame that the dynamic Gagnon will be deprived of the trip to Europe at this stage of the game. He has given a lot to the Dunlops and his fight and spirit carried them to many a victory. However, Blair must know what he is doing and will apparently sacrifice any player in order to have his club at top strength for the world tournament.

THE MAN'S WORRIED

On another front the Cornwall scribe is evidently worried about the McFarlands' acquisition of players. He writes: "The McFarlands bought another player from the pro ranks in the person of centre Barton Bradley and says Drury Denyes must have a mortgage on the city hall to pay out the payroll that all these reformed pros must be getting. Along with Wiener Brown, Bradley will give the league defences sober trouble . . . The purchase of all these hockey players by Belleville makes us wonder if they are starting the move to price the league out of business. One club starts it, the rest have to keep pace and soon everyone is knocking at the poorhouse door. It happened in the Maritimes, it happened in Northern Ontario and this could be the start of it here."

Stop crying in your beer, bub. And don't let what Belleville does worry you. The Chevies have a rather imposing array of imports themselves and they didn't come via any Santa Claus.

As a matter of fact the Macs Booster Club raised the money for Bradley's purchase and they will raise more if other players are needed.

Meanwhile more important business is at hand.—Tonight the Whitby Dunlops will formally open the senior "A" hockey season here before what is expected to be a jammed Memorial Arena. The tickets went on sale yesterday morning and reports had it they were going like the proverbial hot cakes.

His Worship Mayor Harvey J. McFarland, of Picton, will start his namesakes off on what he hopes will be the road to the group championship. With the Prince Edward chief magistrate, will be Her Worship Mayor Jane Forrester and Hixonner Lucas, president of the Ontario Hockey Association. The threesome will face the puck off at sharp nine o'clock and from that point on all friendship ceases. Among the players, that is.

SLIGHTLY PERTURBED

The Pembroke sports editor was a trifle [illegible] because Kingston's Don Soutter did not mention the Lumber Kings' Danny O'Connor in his eastern league round-up story. O'Connor, according to the Pembroke scribe, is a fancy Dan defenceman, who could straighten the leaning tower of Pisa with one of his torso jolts.

Says he: "After Sutter (that's the way he spells it, Don) gets a look at O'Connor knocking the CKLCs around like pins in a bowling alley this weekend, Mr. Sutter will probably have plenty to say about O'Connor."

Hand Boston 3rd Loss in Row With Narrow 4-3 Victory; Replace Hawks in 4th Place

By MARTY GOODMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Take it from Jack Adams, there's nothing like a couple of victories to soothe the home-town fans.

The general manager of Detroit Red Wings was target No. 1 for the jeers of Detroit fans at the beginning of this National Hockey League season.

Wings, sporting seven new faces and with old favorites Ted Lindsay and Glenn Hall shuffled off to Chicago Black Hawks, opened by losing three of four games and all three losses came on home ice.

It got so the home games sounded like the away road games, with most of the abuse falling on Adams and goalie Terry Sawchuk, returning to Wings after 1½ seasons with Boston Bruins.

BACK IN THE RACE

Now, with two straight victories, both at home, Detroit is moving back into fan esteem and, even more important, back into the NHL race.

Their third win of the season in six starts came Thursday night when they edged Boston 4-3. It was Bruins' third straight loss after opening with four wins and kept them in second spot, two points behind Montreal Canadiens.

No games are scheduled tonight. Action resumes Saturday when Boston moves to Montreal and New York plays at Toronto.

Detroit had the crowd with them as they opened fast and raced to a 3-1 lead. Don McKenney pumped in two Bruin goals to tie the game but Norm Ullman scored 41 seconds later for the Wing margin.

It was Ullman's second goal in the game. Earl Reibel and Alex Delvecchio scored for Detroit in the first period before Vic Stasiuk scored for Bruins in the second. Ullman and McKenney followed with their first goals.

The two reversed the order of their scoring in the third period as Detroit grabbed the win. Gord Howe picked up three assists for Wings and Stasiuk added an assist to his goal.

PENALTY PROTEST

The spirited contest saw 14 penalties called, nine to Boston. Sawchuk, who played well in handling 25 shots, drew a misconduct for protesting Boston's first goal. Dennis Sim is ordered made 20 saves.

At Montreal the Canadiens announced they will be at full strength for the first time this season in Saturday's tussle. Doctor Geoffrion has returned to the lineup after a severe case of flu and goalie Jacques Plante is expected to return after a sinus operation. Bert Olmstead is expected to stay in the lineup despite a knee injury.

Montreal announced forward Stan Smrke had been sent to Rochester in a trade with the American Hockey League subject to immediate recall.

Chicago White Sox Al Lopez Named Manager of the Year

NEW YORK (AP)—Al Lopez of Chicago White Sox, who was out of a job at this time a year ago, today was named American League manager of the year for 1957.

Lopez' performance overshadowed those of Casey Stengel of the pennant-winning New York Yankees and Paul Richards of Baltimore Orioles in the opinion of the Baseball Writers' Association of America who participated in the Associated Press annual poll.

Eighty-three of the 180 voters felt that Lopez' direction of the second-place White Sox was the most outstanding. Richards was named on 70 ballots and Stengel on 25. Mike (Pinky) Higgins of the third-place Boston Red Sox received two votes.

SURPRISE SHOWING

The showing of White Sox was one of the big surprises of the American League season. With admitted weaknesses at several positions and little reserve strength, Lopez kept his charges on the heels of the Yankees until their elimination from the pennant fight in the final week of the campaign.

White Sox, in fact, held the lead until June 29, and after falling several lengths behind the Yankees, closed them up to two games on July 14. They were unable, however, to overtake the Bombers.

Lopez, 49, was hired to manage White Sox last Oct. 29 following his resignation from Cleveland Indians, whom he had led for six years. With the Indians, Lopez won the pennant in 1954 and finished second on five occasions.

Richards brought his Orioles home in fifth place, a couple of notches higher than was figured in pre-season estimates.

Two Top Jocks At Woodbine On Saturday

TORONTO (CP)—Two of the continent's top jockeys, Ralph Neves and Joe Culmone, will arrive in Toronto today to ride in Saturday's $60,000 Canadian Woodbine. Neves is flying from Pasadena, Calif., to ride Find for A. G. Vanderbilt. Culmone is flying from Philadelphia to ride Samuel Tufano's Wise Margin.

Earlier this season, at Hollywood Park, Neves rode the $,000th winner of his brilliant career. His mounts have won more than $9,000,000 in purses. Neves rode Find in all his seasonal engagements in California during the summer and has handled the horse since in races at Atlantic City and Chicago.

Culmone, 26, already is considered a veteran jockey. In 1950 he rode 388 winners and tied with Willie Shoemaker as the leading jockey in the United States.

Despite the possibility of a muddy track for Saturday's race all starters are expected in the long run of one mile and five furlongs. Trainer Nick Julius announced he intends to start Doreen's Lad which will carry the colors of Clifford Bennett and James G. Cowan of Toronto.

Dunlops Vote Gagnon 'Stay' Winger Will Play With Club

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

It amounted to much ado about nothing.

The sum and substance of the whole thing is that at a meeting of the Whitby Dunlops' players last night, all voted for Gagnon remain with the club. This, the big winger and former coach decided to do.

Tonight he will be back at his old familiar spot on the Dunlop's line-up.

It all started in Kingston the other night when manager-coach Wren Blair interred to Kingston hockey authorities that Gagnon was on the block. The story that reached here via Gagnon was that he was told he was through with Dunnies and could dicker with any club.

Manager Drury Denyes contacted Gagnon, an old manager Reg Walton of the CKLC's. Gagnon is reported to have said if he played with any team it would be with Belleville, probably because of transportation problems.

Manager Denyes informed this department this morning of the outcome of last night's meeting in Whitby. He did not know if manager-coach Blair was present.

As was mentioned the countryside was flooded with rumors. One had it that dissension was rife in the Whitby camp. Another had it that Long John Henderson was turning professional again. The fact remains that Jack Donlevy was in the Whitby nets against Kingston the other night.

Yet another rumor had it that Blair was on his way out —that town officials of Whitby were investigating reported stories of the unrest in the Whitby camp.

All of which may have a grain of truth or are pure hokum.

Strangely enough the reported blow-up between Blair and Gagnon followed closely on the heels of stories that the manager-coach apparently hadn't been on exactly the best of terms since last season.

Japs Take Lead From Yanks In Canada Cup Golf Tourney

TOKYO (CP)—Today's play in the Canada Cup international golf tournament shuffled the standings with Japan taking over the lead from the United States and Canada slipping from fourth to seventh place.

Japan's team of Torakichi Nakamura and Koichi Ono, five strokes behind the U.S. twosome after Thursday's play, took advantage of Sam Snead's wayward putter to forge two strokes ahead of the Americans in the 30-nation tournament.

The Japanese ended the second day's play with a team total of 278. The consistent Nakamura shot a four-under par 68 for the second day running and Ono, who had a 73 Thursday, dipped to 70 today to give the host team the No. 1 position.

SAM TWO OVER PAR

Snead, who shot a record-breaking 67 Thursday, ballooned to two-over-par 74 today and coupled with partner Jimmy Demaret's two-day total of 49-71 shot the U.S. to 281.

Commonwealth teams held the next five spots in this order: South Africa 283, Australia 284, Wales and England tied with 285 and Canada, represented by Toronto's Al Balding and Stan Leonard of Lachute, Que., 288.

Leonard has shot sub-par golf both days—a pair of 71s—and Balding has been over regulation figures each time. He had a 76 Thursday and whittled one stroke off that figure today.

CLOSE BEHIND

South Africa's pair of Gary Player and Harold Henning stayed near the leaders after posting second rounds of 69 and 70, respectively. Peter Thomson, the winner of three straight British Opens, shot a 68 and young Bruce Crampton added a 71 to boost Australia in fourth place. The Aussies had been tied with Leonard and Balding.

A pair of sparkling 67s, matching Snead's course record, moved both Wales and England into a tie for fifth place at 286.

Dai Thomas, youngest member of the entire British team, had one of the record rounds as a partner of Welshman Dai Rees, the British Ryder Cup captain, who shot a 73.

ALSO A 67

The other 67 was scored by Peter Alliss, Jr., of England as a partner of Ken Bousfield who had 73.

Par for the 6,296-yard course, which played long after an early morning rain, is 36-36—72. Nakamura held the previous course record of 69.

While a partisan, highly elated crowd of 6,000 cheered his every shot, Nakamura also took the lead for the individual international trophy with a score of 136.

He had a four-stroke edge over Demaret, Alliss, and Thomson tied at 140.

Toronto Marlies Crush Petes 11-2 In Rugged Tilt

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Ted Kennedy may have to do some rapid reshuffling even though the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series has just begun.

The former Toronto Maple Leafs star saw his Peterborough Petes crushed 11-2 by Toronto Marlboros Thursday night in the league opener.

Even though they lost Don Curry with a badly cut finger in the first period, Toronto relentlessly piled up the goals. They led 3-0 in the first, 8-2 in the second before adding three unanswered goals in the final period.

Turk Broda's Toronto squad with goaltender Len Broderick in peak form, rushed in on Peterborough penalties. In a rugged game the winners drew 18 of the 27 penalties.

Busso Favored Over Kerwin In NY Fight

NEW YORK (AP) — In the storybooks, Gale Kerwin, the understudy moving up to the starring role, would be a cinch to beat Johnny Busso, the fighter with the reputation.

Since this pairing is not in a novel and the fight is in Madison Square Garden tonight, typical bookmakers have made Busso, ninth-ranking contender, a 13-to-5 favorite to win the radio-television 10-rounder over his Ottawa-born opponent.

Undaunted by the odds and jubilant over getting his first Garden main event, Kerwin was confident he would make good.

"I intend to make the most of my opportunity," the 22-year-old Canadian said. "This is something I've been dreaming about for a long time."

FLU KAYOS TWO

The five-foot-eight 140-pounder got the knock on the door when Allan Bu bowled over two fighters, Paolo Rosi of Italy and New York and Ernie (Sonny Boy) Williams of Washington, D.C.

Rosi was stricken early in the week. The day after Williams was tapped for the starring role, the Washington youngster came down with the flu.

The promotion will mean a $3,000 pay boost. Gale was scheduled to collect $1,500 for boxing Johnny Gorman of New York in the semi-final. Now he will earn about $4,500, of which $4,000 is from the radio-TV receipts.

WINS EIGHT OF NINE

Off his showing in winning eight of his last nine fights, Kerwin stands a chance of scoring an upset. His defeat was to unbeaten Carlos Ortiz but he has the flashy New Yorker on the deck. A pro only 3½ years, Kerwin has a 24-4-1 record, including six knockouts.

Busso also has made a lot of progress in the past year. He gained a berth in the elite top 10 by beating Larry Boardman June 28. In his last start Aug. 30, he lost a 10-rounder to third-ranking Ralph Dupas in New Orleans. Johnny's record is 30-5-1, including 14 kayos. The 5-record New Yorker, about the same height and weight as Kerwin, has been a pro five years.

Fight Promoter Exonerated, Now Back in Game He Loves

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK (AP) — Herman Taylor ain't mad at nobody, as they say, despite being deprived of his livelihood for more than two years as a result of charges eventually proved false.

Taylor is a Philadelphia fight promoter. He's a medium-sized fellow looking younger than his 73 years, more than 60 of which were spent in the fight game.

On May 3, 1955, Harold Johnson, a light heavyweight, was fighting one Julio Mederos under Taylor's promotion.

In the second round Johnson folded like an Arab's tent and complained later that some unidentified individual had given him an unidentified orange and that the orange must have contained something besides juice.

Taylor was not involved in that incident, but it started an investigation of boxing in general. There were hearings and there were heartburns.

LICENCE SUSPENDED

Taylor, whose licence had been suspended, was exonerated.

That was two years ago and Taylor has been idle since.

"I had been in the game since I was 13 years old," he said, "although maybe the time had come for me to step out, as my family urged."

But the lure was too strong, and recently Taylor applied for renewal of his licence. It was granted last Thursday and he came up here to sort of get acquainted with the boys again.

"I'm not in it for money. I'm a lot of money," he says, without rancor.

"My biggest single promotion from a financial standpoint was the Jersey Joe Walcott - Rocky Marciano fight at Philadelphia and won the title. That brought a $508,000 gate."

Taylor already making plans to carry on where he left off. He will start after the first of the year, he says.

$30,000 TO GO

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit sportsmen promoting the January light heavyweight fight between titlist Archie Moore and Chuck Spieser put up another $15,000 Thursday toward Moore's guarantee.

It brought the total amount on deposit to $55,000. The backers are to put up another $30,000 Monday.

Moore has been guaranteed $100,000 for the title defence but the final $15,000 will not have to be posted until the day before the bout.

Educational TV Stations Receiving Some Worthy Aid

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — Educational television stations in the United States, long the financially poor nephews of the TV channels, are receiving some worthy aid this year.

While 232 channels have been reserved for educational purposes by the Federal Communications Commission, only 31 of them are operating currently. Lack of money is the chief reason.

Yet there are many indications that a large segment of the viewing public is interested in the mailbox-and-radio, in education. If the quiz shows have revealed nothing else, they have disclosed that fact.

A better example is "sunrise Semester" over CBS-TV's New York station. To see—and participate—in this program in comparative leisure a large number of viewers in the New York area have been rising at 6:30 a.m. Several hundred have paid a $75 entrance fee to get college credits in the subject, which is offered by New York University.

Now NBC-TV is resuming its educational television project, begun last season. Monday it will begin sending out live to the educational stations the first of five new program "series—ten to the station.

Of further encouragement to educational TV is an announcement by a new group called ONSET (Organization for National Support of Educational Television). ONSET has developed a "patron concept."

Onset Producer Sherman H. Dryer believes that the patron concept — whereby educational programs are endowed by industry on a strict public service, non-commercial basis — will enable non-commercial TV to compete for audience interest.

SPORT IN BRIEF

LIKES MUDDY TRACK

TORONTO (CP) — Willie Roman, owned by the Newton-dale stable of Toronto, showed a preference for sloppy going Friday as he won the featured Golden Sweep three-year-old pace at Greenwood before a crowd of 3,767 at New Woodbine.

Ridden by apprentice Don Hale Noble Roman never was headed in the race and at the wire was a length clear of Captain Henry B. Good. Larchall was third.

SHIFT MEETING SITE

TORONTO (CP)—Sunday's Big Four meeting to hear Montreal Alouettes' protest of last Saturday's loss to Hamilton Tiger-Cats has been shifted from Ottawa to Toronto, it was reported Thursday.

Montreal claims Hamilton's Ralph Toohy rushed onto the field and illegally tackled quarterback Sam Etcheverry as a touchdown should have been awarded. Hamilton won the game 18-15.

POSTPONE ATTEMPT

PICTON (CP) — An attempt here by Miss Supertest II, holder of the Canadian speed boat record, to break the world speed record for propeller-driven craft has been postponed from Saturday to a date early next week because high winds and rain have made it impossible to carry out the time trial. Officials said next Tuesday is a tentative date for the attempt. Miss Supertest is owned by Jim Thompson of London, Ont.

CANCEL BOUT

TORONTO (CP) — A scheduled 10-round fight between welterweights Arthur King and Yama Bahama in Maple Leaf Gardens Nov. 4 has been cancelled.

Matchmaker Jack Allen said King reported Thursday he had contracted influenza. Allan said he will decide today whether a substitute fighter will be found to meet Bahama on the scheduled date.

MIDDLEWEIGHT CONTENDER HITS COMEBACK TRAIL

After a fight with middleweight champion Carmen Basilio, Chicago's Bobby Boyd drew a step nearer his goal by winning an unanimous decision over Germany's Franz Szuzina, in 10-rounder at Syracuse, N.Y. It was the second fight for Boyd since the first for Bobby—seen at right landing a powerful short right to the jaw of his opponent—after spending six months recuperating from a broken jaw suffered in a kayo by Joey Giardello. The disaster struck the one-time contender nearly cut of the ring for good. Now making a comeback, he has won five bouts since then and is ranked eighth in his division.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Calgary Stampeders face a tough two-game schedule in the Western International Football Union this weekend with a sick list as long as their losing streak.

Ailing quarterback Bobby Jurkowski and three other key players on the limp, Stampeders have but two days of brightness—one in the fact they probably won't have to win a game to catch the third and last playoff berth and the other in the fact they'll have a two-week layoff before the semi-finals open.

Stampeders, who meet Saskatchewan's last - place Roughriders at Regina Saturday and the second game in Edmonton Monday against Eskimos, complete their 16-game schedule, have a three-point margin over British Columbia Lions, in fourth place.

A LOSS ENDS IT

Lions meet the league-leading Edmonton Eskimos at Edmonton Saturday night and if they lose their last mathematical hopes disappear.

The regular schedule ends next weekend with two Saturday games—Edmonton at Saskatchewan and Winnipeg at B.C.

Stampeders are the only club facing two games this weekend and with his injury list, coach Keith Peterson isn't looking forward to the situation.

Jurkowski has a knee injury. He may dress but his place likely will be taken by halfback Ron Chimeziuk.

Two American halves also are limping—Jim Merse and Dick Washington, both with bad knees. Tackle Dick Huffman has a groin injury that may keep him out.

A Stampeder victory over the Roughriders would take the Cowboys in the front door to that playoff berth. History for pro injuries during the week, but they won't be overly healthy.

Lions need the biggest upset of the year to keep their hopes alive. Nobody has come close to the Eskimos in their first seven home games this season. Lions doing about as well as many when they lost 25-6 in their last appearance at Edmonton.

Coach Frank Ivy says his defending champions probably won't be at full strength because of injuries, but Esks have the first-place bye into the league finals sewed up anyway.

Eskimos' ailing include linebackers Ted Tully and Kurt Burris, with a sore back and a sprained ankle respectively, halfback Ken Hall, who aggravated an earlier hip injury, and quarterback Don Getty, who definitely won't start. He is recovering from pneumonia.

Influenza has reached Lions' ports and coach Clem Crowe reports Ted Hunt, Art Shannon and Rae Rose, defensive halfbacks, were in bed earlier this week.

Bombers are holding daily workouts on Monday when they meet Stampeders, whom they definitely will meet in the game total-point semi-final.

Coach Bud Grant's backfield is healthy and Monday's game should mark the first time all season he has enjoyed this condition for two successive games.

Gerry James, sensational Canadian fullback with Bombers could break the league's scoring record of 110 points, set in 1952 by Calgary end Bob Shaw. He now has 100.

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN

TORONTO (CP)—The autumn madness known as football isn't confined to antics on the field, as any fan will tell you. Club and league officials, particularly in the Big Four, can pull some zany stuff.

The latest concerns a protest by Montreal Alouettes following an 18-15 loss to the Tiger-Cats at Hamilton last Saturday. It was over a last-minute play by Ralph Toohy, an unlikelihted Tiger-Cat who lowers football stat figures any player not in Hamilton uniform is a deadly enemy.

The play, who might or might not have a legitimate squawk, put their protest in writing and sent a copy to league officials. But they neglected to mail a copy to Judge Allan Fraser, Big Four Commissioner.

RARELY HEARD FROM

Maybe they don't know Judge Fraser's Ottawa address because he's probably the most forgotten man in the history of football. A big noise was made when the judge was appointed to the job early in 1956, the first time a commissioner has been named since the union was formed 30 years ago.

Since then, the former juvenile court judge has been rarely heard from.

About the only time he has been prominently mentioned came last November. At that time he slapped a $200 fine on the Tiger-Cat club and $100 on coach Jim Trimble after Fraser had dismissed a protest by Ottawa Rough Riders over a touchdown pass play.

Fraser ruled that Ottawa's Jackie Parker was illegally downfield when he threw a pass to Ron Howell. Howell caught the ball and scored a touchdown.

Trimble and Ottawa coach Frank Clair were fined for their comments on the play.

Another time Fraser was in the news was when he ruled that Ottawa's Rough Riders would have to forfeit a game to Montreal Alouettes because they had used an ineligible player.

Fraser's decision was overruled by the league's board of governors.

Now Fraser is in the correspondence dealing with Toohy incident, he probably won't be around Sunday when the league brass meet in Ottawa to discuss it.

Big Four officials apparently wanted a policeman, not a commissioner, when they appointed Judge Fraser to his present job.

The Montreal protest followed a play by Toohy who sprang off the Tiger-Cat bench in an unsuccessful effort to bat down a pass intended for the Cats' Art Pavelich who was in the clear. Powell made the touch—a 27-yarder—and ran into touch. Ticats were penalized 10 years for having 13 men on the field.

That wasn't the first time Toohy made an unsolicited appearance from the Tiger - Cat bench.

A couple of years ago at Hamilton he sprinted 65 yards across the field in nothing flat. All the way across he yelled and pointed to an opposing player lying on his stomach just inside the sideline.

The sleeper play was on. Toohy's wild yelling and frantic gesticulations attracted the attention of his teammates on the field and one dashed over to the sleeper in time to spoil the play.

Toohy wasn't a culprit that time. He made the sidelines before the opposition put the ball in play. That is legal.

TV Suffering From Hardening Of the Creative Arteries

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Want to know the difference between the movies and television today?

The issue was brought into focus as I walked to Frank Tashlin, one of the brightest new directors in films.

"I'd rather do movies," he said, "why? Because it's more fun. You can take chances with movies nowadays. The films have to fight for a public and that means we've got to give them something new and exciting.

"This is something recent. Five years ago, I never could have got ideas, they'll give you free rein.

SECOND CHILDHOOD?

"Is television, you have to play everything safe. TV has entered its middle age. Movies have passed it and I guess they're in a second childhood."

Tashlin's remarks are incisive. While hard on the stockholders, the movie depression has been a good thing for creativity. It has formed the service of wiping out the bastard mediocrity in the picture business. The B picture has been virtually killed, except for exploitation films like those dealing with monsters and teen-agers (no parallel intended).

Each picture has to stand on its own now.

TOP ENTERTAINMENT

The result is that producers are scrambling for new ideas, new faces, new creators. Generally speaking, the search for new talent is as high as it has ever been.

Now let's take a look at TV.

The question in TV is no longer: "Is the program good original?" It is: "Can we get a big audience?"

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

(Author of the new "Astrology and You")

Friday, October 25, 1957

"The Stars impel . . . They do not compel! What you make of your life is largely up to you.

Aries (March 21 to April 19)— Take time out today to confer with your spiritual psychologist, your adviser and get the benefit of his or her tremendous experience and wisdom. Follow advice given, and also ideas from your daily paper.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20)— Any intuition you have (or call it mindreading, if you wish to be more scientific) should be followed for greater success in the future. P.M. think how you can be more inspiring to your mate and do something about it.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21)— How is the right psychological time to get in touch with any associates or even competitors and iron out whatever is not in satisfactory condition. P.M. all is adjusted so you can enjoy yourself ideally.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21)— It is imperative you get into greater harmony with usual co-workers or with comrades by giving attention to their particular desires and situations. P. M. see that you put new psychology in motion quickly with family, too.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 21)—If you have been following your stellar predictions properly, this morning you will arise feeling tops, and regain so throughout the day. Show affection to loved ones. P.M. wonderful for pleasure and sports.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)— Are you aware of the strained feeling with closest ties recently caused by your taking them for granted lately? Better repair the damage today and start enjoying life at home once more. Get some good cigars or candy.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23)— Mentally you are very much awake today to your needs and possible ways of gaining goals, more quickly and easily. Better take in that fine lecture on spiritual psychology and know the Truth. It will set you free.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21)— If you think back to the fine principles and ideas under which you were brought up, you can start re-applying them today and ameliorate your present situation and conditions. Don't be afraid to be called old-fashioned.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)— Inwardly you are filled with wonderful philosophy and contentment. Bring this to the fore and inspire others about you today. Do much good this way, and you have a fine, happy day and evening.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)— Let your thoughts be centered on home life and matters of immediate import. Think out ways of showing your real regard for vital persons in your life, too. Give and take harmoniously in ideal family style.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)— A memorable day for you, since your inspiration takes you to the very zenith which your lofty mind conceives, and you automatically seek out the persons within your orbit in which you are best poised.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20)— All manner of inspiration, imagination and Truths manifest themselves for you today, and thereby you can weed out the least worthwhile, make the most of the best. Your future actions can be decided upon today.

If your child is born today . . . The delightful child born today will be the type who will style his or her goal relatively early in life and then aim and shoot straight for it. This is true of any decisions that have to be made, too, as soon as the reasoning mind comes into play. Fine chart for the highest professions, the all-important teaching, lecturing, buying, selling, writing, etc. Be sure to curb the ego tongue-wise.

Little Benny's Notebook

Pop was reeding his paper and ma was reeding hers, saying. This is strange, William. It seems there is a woman who has a remarkable dog that can reed her mind, as well as add and subtract. For instance all she has to do is think of 2 plus 2, and the dog promptly barks 4 times. Do you believe that, William? she said.

No I dont, but if a dog told me he could reed another dog's thoughts, I wouldn't contradict him, because the other dog's thoughts would be more on his own wave length, pop said, and I said, But how about people, pop? Can they reed each other's minds? I said.

Some of them can, pop said. Mental telepathy seems to be an established fact, he said, and I said, Well G, pop, I bet you could do it. Oh boy, you can go on a quiz show and make a fortune by answering all the questions because you'll be reeding my mind by mental telegraff while I'm in a dark corner of the audience looking up the answrs in my Junior Encyclopedia of Nollege with a flashlite. Oh boy, pop, let's try it, I said.

And I got Volume 4 and turned to Electricity, saying, What are the 2 fundamental particles of electricity, pop? I'm thinking of them right now, I said, and pop said, You're thinking of the telefone and the electric razor.

Wrong, I'm thinking of electrons and protons, I said, and pop said, That's too bad, the deel is off.

Benny, ma said, and I said, I bet I can reed your mind, ma, you're thinking of sending me to bed.

And I can reed your mind, you are just getting reddy to start on a long winded argewment, but I seriously advize you not to, she said.

Which I didn't.

Sunday School Lesson

Responsible for the Weak

By ROY L. SMITH

One of the most serious problems in our world is that of the weak people and the weak nations. The vicious are a dangerous crowd, of course, but the weak are a burdensome outfit. An elderly woman who was widely experienced in dealing with human beings once said: "There are three kinds of poor in the world; God's poor, the devil's poor, and the poor devils, and I think this last group cause us the most trouble."

One of the first and major responsibilities of the Church, and of Christians, is for the weak—for those who are not entirely capable of managing their own lives.

PROBLEM OF MEAT

In the city of Corinth, as in many another city of the ancient East, it was the custom among the pagans to offer sacrifices in the form of fat lambs and choice oxen to the gods. The priests at the pagan temples would burn some small portion of the sacrifice and the remainder they kept as a part of their remuneration for presiding at the altars. In order to realize cash out of the transaction they sold the meat, and for it there was always a ready market because it was the best meat available. This had the effect of putting the pagan priests into the meat business (out of which they made big profits because their meat cost them nothing) but it also raised some extremely serious problems for the Christians.

According to the pagan philosophy and theology, some part of the spirit of the pagan god lingered into the meat the moment it was offered as a sacrifice. Some of the Christians ridiculed this idea, saying that "if a pagan god does not exist how can its spirit enter into the meat?" They, therefore, experienced no spiritual anxiety when they ate the "contaminated meat."

Others, not completely rid of their pagan ideas, were not quite able to dismiss the thought that perhaps there was some trace of a pagan god in a good roast or a fine steak.

The issue was very acute in the Corinthian church, some saying "no man can be a good Christian if he eats meat offered to idols," and others (the emancipated liberals) saying, "it makes no difference at all and it is no one's business if we eat such meat."

SUBMITS TO LOVE

When the matter was submitted to the Apostle Paul for an opinion, he settled it by the application of a very simple principle, "if meat makes my brother to offend," he said, "then I will never again eat meat."

The Uniform Sunday School Lesson for October 27: "The Problem of Christian Freedom," I Corinthians 8; 9:16-27; 10.

According to the thinking and theology of the Apostle Paul there was no sin in eating the meat, but there was a sin in providing an example for other men which might result in the destruction of their souls. The liberty to which he was entitled must submit to the love he professed.

DRINKER AND HIS DRINKS

According to the testimony of the courts, the highway commission, the safety councils, the divorce courts, and the social agencies, the problem of alcoholism is one of the most serious with which modern society is compelled to deal. According to the psychologists it is a disease, and according to the police it is a major headache.

A variety of explanations are offered. One of them is that some men are allergic to alcohol. Another is that the chronic alcoholic is a psychopathic case. Still another says that the problem is one of maladjustment.

Whatever the scientific explanation for the fact may be, the responsibility of the individual, and of his friends, is perfectly clear. No man ever became an alcoholic without being warned of his fate before he took his first drink, and no one ever offered a weak man a drink without knowing he was exposing him to a terrible danger.

The Christian who is willing to apply Paul's principle to the problem will make a contribution to its solution. He who abstains for the sake of his weaker brother will never find himself confronted with the responsibility for having contributed to a broken home or a wrecked life.

The hostess who insists upon her guest drinking her liquor may be seriously responsible if he becomes involved in a traffic accident enroute home from the party.

SCOHARIE —

All Nature seems to hark to God
For making life so fair.
The hills go robed in amethyst,
the trees are dressed in fire,
The very air seems thrilling with a passionless desire.

One somehow feels that God on high must love this season best,
He holds it as a mother holds her babe close to her breast.
The pressure of His hand is on all nature; like a prayer—

NATO MEETING WILL BE SUMMIT PARLEY

Hospital Plan Will Go Into Effect Jan 1 '59

Cost for Family Will Be $4.20 Monthly, Single $2.10

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's hospital insurance plan will go into effect Jan. 1, 1959, with premium rates of $2.10 a month for single persons and $4.20 a month for families.

The Ontario hospital services commission Friday announced details of the plan, first of its kind in Canada. It is financed jointly by the federal and provincial governments.

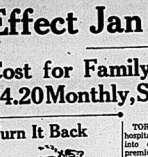
Participants are assured of standard ward care and a number of services. There is no limit on length of hospital stay.

A 2,000-word statement said the plan is compulsory for all firms with 15 or more employees and is open to all other persons on a voluntary basis. There is no participation limit because of age, occupation or other personal history.

Eligible firms are required to register employees by August, 1958 and pay the first premium by Sept. 30. Subsequently premiums are to be paid monthly.

MUST REGISTER

Persons entering on a voluntary basis to be eligible at the start must register and pay a premium before Oct. 31, 1958. Otherwise applications will become effective six months after the date they are filed. Voluntary participants will pay quarterly premiums.



Cost of the program for the first year is estimated at $210,000,000. The federal government's share is $74,000,000. Half the remaining $136,000,000 is expected from premiums; Ontario will pay the rest.

The province will pay premiums for the destitute, for needy persons receiving old-age pensions and for persons receiving blind, mothers' and disabled allowances.

Persons in mental or tuberculosis hospitals are eligible for benefits providing a premium is paid by or for them. No deductible will be made from old age pensions or assistance payments. At present patients in these institutions lose such payment toward upkeep.

No matter what the hour slip the ole clock back sixty minutes come tonight so you will be all square with the city and neighbors tomorrow morning.

Remember... you flipped it ahead an hour away back when the daisies were dandelions, so tonight you can get even.

And if you are an hour early for church tomorrow call meeting, or whenever you go, don't blame this newspaper. We're telling you now.

Belleville Man Named to Seek Cheese Title

FOND DU LAC, Wis. (AP) — Three Belleville cheesemakers were chosen Friday among 12 finalists in the International dairy cheese contest. The champion will be named Nov. 7.

Police Pick up Two Jailbreakers

TRENTON (Speilal) — Two young jail breakers who sawed their way out of Cobourg County jail last Sunday night were apprehended Friday night in the Century Theatre at Trenton where they had gone to see a show.

Police said that Howard Hilts, 23, of Coe Hill and Trenton, and Lawrence Spinn, 17, of Hilton, were arrested at the theatre shortly before eight o'clock and returned to Cobourg jail.

The tip that the two escapees were in Trenton was supplied by a Trenton resident who thought he recognized them on the street.

The resident called Trenton police who contacted Corporal L. Lyle of the Brighton Provincial Police detachment who knew the boys personally. Two Trenton constables, Max Gainforth and S. Vickers, stood guard at the theatre door while Cpl. Lyle made the arrest inside the theatre. The two men were unarmed and made no resistance.

Following the arrest, the two escapees were placed in a provincial police car and whisked back to Cobourg.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: — North winds brought clear and cold weather to most of Southern Ontario Friday night. Skies have been generally cloudy over Northern Ontario and there have been light snowflurries.

SURPLUS DOWN $41,300,000 IN FIRST 6 MONTHS

Federal Taxes up, Expenditures Down

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal tax take climbed by just $100,000,000 in the first half of the current fiscal year. But expenditures in that period rose by some $145,000,000.

The upward shifts on both sides of the books left the federal treasury with a half-year surplus of $231,500,000, down from the $273,000,000 a year ago, the treasury statement showed Friday.

In September—third full month under the new Progressive Conservative government — taxes bounced combined with a trimming of some spending produced a $6,000,000 surplus for the month—a contrast to the $71,000,000 deficit in September last year.

The biggest expenditures cut resulted from a technicality—a $60,000,000 drop in federal payments to provinces resulting from a change in distribution, to a monthly from a quarterly basis.

The change in timing was a $20,000,000 cut in defence spending. This combined with a drop in provincial payments offset the rises in other federal quarters, such as family allowances, veteran affairs, post office, transport and other departments.

AIM CHANGED

Last year the former Liberal administration showed a surplus of $258,000,000 and aimed at one of $152,000,000 for this year. The present Conservative government is understood to be aiming for a balanced budget using any surplus to pay for proposed pension increases and perhaps some tax cuts.

However, the federal old age pension fund, out of which payments are paid to all those 70 and over, is running deeper into the red. Pensions were raised by $5 a month to $46 last July and the Conservatives now propose to raise another $9.

The September treasury statement showed the pension fund had a six-month deficit of $25,600,000, compared with a $15,800,700 deficit last year. On the basis of a $55 pension, the deficit will undoubtedly be greater. In the past the deficits eventually ended up as charges against budget revenues.

Denies Planes Fly Over Syria

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Vice-Admiral Charles R. Brown, commander of the U.S. Sixth Fleet, denied today Syrian charges that American planes had flown over Syria.

"No aircraft of the 6th Fleet have been over Syria or even near Syria," he said.

RAF Planes Will Join in 'Attack' On Three Great American Cities

WASHINGTON (CP) — Vulcan jets and Valiant bombers of British air power will join with the U.S. Air Force in attacking three great American cities—St. Louis, Kansas City and Atlanta—under simulated nuclear attack for six days beginning Oct. 20.

The British aircraft invited by the U.S. Strategic Air Command to compete against its B-52s and B-47s in the 1957 combat bombing, navigation and reconnaissance competition.

There is only four British jet bombers to compete against 150 U.S. aircraft. The RAF will be represented by crews from two bomber groups. Forty-three RAF crews will be sent to enter two aircraft apiece.

Each RAF team will be headed by Air Chief Marshal Sir Harry Broadhurst, air officer commanding-in-chief, RAF bomber command. Three Canadians serving in the RAF are on his team, Group Capt. Wilfred J. Burnett, Fredericton, N. B., Flt. Lt. Terrence Montgomery, South Mountain, Ont., and Flt. Lt. Bert Perowne, Kingsburg, N. S.

American observers regard the British planes with their crews as being on par with the best in the Strategic Air Command. Their navigational aids will be the equipment, a British trademark since the early days of aviation, to keep pace with modern-day developments.

During the six-day competition, aircraft and men will be airborne a total of 1,500 hours and more than 700,000 miles will be flown and carry out 220 simulated atomic drops on each of the big cities.

Flying 10 minutes apart and at staggered altitudes the aircraft will form a bomber stream which will appear on radar screens as it passes over each city. The attacks will be made from eight miles above the cities.

Crew and the bombardment navigator they represent will be scored for accuracy in bombing, navigation and reconnaissance in their ability to find and hit a target without assistance from normal ground navigational aids. Only a few points generally separate winning crews from the rest of the field.

Hospital Highlights

Monthly premium, single—$2.10; family, including all children up to 18—$4.20.

Premiums payable monthly or quarterly but in advance.

All firms employing 15 or more persons required to join. All other persons eligible but voluntarily.

No limitation because of age, occupation or pre-existing conditions.

Benefits available to needy, blind, disabled and those receiving mothers' allowances.

Cost estimated $210,000,000, to be split between Ottawa $74,000,000 and Ontario $136,000,000.

Premiums expected to cover half of Ontario costs.

Syria Takes Time to Prepare Answer to Tough Lodge Talk

DAMASCUS (AP)—King Saud of Saudi Arabia informed President Shukri Kuwatly of Syria today that he is withdrawing an offer to mediate in the Turkish-Syrian border crisis.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) — Syria, with the apparent backing of the Soviet Union, today was reported ready to charge a major United States for delivery in the United Nations General Assembly Monday.

The Arab state, whose complaint to the assembly that Turkey has been plotting an armed invasion of her territory to follow Sunday's Turkish general election has touched off a Russian-American clash in the UN, decided late Friday to withdraw her demand for the assembly meeting until the Middle East debate resumes after the weekend recess.

The Syrian delegation told assembly president Sir Leslie Munro that it needed three days to prepare its submission. The fact that this request came a few minutes after U.S. Envoy Cabot Lodge's tough-talking American speech indicated Syria was somehow taken aback by the U.S. chief delegate's strong language, and desired a breathing space to strengthen her own professed position correspondingly.

Lodge made one of the most extreme reworded American speeches in memory in his history, calling Russia an "arsonist" and a "law-breaker" for its part in heightening the Middle East tension.

But there was growing indication today that the U.S. will try to avoid any directly attributable motion for the assembly aimed at resolving the Turkish-war, and while none of the non-Communist delegations take this claim seriously, there is a definite feeling that they think the Americans are over-emphasizing the issue to cover up their own lack of success in the Middle East.

Private discussions during this weekend probably will be concerned with the proposal put forward by observers of both sides that Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold make a personal visit to Syria and Turkey to talk over the dispute with both governments. Another idea is that a UN fact-finding commission be set up, but differences of opinion on the scope of such a body have roused strong doubts in advance that it would be effective.

A Russian source made it seems Friday night that Moscow might support the idea of a small commission with the secretary general heading it.

AFL-CIO Cracks Down on Two More Unions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The AFL-CIO Friday cracked down on two more unions in the corruption cleanup it launched with a summer-long order against the International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

The AFL-CIO executive council ordered the 150,000-member Bakery Workers and 44,000-member United Cap Workers unions to agree by Nov. 15 to boot out officials accused of corruption and conduct honest elections to elect new officers. If the unions don't comply, they face automatic suspension.

George Meany, AFL-CIO president and leader of the cleanup drive, said both unions, like the 1,500,000-member teamsters, are free to be reinstated at the AFL-CIO convention in December unless they agree to ordered reforms.

WILL MEET

The embattled teamsters union, meanwhile, announced its executive board will meet next Thursday in Washington. It presumably will map plans in the face of the AFL-CIO ouster ultimatum and federal grand jury ruling that James R. Hoffa was illegally elected union president at the recent teamsters convention.

The AFL-CIO council ordered Anthony Valente and cancel a justissued UTW secretary treasurer Lloyd Klenert $104,000 in severance pay and the rate of $100 a week for the next 20 years.

The bakery workers were directed to kick out union President James G. Cross and reinstate secretary - treasurer Curtis R. Sims, ousted by Cross when Sims raised corruption charges against Cross.

Decision on Editors' Writs Expected Soon

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A decision affecting access by Ontario newspapers to municipal documents is expected to be handed down next week by Mr. Justice J. L. McLennan of the Supreme Court of Ontario.

Justice McLennan indicated Friday he will make his decision next week after hearing arguments from the city of London, the London Free Press and its chief editor, the London Free Press, over two writs sought by Mr. Ford to compel the city and its clerk to permit him to examine, on the contract and financial impact of the proposed sale of certain areas in four suburban townships.

The request was originally given to aldermen but later recalled and locked in a vault.

PAYROLL FOOT BILL

Mr. Ford wants the report, said his counsel J. D. Harrison, because "the payroll and credit of London paid for this report and should have its information to be able to express an opinion on it."

City council and city clerk Reginald Cooper do not wish to release the report, said city solicitor H. R. Davidson, because it could do irreparable damage to the city if it were released prematurely and it is "very important that it be protected at this time."

OLD AGE PENSION PROPOSAL WILL PASS UNOPPOSED

All Three Parties Make That Clear

OTTAWA (CP) — There's no doubt that the Progressive Conservative government's proposal for a $55-a-month old age pension will pass the Commons unopposed.

Spokesmen for all three opposition groups made that clear in Friday's debate on the government resolution preceding introduction of the bill which would boost the present $46 monthly from $46 for all those 70 and over.

Embodied in the same proposal is a similar increase in old age assistance payments to the needy in the 65-69 age bracket, and in pensions for the blind and disabled. Cost of these three programs is shared by the federal and provincial governments while payments for the 65-69 group will be borne entirely by the federal government.

WANT MORE

Both the CCF and Social Credit parties claimed the increase was unrealistic, especially for old age pensioners who have nothing with which to supplement the cheques to live on.

Hon. Paul Martin (L — Essex East), federal health minister, found a flaw in the old age assistance program for the needy aged. He said many thousands of these in the 65-69 group will not benefit from the increase because most provinces now are not matching federal payments.

Mr. Martin said only British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Newfoundland now share with Ottawa the cost of the $46-a-month pension to the needy in the 65-69 age group. The other provinces, he said, "are not bearing their share of the costs of assisting the elderly people of this country."

He urged the government to try to persuade these provinces to remedy "what they, too, have a responsibility in this matter."

30 CENTS A DAY

T. P. Dr Shaw (CCF—Red Deer) said the proposed $9 increase amounts to only 30 cents a day and he would be better if it sufficient to provide a decent standard of living.

Claude Jodoin (CCF — Regina) said pensioners should get $55 a month if they are to receive their fair share of the national income.

He and other members of his party said the government should remove all time restrictions regarding the $75 annual double 18 months a year the period during which pensioners can live outside Canada and still qualify.

There were claims and counter-claims as to which party should get credit for setting up old age pensions. The Liberals said they brought in the bill, with support from Works Minister Green, said they should.

Killed by Car

TORONTO (CP)—Robert Wiles, 67, was killed Friday night when he was hit by a car at a busy midtown intersection. He was Metropolitan Toronto's 32nd traffic fatality this year.

Gunmen Hold Children as Hostages, Send Mother to Store for Money

TORONTO (CP)—Two gunmen held three children hostages and used their mother as a messenger in an abortive supermarket robbery here.

Mrs. Earl Barber of suburban Scarborough told police the men burst into her home Friday night and ordered her at gunpoint to carry a demand for money to her husband, a supermarket manager.

As the gunmen were giving Mrs. Barber her instructions a delivery man called at the house. He was forced inside at gunpoint, bound and gagged.

Mrs. Barber said she was taken to the store and given prepared note reading "Hand over the money. Your three children are hostages."

She was instructed to place the money in shopping bags and go to the rear of the store where another note had been left.

Mrs. Barber did as instructed and her husband filled several bags with $5,000 she couldn't, however, find a second note.

She dropped the money and returned to her husband who called police.

No trace of the gunmen has been found. Police said they were apparently frightened off.

Ike, Macmillan And Diefenbaker Will Go To Paris

Diefenbaker Gets Report From Macmillan on Talks

PARIS (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Amory Houghton formally notified the French foreign ministry today that President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Macmillan intend to come to Paris for a December meeting of the NATO council.

Houghton told Christian Pineau, foreign minister in France's outgoing government, of the invitended visit in reporting on the talks Eisenhower and Macmillan ended Friday in Washington.

It was learned that much of the conversation was devoted to formal notification of an intention to make the 15-nation meeting a summit conference of the Western alliance.

WARY CHEERS PRESENT

Highly qualified diplomatic sources said Eisenhower hopes the chief of government of all the NATO members will be present. That will make it the most important gathering in the Western world since the war.

The sources said it will be diplomatically difficult for Eisenhower, as chief of state, to negotiate with persons of a lower rank than foreign minister or ambassador. This is the level usually represented at NATO council meetings.

Informed circles recalled that at the NATO conference in Lisbon in February, 1952, it was decided that governmental chiefs could participate directly in council sessions whenever they wanted.

Consequently, there was no question of either Eisenhower or Macmillan's waiting for an invitation.

At the Washington talks the two leaders began making plans for a revolutionary revision of the allied defence systems in which NATO plays a leading part. They aimed to speed up military modernization of NATO forces was initiated in the wake of reported growing war strength in Russia.

Reports from Washington had indicated that Eisenhower and Macmillan intended to come here to emphasize unity. But Houghton's message was the first official confirmation.

The two Western leaders ended three days of talks late Friday night declaring "out of the old concept of national self-sufficiency and asserting that the world can find "progress and safety" only by combining their resources and skills in the cause of "a genuine partnership."

"For our part, we have agreed that our two countries will henceforth act in accordance with this principle," they said in a 1,700 - word communique which demonstrated the return of Anglo-American unity and friendship to full flower.

President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Macmillan accompanied their declaration with a blistering attack on the Soviet Union that any attack on Turkey, Middle East bastion of the North Atlantic alliance, will be regarded as an attack on all NATO members. That is the only mention of the turbulent Middle East situation in the long document.

Diefenbaker Gets Report From Macmillan on Talks

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker today announced that he will lead the Canadian delegation to the December meeting of the NATO council in Paris.

"In view of the proposals that the NATO council meeting at Paris in December be made a gathering of NATO leaders and at the highest level, and believing it is mandatory that the North Atlantic community of interest be strengthened anew, I shall lead the Canadian delegation," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

The decision was said to have been taken Friday night in preliminary conversations with Prime Minister Macmillan who arrived earlier in the evening.

It was announced in Paris today that President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Macmillan also intend to attend the NATO December session.

New St. Mary's Separate School Open for Classes

TRENTON (Special) — St. Mary's School opened its doors for the first time on Monday. The new separate school was declared open and dedicated on Sunday by Most Rev. J. A. O'Sullivan, Catholic archbishop of the diocese of Kingston. Trenton separate school board officials were also present at the ceremony. The new school provides education for the younger children living on the east side of the Trent River, who previously had to make the long cold journey across the bridge to St. Peter's Separate School.

Geo. Brown May Run for Mayor

TRENTON (Special) — Councillor George Brown, popular Trenton pharmacist, is being mentioned in the town as a possible opponent for Mayor Rose Burtt, who apparently intends to run again for office in the municipal election in January. His Worship stated recently that, if he were nominated, he would definitely be a candidate. The outcome of the decision, which is expected to be announced by Councillor Brown on the first of the week, will be awaited with interest.

Attendance Good At Chamber Meet

TRENTON (Special)—William MacAdam, president of Trenton Chamber of Commerce, expressed pleasure at the good attendance of members at the meeting of the organization which was held at the Legion Hall on Wednesday. He said that such a good turnout augured well and that the Chamber would be playing a full part in the life of the town this season.

ATTEND MEETING

TRENTON (Special)—Don McPherson, C. V. Graham Jr., and C. Barker represented the Trenton Jaycee Club at a recent meeting of Frankford Lions. Nostrand Sprague, the group's secretary, accompanied the three to Frankford.

Meeting Brings No Solution To Milk Strike

The 13-week-old milk drivers strike in Belleville and Trenton appeared little closer to settlement today following an all-day meeting yesterday called by the Ontario Department of Labor Conciliation Board.

Representatives of the strike-bound Belleville and Trenton dairies and Teamster Union officials representing milk drivers met yesterday morning at 10 o'clock but after fifteen hours failed to reach any settlement. The meeting concluded at one o'clock this morning.

A representative of a local dairy summed proceedings up this way: "They wouldn't take what we offered and we couldn't accept their demands."

Another dairy representative said one of the points on which no settlement could be reached was the number of days each week on which milk would be delivered.

Dairies want a five day delivery such as in vogue in many other Ontario centres while the teamsters union wants a six day week.

It was said that the dairies and the union were "not too far apart on the matter of wages."

The milk drivers' strike in Belleville and Trenton started last July when about half the dairies, Reid's Dairy in Belleville and Trenton's Dairy in Trenton walked off their jobs in support of wage demands.

Reid's Dairy in Trenton and the three other dairies in Belleville by an agreement, ceased home-to-home delivery and since then Belleville and Trenton householders have been purchasing their milk from the dairies on a cash and carry basis.

Several weeks ago dairies in both centres began delivering deliveries to restaurants and stores and other bulk users of milk.

Acquit Guide Of Murdering 'Good Friend'

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Gilbert Clement, 53-year-old hunting and fishing guide, has been acquitted of murdering a man he once thought a good friend.

Clement, from the resort town of Lochalsh, 125 miles north of here, was arraigned on June 21 slaying of fellow guide Erwin Grant Gideon Stocken, 32.

The Supreme Court jury deliberated an hour and 45 minutes Friday before returning the verdict.

Foreman Carlyle Carter of Sault Ste. Marie said simply "We have found the prisoner not guilty."

Clement looked relieved when Mr. Justice J. M. King told him "You have heard the verdict; you are now free."

CALLED 18

During the four-day trial the Crown called 18 witnesses in an attempt to prove Clement had killed Stocken following a party at the Lochalsh Lodge on the night of June 21.

The shooting occurred at Clement's home following a drinking party during which, a witness said, Stocken was in resentful mood.

Clement had admitted firing two shots through his door in self-defence, but denied murdering Stocken. He testified this indicated "considerable intoxication."

MENTION GERMANY

They also called once again for the reunification of Germany by free elections and said continued Soviet suppression of freedom in eastern Europe services to "undermine international confidence and perpetuate an injustice, a folly and a danger."

In the absence of a disarmament agreement with the Soviets, they said, "international security now depends, not merely on local defensive shields, but upon reinforcing them with the deterrent and retaliatory power of nuclear weapons."

No nation alone could make itself secure. Only collective measures would give them "the framework for a greater sense of community security existed in collective defence arrangements now being participated in by about 12 free nations."

"All members of this community, and other free nations which may be associated with it, must acknowledge of the total capability of security that are in being and in prospect."

possibility he may have gone to a lumber camp, or possibly he went to the United States, but the fact that he has not picked up his car would indicate he will come to his home seems to dispell this theory.

Anyone knowing the whereabouts of Mr. Hill is asked to contact local police.

Talk on Radiation Heard by Y's Men

The Y's Men's Club recently heard a talk by Dr. Peter Loder, radiologist at the Belleville General Hospital, on radiation's protection in diagnostic radiology. In a world of hydrogen bombs and space satellites, the public is becoming more and more concerned about the increasing dangers of radiation. Simultaneously, a part of the public is becoming more skeptical in health insurance plans are demanding medical X-ray, thereby increasing their exposure to radiation.

Dr. Loder pointed out that life has always been subjected to a natural radiation from cosmic rays, from some of earth's minerals, and from certain elements within our bodies. Added to this, there is the danger of fallout from hydrogen bombs, atomic plants and their wastes, and from X-rays. While hydrogen bomb can cause skin burns and blood disorders which may eventually result in cancer of those tissues, the fail-out particles of hydrogen bomb tests, do not. X-rays can, in repeated accumulative doses, cause the same results over a period of years.

Medical radiologists are therefore controlling additional X-ray exposure. Since there is no natural radiation, there is a negligible accumulation by the patient after operation. Since many medical diagnosis and also treatments entail X-rays of cancer are dependent on the X-ray, it would be a step backward to forsake it entirely. Instead it is up to the radiologist to accept responsibility in any given patient, to limit the amount of exposure to safe levels and to maintain proper safeguards such as is done in hospitals. Dr. Loder pointed out that in the long run the X-ray will continue to be a boon to mankind.

DIEFENBAKER

Details of when Mr. Diefenbaker will leave, and a full list of the delegation he would take with him, have not been worked out.

Mr. Macmillan Friday made what he described as "declaration of common purpose" for the free World. His conversations were to pursue the theme with the man who first launched it—Mr. Diefenbaker.

The possibility also existed that he would be invited to brief the Queen during their talks and talks leading to the declaration which Mr. Macmillan says will be meetings between the two leaders and their aides. The cabinet has been summoned for 11:30 a.m. EDT.

The British and United States leaders' 1,500 - word communique Friday called upon nations of the free world to strengthen their defences and safety by combining their resources and "sharing tasks in many fields."

Mr. Macmillan, accompanied after the talks by Foreign Secretary Lloyd, left Washington immediately for Ottawa where Mr. Diefenbaker and his ministers for external affairs and defence on the discussions. He was expected to enlist Canada, a major NATO member, into the free world TALKS BEGIN

The Ottawa talks began soon after the visitors landed at nearby Uplands airport. Following a brief welcoming ceremony the group drove to Mr. Diefenbaker's official residence for light refreshments and preliminary conversation.

The main gathering was to be this morning, in Mr. Diefenbaker's east block offices. After an interruption for the cabinet meeting, the principals were to remain for lunch as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Diefenbaker.

A press conference is scheduled at Uplands airport before the British party leaves at 3 p.m. EDT for London.

Dressed in the striped trousers and formal black jacket of British public life and wearing a black topcoat, the British statesman was smiling broadly Friday night as he stepped from the Iron Mr. Macmillan's aircraft—the same one that two weeks ago carried the Queen and Prince Philip to Ottawa.

MOMENTOUS AFFAIR

Mr. Diefenbaker, welcoming Mr. Macmillan to Ottawa, said Friday night that the Washington talks' outcome was a "momentous conference."

Mr. Macmillan agreed, saying that he had come to Canada "with a sense of purpose, indeed of exaltation."

The Washington communique, he said, was "a declaration of the interdependence of the nations of the free world."

A "new slant" and a "new theme" had been introduced in world relationships.

"And that theme is that the nations of the free world, while they have the right to be independent, have to be interdependent, and that without co-operating with one another and sharing their resources they cannot survive."

WAS THE FIRST

Mr. Macmillan, in an Oct. 7 convocation address at McGill University, became the first leader in the free world to openly state that Soviet scientific advances must be matched.

He said then:

"I believe that the leaders of the free nations must co-operate in making available to scientists larger financial resources and that scientists of the free world will not be fettered by improvident considerations of false economy when weighed on the scales of survival."

To sit with him and visit awhile.
Still loved, still cared for and ever dear.
—Sister and brother-in-law
Mary and Albert Mastin.

MASTIN. — In loving memory of our son, William Way (Bill), who passed away just one year ago today.

Lonely each day brings sweet memories of the past.
—Ever remembered by son and Mum.

PRINGLE. — In loving memory of our father, Miles Pringle, who passed away October 23rd, 1950.
We know that he is happy,
In our Saviour's home above;
Where there is no pain or sorrow,
But only joy and love.
—Ever remembered by son Gerald, daughter Margaret, and grandchildren Julie, Francis.

LYONS. — In loving memory of A. Percy Lyons, who passed away October 27th, 1956.
Time cannot change them it's true;
Years shall pass but memories are new.
Our loving remembrance of you.

DONTATOR. — In loving memory of a dear grandfather, Frank Donatator, who passed away Oct. 26th, 1956.
Sweet memories, little of pain,
Years of sorrow since you left the world;
A cheerful smile, a heart of gold,
To the dearest grandfather the world could hold.
Happy memories fond and true,
Always remembered by Gwen and Terry.

DONTATOR — In loving memory of a dear husband, Frank Donatator, who passed away October 26th, 1956.
We thought about you yesterday,
And the day before that too.
We will think of you tomorrow,
And the day thereafter the year,
We will think of you forever,
For you are always dear.
—Ever remembered by Helen and Percy.

THE PRESCRIPTION PHARMACY

Toward Improved Health

More than one-third of our nation's people voluntarily and freely pay for medical or hospital care at advance through cooperative insurance plans. This is probably the greatest voluntary movement toward improved health and welfare in the history of the world.

Every phase of this activity is laudable. The cooperation of industry and its employees, and the foresight of breadwinners to invest money in their families' health is an outstanding record, are evidence of progress. Active participation of the medical profession is evidence of its stature.

The desire for improved health, and the newly found personal pride and dignity of the individual are universal; and you may depend upon us, as upon your physician, in the achievement of these objectives for your family.

A Lift For Living

Fear of God Not Cowardly Fear

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

When we let our minds dwell on what others may do to us, our fears multiply like those of a grandfather whom we met, thinking of the mishaps which might happen to his grandchild — the bottons he might swallow, the stairs she might fall down, the knives she might get hold of.

It is amazing, isn't it, how many grandchildren grow up despite the dangers their grandparents feared they may actually befall them. Similarly, how innumerable seem the things men might do to us, when we stop to think about them.

When Jesus said, "Be not anxious what ye shall eat or what ye shall drink nor yet for your body what ye shall put on," He knew most of the worries on that score are not due to the fact people fear they may actually starve or freeze, but to the fact they want to eat and drink and wear as good things as others have.

In our desire for economic security not many of us are afraid we may actually go to the county poorhouse. What we fear is we may have to go to a poorer house than we have now or poorer than our neighbors have.

Think how many of our common worries are due to this besetting habit of comparisons. It was to free us from this that the Psalmist sees God as helping when he says: "Thou shalt hide them in the secret of Thy presence from the pride of man; thou shalt keep them secretly in a pavillion from the strife of tongues."

GOD AS OUR HELPER

When we live with God as our helper, we are above the reach of man's pride and man's tongue. We are not worried about how we rate socially or about what others say behind our backs.

When I assumed the pastorate of the church I have been serving ever since my student days, one of my seminary professors said to me: "Just see that they give you enough salary so you don't have to think about money." I have to confess I have never quite discovered just how much this is! It seems the more one has, the more he is worried about what he doesn't have. Yes, if we could lift our thinking from our social comparisons to our necessities in the eyes of God, many of our fears would vanish.

Moreover, when the Lord is our helper, He arouses a noble fear which drives out unworthy fears. Fear has a valid place in life. It is silly to praise about being absolutely free from fear. Healthy fear is needed to preserve our health. Otherwise we would recklessly kill ourselves and others.

Jesus drew a distinction between wholesome and unwholesome fear when He said: "Fear not them which kill the body, but are not able kill the soul: but rather fear him who is able to destroy both soul and body in hell."

Jesus was trying to tell us we should not be so much afraid of what happens to us as of what happens in us.

NOT COWARDLY FEAR

The fear of God which, as the Bible says, is the beginning of wisdom is not a cowardly fear. It is the kind of reverent regard which a good son has for his father. The bad boy fears what the father may do to hurt him for his misdeeds; the good son fears what he may do to hurt his father by his misdeeds.

"Perfect love casteth out fear." The mother forgets her fears for herself in her loving care of her child. Every devout child of God stands in reverential awe of his Heavenly Father, fearing only that he may fail the love which has done so much for him.

When the Lord is our helper, He secures us against unworthy fears. Also God helps to free us from fear by focusing our eyes on values rather than prices.

Returning from Europe in September, I found on shipboard a friend who is the head of a large industry. I had been watching the quotations of the stock market posted on the ship. Prices were climbing. His own company's stock was going down.

I asked him if he was worried about the downward trend in stocks. To my surprise he replied he had not read the list for some days. He knew the value of the stocks and was not depressed by the current prices.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED E. WILSON

EYE RINGS IDENTIFY

Definite information is an important aid in identifying birds. For instance, should you come across one with a white eye ring, all but comparatively few species would be ruled out. However, it is necessary to know which belongs to this small group. Perhaps you have never noticed, but besides those with complete white circles there are some with a little break in the ring, others whose ring is yellow, and a very few with a small mark in front of the circle which creates the illusion that the bird is wearing spectacles. There are more birds with eye rings in autumn than in spring, because certain ones acquire them after the moult and some immatures, whose parents have no such mark, have eye rings.

Let us pretend that this week you saw a bird which might be described as smaller than a sparrow with a distinct white eye ring. What species could it possibly be?

On account of their size, members of the thrush family, though they have eye rings, are excluded from our list of possibilities, with the exception of the immature bluebird (really a thrush) which is only slightly over size. A bluebird could be seen in Canada late in October, so we should keep that bird in mind.

FLYCATCHERS

What about flycatchers? The four little ones all have eye rings, which are white in the least, the acadian, and the alder. Their size, too, is suitable, but it is unusual for a flycatcher to be with us this late, when flies are over.

Suppose we look at warblers, whose size fits the question. Quite a few now have complete white eye rings, the most probable being the female yellowthroat, immature mourning and chestnut-sided, and the connecticut warblers. But only the yellowthroat could be here at this date, and this would be very late for it.

How about vireos, just the right size? The only one with a white eye ring is the blue-headed, which "wears spectacles", and should have left us by mid-October.

Was your specimen particularly small: The ruby-crowned kinglet, even smaller than our small warblers, has a big-eyed appearance, is white eye ring is particularly distinct, and the tiny breast at the top is seldom seen. This little bird is almost sure to be in Canada after mid-October, and might be found as late as December. It is short tailed, often flutters its wings, and the red crown is either missing or unnoticeable. This must be our bird.

AN UNWISE AGREEMENT

The Montreal Gazette says that one of the basic reasons why the Russians beat the U.S. in the race to get an artificial moon into the sky was that the U.S. decided to adhere to principles agreed upon by 56 nations participating in the International Geophysical Year program. These nations agreed to "pool the information they obtained for the benefit of all."

"From the beginning in 1955," says the Gazette, "the world was given continuous and detailed information on the project (the U.S. Vanguard satellite program) and its progress, as promised. This was one of the reasons why the Vanguard was allotted only a comparatively small experimental rocket to carry its satellite into the outer air. The U.S. decided not to abet it one of the bigger military rockets already available because the promised publication of Vanguard details would include that rocket, making public military secrets."

The Russians, of course, kept silent about Sputnik. They have said that this satellite is not part of the Geophysical Year program, that therefore they are not required to share information about it and that they will share information when they launch the promised Geophysical Year satellite. The Western world, though, will find this explanation something less than satisfactory. If the Russians have revealed the secret of the rocket which shoots a satellite into the sky it will be more surprising than Sputnik's first flight.

We cannot help wondering, though, what the realists were doing when the program for the interchange of information was drawn up. Did not somebody question the wisdom of such an arrangement? Did nobody suspect that the Russians in nations adopting either one of two courses, breaking the agreement as Russia has done or refusing to utilize the most powerful rocket available, as the U.S. has done?

An agreement to exchange information discovered through a satellite's journeys around the earth might be laudable — if it were not for the agreement to exchange information on a rocket capable of powering an intercontinental ballistic missile.

SUCCESSION DUTIES

The traditional motion opening debate in the Senate on the speech from the throne was of particular interest to residents of this district this year for two good reasons, the identity of the Senator who presented this motion and the context of his remarks.

The Senator fell to the recently-appointed Senator George S. White, formerly M.P. for Hastings-Frontenac and he lifted his speech out of the realm of the routine by a vigorous attack on the Succession Duties Act, which he termed "most unfair."

There are two schools of thought on succession duties and, while Kipling may have been wrong about East and West, these schools seem to provide proof that there are some situations in which it can be truthfully and confidently said that "never the twain shall meet."

Nevertheless, while there is little likelihood of any agreement on the principle behind "death duties," perhaps there may be a meeting of the minds of the opposing schools on Senator White's suggestion that the maximum exemption should be increased from $50,000 to $75,000 and that this basic amount should not be subject to tax, even if the total estate exceeds this figure. Inflation has sharply reduced the value of money and some adjustment would appear in order.

One point does strike us. To many, $75,000 may seem like a lot of money. But whether or not it makes one wealthy depends on the job it has to do. It might permit an aged widow to live in luxury for a few sunset years. But it might be inadequate to feed, clothe, house and educate a family of eight or ten. Is there any way in which the job the estate must do could be taken into consideration in assessing the duties levied against it?

NOISE NUISANCES

Alastair R. Paterson, a Toronto barrister who specializes in aviation law, says that there is no Canadian legislation which could be used as a defence if a court held that the noise of aircraft using an airport was creating a nuisance for an owner of nearby property. He thinks this situation should be remedied.

The fact that no legislation now exists makes it possible to do a proper job when the required law is drafted. It should do two jobs - - protect the owners of residential property from the danger of having new airports locate nearby and protect airports from the danger of being sued by people who crowd around them, after the airports are established.

JUST FOLKS

CHEER UP

When the world is dull and dreary
And the struggle makes you weary—
Just cheer up;
For a frown won't make things brighter,
Sighs won't make your burden lighter,
Just cheer up.
Give a smile to greet old sorrow;
It may leave before the morrow,
For of trouble never borrow,
Just cheer up.

Smile when clouds hang dark and dreary;
You will find a soul that's weary
Just cheer up.
Smiles will melt the clouds of sadness,
Turn the deepest gloom to gladness,
Just cheer up.
Brave of heart are smiling ever,
For the clouds of gloom must sever;
Happiness is man's endeavor,
So cheer up.

"Punkin Time" Here Again

Ottawa Journal

If you are a classicist, you will ultimately reject the word "punkin". It does not need the quotation marks, but now that our nation is 80 percent urban instead of 60 percent rural as it was a century ago, perhaps "punkin" is a colloquialism that stern etymologists will insist should be distinguished by upside down commas.

There are small-scale farmers who like to raise punkins in their corn fields. The big orange globes resemble colorful jewels, piled against the south side of old weathered barns. "Cure 'em in the sun for a fortnight" was one of grandmother's axioms. On starlit quiet nights when sharp cold laid a black frost on the countryside, the heaps of punkins glowed with gold quilts, horse-blankets and buffalo robes.

Columbus saw punkins growing in the West Indies and De Soto found the Indians growing the gourd in our southland. Captain John Smith found the crop in Virginia and called it "pompion." Champlain, Nelson, but less and worse." Perhaps Jacques Cartier, who probably tasted a raw punkin and expected something like a melon, found it "flat, stringy and good countrymen know that a punkin pie, when properly baked, correctly with creamy milk sugar and spices, will be available for thanksgiving dinner. If it is a chance, a pie is available for the Hallowe'en party. A punkin is reasonably juicy, flavorful punkin pie and a glass of cold, creamy milk is the only good for a man; it is a happy dietary for a golden punkin that has lit the essence of October.

Our topic for today is "Movie Stunts" — and I'm hanged if I know where to start! For any movie camera, no matter how simple and inexpensive, can produce a variety of trick effects that will liven up every movie showing.

This, in essence, consists of placing a movie reel with a bit of repeated action which, in itself, is not always hilarious, but which builds up audience appreciation through repetition, and, perhaps, an unexpected denouncement. For example—the recalcitrant cigaret lighter. Doesn't matter what your movie story's about — a fishing holiday — an auto trip — a backyard picnic — one of your party has a cigaret lighter which stubbornly refuses to ignite. You make all your other shots just as you ordinarily would but surip in the reel, and every so often throughout it, there's your would-be smoker, patiently flicking away at his lighter. He needn't show any expression at all. The first time he appears on the screen he may not even earn a chuckle. But with the second time, and from then on audience reaction will grow in decibel output, sure as shootin'. If, in his final appearance, he casually tosses aside the lucky lighter, and pops into his mouth an already ignited smoke (lighted, moments earlier, "off camera"), even strong men among your movie viewers are warranted to weep.

STOP-MOTION SHOOTING

Then there's stop - motion shooting. Do you have a youngster in your family who loves to convert large cartons into playhouses, or forts, or spacemen castles? Does he have some like-minded playmates? Fine. You just set up a carton before your camera (itself established on some steady support) and corral your cast.

Let's say the carton's a fort recreated from the days of the wild and wooly west. A flag flutters from its corner. A solitary sentry paces back and forth before it. All is quiet on this particular western front, and one pint-sized sentry yawns, unshoulders his gun, and crawls into the fort for a snooze. Aha! The fierce and painted head of a befeathered Injun appears from behind a bush . . . puts arrow to bow. Swish — the quivering arrow, in a close-up, imbeds itself in the cardboard front of the fort — the "sentry" of course, having momentarily requested to remove himself to a safer position.

But our injun has misjudged his opposition! This particular fort, small though it is, is thoroughly manned! First the sentry emerges, gun in hand. Then another soldier. And another . . . and another . . . and another—quick like bunnies. And the unhappy redskin, with the trophy in hot pursuit, takes to his heels across a neighboring field. (The whole trick in packing all that firepower into one small box and to have the troops enter it, and emerge, one at a time. You don't film them going in. You do film them popping out. Thanks to your camera's stop-shooting position, and stop-motion finish — they'll boil out of their hideaway like a family of aroused hornets!)

REVERSE ACTION STUNT

And then, of course, there's the reverse-action stunt born of upside-down shooting—the classic example of which is the diver who, after entering the water from a springboard, emerges from the water feet first and floats back up to the board.

The trick here, is to shoot the second phase with the camera upside down — and then, after your films have been processed, to turn that section of it around end for end, and earlier in back in the reel. With 16mm film, which has perforations on both sides, this is simple. But with 8mm film, you have to turn the film both around, and over — so as to get your single row of perforations in line. Which is tedious, but not difficult — and does reverse the appearance of things from left to right.

If this is held to be no handicap — and it frequently isn't — then upside-down shooting is one of the most sure-fire laugh getters in all movie making. And with all good movies being fun to see, there must surely be opportunities in your shooting schedule for the occasional movie stunt to make showtimes even gayer.

Illustrated Talk On Jamboree Given to Club

The meeting of the Quinte Field Naturalists Club was held in the Entomology Laboratory recently with a showing of pictures of England and the Boy Scout Jamboree by Gordon James.

A motion to send a donation of $35 to the Ontario Field Naturalists to aid in carrying out worthwhile projects was carried unanimously. A nominating committee consisting of Miss Grace Tucker, Mrs. Nellie Anderson and Mr. I. Knight was appointed to choose a slate of officers for the coming year.

Miss Lillian Hart and Miss Katharine Daly who spent two weeks in July at the Naturalists' Camp, Camp Billie Bear, near Huntsville, gave short accounts of their experiences there. Miss Hart told of a trip to a former (now extinct) pioneer settlement of Antioch Hill and the unusual plants found in that area, only about 50 per cent of which are native, the rest probably brought there by the pioneers. A terrifying sound in the woods was thought to be a moose. On a trip to Calapogan Bog the pitcher plant, the Calabogan orchid, cranberry, blue-eyed grass (no spruce trees), sphagnum moss, bracken fern, royal fern and swamp cranberry were found.

Miss Daly spoke of the enjoyable educational talks given in the lodge. Everyone was welcome, old or young. She also told about a wildlife display in Algonquin Park where martin are caught in traps by means of cod liver oil and strawberry jam. Where a beaver is kept in a bathtub and young birds are kept in cages in order to study a disease which has developed among them. Such rarities as a blue headed vireo and a green billed grosbeak were seen.

TALKS ON JAMBOREE

Miss Frances Young introduced the speaker, Gordon James, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hedley James, 294 Dufferin Ave. Gordon really needed no introduction since he has been a member and pianist of Quinte Field Naturalist Club since its organization. He has attended the Boy Scout Jamboree in England early in July.

The Jamboree at Sutton Park he said, was divided into three camps and again into sub-camps. Canada was unique in that she was represented by 1,500 Scouts all from the Jamboree — the largest aggregation ever. The amount of food consumed in one day would do the people of Belleville for two days. The Jamboree was officially opened by the Duke of Gloucester. On the third day Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh toured the camps to the tumultuous cheers of the assembled Scouts.

One of the biggest items of the Jamboree was swapping. Every Scout tried to see how many badges, or other symbols, he could obtain from the Scouts of other countries. The biggest thrill for Gordon was the R.C.M.P. Musical Ride.

The night of the big rain was very exciting. The boys were running for higher and drier ground. The whole camp looked like a big pond with small tents poking out of it.

The Gang Show put on by the United Kingdom Scouts was much enjoyed as were the nightly campfires. The closing ceremonies were conducted by Lady Baden-Powell.

Gordon succeeded in seeing quite a bit of England during the short stay and by means of excellent pictures was able to show his audience much of what he had seen: a Norman church built in 1707, Hampton Court Gardens, Runnymede, the Air Force Memorial built in honor of all the Commonwealth airmen who died in World War II, Windsor Castle, the Royal Festival Hall, London; the Tower and Tower Bridge, St. Paul's Cathedral, Whitehall with one of its famous lifeguards, Kew Gardens, Westminster Abbey, Buckingham Palace, swans on the River, the monument to Prince Albert consort of Queen Victoria, and Albert Hall, Shrewsbury, the Severn River, the cathedral with the three spires at Lichfield, Stourport with its red sandstone, beautiful Winchester Cathedral which has the longest Gothic nave in the world, Chichester Cathedral, Nelson's ship the Victory at Portsmouth, and some views of the Jamboree — the main gate, the day after the big rain and one of the best — a lovely picture of the Queen and the Duke as they toured the camp.

Yukon Election Set for Dec. 16

OTTAWA (CP)—A federal by-election will be held Monday, Dec. 16, in Yukon constituency. The seat was declared vacant Wednesday by Commons Speaker Roland Michener.

The election of Liberal Aubrey Simmons in the June, 10 federal election was declared void by a Whitehorse, Y.T., court on grounds that the ballots were not cast irregularly. The court found no evidence of fraud or corruption.

The Yukon seat is one of two vacancies in the Commons. The other is in Hastings-Frontenac, Ont., where a byelection is to be held Nov. 4.

The unseating of Mr. Simmons left the Liberals with 105 Commons members. There are 111 Conservatives, 25 CCF, 19 Social Crediters, two Independents and one Independent-Liberal.

THE GOLDEN YEARS

Living in a Subdivision May Be What You Want at Retirement Age

By THOMAS COLLINS

"I do not go along with a lot of this yap about retirement," said Mr. Eugene R. Dower.

"I can't buy my company's advice that I begin to cultivate a hobby. I can't buy your advice that I find a job to do.

"I am tired — tired all the way down to my bones. Not from work. Just from having to living to be there at 8:30 every morning; having to satisfy a boss; having to live in peace with undesirable characters who work beside me; having to be responsible.

"When I get my pension, come Jan. 1, the thing I will be retiring from will not be the job or the company, but the having to. And I think this in itself will be the Golden Years. Mama and I have spotted a little subdivision here, and clean, that will demand little housework and no fixing. It will cost $13,000 and we can pay for it.

"My retirement income will be a little better than $200 a month. We have all our house furnishings, including a freezer. We both have ample wardrobes, and we own a 1956 car. With a vegetable garden every spring and fall we can live for about $100 a month.

ENOUGH FOR EXTRAS

"This will leave us about $1,200 a year for something — doctor bills, extras, and trips. We will visit our two children and the grandchildren. We will watch television and putter around the house. We will fish, go to Florida, Arizona and California, in that order, for our winters. We will sit, nap, visit and eat as it strikes us.

"I refuse to believe I must work to be happy in retirement. Just free me from having to do things, and I'll find my way. . . ."

Mr. Dower makes a good case. I know of no reason why his retirement will fail. Many men approach 65 feeling much the same way.

There are a few points you should consider, however, before you follow his course.

1. Nobody can tell you how to retire. The company, his column, teachers, and all the rest can only give you facts. And encourage you to plan. What you want is what you need. Something to do well and given a break in the weather, the rink should be full operation shortly before the Christmas holidays.

A lot of planning and hard work has gone into this project. About five years ago a meeting was called at the City Hall and everything looked rosy for the new rink but the plan fell by the roadside, but back in the minds of the sponsors there was always the hope that the plan would be revived and again a start was made. This start was kept rolling and today the fruits of the labor can be observed.

Although the rink is being built, the sponsors are not yet out of the woods financially, but it is believed that once the rink is in operation the troubles will be solved. At the present time the clubhouse walls are completed, the piers for the trusses of the roof have been poured, the curling stones and the artificial ice plant have been ordered and part of the wall surrounding the building has been constructed. The progress, under the direction of Ernie Jones, has been marvellous.

The rink will contain four sheets and will accommodate a membership of 300, and of this number it is understood about 200 have joined. Some have not paid their membership fee and it would be wise to look after this matter because the membership will be definitely closed

Steady Progress Being Made On Construction of 4-Sheet Curling Rink at Fairgrounds

A curling rink for this city is off when it reaches three hundred members. To finance the project a substantial loan has been received from the sale of class "A" debentures have been sold to be redeemable, in five years. To date there has been sold $14,000 worth of debentures but the directorate would like to make it $20,000. Considerable work has been accomplished in selling the debentures but everyone is asked to assist so that when the rink is open the financing of the proposition will have been completed.

MEMBERSHIP FEE $100

Anyone wishing to purchase debentures or pay their membership fee of $100 can step into the office of "Jerry" Jarrett, manager of the Bank of Montreal, who is also the treasurer of the club. Also anyone, who has not been approached and would like to become a member, can get all the information needed from Mr. Jarrett, the president, William Gault, the secretary, Don McKinnon or any member of the club. The membership will be definitely closed off at 300. It is the intention of the directorate to have a large women's section of the club and the wives of the members will have first chance at joining but the lists will be open if not enough of the wives join.

It is expected that the trusses for the roof will be in the city on Monday and that special figures will be sent from the factory to put them in place. From that point the building can be enclosed. At the present time the earth is being removed from the inside, special tile is being laid to take care of the drainage and it then will be ready for the ice plant to be installed. A special building is being constructed to house the refrigeration plant. The directorate would like the members to feel that this is their rink and that it will become the centre for a wonderful season of curling. It is also expected that a bonspiel will be held during the winter and that the rink will be officially opened with a gala show.

Weddings

KLINE — TALLON

A lovely autumn wedding of wide interest was solemnized in Dublin, Ireland, at St. Kevins Church, Harrington Street when Madeline Tallon, of Cathal Brugha Barracks, Rathmines, Dublin, Ireland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Tallon, became the bride of Thomas Michael Kline, of Soest, Germany, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Kline, The Reverend Vs. Vaughan, C.C., pastor of the church, officiated before a beautiful background of pink gladioli interspersed with ferns. White satin bows designated the guest pews.

The radiant bride, who was given in marriage by her father, Mr. Tallon, was charming in her bridal gown of white nylon net, in Millerain length. She wore a shoulder length veil, and halo of orange blossoms and carried a white prayer book. A spray of pale pink carnations mingled with Adiantum fern accented the slim waistline.

Miss Breda Tallon, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, gowned in pale blue nylon lace in ballerina-length, with shoulder veil in matching shade and headdress of pink carnations. She also carried a white prayer book, with waistline corsage of pink carnations.

Mr. Edward Howell, of Rathgar, Dublin, attended the bridegroom.

Following the ceremony a reception for 40 guests was held at the bride's home, which was profusely adorned with cut roses, mixed Michaelmas daisies, ferns and pink gerardium, for the occasion. The guests were received by the bride's mother, wearing a grey and white two-piece ensemble of grosgrain with white picture hat, gloves, fur and shoes, and corsage of red roses, blue cornflowers and tip-of-the-valley intermingled with fern.

For the wedding trip to the south of Ireland, the bride chose a three-piece blue, Irish tweed, with emerald green hat, crowned with gold, matching bag, shoes and gloves. . Upon their return the couple will reside in Canada at 329 McDonald Avenue, Belleville, Ontario.

Time to Promote Canadian Foods Says Consultant

OTTAWA (CP) — A Montreal food consultant, who says she "loves food," told Canadian restaurateurs Thursday that it is time they began promoting Canadian foods.

Madame Jehane Benoit told delegates to the Canadian Tourist Association that food in France, for example, is just as good as the French say it is—"They just make you believe it is."

"But they have the best wines in the world—oh those wines—for all moods; for business, for company."

Mrs. Benoit said visitors to Canada want food different from what they get at home.

STACKS OF LETTERS

Levelling a blast at Stratford, Ont., scene of the Shakespearean festival, Mrs. Benoit said she has six stacks of letters from people complaining she "couldn't even get a good cup of coffee" there.

Mrs. Benoit said men "have frightfully one-track minds which is wonderful for us women," but when they became tourists they looked for the "real thing."

"There are distinctive Canadian meals and provinces should capitalize on and preserve their specialties". She gave no examples.

The French-speaking food specialist, who drew several rounds of applause from delegates, said there will be a banquet that will give a man a wonderful feeling—"A woman and good food."

PARKDALE W.I.

The October meeting of Parkdale W.I. was held in the hall on Wednesday evening in the form of a social evening with prizes being awarded for the best dressed.

Those taking home the prizes were Mrs. W. Fargey, Mrs. W. Cone for the best pair; Mrs. W. Prentice for best dressed, Mrs. H. Fralick for best costume; Mrs. W. Hodge for best dressed man and Mrs. D. McLaughlin for the best bathing beauty.

Mrs. C. Keeble presided in the absence of Mrs. Palmer. Twenty-six members and visitors were present.

The bus trip to the "Ice Capades" was discussed and it is yet to be decided whether or not to charter a bus. Those interested are to phone Mrs. W. Cone.

Volunteers were asked to serve next Tuesday at Elliott's for the catering of a light lunch from noon 'till nine at night.

The nominating committee has been asked to fill two vacancies, that of a new president and a new second vice-president.

The secreary read one thank-you card and the treasurer gave her report. There was one report from the sick committee. Games and contests in charge of Mrs. N. McKibbon and Mrs. C. Keeble were then enjoyed with Mrs. Prentice winning the balloon contest, Mrs. W. Kirkham was the lucky winner of a set quart basket of apples for guessing the number of apples in a basket, and a cake, pies in a bushel hamper, A scramble were enjoyed by all.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. A. Bannon and assistants Mrs. W. Kirkham, Mrs. E. Moon and Mrs. F. Rodgers. A social half hour brought the meeting to a close.

Going Places

North American Continent Has Much of World's Finest Food

By SHIRLEY AND BOB SLOANE

Some of our newspaper colleagues here and in England have a gay old time recently telling Americans and Britons what they think of each other after one of them started it all by placing a want ad in a British newspaper asking for British opinions of Americans.

As might have been expected, the viewpoints on both sides ranged over every facet of human character, proving nothing at all. But what interested us particularly was the cropping up of the old bugaboo about the quality of American food.

Traditionally, American food has enjoyed a somewhat less than savory reputation among Europeans. This is largely undeserved.

America's — and Canada's — culinary shortcomings can be blamed on the same things that have given us our virtues — vast size and population, varying tastes springing from different national and regional backgrounds, and the need for rapid mass production, in restaurant food as well as industry.

But if you can overlook the sandwich shops and cafeterias which, at least, pretend to be nothing more than they are and if you're willing to try the regional treats in which every part of the continent specializes, there's more gastronomical satisfaction available here per capita than any place else in the world.

BEEF BEST

North Americans take a lot of chilling for their love of good cuts of beef, particularly steak, but we've always amused by stories such as the one we heard long ago, about a foreign gourmet who, while here, ate steak in each restaurant he visited. His acknowledged reason was that American beef is far superior to that any place else in the world, which alone would seem to put a high value on vindicating our tastes.

Foreign foods are most famous for their spices, herbs and sauces, but what is often forgotten is that and ice cream.

these modes of preparation stemmed originally from the scarcity of perfectly fresh food, necessitating a fine degree of seasoning up.

Fresh meats, fruits, vegetables and dairy products, as well as proper refrigeration and storage, long have been readily available here, giving us the opportunity to appreciate the unadulterated natural flavors of our foods.

For those who appreciate the best of the world's delicacies, New York and San Francisco alone undoubtedly have more good Chinese restaurants than China. Among them would be New York's House of Chan, than which no Chinese restaurant anywhere could have better food.

It is doubtful that any restaurant in France surpasses New York's Le Pavillon or Chambord, or New Orleans' Antoine's or, for that matter, many lesser known places in that city. Another specialty of consequence has at least one outstanding Italian restaurant in any large Italians who might be running pizzerias in it if they hadn't migrated here.

UNFATHOMABLE PREMISE

Why anyone should in the face of evidence that none of Europe's great chefs ever left there, or that they've been unable to breed any of our own out of a couple of hundred million people, is a bit hard to fathom.

Without getting chauvinistic about it, we think we're fortunate to have at our fingertips, without changing countries or even cities, the best products of the chefs of all nations, as well as the mushrooming native developments such as country ham; the Spanish and French blends that make Louisiana cooking so delicious; hearty Texas chili con carne; melt-in-your-mouth Southern spoon bread and other native breads; high, flaky apple pies, Maine baked bean pot or otherwise, South Carolina's shrimp pies, and New England's lobster pies.

Then there are hot dogs, hamburgers,

'Missions In India' Talk At Bridge St. C.C.

The Coronation Club met in the Bridge Street United Church auditorium on Monday evening with Mrs. Sylvia Cronk presiding.

The president welcomed the members of the Senior W.A. who were present. Mrs. Clare, president of the Senior W.A., discussed the business of their organization. Mrs. Clare also outlined details pertaining to the annual bazaar in November. Connie Burns and her group were in charge of the devotional period.

Jewel Holway introduced the speaker of the evening, Mr. O. Matthews, teacher of mathematics at Quinte Secondary School, who was born in India and received his education in India and England, Mr. Matthews gave an address on "The place of Christian Missions in India." He spoke of the first missionary, William Carrey, from England to Calcutta, and recounted the difficulties which he encountered in his approach to the Hindus and Moslems. These groups believe in many different gods and their one but different God. He told of the many other Christian ministries sent out in the following 200 years from Great Britian, all of whom accomplished a great deal in promoting the medical, educational, social and religious welfare of India.

Mr. Matthews also spoke of the great work of Gandhi and the various castes in the Hindu religion, and how he tried to bring the outcasts into the churches, schools, and social life of the villages and to elevate their living conditions as far as possible to that of the other castes in India. Mr. Matthews stressed that missionaries from Canada and other countries are much received by the Indian government.

Mrs. Helen Loynes extended a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Matthews for his address.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker is expected to be among officials greeting Governor General Vanier and his party of seven on Monday evening.

Women's Institutes will be called Jubilee Guilds in Newfoundland and Homemaker's Clubs in Saskatchewan—had they been beginning in 1897 at Stoney Creek.

The organization outlined 60 years ago by a Hamilton woman, Mrs. Adelaide Hoodless, grew as the quickly elected Canada and is the "mother" of an international organization, the Associated Country Women of the World.

Home improvement and community betterment is this year's convention theme. Discussion topics range from citizenship and conservation to modern fabrics and a fashion show of period costumes.

Hon. Lester B. Pearson, former external affairs minister and winner of the 1957 Nobel Peace prize, is to speak at a Monday night banquet.

Other conference speakers include State Secretary Ellen Fairclough, Justice Minister Fabre and Canadian author Will R. Bird of Ardoch.

Wednesday, Ottawa local council of women plays host at a diamond Jubilee banquet.

OTTAWA (CP) — A Canadian farm women's organization which sparked formation of an international country women's group holds its first national convention here next week.

The Federated Women's Institute of Canada expects more than 400 delegates from 19 provinces as it marks its 60th anniversary year during meetings which start Monday and conclude Thursday.

Days and Customs of All Faiths

Specialist in Hopeless Cases

By DR. HOWARD V. HARPER
REFORMATION SUNDAY

Sunday, Oct. 27 — Protestants today in all parts of the world will be celebrating the 440th anniversary of the day when Martin Luther touched off the Reformation by nailing his 95 theses to the door of the cathedral in Wittenberg, Germany. The day is called Reformation Sunday.

Although the actual date was Oct. 31, it has become customary to commemorate it on the preceding Sunday. The National Council of Churches has prepared a special order of worship, which will be used in most of the 200,000 Protestant churches in the United States.

The 95 theses were simply 95 propositions Luther wanted to argue about. There were some matters of doctrine and practice over which he found himself in disagreement with the Church, and, following the custom of the times, he stated his beliefs publicly in a publicly posted challenge to debate.

The action not have dreamed of the explosive result his challenge would have. No one dared to debate with him, but in a few short months whole nations had endorsed the principles he had proclaimed in his conflicts with the Roman Catholic church.

Protestant leaders now see Luther as one of a "long procession of heroes and martyrs" rather than as the one person solely responsible for the Reformation. Today's services, while honoring Luther as the man who took such a courageous stand, at the moment, will also pay tribute to those "who prepared the way for him and those who continued after him."

ST. JUDE THADDEUS

Monday, Oct. 28 — One of the phenomena of this century is the rapid growth, in the Roman Catholic church in America, of a number of persons devoted to St. Jude Thaddeus, who shares this with another Apostle, Simon. Jude and Simon, whose post-Resurrection territory was the Middle East, were bludgeoned to death near Baghdad, in Persia, and is known as the patron of lost causes. Jude, he was called, was the cousin of Jesus, his mother was the Blessed Virgin were sisters. Apparently there was a great family resemblance, for according to legend Jude was often mistaken for the Lord.

It is thought that Jude may have been the very first of the Apostles to die. At that time on Jesus' was the boy's hero and model.

Jude's association with Simon began early, too. Supposedly, these two were a team when Jesus sent His Apostles out, two by two, on a pre-Cite missionary journey, as recorded in Matthew, Chapter 10.

After the Resurrection Jude, a gifted and persuasive speaker, converted many thousands in Mesopotamia and Armenia and may even have gone into what is now Russia.

Once, arriving at the city of Edessa, he found a message from King Abgarus of Persia and having all kinds of trouble with the very clever magician who represented the Zoroastrian religion there. Joining his old partner, Jude made short work of the magicians, and for 13 years he and Simon carried the Gospel throughout Persia and Babylonia.

His reputation among his devoted followers today is that he is the "patron of difficult cases." For many years Jude, always a miracle worker, was appealed to by people in seemingly hopeless personal distress. His effective intercession in these cases spread by word of mouth from those who had been helped by him, until finally his fame was so great that public devotions to him inevitably began.

In Chicago, in 1929, there was established the first shrine of St. Jude Thaddeus. Now there are many such shrines all across the United States. A prized possession of the Chicago shrine is one of the Apostle's forearm bones.

Among the Apostles there were two Judes: Jude Thaddeus and the Judas Iscariot. In an attempt to keep the distinction clear, both Matthew and Mark usually refer to Jude Thaddeus in writing about this Apostle. Thaddeus means "greatheared one" or "he who has heard," or another Apostle: James, the first Bishop of Jerusalem.

St. Jude's skull, now in St. Peter's, Rome, bears out the story of his martyrdom. Fragments it shows clearly the marks of a sharp ax.

MOIRA W. A.

MOIRA — Mrs. Angus Munby was hostess to Moira W. A. on Thursday with nearly all the members present.

The president called the meeting to order with the regular worship service. Mrs. Wesley Farrel read Psalm 34 and Mrs. W. McInroy read the meditation in same.

Business was dealt with and the convener, Mrs. Frank Thomas had charge of the program with a reading by Mrs. J. Vandewater, "Thanksgiving", and duets by Mrs. David Mumby "Precious Memories", reading by Mrs. Fred Rosenburg, "Why I Believe in Prayers".

Topic was given by Mr. Dyson from Exodus 35-29. Music by Mrs. Lorne Mumby on the accordion. The Way of the Cross Leads Home'; Reading by Mrs. Dyson, "If Jesus Came to Your House". Solo by Mrs. D. Mumby "It is no Secret what God Can Do." Reading by Mrs. Jean Thompson, "Sing Many Prayers". Meeting was closed with a hymn and prayer. A dainty lunch was served by hostess and helpers.

This and That

Hospitals are wonderful and amazing places. Having spent only a very few days in those institutions, and so long ago that my recollections were dimmed, it was borne in on me anew just how much a world in themselves hospitals are.

It is a very good thing that this is so, because when people are ill, the outside world becomes less important to them; they are bound to think more about themselves and to want attention. The sense of being spent for and sometimes even fussed over is very comforting. The knowledge that up and down the corridors are others in a similar condition builds up the feeling of a world apart. It is also the only place you will not be a bore if you talk about your illness or your operation. Even the curiosity of strangers does not seem offensive, for you find yourself being curious too.

There have been jokes made about the wonderful cheerfulness of nurses. Whether assumed or not, patients should certainly be thankful that the cheerfulness is there. Can you imagine what a hospital would be like without it? I am sure it would be a dreadful place, even the nurses too, when every day they have to face pain, suffering, fear, protests and complaints.

A very wonderful woman, an elderly friend of mine, was a patient at the same time. She said to me, "Hospitals are wonderful. I can't understand why people grumble about them. If you show you are truly grateful for what is being done, you find everybody more interested than you actually need, but not more than you deserve."

From the September Bulletin of the Committee of Correspondence, which in turn based this article on reports from readers of the New York Times, comes this information which may be of interest to Belleville readers.

It is a coincidence that Mayor Forrester of Belleville, this spring met many years of her life in Puerto Rico, has her counterpart in San Juan, Puerto Rico. The mayor of that city is Senora Felisa Rincon de Gautier, who has held the office for 11 years.

She is a handsome woman and is known by her first name than Dona Felisa. She says, "I was born to do this kind of thing. I do all I can to help people. There is an awful lot of trouble in the world."

"Honoring this lady is not confined to the reaches of her own island. She is one of Puerto Rico's most valuable experts in the matter of international goodwill. She is in great demand as a speaker in Latin America where the surging feminist movement finds in her a militant leader."

Since 1914 how many times has the trite but so true adage returned to haunt the minds of men of goodwill. "United we stand, divided we fall." This month the Commonwealth and the U.S.A. are witnessing a re-dedication of their threatened unity. Our weekend thought comes from an address by Sir Winston Churchill seventeen years ago in the House of Commons:

"The British Empire and the United States will have to be content almost to go together in some of their affairs for mutual and general advantage. For my own part, looking out upon the future, I do not view the process with any misgivings. I could not stop it if I wished; I would not stop it. Like the Mississippi, it just keeps rolling along. Let it roll. Let it roll on full flood, inexorable, irresistible, benignant, to broader lands and better days."

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. FOWELL

LET JESUS COME INTO YOUR HEART

If you are tired of the load of your sin,
Let Jesus come into your heart;
If you desire a new life to begin,
Let Jesus come into your heart.

If 'tis for purity now that you sigh,
Let Jesus come into your heart;
Fountains for cleansing are flowing nearby,
Let Jesus come into your heart.

If there's a tempest your voice cannot still,
Let Jesus come into your heart;
If there's a void this world never can fill,
Let Jesus come into your heart.

If you would join the glad songs of the blest,
Let Jesus come into your heart;
If you would enter the mansions of rest,
Let Jesus come into your heart.

The nineteenth century was the era when interest in mass evangelism reached its peak across America and it was late in that century when C.H. Morris wrote this favorite revival hymn. His wife set the hymn poem to music and everyone who has sung it agrees that words and music are too well suited to each other to ever be separated.

It was a common practice among evangelists to use this hymn at the close of their revival meetings, as a song of invitation to non-Christians to come over to Christ's side. Invariably, the popular chorus,

"Just now your doubtings give o'er
Just now reject: Him no more,
Just now throw open the door:
Let Jesus come into your heart."

was sung over and over to encourage folks faltering on the brink of Christian decision to make their way to the altar or the prayer room.

Mrs. Morris wrote hymn poems as well as tunes. These included such favorites as "The Fight Is On", "Can The World See Jesus In You?", "If You Only Knew Jesus As I Do", and "— As The Years Go By".

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

HOSTESS FORGOT TO STATE HOUR TO ARRIVE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have just received an invitation to an afternoon Bridge-Tea, and as no specified time was given, I would like your advice as to when I would be expected to arrive. — E..en M.

I am sure there is some mistake about the omission of the hour, that your hostess just forgot to state the time. Of course it is most important that you know the hour, if you are going to accept, and the thing for you to do is to telephone your hostess (or write, if there is time) and ask her what time she expects her guests to arrive.

YOUNG GIRL SHOULD STAND

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a 16-year-old girl, and I know that when I go to the home of a schoolmate or other friend, I should rise when I am greeted by her mother or when her mother enters the room. But I am not sure if I should rise when her father greets me or enters the room or comes to speak to me. Should I? — Girl Reader.

Yes A young girl should stand when she is greeted by or speaking to the father of a friend as well as to the mother of the house.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Selma R. — I can't make up my mind.

Mrs. L.R. — Better to make a wrong decision than none at all.

* * *

Selma R. — I am a girl of 25 with a strange sort of problem. I seem never able to make up my mind about things.

I want very much to get married, but suitors always seem to present themselves in pairs. That is, I'll almost decide on one when another one will come along — and then I just can't make up my mind.

This has happened to me a few times and I have just given up in the end and not done anything. It has happened in other things too. I've missed out on good job opportunities because I just couldn't make a decision.

My mother thinks I should now marry this particular man, who is really very nice, but my father thinks I must be sure — and I can't be sure

* *

Mrs. L.R. — This thing has gotten ridiculous! Selma has let a number of good matches go by and I'm determined to see that she doesn't let it happen again. The young man I am encouraging her to marry is very much in love with her, has a good character and makes an excellent living. What does she want anyway

I think my husband frightens Selma or gets her mixed up when he tells her that marriage is one thing you have to be absolutely sure about. Then she starts asking herself if she's sure — and well, how can you be 100 per cent sure until you've lived with the person?

My mother always told me and I tell Selma that it is better to make some decision, even the wrong one, than none at all.

* * *

The council: Well, there are two ways of looking at it. We find it hard to reach a decision.

It is often true that it is better to make a wrong decision than none at all. Indecisiveness can become a bad habit which blocks the progress of one's life. A wrong decision can often be rectified. We learn through wrong decisions. We discover what is really important to us and try to adjust our future conduct toward the path we judge "right."

When it comes to marriage, however, one cannot rectify the wrong very easily. It is important to be as nearly sure as possible. But 100 per cent sure There would be a lot fewer happy marriages and families in this world if everyone waited to be 100 per cent sure. We're also pretty sure that many unhappy marriages started with 100 per cent sureness on both sides.

No, we can't make up our minds. But we do think that Selma's general indecisiveness suggests a lack of mental and emotional development. This does not mean she is not intelligent. She can be very intelligent, but she is not accustomed to exercising her full powers as an individual and is unsure of her values.

It would be a good idea for Selma to try to stop turning and twisting things around in her mind and to become deeply and vitally interested in something other than her own problems.

HISTORIC PAPER

WHEATLEY, Ont. (CP) — A marriage licence dated Oct. 26, 1839, has turned up in this Southwestern Ontario village. It was issued to Jacob Fox of Meresa and Maria Irwin of Colchester, signed by Sir George Arthur, then lieutenant-governor of Upper Canada.

BEAUTY

By MME. QUI VIVE

MAKE YOUR MANICURE A WEEKLY "MUST"

Give newly manicured nails plenty of time to dry — even if you only spend the time admiring them.

Recently a very popular network star was talking about what he liked to look at, when it came to women. What did he like best, when he was choosing a model-actress for an interview? Well, he liked a woman to look chic! But then, what is chic? According to this professional, chicness is simplicity. It's not fluffy ruffles, loads of make-up, clothes that were originally designed for some other woman's figure! Just plain simplicity.

Now comes the question — how can you look your simple best? The first thing to start with is good grooming. If your skin looks muddy and uncared for, if your hair doesn't sparkle with life and a recent shampoo, if your fingernails do you no credit — well, you just can't look chic, no matter what you paid for your clothes!

Today, then, let's consider your fingernails — or other words, your manicure. Pretty hands are such a beauty asset that no woman should ever neglect them. And this means frequent manicures — at least one a week. If you can't afford professional treatment for this rite, you can learn how to do a very good job on your own nails with just a little practice. All you need are a bowl of warm soapy water, a good steel nail file, an emery board, orange wood stick, bit of cotton, cuticle nippers or scissors, hand cream, polish, and possibly a buffer.

If you have used liquid polish, remove this with polish-remover. File the nails to the desired shape, being careful to follow the contour of your fingers to get a graceful effect. Then soak the hands in the warm, soapy water till the cuticles are softened, and dry thoroughly. Wrap a bit of cotton around the tip of the orange-wood stick, dip it in cream, and gently press back the cuticle and clean under the nails. With the scissors or nippers, trim off any ragged bits of cuticle, but never make a practice of cutting the cuticle close because this gives an ugly dug-in look to the fingers. Smooth the contour of the nails with the emery board, rinse the fingers in the warm suds again, and brush away the cream and bits of cuticle. Dry nails thoroughly and apply your polish.

If you use liquid polish, apply it with a tiny brush in even parallel strokes. After the final coat, run the orange wood stick around the inner edge of the nails to keep the polish from settling there. Be sure to let the polish dry thoroughly before you touch it, to avoid smudging. Of course, color for the nails is a matter of taste. However, as a general rule, only the most scrupulously-groomed fingers can afford to go in for extremes of color, shape, or length.

Readers' Saturday Colu

As Conducted by Mary Moore

Question: My trouble is I used to make good cottage cheese. I can't these days with the pasteurized milk — can't get it to sour, only off color as the dairy says, then it is rotten. I don't suppose folks bother about making that kind of thing these days and was wondering if you had a suggestion. Mrs. W. H.

Answer: I talked to a dairy chemist and he said "Oh yes, definitely the milk must be pasteurized — at 145 or 146 deg. F. for 30 minutes, then cooled overnight and then the culture is added!" Without culture the milk would have to be quickly soured at warm room temperature to obtain a solid mass to drain in a bag to obtain the curd. This draining is done overnight. When curd is dry, add salt, and if desired some sweet cream. One gallon sour milk yields about 1 1-2 cups cottage cheese.

Question: Could you publish a good recipe for brownies? I have several recipes and have tried some but they do not turn out as well as I have tasted at some tea parties. Interested.

Answer: I would be interested if in future "Interested" would give me her name and address. Very often there is not space in the column to answer all the readers' letters, and this makes it necessary to send them private answers.

SUPER BROWNIES

Three-quarters cup sifted cake flour, 1-2 teaspoon baking powder, 3-4 teaspoon salt, 1 cup of granulated sugar, 1-2 cup soft shortening, 2 eggs, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2 sq. unsweetened chocolate, melted, 1 cup chopped walnuts, almonds, pecans, Brazil nuts or peanuts. Heat oven to 350 deg. Fahr. Grease 8"x8"x 2" pan. Sift together first 3 ingredients. Gradually add sugar, shortening, mixing until light. Add eggs, vanilla; mix smooth. Mix in chocolate, then flour mixture, nuts. Turn into pan. Bake 30-35 minutes. Cool in pan; cut into squares or bars. Sprinkle with powdered sugar if desired.

Letter: . . . Would you be interested in a way of baking potatoes one or two at a time without using your oven? This saves heating the oven every time you need a baked potato for baby's dinner, or even for one or two persons. Punch two or three holes in top of coffee can, place a potato which has been well scrubbed, and dried well. Place over medium heat of burner, and cook about one hour. The potato will have black skin where it rests on the bottom of the can, but it can easily be cut off. The can's paint also will burn and cause an odor the first two or three times you use it, but soon won't be noticeable. Medium heat is what I use on my gas stove. Perhaps those with other stoves will find it takes a little experimentation to get the right heat . . . Kay D.

Answer: That's a peach of an idea, Kay, and thanks. I am sure plenty of "one burner" cooks will welcome your discovery. We'll use it here too for Gary's baked potato.

BCI Graduates Are Urged To Give Serious Thought to Their Educational Future

...Give serious and intelligent thought to your future education if you wish to make good use of the talents you possess," Dr. W. S. Turner told graduating students at the annual Belleville Collegiate Institute commencement last night.

Dr. Turner, an inspector for the Department of Education, told the 93 secondary school graduates and the 195 intermediate diploma winners, to make firm decisions regarding their education.

"Failures at the secondary school and university level result from lack of serious thought," he said. "Students simply drift along, never stopping to consider what does this mean to me."

Dr. Turner attributes this to the pampering of today's students — they are transported to school in cars or buses, fed nourishing meals in the school cafeteria, and reap the benefits of teachers who are sincerely interested in their advancement.

"If students feel this pampering is their right — if they take their opportunities for granted, their academic success will be shortlived," he said.

WHAT'S IN IT FOR ME?

"What's in it for me," seems to be the slogan for today's generation, Dr. Turner stated.

"This slogan has arisen from students worshiping their elders, worship at the altar of materialism while ignoring the altars of moral Christian ethics," he said.

The slogan itself is natural, Dr. Turner explained, provided students don't put all the emphasis on the "me" — wealth and fame—while failing to realize that the "it" is an unstable element in life, and the "me" must be well equipped for the "it" before considering the "what."

"By rearranging this slogan to "what's in it for it" the students will be assured of a far brighter future," he concluded.

Dr. Turner was introduced by Miss M. Dwyer and thanked by Miss Pauline Gibson.

GIVES VALEDICTORY

Miss Barbara Joan Fairman gave the valedictory address and said that since she became extended graduates were "wonderful." She was sure "none of us ever realized the depth of feeling that this phrase could convey, or how happy we would feel on hearing it from fellow school chums and friends."

The valedictorian said that although graduates are now separated, working in offices or attending university, "we share common memories and experiences."

She cited the years her class attended BCI as being years when teachers and students worked together and played together. The five years mark "just a small span in the chain of events which compose our lives and yet what an important span it is."

Miss Fairman was amazed that one school and 40 teachers, in the space of five short years, could mold characters, discover talents, help students discover their philosophy of life, and develop distinct personalities.

TRIBUTE TO TEACHERS

The speaker paid tribute to the teachers whose "encouragement and confidence" led the "outstanding class" through secondary school.

Although the graduating class can recall many humorous events, Miss Fairman was certain the teachers must have laughed heartily at "our own actions and behavior."

"Ours is the age of the crew-cut, the Italian bob, Liberace and Elvis, and we had them all," she said.

On behalf of the graduating class, Miss Fairman delivered "our sincere thanks, our profound appreciation to the teachers of BCI, members of the high school board and parents, who, by their energy, aid and encouragement have given us much and asked little in return."

Although graduation marks the end, she said, it also marks a beginning. She asserted that it does not matter how long one lives but what is of paramount importance is how one lives and Miss Fairman issued a challenge to all graduates to go out into the world with an objective.

Entertainment during the evening was a vocal chorus which sang four selections and by a trombone solo by John Tooth, both of the 10C student, con of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Tooth, of R.R. 2, Belleville.

PRINCIPAL IS CHAIRMAN

Principal E. A. Orr, chairman of the commencement exercises, in his remarks thanked the teaching staff and the parents for their efforts in making this evening possible for the intermediate students and secondary school graduates.

The students themselves, "the link between the parents and the staff," were also heartily congratulated for their fine performance.

Mr. Brooks Allen gave a short address bringing greetings and congratulations from the Bay of Quinte District High School Board.

Invocation was given by Rev. R. W. T. Middleton.

Intermediate certificates were presented by R. W. Phillips, Miss Ella Silvester, J. L. Shiels and C. T. Leppan.

Graduating diplomas were presented by F. W. Bradley, R. Allen, A. O. Drysdale, and H. C. Sedore.

Honor graduation diplomas were given by D. C. Stirling, G. Weaver, and L. D. Read, while scholarships and prizes were awarded by H. F. Mott.

School letters for achievement in athletics were presented by Mrs. W. J. Musgrove, David James, Miss J. Ziegler, and P. Geard.

C. E. Templer played the processional music and the closing recessional.

Gridiron 'Experts' If, When, On Weekend Football Scene

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hamilton Tiger - Cats could clinch first place in the Big Four Football Union today, provided teams that won last Saturday repeat their conquests.

If Hamilton beats Montreal Alouettes in Montreal and Toronto Argonauts top Ottawa Rough Riders at Ottawa, the Ticats will be assured of top place for the first time since 1953 when they tied with Montreal, and won a playoff.

University of Western Ontario Mustangs, whose defensive unit has allowed only 13 points in three Intercollegiate Senior games, move into Toronto against University of Toronto Blues.

Queen's Golden Gaels meet Bill Redmen at Kingston. Western leads the league with a two-point margin over the Redmen.

BIG NIGHT FOR ESKIES

In the Western Interprovincial Football League tonight, Edmonton Eskimos will set a new league mark almost every time they get hold of the ball in their home game against British Columbia Lions.

The Eskis have already cracked five WIFU team and two individual records. Tonight their Tacasse terror, Jackie Parker, is gunning for the individual scoring mark.

Lions' hopes for a third-place playoff position in the five-team league may go glimmering in Regina this afternoon where Calgary Stampeders meet the tail-end Saskatchewan Roughriders. A Calgary win would give the Stamps third spot and put them in the playoffs ahead of the Lions.

Edmonton has already cinched first and Winnipeg second.

Stampeders will wind up their 16-game schedule Monday night at Winnipeg. The schedule ends next Saturday when Edmonton is at Regina and Winnipeg at Vancouver.

SPUR FOR PATTERSON

Hal Patterson, Montreal Alouettes star, will have double reason to shine today against Hamilton. His parents turned up unexpectedly Friday in Montreal at a luncheon where the brilliant end was being presented with an oil painting of himself. His parents will be on hand for the game.

When Mr. and Mrs. Guy Patterson were ushered in to be introduced, the football star was flabbergasted.

His parents will see today's game, which will be the first time Mrs. Patterson has ever seen her son in action in pro football.

Argos will pin their hopes for their second successive victory against the Riders on hometown quarterback Gerry Doucette, who will start today's game.

Here's News For Peever

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Examiner says it has learned the Los Angeles Dodgers plan to move their Pacific Coast League franchise from Los Angeles to nearby Long Beach. The PCL franchise in Los Angeles was acquired by the Dodgers early this year from Chicago Cubs.

This Day in Sports

WASHINGTON, DC, OCTOBER 26, 1947

Harness Racing

TORONTO (CP) — All odds were that the Canadian championship—Canada's richest horse race—would go south of the border today.

The man favored to take the $44,900 first-place money home was New York's Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, a highly - successful breeder who probably would hardly notice such a trifling sum.

Vanderbilt's hopes, and probably the money of most of the bettors at New Woodbine were riding on the back of Find, a seven-year-old bay gelding who has won a total of $650,000 during his illustrious career.

Eleven other horses, seven of them Canadian-owned, were entered, but the handicappers gave none of them much chance of giving the Vanderbilt horse a fight after the start, scheduled for 4:30 p.m. EDT.

WISE MARGIN POSSIBLE

If he did miss, Wise Margin, owned by Sam Tufano and ridden by top jockey Joe Culmone, was figured to make the Canadian Championship still strictly an American affair.

Of the native-bred gallopers Bill Beasley's Pink Velvet, a three-year-old filly, was given the best chance to finish in the money. She has won $60,000 this season and did a fast 1:51.1 workout over 1¼ miles this week.

One item might upset all pre-race predictions. Find, though he has been out of the money only twice in 32 starts, has never won carrying 126 pounds, his impost in today's weight-for-age race.

But his losses at that weight were to much better horses than he was to face today.

THE ENTRY LIST

Other American-owned horses, drawn by lot, the place money of $10,000, the show of $5,000 and fourth of $2,900, are Shimmy, Clermont and Sunday Star.

Canadian entries besides Pink Velvet, were Kitty Girl, Marshall Ney II, Grand Canyon, Ocean Lane, Flying Trapeze and E. P. Taylor's Mythical II.

The weatherman scheduled a cold, sunny day, but the track was expected to be slow after a wet week. Any bettors who hoped that mud might affect Find were disappointed Friday when he breezed a half-mile in :51.1, with Wise Margin clocking the same time.

Victory in this world's richest pacing race went instead to Meadow Lands, owned by Del Miller and Hugh Grant of Bradford, Pa., and driven by Miller. Torpid, a bay son of Knight Dream-Torresdale and owned by Max Hochberg of Irvington, N.J., earlier this year had won the Cane Pace at Yonkers and the Little Brown Jug at Delaware, Ohio. Winner in 36 of his previous 40 starts, he was considered a shoo-in to take the Messenger and sweep pacing's triple crown. But Torpid was scratched because of bleeding nostrils.

BATAVIA, N.Y. (CP)—Munger Hanover won the $3,000 free-for-all handicap pace at Batavia Downs Friday night, topping Hals Bomb by 3¼ lengths. Shadow Stone, owned by J. Cecil Stone of Petrolia, Ont. won the third race.

MONTREAL (CP)—The Monarch C and In Free won the featured seventh and eighth races at Blue Bonnets Friday for purses of $1,200.

The Monarch C, owned by J. McIntosh and J. Barker of Wheatley, Ont., returned $13.50, $6.50 and $4. In Free is owned in Brampton, and was driven by Harold McKinley.

Most Pitchers Use Spitball Says Coleman

LAWRENCE, Mass. (AP)—Joe Coleman former American League hurler, says "90 per cent of major league baseball pitchers today use a spitball."

Coleman, now recreational director of the Massachusetts department of correction, made the statement Friday night in a church dinner during a question and answer period.

Coleman was questioned about Lew Burdette, Milwaukee Braves right-hander who made world series history with three victories over the New York Yankees earlier this month.

"Burdette admitted to me he used the spitball to get batters out," Coleman replied. "I myself have used the spitball on occasion to get a man out."

ASKED WHEN

Coleman was asked when Burdette made his admission to him.

"He told me when he first came up with the Yankees," a few years ago Coleman replied. Shortly thereafter, Burdette went to the Braves.

Coleman identified the spitball as one which involves the application of sweat from the forehead.

He was asked if that was a spitball or a moistened ball.

"That is a spitball in my book or at least it does the same thing as a spitter."

SPORT IN BRIEF

TO PLAY WEST POINT

VICTORIA (CP) — The British Columbia centennial committee Friday announced an exhibition field lacrosse series between a team from the U.S. military academy at West Point and a representative B.C. team to take place next June 14 and 17.

The centennial committee also has endorsed the Canadian junior lacrosse championships at Trail, B.C.'s 100th anniversary.

It also approved the Canadian senior lacrosse championships about Sept. 15 at Victoria, home of the present Mann Cup champions.

Barons Clobber Springfield 6-1

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cleveland Barons finally have broken into the winning column and the American Hockey League may now be on its way to one of its usual tight races.

The Barons lost their first four games, and it was beginning to look as though they never would get started. But they rolled over previously - unbeaten Springfield Friday night, 6-1.

Gerry McNeil turned in the first shutout of the AHL season when Rochester Americans halted Providence Reds 2-0 in the night's other game.

McNeil, formerly of the National League Montreal Canadiens, turned away 37 shots, 16 of them in the third period.

Dressen Mulls Over Offers

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Charley Dressen today was mulling over three major league baseball offers—one from his home town club, the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The veteran baseball figure announced Friday night he has quit his $25,000-a-year job as assistant to president Calvin Griffith of the Washington Senators.

I'd like to be more active in baseball on the field if possible," Dressen said.

The Dodgers Friday night confirmed the club has been talking to Dressen about a job as assistant to manager Walt Alston.

"There is nothing definite to announce yet," a Dodger spokesman said. "Charley is shopping around."

"SAFETY ON A LADDER"

If you have any second-storey jobs to complete, like repairing your roof, putting on storm windows, etc., be smart on a ladder and watch your step.

Listed below are a few sensible precautions for ladder safety:

1—Never stand on the top of the ladder!
2—When your ladder is in front of a door, post a warning sign, or lock the door.
3—Keep your body straight on top of the ladder, never reach over to either side.
4—When standing the ladder on soft ground, or use a board under both legs.
5—Don't climb a ladder in windy, icy, or heavy rain . . . if necessary in emergency have an assistant to hold the ladder.
6—When both your hands are needed have a leg over a rung for security.
7—Keep all tools off the top of a step ladder—use the paint holder shelf.

McFarlands Start Season With 4-3 Overtime Victory Over Dunlops

Sport Slices

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

NICE ONE TO WIN

Davy Jones scored it and to him must go the credit, but to nearly 2,300 fans it didn't matter too much who got the goal as long as he wore a McFarland uniform.

Up in the press box serie, we of the newspaper and radio clans liked what we saw. Even OHA proxy Lorne Cook who wore a Belleville Booster Club tam, a gift of a friend, liked it. And that's quite a thing to say coming firstly from an OHA president and secondly and more important from a Kingston resident, although in his younger days Lorne lived, worked and played hockey here. Gad, this Bay of Quinte atmosphere must be wonderful.

Wally Brabin, Wren Blair's right hand scrivener, while he didn't like what he saw from a Whitby standpoint, predicted the Macs would win the group title "You will beat Kingston by at least five goals," he said. He did not add he had laid a bet to the effect that the Macs would win by four, with Yip Bradley.

While Kingston defeated the Dunlops in overtime the other night they were not at full strength, besides a dissension, denied by Wren Blair here last night, was in the camp.

The Macs, however, met the Canadian champions at what was said to be full strength. At least Long John Henderson was in goal harness and it is just as well for the Dunlops' records that he was. He kicked out 29 shots to Gordie Bell's 24.

The McFarlands looked good, especially Gerry Goyer, Eddie Marineau and the defence in general. You wouldn't know Moe Benoit had a harness on him that a self-respecting plowhorse would kick back, but the big lug from the Coffee Bar, made no mistake on two goals. The whole team showed up well with Wiener Brown skating the best with a limping Gaye of the Macs will do. Let's hope they do as well in Bialyville tonight. By the way the game is being aired over CJBQ at 9.05.

BOOSTER CLUBS

The Eastern Ontario "Booster" virus is spreading. Trenton has started a Booster Club and Cornwall is attempting to lay the foundation of a similar organization for the riverside city.

A Booster Club run on the same organizational lines with similar aims and purposes as the McFarlands and Dunlops associations would come in mighty handy for the Cornwall club right now.

For the starry George Aiken, of the Stratford Indians, 1956-57, who has been acquired by the Chevies is warming a bench at the moment. It seems there is a small matter of a release from the Toronto Bulldogs who drafted Aiken, and a larger matter of a "steep sum" which the Windsor management has placed on the services of Aiken.

Just "How Much for the Doggie in the Window" is not known, but it will hardly come under the category of peanuts, if Windsor's Gee-Man holds to form.

Back to the Booster Club, one James "Snipe" Matthews, vice-president in charge of kills, sporrans, dirks, kilts and bagpipes, says that he consulted his oulja board prior to contacting members of the Quinte Pipe Band regarding their accompanying boosters to the Kingston game on November 2.

He got a good response. The "weeip" gave out with misty music which resembled a rock-'n-roll of Auld Lang Syne with touches of the "Campbells are Coming" tossed in. "Snipe" made the oulja and proved the "weeip" was right. Not only did three of the piper laddies say they would go along but the whole kit and kaboodle of the 15-piece band said they would make the trip. Beat that for co-operation.

Efforts are also being made to have a coterie of winsome cheer-leaders from BCI go along to lead the clubbers in their new slogan, "More, Macs More."

HODGE-PODGE

Carlings will again telecast National Hockey League games on Saturday afternoons this winter starting November 2 through March 22 inclusive. Boston opens on November 2 at Boston's starting time o'clock eastern standard time . . . Consensus of hockey fans who viewed TV hockey last Saturday night is the Montreal picturization is much better than that which emanates out of Toronto. And Danny-boy Gallivan's a man-size job at the mike . . . Moe Benoit wore a shoulder harness last night that would make a dowager's girdle look like a cotton glove in comparison. Besides it took three-way stretch . . . "Eighteen years with those Bums, and now I'm an orphan," moaned Peeve through salty tears the other evening after reading that the "Los Angeles" Dodgers had landed in the City of the Angels . . . Annual meeting of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association is slated for the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, November 16th. The OMHA has completed negotiations for a vastly-improved insurance plan for the coming season. One of the features will be a $5.00 deductible instead of a $10 as of last year. Details will be available shortly . . . Minnie Menard, Floyd Crawford, Lionel Bolley and other Macs skate for many, many long minutes after the regular practice grind doing "ballerina" steps to get those leg muscles up to scratch.

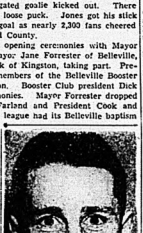
By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor



Long John Henderson's lair proved Davy Jones' locker here last night when the slim forward pushed the puck past the apostrate goalie after four minutes of overtime play to give the McFarlands their first senior "A" league victory and the Whitby Dunlops their second defeat is as many starts. The score was 4-3.

The victory gave the McFarlands a three-way split for the league lead with Cornwall and Pembroke since the Lumber Kings defeated Kingston on the latter's ice last night by a 2-1 score. Kingston has a one ahd one record, and the Dunlops two defeats against no league victories.

The McFarlands surged into a 3-0 lead at the end of the first period but the Dunnies roared back to make the count 3-2 at the end of the second. In a furious, fast, hard-checking third period the Dunlops tied it up with less than a minute to go.

Both teams turned on the fire and the fury in the overtime with the Macs having the edge. At 4.33 Gerry Goyer, like Hildebrand and Davy Jones surged in on Long John. Goyer let go a drive which the elongated goalie kicked out. There was a goalmouth scuffle and a loose puck. Jones got his stick on it and scored the winning goal as nearly 2,300 fans cheered themselves into Prince Edward County.

The game was marked by opening ceremonies with Mayor H. J. McFarland of Picton, Mayor Jane Forrester of Belleville, and OHA president Lorne Cook of Kingston, taking part. Present at the ceremonies were members of the Belleville Booster Club and the Arena Commission. Booster Club president Dick Beare acted as master of ceremonies. Mayor Forrester dropped the puck between Moe Benoit and President Cook and the Eastern Ontario senior "A" league had its Belleville baptism of fire.

DAVE JONES

Moe Benoit paced the Mac's puck with two goals. Coach Bert Hildebrand who skated miles came through with three assists. Gerry Goyer, one of the most valuable stars of the Macs, added one and one Wiener Brown who got out of a sick bed to help his club had one assist while Eddie Marineau also had a helper.

The Dunnies goals were split with Tom O'Connor, Samolenko and Bobby Attersley sharing the honors. Bus Gagnon, the alleged "bone of contention" and Ted O'Connor each had two assists.

While the pace was fast and furious throughout the entire 64 minutes only nine penalties were handed out by Referee Bill Balmer of Toronto, six of them going to the Dunlops. A feature, if one can call it that was the first penalty to a team bench. Referee Balmer tagged Whitby with misdemeanor for unruffled after-the-whistle by the Whitby bench. The team was tagged two minutes with a player serving it and the club being minus a player's service for two minutes.

Starting at a lightning fast pace both teams resorted to close checking. It was fast, furious hockey with both teams skating at full speed throughout the period. The Macs had a definite edge in the play outshooting the Dunlops 13-6 in the period. Both goalies were tested hard early in the frame and twelve had gone before Moe Benoit, retained in goalie's holder broke away at centre ice, raced in on Long John Henderson and made no mistake to score the first goal of the senior "A" season on Belleville ice.

At that the goal was well-earned for Marineau had been waved on what looked a cheap penalty for tripping and he had eight seconds to go when Moe made his successful bid.

A minute later Harry Sinden got the gate for interference and he had been back on the ice just four seconds when Benoit ripped down a centre ice flipped the puck to Eddie Marineau who flipped it back. Moe's blast deflected off Alfie Treen into the net behind Henderson to put the Macs two up.

The Macs were checking fiercely but so were the Dunnies then Billy Flick got waved off for high sticking at 17.25. Ike Hildebrand, Gerry Goyer and Wiener Brown raced goalwards and in a brilliant passing play put the Macs three goals up with Gerry Goyer blasting the rubber past Henderson. It was a picture threesome passing play that had the big crowd on seat edge.

The fast, furious hard checking pace was maintained in the second period. After five minutes of play Tom O'Connor lofted a looping shot that went over Bell's shoulder for the first Whitby goal. Charlie Burns was credited with the assist.

A few seconds later Eddie Marineau tangled with Alf Treen in a sticking duel that drew the McFarland backer a major and Treen a minor. A second later Minnie Menard stepped in alone on Long John Henderson but the clever goalie outguessed the Macs' winger.

Wiener Brown and Tom O'Connor got the gate for roughing and both drifted went all out in a terrific hard-checking battle with both goalies standing out. Whitby narrowed the margin to 3-2 with a little over three seconds to go when Gagnon, Samolenko and Ted O'Connor drove in on Bell with Samoy smashing home Gagnon's rebound.

The goal down going into the third period, the Dunlops exerted terrific pressure in an effort to even the score. The Macs battling desperately to protect their slim lead went into defensive action. It looked to be Mac's victory when the clock showed a minute to go but the Dunnies' famous duo of Gagnon and Attersley changed the picture, Bobby firing home Gagnon's pass at 19.04 to square the count.

Long John Henderson lived up to his name in this period as he turned back the win-hungry Macs time after time. At the other end Gordie Bell tossed back a lot of rubber.

Then came the overtime and you know the rest.

Loses Fight Makes Hit In NY Bout

NEW YORK (AP)—Sometimes the loser can win, too. Game Gale Kenyon of Olean and Valley Stream, N.Y., found that out Friday night.

The transplanted, 22-year-old lightweight, subbing for a sub against more experienced Johnny Busso, lost the unanimous decision but made a hit in his Madison Square Garden maiden event debut.

BUSSO MEETS ROSI

The victory for Busso sewed up the fight with Paolo Rosi, fifth-ranking 135-pounder. Rosi, of Italy and New York, originally was scheduled to meet Busso Friday night but was stricken by the flu. Ronnie Williams of Washington, D.C., was named to sub but he also was bitten by the bug — Kenyon, who had signed to oppose Johnny Gorman in the semi-final event, got $1,500, then was promoted to the main bout and a $4,000 payoff for the radio-televised card.

There will be more of those TV payoffs for the lucky Kenyon, finally man who has an eight-month old son.

"We'll use him again soon," said matchmaker Bill Brown of the International Boxing Club. "He put up a real good scrap."

"I thought I won," said the unbeaten Kenyon, a 5-1 favorite. He dog. "A return fight wouldn't be bad, would it?"

Busso, 129½, had the small crowd of about 1,000 rooting for him in Kenyon's first half-dozen of the bout but from the sixth on it was Busso's show.

It was Kenyon's first loss of the year and made his record 24-5-1. Busso's record is 31-5-1.

Fight Over 'Rasslin' up Moosonee Way

MOOSONEE (CP) — Wrestling moved into Moosonee and neighboring Moose Factory the other night but a fight in the audience drew more attention than the bouts.

Wrestling promoter Larry Kaszaboski of North Bay staged the bouts. The participants were Kaszaboski himself, Don Evans of Kingston, N.Y., Bill Curry of Sudbury, Pat Oni, and Bob Murphy of Montreal and Halifax.

While the bouts were under way a more livelier fight developed between two young Indian women arguing the merits of their favorites. Provincial police constable Fred Hart managed to get the female battlers out of the hall but a number of other spectators became involved in the brawl before it ended.

After the Moosonee performance, the wrestlers travelled by boat across to Moose factory where they repeated their show. A fight broke out in the crowd there, too, but it was quickly halted.

Dutchmen Lose First Game Pembroke Nips Kingston 2-1

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen who started the season with a three-game winning streak, may be losing their grip on top place in the new Ontario Hockey Association-Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A loop.

After tying Soo Greyhounds Thursday, the Dutchmen's Friday night received their first beating of the season, 3-1, from Sudbury Wolves who now hold second place.

Other OHA-NOHA action last night saw Chatham Maroons chalk up their first win of the season, 4-1 over Windsor Bulldogs.

DUNLOPS EDGED

Allan Cup champions Whitby Dunlops came from behind a 3-0 deficit to level the score before Belleville slipped in an overtime goal.

After Bill Colvin had given them a 1-0 lead early in the first period, Kingston CKLC's fell off and goals by Pembroke's Gerry Plamondon and veteran Rouhby

'Fairy Stone' Favored for Cambridgeshire

Stephanotis and Veleta, formerly joint favorites with Fairy Stone, slipped to 100-8 and 20-1 in pre-race betting announced Friday.

The Cambridgeshire is one of the last big horse betting races of the British flat season. The final Irish Sweepstake of the year will be based on it. There are 28 probable starters for the big race, first run in 1839.

HOW'S YOUR I.Q.?

TODAY'S INSURANCE PROBLEMS ANSWERED

QUESTION—

What can the claimant under a property policy (fire, auto collision or auto theft) do if he is not satisfied with the amount offered by the insurance adjuster or company? Must he bring suit or hire a lawyer?

ANSWER—

The standard policy has provision whereby in case of disagreement as to amount of loss, it is settled by appraisal. The insurance and the company each name appraiser, the two appraisers name a third, and any two of the three may act. This will constitute a finding ward.

Jap Putters Fashion Magic In Canada Cup Golf Tourney

TOKYO (CP) — Japan's Torakichi Nakamura and Koichi Ono, using their putters like magic wands, shot into an almost insurmountable nine-stroke lead today with only one more round to be played in the Canada Cup international golf tournament.

Playing in occasional rain and stiff winds, Nakamura, business-like little Japanese Open champion, added a five-under-par 67 to a previous brace of 68s for a 54-hole score of 203, which put him well in the lead for the individual championship.

Ono, his poker-faced partner, shot a 68 to give the Japanese team an aggregate score of 414. The United States' Sam Snead and Jimmy Demaret were second —nine strokes behind.

"All right—all right! I'll go see if I can trade with the butcher for a couple of pork chops!"

CANUCKS SIXTH

The Canadian entry of Toronto's Al Balding and Stan Leonard of Vancouver and Lasalle, Que., was sixth with 430. The veteran Leonard had one of the best third-round scores with 70, two under par. Balding also was under regulation figures with a 71.

Snead and Demaret found the rain-soaked greens of the Kasumigaseki Country Club puzzling and each finished with a 71.

The Welsh team of Dai Rees and David Thomas, finding the blustery weather to their liking, moved into third place with a score of 428. Rees, captain of the British Ryder Cup team this year, shot a 72 and Thomas, youngest member of the British forces, a 70.

Par for the 6,895-yard course is 36-36—72. It played much tougher Friday.

South Africa, Australia and Canada apparently were the only other teams among the 30 nations competing with a look-in for either of the two championships. South Africa and Australia were tied for fourth at 425 and Canada was just one stroke behind.

Peter Thomson of Australia's three-time British open champion could do no better than 73, one stroke above the score recorded by his teammate, Bruce Crampton. South Africa's Gary Player shot 74 and Harold Henning 75.

SEVEN SHOTS AHEAD

Nakamura's individual score of 203 placed him seven shots ahead of his closest individual challenger, Thomas of Wales, who had 210. Demaret was tied at 211 with Ono. One stroke back at 212 came Snead and Leonard.

The Canada Cup matches are the brainchild of the late John Hopkins, former chairman of the board of Canadair, Ltd., Montreal. The event was held in the province of Quebec the first two years, 1953 and '54, and later in Washington, D.C., and England.

Hopkins felt the competitions would promote international golfing goodwill. It is a two-part affair—the Canada Cup for team play (won by the U.S. last year) and the low medal score taking the individual trophy.

On the Tracks

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP) — Thirteen horses parade to the post today in the Garden State Stakes, world's richest race, and time will tell whether No. 3 can do it again.

Jewell's Reward, heir-apparent to the two-year-old throne for 1957, is the $40-1 favorite for the mile-and-a-sixteenth event which carries a $277,120 jackpot.

In all four runnings of the race the winning horse has carried the No. 3. Reward has No. 3 this time, and he's about 40-to-1 in the odds.

Jewel's Reward has earned $234,295 for the Main Chance farm of Mrs. Elizabeth Graham, who was born in Woodbridge, Ont. The colt will be ridden by Willie Shoemaker.

Eddie Arcaro rides Misty Flight, with Bill Hartack on Nadir.

Misty Flight rates second consideration in the odds at 3-to-1, with Nadir 6-to-1 along with Music Man Fox and Martins Buliah.

MOSS HOT IN TRIAL

CASABLANCA, Morocco (AP) Stirling Moss, British racing star, was the fastest man at the first trials for Sunday's Moroccan Grand Prix. He drove a British Vanwall over one lap of the 7,605-kilometre (4.75 mile) circuit at an average speed of 117.8 miles an hour.

But He Didn't Miss the One Here Last Night

WHITBY (CP)—A petition suggesting former coach Bus Gagnon replace Wren Blair as coach of Whitby Dunlops, Canada's representatives in the 1958 world hockey championships, was circulated here last weekend.

Blair, also Dunlop's manager, confirmed Friday the petition was circulated and said he had 31 names on it. He said it was not representative of the majority of Whitby fans who are solidly behind club management. Blair said that since presentation of the petition, the club's board of directors, a players meeting and the team sponsors have all given him a vote of confidence.

Blair said he suspended Gagnon after the Lions's week while he investigated the petition and reinstated him after it was proved the manager had nothing to do with it. Gagnon missed Wednesday's game with Kingston CKLCs.

Four Grid Teams To Play for United Appeal

By MARTY GOODMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Four high school teams are to play a football doubleheader tonight, concluding a two-day gridiron boost for Toronto's United Appeal.

Kitchener - Waterloo Collegiate and Vocational School and Windsor Forster Collegiate Institute on Friday night's opening games to become eligible for the ninth annual Golden Rule Award.

The award goes to the winning team chosen by three judges for best combining athletic ability and sportsmanship. All receipts go to United Appeal and Community Chest campaigns in areas where tickets are sold.

TONIGHT'S GAMES

Tonight St. Catharines Collegiate Institute and Vocational School plays Sudbury Minisa and Technical School and Toronto Bathurst Heights Collegiate and Vocational School plays Ottawa Fisher Park High School.

With both winners featuring ground attacks, Kitchener defeated Allistion Banting Memorial High School 40-0 and Windsor beat Toronto Parkdale Collegiate Institute 20-6.

The idea of sportsmanship and working for the appeal gives further than just the teams playing on the field.

The colorful North Toronto and East York High School bands, which performed at half-time, the heyles of shapely, if chilled, cheerleaderettes from the participating schools, and the more than 6,000 spectators at Maple Leaf Stadium put on a non-pro tissan show that was geared to boost the appeal.

The bands played brightest and stepped liveliest at half - time when a float featuring Jimmy Cricket, symbol of the appeal, rumdled up and down the field.

Gary Strickler paced the scorers with three touchdowns. John Weber scored once and booted three converts and Stan Chauvin and Steve Douglass each counted once. Bob Awrey kicked a single.

Quarterback Awrey was impressive in his ball-handling and Strickler and Weber gave able running aid.

Windsor featured a strong two-way performer in Larry Karpuk, who scored two touchdowns and connected on one convert. Whit Tucker scored once and kicked a single and the two along with fullback Barry Pepper, were offensive stars.

Quarterback Albert Simick scored Parkdale's touchdown as the Toronto club suffered its first defeat of the season. Windsor has a 1-3 record in its league.

Judges for the Golden Rule Award are Harry McBrien, secretary of the Canadian Rugby Union; Hap Shouldice, former Big Four official; and Billy Bass, former Big Four player.

The month-long appeal, now in its last week, aims for $8,598,952. The eight previous tournaments raised $106,134.07.

Draw Is Made On Big Race

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Depending on the whim and skill of a horse and jockey duo in England next week, one or more among 112 lucky Canadians stands to win $149,000.

The draw was made Friday in Dublin for the Irish Hospitals Sweepstakes tickets on the Cambridgeshire Handicap Stakes, to be run at Newmarket, England, next Wednesday.

As a result of the draw, 283 Canadians became eligible to win prizes ranging from $1,100 to $149,000.

Canadians drew 82 tickets on the 85 horses originally entered for the classic race, assuring each ticket holder of at least $1,100 for finishing a non-starter.

Of the 283 whose tickets were drawn, 112 held tickets for 37 of the 39 horses listed as starters on Friday night. They could win up to $140,000 first prize. Second place is worth $56,000 and third $28,000.

Meeker May Become Coach In Newfoundland

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Howie Meeker, former National Hockey League player, coach and manager, arrived here by plane Friday with Lorne Wakelin, manager of St. John's Memorial Stadium.

He said he was here on a visit with Wakelin but Noel Vincombe sports editor of The News, speculates that he will be interviewed by the stadium commission with a view to his becoming coach.

There are about 2,000 junior and senior hockey players in this area. The stadium coach, paid by the city, will assist team coaches and help prepare junior and senior all-star teams for the Newfoundland finals.

Meeker, 34 - year - old former right winger, coached Toronto Maple Leafs last year. The team finished fifth. Then Meeker was named manager, succeeding Hap Day. He lost that job before the NHL season opened.

Junior Habs Whip Biltmores

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The flashy Ottawa-Hull Canadiens whipped home four first-period goals and then held on Friday night to best the Biltmores 4-3 in Guelph's OHA Junior A home opener of the season.

In the circuit's other game, Peterborough Petes absorbed their second defeat in two nights, losing 5-3 in Barrie to the Flyers.

The Canadiens struck for three goals in five minutes to salt away their victory. Bob Boucher and Bob Rousseau scored two consecutive goals each. The Guelph squad, many playing for the first time in Junior A company, managed goals by Ron Brain and Ron Rochford.

The Ted Kennedy - coached Petes, whipped 11-0 by Toronto Marlboros Thursday night, did better against Barrie.

Bernie Cote with a pair, and Peter Panagabko, Bill Farhan and Murray Davison scored for Barrie. Jerry Brisson had two and Tom Clare one for Peterborough.

TV NOTEBOOK

By: John Wettlaufer

TV has inspired some weird and wonderful shenanigans. We read, for example, of a family's pet monkey which broke dishes, smashed furniture and wrecked the TV set when a favorite program was turned off.

Instances are legion of dogs leaping headlong into TV screens in pursuit of cats or other canines. Fairly common too, are reports of over-zealous youngsters, siding with the "good guys", and popping out the screens with B.B. guns. There have been more than a few reports of citizens losing sacktime when woodpeckers spend the early morning hours drumming away on aluminum antennas.

An unusual diagnosis of TV trouble was made by a six-year-old who witnessed both the sound and picture suddenly go off, and complained: "Our TV's become inconsiderate".

Incidentally, diagnosis (and a quick cure) of TV trouble is the specialty of CIRCLE TV SERVICE, 368 Coleman St. Surprisingly enough, many instances of unsatisfactory reception are traced roofward —to the antenna. Try CIRCLE TV SERVICE for an antenna service and installation guaranteed to allow maximum performance from your set. Phone WO 8-6791.

How Spark Delivery Timed

By EUGENE MILMOE

Every distributor must include some means of timing the spark delivery. On many cars, this is accomplished by what is called a centrifugal advance supplemented by a vacuum unit — some utilize a vacuum advance only — while on others the centrifugal mechanism does the entire job.

Regardless of the technical difference in the systems used, the basic aim is the same.

The idea is to make the spark (which ignites the fuel mixture) occur at a precisely correct time for slow, moderate or high speeds — e.g., for varying engine speed demands.

Power loss, poor economy, overheating, excessive spark knock (or ping) — these are the penalties when the automatic advance mechanism is inefficient. As with most car parts, the usual causes include dirt, wear, lack of lubrication.

R.A. asks: "Does this sound right to you? I once read that sprinkling a little carburetor cleaner in the car surface, while waxing it, helps do a better job."

(A) Many car owners have been doing this for years. The cornstarch helps fill the wax and minimizes streaking.

B.L. writes: "Please advise how often fluid level in the brake master cylinder should be inspected under normal conditions. I'd also like to know if it is safe to mix one kind of brake fluid with another."

(A) Brake fluid level should be checked at least twice a year. Mixing different kinds of brake fluid is never advisable. It could result in a fluid which is neither efficient nor dependable.

From S.J.: "On and off, my 1956 six-cylinder engine has been acting poorly, and I think the trouble is due to a sticking valve. A service station man said the same thing, although he could only depend on my description because the car was running all right when I brought it to him. I'm going to try a can of gum solvent which is fed through the carburetor and into the engine. Should this be used before starting the engine or while it is running?"

(A) The engine should be running at normal operating temperature when you pour the solvent through the carburetor throat.

H.D. writes: "My 1950 car has a loud metallic knock when the engine is started while cold. After the engine warms up, however, the noise is barely audible. I have, just had new rings, new valves, four new pistons, new wrist pins, and the bearings tightened."

(A) Often, when new wrist pins are installed in an old piston, a noise such as this will be heard until they have been in use for a while. It's also possible that the noise you describe is a piston slap. Sometimes it occurs with certain types of pistons when the engine is cold, and your newly installed pistons might fall into such a category.

SAFETY IS NO ACCIDENT

NEW CENSORS

CANBERRA (Reuters) — A controversy sparked by the banning of J.D. Salinger's novel Catcher in the Rye came to an end today when the federal government announced that henceforth all foreign books will be censored by the literature censorship board and not the customs department. It was a customs department ban on the Salinger novel which led to months of public grumbling about "unqualified" censor officials.

NEXT AT BELLE — Three-time Academy Award nominee, Eleanor Parker plays the unfaithful wife in "The Seventh Sin", M.G.M. drama based on a novel by Somerset Maugham. Bill Travers, George Sanders, Jean Pierre Aumont and Francoise Rosay, are others in an all-star cast. Right, Ann Francis and Leslie Nielsen, are the romantic interest in "Forbidden Planet", M.G.M.'s first science fiction drama, filmed in color and CinemaScope. The twin bill starts Monday at the Belle Theatre.

Folks Still Talking of Amazing Job by Rooney in Pinocchio

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Notes and comment on the TV scene:

The nice thing about being Groucho Marx is that you can say anything to anybody and get away with it. For instance, at a recent party he was introducing Guy Madison to people as "Wyett Earp." Guy (Wild Bill Hickok) didn't seem to mind a bit. . . .

The best prepared show of the TV season will be Mary Martin's Annie Get Your Gun Nov. 27. It was fun in legit form for a dozen weeks in San Francisco and Los Angeles. Only 16 minutes of the play will be dropped for the home screens, most of it in the second-act plot of the young couple's romance . . .

There's talk of a comedy series for Eddie Mayhoff after his stint on the Standard Oil spectacular, the bit of an otherwise lack-lustre show. Eddie did a brief series a few years ago but it got lost in the shuffle.

AMAZING ROONEY

Folks are still talking about the amazing job Mickey Rooney did as Pinocchio. He actually was the puppet boy, with none of the Rooneyisms apparent.

Gazing at an old Shirley Temple movie, I realized why Hollywood has never come up with another Shirley Temple. She was a natural: cute and sweet without being sticky. . . .

On the basis of his first show, look for Frank Sinatra to dominate Friday nights. Some of it was amateurish — those stage waits, offstage noises—but Frank kept things moving in amiable

AT THE McCARTHY — Keenan Wynn and Ralph Meeker, as two kidnappers, have their hands full with their temperamental quarry, played by Jane Russell. The picture, "The Fuzzy Pink Nightgown", a United Artists release, opens Monday at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre. Sophia Loren in "Too Bad She's Bad", is the 2nd feature.

Ask Exemption From Labor Act

TORONTO (CP)—The Association of Ontario Land Surveyors, the Canadian Physiotherapy Association and the Registered Nurses Association of Ontario Thursday requested their members be exempt from provisions of the Ontario Labor Relations Act.

The requests were made in briefs submitted to the Ontario legislature's select committee on labor relations.

The Ontario Hospital Association asked on Wednesday that its member hospitals be given the right to remove employees from under the act.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER
(Author of the new "Astrology and You")

"The Stars Impel . . . They do not Compel! What you make of your life is largely up to you."

Sunday, Oct. 27, 1957.

Aries (March 21 to April 19): The Golden Rule is the guiding post by which to test your present activities if you are to succeed in them and reach the heights. Highest success is yours, so it is up to you to meet requirements. Be practical.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20): Seek out the spiritual leader who functions today. Indeed, he stays out of even regular channel. Follow your hunches and you get right advice, inspiration. Also seek other data in daily paper.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Since Mercury is your ruling planet, you seldom sit still long enough to permit the fine intuitive ideas to flow through you. Do it today! It could very well change your entire life for the better.

Cancer (June 22 to July 23): It is possible today to meet with anyone with whom you have important dealings and come out the long line in the contest. They are willing to give you the facts and data which have been withheld for so long.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): Today it is important for you to sit quietly and analyze your relationships, beliefs in all respects. Fellow workers; see where you might be in error, and then decide to change attitudes sufficiently to bring about real concord.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Your aries feeling wonderfully well and in joyous mood which leads you to understand how to make your life happier and more prosperous. Improve in every way: spirituality, goodness, and start successful trend.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): The situation within the household requires your superior understanding and handling. Attend to it immediately. Bring order out of chaos. Go to others and show how busy. Expound homely philosophy as you weld the paintbrush.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Whatever it is that you are seeking can be had today by listening attentively to spiritual leader, reading religious or philosophical matter, or reading that lecture you've been meaning to hear. Do not be content with "this with real vim and vigour and go after what it is you want. You have but to reach out your hand. Get appearance up to snuff, your system too.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): You have reached an impasse in your life — and only one true way out of it — by recalling the precepts and principles under which your parents thrived and by returning to them. The old order never changeth.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Be as selfish, almost, as you like today, especially this with real vim and vigour and go after what it is you want. You have but to reach out your hand. Get appearance up to snuff, your system too.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): You have been too long again and are suffering the consequences. Get advice from wonderful source and follow it for easier and more affluent living. Be your most serious self. Forget the creative for a while.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20): The fundamental desires which are yours have a real opportunity of being met if you plan and go after them with enthusiasm and charm. Talk them over with those who have feet on the ground. Get what you deserve.

If your child is born today . . . he or she child born today will have none of the little playful, inane characteristics about him or her. Seriousness will be the magnetic power that will draw others and help in make your progeny's life finer. Two High Grade Holstein Cows Bring $2450

CAMPBELLFORD — Two Campbellford district farmers received a total of $2,450 for two Holstein cows at the annual All-Canadian Holstein sale held in Belleville on Monday, October 21. The highest price paid was $1,450 for a five-year-old cow owned by W. Craig Nelson of Campbellford, The animal, Pond-Crest Coreen Sovereign is classified as "very good," and was the first prize four year old at the Peterborough championship show in 1956. The buyer was Luis Picasso, of Lima, Peru. Mr. Nelson has bred a number of prize-winning cattle during the last years.

Second highest price went to Alex L. Merrill, of Campbellford, who was paid $1,000 for his Holstein, Merleson Lucy Rosekette, a five-year-old cow. The buyer was Winston Nisbet of Troy, Ontario. Rockette was the grand champion Holstein cow and the best udderd female at the Northumberland Dairy and Show in 1956. She is the daughter of the six times All-Canadian champion, Rockewood Rocket Tone.

CARE OF INDIGENTS

Municipalities will continue to pay a daily rate for indigents in active treatment hospitals. However, they will receive amount tional grants from the province. These grants, for the committee said, will in general compensate the municipalities for their payments to hospitals on behalf of indigents.

The commission said municipalities will further benefit because hospital deficits will be virtually eliminated by the plan. Municipalities now pay about $12,000,000 a year to support hospitals.

The commission said it hopes to encourage early outpatient by providing three months' prepaid insurance dating from the payment of initial subscribers. Self-employed individuals can obtain the same benefit if they register and pay one month's premium before Oct. 31, 1958, and the quarterly premium in January, 1959.

THREE MONTHS PREPAID

The program will be operated so that all members will have three months' prepaid premiums dated from the last due premium. If more falling behind three months in premiums will be excluded from the plan and will have to pay the equivalent of three months' premiums to reinstated.

The commission said it will operate alone in hard hospital industries and thus private firms, such as Blue Cross, will be able to concentrate on supplementary services. These would include semi-private and private coverage, medical benefits and sickness indemnity benefits.

BENEFITS INCLUDED

These are the in-patient benefits to be provided:

Accommodation and meals at public ward level; necessary regular nursing service; laboratory, radiological and other diagnostic procedures; drugs, biologicals and related preparations as approved under a provincial schedule; use of operating room, case room and anaesthetic facilities including necessary equipment and supplies;

Routine surgical supplies; use of radiotherapy equipment for treatment of cancer; use of physiotherapy facilities; other services rendered by persons paid by the hospital, care and treatment in mental and tuberculosis hospitals; and outpatient services for emergency admissions within 24 hours of an accident.

The commission said a brochure will be published including details of all aspects of the plan.

TO REVIEW CASE

TORONTO (CP)—The case of Joseph Forcheaux, 28, released from Toronto's Don Jail Thursday with 37 cents and a seven-day notice to leave Canada, will be reconsidered by the immigration department, it was reported Friday. Forcheaux's problem is that he can't return to the United States, the land of his birth, having forfeited U.S. citizenship by joining the Canadian Army without U.S. permission.

Foxboro

FOXBORO — Mrs. J. W. Daniels spent the Thanksgiving weekend with her daughter, Mrs. L. Shorten, Rev. Shorten, and Mary Ruth.

Mr. and Mrs. James Reynolds attended the ploughing match in Simcoe last week.

Sympathy is extended to Mrs. Percy Kilpatrick and Shirley in the sudden passing of a loving husband and father.

The first meeting of the 4-H Club was held in the school auditorium recently with the election of officers . president, Getha Sherry; vice-president Joan Harry; secretary treasurer Maxine Edvard; press reporter, Sharon Chappelle; leaders, Mrs. Jamieson, Mrs. Ewing

It was decided to call this club "Foxboro Busy Bakers."

Mrs. Jamieson gave out the cereal shelf and explained the meaning of the 4-H Homemaking Club unit.

The second meeting of the "Foxboro Busy Bakers" was held on Wednesday evening at the home of Maxine Edwards. The president, Getha Sherry, opened the meeting with the pledge and Maxine read the minutes of the last meeting. Business was discussed and for next meeting a club song is to be made up and ways to raise money.

Mrs. Ewing, the leader, took charge. The home assignments and roll call for the next meeting were read. This brought the meeting to a close with the next one to be held at the home of Mrs. Ewing on November 6. The hostess served refreshments.

Six Are Killed In 2-Car Head-On Crash At Massey

Lone Survivor Critical With Multiple Injuries

MASSEY, Ont. (CP) — A woman, two children and three men were killed Sunday night in a two-car collision on Highway 17 near this Northern Ontario town, 53 miles east of Sudbury.

The woman's husband, the only survivor, was in serious condition in hospital at Espanola, 20 miles east of here.

Killed were: Mrs. Ivan Oberwick, 31, of Spanish, Ont.; two of her children, Debbie, 3 months and Rocky, nine months and the occupants of the other car, Bernard Harquail, 35, John P. Thompson, 32, both of Campbellton, N.B., and Jack Riching Jr. of Gore Bay, Ont.

Mr. Oberwick, 32, suffered a broken arm, injured spine and internal injuries, police said.

DETAILS STILL HAZY

Details of the accident were hazy, obscure at noon today. OPP Constables Arch Scully and Philip McEwan were not available for further information, it was reported during the night.

Mrs. Oberwick, husband and two of their six children had been visiting Mrs. Oberwick's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Riching, at Massey. They were invited to stay for supper but Mrs. Oberwick reportedly said they had to return to their other children at home.

The Oberwicks were 10 minutes out of Massey on Highway No. 17 when the crash occurred.

The occupants of the other car were all miners at the uranium mine at Milliken Lake, about 30 miles northwest of Massey.

Harquail is a truck-driver for Noranda Uranium Mines Limited, Quirke, 20 miles west of here. He moved from here to Spanish, Ont., with his family about two years ago.

CAR JUST REPAIRED

One report was that Mr. Oberwick had just taken his car out of a garage where it had been for several weeks for repairs. This was reportedly his first trip since. The nature of the repairs was not immediately available.

The OPP constables said they did not know who caused the accident. They said both cars were badly smashed and Const. Scully said: "Both cars were on the wrong side of the road."

The Oberwick surviving children, Ivan Jr., 12, Dianne, 10, Lorraine, 9, and Pauline, 7, have been brought here from Espanola and are staying with their grandparent, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Oberwick.

Turks Re-Elect Prime Minister, Majority Cut

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP)—Adnan Menderes won a new, four-year term as Turkey's prime minister today while this pro-Western country faced its gravest foreign crisis since the war's end.

Official returns from Sunday's parliamentary election gave Menderes' Democrat party 397 seats in the National Assembly. The principal Republican party, led by former—president Ismet Inonu, won 178 and the small Freedom party 4. Independents won 2.

Twenty-seven contests still are undecided.

The government did not release any country-wide voting figures, but Menderes said he expected to get slightly less than 50 per cent of the total vote of about 10,000,000.

PRIME MINISTERS AGREE ON STAND OF U.S. TALKS

Concur in Principle Of Interdependence

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has concurred in the Anglo-American principle of interdependence.

Prime Minister Macmillan of Britain, ending a 22-hour visit to Ottawa Saturday night, told a press conference that Prime Minister Diefenbaker and his cabinet supported strongly the program that he and President Eisenhower had in the Washington talks last week.

Mr. Diefenbaker, talking to reporters immediately after Mr. Macmillan's departure by air, suggested that the small, seven-man personal training policy for scientists, engineers and technicians.

He said Canada could make a contribution of "first importance" in the field of peaceful uses of atomic energy.

"We've got to act together," he said. "We've fallen apart in the last few years."

There had been little exchange of information among Western nations, Macmillan and himself agreed, as existed during the Second World War must be restored.

Canada and Britain are both pathway leading to the greatest possible production of things needed for peace and for war.

Russia could not have done more than she has done to divide the world and then launch its "little moon."

The Canadian leader said the "attitude of Russia does not increase our feeling of disinterest."

Mr. Macmillan made his departure said: "Self-sufficiency is the last thing that anyone the United States can stand alone.

Resources of the free world were such that the West effectively must be closely co-ordinated if they were to be effective and the free world's energies must not be wasted through duplication of effort.

The British prime minister said that integration of the resources of the free world will, of course, take time but that a start must be made with a critical close co-operation among the free nations in the foreign, military and economic fields.

He added that Mr. Diefenbaker felt the same way.

Before Saturday's talks began, Mr. Diefenbaker announced he will lead the Canadian delegation to the NATO Council meeting in Paris in December.

Mr. Macmillan said he hopes arrangements will be made during this meeting to allot various scientific tasks to member nations.

Yet another joint scientific committees set up at Washington were meant to explore possibilities for both co-operation.

Mr. Macmillan said if Canada's contribution could be combined with that of the U.S., we should reach our goal much more rapidly."

Muggeridge to Seek University Position

EDINBURGH (AP) — Malcolm Muggeridge, whose criticism of the monarchy in the Saturday Evening Post touched controversy in the British Isles, will run for rector at Edinburgh University next month.

He announced this Saturday that the election will test intellectual reaction to the views he expressed on the Queen and her court.

Heavy Drinking and Smoking Equals Greater Risk of Cancer

NEW YORK (AP) — Heavy drinking plus heavy smoking equals greater risk of throat and mouth cancer, especially for pipe and cigar smokers, a cancer research society said today.

Heavy drinking was defined as consistently taking seven or more drinks a week, the group said.

Heavy smokers who do this run 10 times the risk of cancer of the larynx, or voice box, and of the mouth than heavy smokers who don't drink heavily, the group said.

The relative risk appears greater for pipe and cigar men than cigaret smokers, said Dr. Ernest L. Wynder of the Sloan-Kettering Institute for Cancer Research here.

The findings apply only to drinkers of hard liquor, he told the annual meeting of the American Cancer Society. Not enough wine and beer drinkers have been studied yet for conclusive data.

Wynder said he cannot tell whether alcohol alone can start the mouth and throat cancer. He hasn't enough data on heavy drinkers who don't smoke, he says.

He urges smokers to make a comparative study, in the meantime, he said, alcohol might make the throat and mouth tissues more permeable to cancer-causing agents. Alcohol might produce diet deficiencies that make the tissues more susceptible to cancer-causing agents.

Lung cancer has been associated with cigaret smoking by some statistical studies, with little effect blamed on pipe or cigar smoking.

Wynder said pipe and cigar smokers like this new study have a higher incidence of cancer higher up in the respiratory tract.

Zhukov's Call for 'Justice' Seen Reason for Dismissal

By THOMAS P. WHITNEY
Associated Press News Analyst

In Moscow today Western observers are rereading a speech made by Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov in Leningrad last July 15—because they feel it gives clues to the reasons for his replacement as defence minister.

The day before the speech the Leningrad people had given the Soviet war hero a tremendous ovation—a fact of equal interest here.

In his speech Zhukov emerged as a powerful political personality. He spoke out against leaders trying to prevent investigation into crimes of the Stalin era. His remarks were pointed ostensibly at Georgi Malenkov, V. M. Molotov and Lazar Kaganovich, who a few weeks before had been ousted from high posts.

But Zhukov's remarks in the minds of his many Leningrad listeners could easily be extended to other Stalin associates still in the Kremlin—Nikita S. Khrushchev, Premier Bulganin and others.

Zhukov in essence was calling for continued investigation into abuses under the "personality cult"—under Stalin—and for punishment of those to blame.

It is known that Zhukov, ever since Stalin's death, has been one of the leaders pressing for exposure of the crimes under Stalin. He himself was a victim of Stalin's intrigues after the war when he was demoted because party leaders feared his prestige.

At a reception not long after Stalin's death Zhukov raised his glass in a toast to "justice." It was believed at the time that he was making an open demand for punishment of those who aided Stalin in his misdeeds.

Demands for continued investigation into Stalinist crimes threaten the position of Khrushchev and certain other present party leaders. These men did not mind exposing the crimes of Beria, Malenkov, Kaganovich and others among their rivals for power as long as this got rid of these rivals. But they don't want the investigations to touch on their own role in the Stalinist leadership.

Zhukov, who had no part in Stalin's purges, has no fear of them. Every time more exposes come out, his stature as a national hero is enhanced.

Semi-Private Hospital Care Available Under Blue Cross

TORONTO (CP) — Blue Cross supplementary semi-private hospital coverage will be available at the same time the Ontario hospital insurance plan goes into effect Jan. 1, 1959, the Ontario Hospital Association announced today.

The Blue Cross plan "was specifically designed to supplement the basic (standard ward) coverage" under the provincial scheme, S. W. Martin, OHA secretary-treasurer said in a statement. It will be offered at the same time the provincial insurance begins.

The Blue Cross plan will not overlap or cause duplication of any benefits provided under the provincial plan, he said. The combined cost of the provincial insurance and the OHA supplementary coverage "will, for many people, be less than present Blue Cross rates."

"All billings for supplementary coverage will be made simultaneously with the government's hospital insurance billings," Mr. Martin said. His statement did not reveal what the charges would be.

OHA president Clarence V. Charters said the OHA annual convention today that study now is underway on administration and rates charges required for the supplementary Blue Cross plan.

Mr. Charters said OHA officials "are giving detailed study to the type of organization required for the supplementary coverage plan, the proper rates for such coverage and the staff changes deemed necessary this year and later when the government's plan becomes operative."

He said OHA officials have also been busy working out details for continuation of the present Blue Cross plan until the provincial scheme goes into effect.

He said arrangements have already been made with the Ontario Hospital Services Commission "under which employers and others seeking semi-private room coverage may remit their premiums to the commission's standard ward plan and our semi-private plan through one source."

The provincial plan, announced Friday, provides general hospital coverage—ward for public-owned level, regular nursing services and a variety of hospital treatment and services and is expected to cost $2.10 monthly for a single person and $4.20 for a family.

The text of Mr. Charters report was released to the press in advance of delivery.

RUSSIA, SYRIA SIGN PACT FOR ECONOMIC AID

Syria Declares Turk Patrol Crosses Border

DAMASCUS (AP) — Syria and Russia today signed an economic agreement providing for extensive development projects with Russian machinery, equipment and technical assistance. The Syrians continued to insist that no strings were attached.

Reliable sources said the Russians will supply $100,000,000 worth of materials, equipment and assistance in the building of dams, highways, railroads and irrigation projects.

In the continuing Syrian-Turkish tension, meanwhile, a Syrian announcement said that 30 Turkish soldiers crossed the frontier Friday and moved 2 miles into Syria and to the village of Gartek.

The announcement said several shots were fired and the Turks withdrew when Syrian security forces appeared. One Syrian was reported kidnapped.

Jordan Sunday declared its entire border with Syria closed and restricted area. The military governor of the Ajloun district said the step was taken in the interests of public security on the Jordan-Syrian border."

RIVAL PLANS IN UN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) Backers of two rival plans to ease the Syrian - Turkish crisis clashed in the United Nations atmosphere of wide United Nations support. The General Assembly resumes debate on the issue this afternoon.

An Arab diplomat told a reporter a Syrian resolution to send an investigating committee to the Syrian-Turkish border might pass in the assembly, where it would need a two-thirds vote.

A western delegate said a seven-power resolution to have UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold try to settle the dispute peacefully might get the necessary two-thirds. Neither resolution had been submitted yet to the assembly, which is considering Syria's complaint that Turkey had massed troops on her frontier and Turkey's charge Syria has denied any intention of attacking.

Russian Scientists Said Better Trained

LONDON (Reuters) — The Soviet Union is gradualing nearly twice as many scientists as the capita basis as North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries, a NATO committee report said today.

Russia now turns out more scientifically trained people than the western nations and is increasing the output at a higher rate than any nation," said the report. "Russia's superiority in construction is of high quality."

Pupils Save Horses, Pets At Academy

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Fifty pupils of the Niagara Riding Academy saved themselves and the academy's animals when the building burned to the ground Saturday.

Academy director Howard Dobson directed the youngsters as they rounded up the animals and led them to safety.

Altogether 27 horses, 14 dogs, two cats, four goats, 30 pigeons and a deer were saved. Outside the blazing $75,000 academy teenagers in the rescue group walked the horses to prevent them panicking.

Four fire departments poured water on the seven-year-old building, two miles south of here. Hindered by low water pressure, firemen laid a hose to the Welland River nearly a mile away and also tapped nearby ponds.

Escaped Convict Does as Mom Says, Surrenders After Freeing Hostages

LAVA—HOT SPRINGS, Idaho (AP)—An escaped convict who said he never would be taken alive while holding hostages freed as hostages quietly surrendered to police Sunday after operating for a trail of terror across two states.

His mother had convinced him in a telephone conversation that he should give up.

Then before giving up, Brown had held two persons, including the two Canadians, as hostages.

Brown surrendered at the Lava state prison at Deer Lodge Saturday in a state car after getting outside on a ruse.

Mrs. Wilczek pictured her son in a former marriage as a gentle and lonesome man who escaped from prison so he could be with her. A man in a schoolhouse where Brown holed up called him "a good boy" and asked assurances from officers that Brown wouldn't be hurt.

But a woman kidnapped at gunpoint by Brown said he raped her. The two Canadians abducted by Brown said he beat them and threatened to kill them and swore he wouldn't be taken alive.

Brown's surrender at the isolated ranchhouse two miles west of this mining town came after a manhunt that centred in Idaho and involved officers in Utah, Montana and Wyoming.

Surrounded by police, Brown released three hostages, two teenages ranged from 1 to 7 and then asked permission to call his mother. Police agreed and the convict told Brown to give up and said "Okay, mother, I'll do it for you."

Brown walked out into the light drizzle, put his 30-20 rifle down on the muddy ground, and surrendered.

He was taken 36 miles northwest to the Bannock County jail in Pocatello, where police pondered today what charges should be filed, and where Brown, meanwhile, got his first sleep of a 36-hour period.

Believe Zhukov Downgraded By Boss Khrushchev

West's Observers Discount Possibility of Promotion

MOSCOW (AP)—The belief is growing among Westerners in Moscow that Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov's removal as defence minister means he has been downgraded and that Premier Nikita Khrushchev is firmly in power.

Soviet officialdom still is veiled in silence. Nothing specific has been added to the nineline announcement Saturday that Zhukov has been replaced by Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky.

Most Western diplomats in Moscow believe that regardless of whether Zhukov receives a new government post, Khrushchev's authority in the Kremlin is at least as strong as ever.

They also believe that there will be no severe reaction in the country, no matter where Zhukov turns up next.

WESTERN VIEW

One veteran western diplomat said:

"The omission from the official announcement of any indication that the change was made to permit Zhukov's assignment to the collective leadership as a deputy premier—could have only one possible effect on the Soviet people. They would see in the announcement that Zhukov is out.

"Certainly, the high-ranking command planned to kick Zhukov upstairs into a new job there would be some indication of it in the announcement if for no other reason than for home consumption."

Government and military newspapers—including the communist party paper Pravda—told of Zhukov's removal on the last column of the last page, Sunday.

REPORT SCANTY

They reported only briefly that Zhukov had returned from Albania, where he had been an official visitor. No newspaper elaborated on the original announcement of his removal, and all omitted a Tass news agency dispatch saying Zhukov was met at the airport by high foreign ministry and defence officials.

Moscow radio limited itself to the official announcement in reporting the Kremlin shift.

The city's people showed no signs of excitement. There were no more people than usual at Sverdlovsk newspaper dispatch.

In the West a host of theories about Zhukov's fate kept even the best informed experts on Russia guessing. Soviet correspondents prevented Moscow correspondents from sending some interpretations of the Zhukov removal.

Diplomats in London suggested that there would be trouble by removing his strongest potential rival for power. Significance was seen in the curtness of the Soviet announcement that the 61-year-old defence minister had been "removed." The Russians usually say "removed from other duties" if another job is prospect.

West's Observers Discount Possibility of Promotion

MOSCOW (AP)—The belief is growing among Westerners in Moscow that Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov's removal as defence minister means he has been downgraded and that Premier Nikita Khrushchev is firmly in power.

Soviet officialdom still is veiled in silence. Nothing specific has been added to the nineline announcement Saturday that Zhukov has been replaced by Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky.

Most Western diplomats in Moscow believe that regardless of whether Zhukov receives a new government post, Khrushchev's authority in the Kremlin is at least as strong as ever.

They also believe that there will be no severe reaction in the country, no matter where Zhukov turns up next.

LONDON (Reuters) — Marshal Georgi Zhukov's replacement as Soviet defence minister is interpreted in the British press today as a bid for more power by Russian Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev.

Several editorials suggest any promotion for Zhukov would thereby be nominal in comparison with the real power he wielded as a popular army chief.

The Daily Telegraph (Conservative) describes Zhukov's replacement, Marshal Malinovsky, as "a virtual nonentity." This, it says, is the clues to the mystery of his appointment.

The Manchester Guardian (Liberal) says Zhukov's replacement "suggests that Mr. Khrushchev is setting yet another step forward on the road to personal power."

"MORE EQUAL"

The News Chronicle (Liberal) describes Khrushchev as "the Communist leader who will be more equal than others." 36

"Slowly he is purging the the Kremlin of his rivals."

The Daily Mail (Conservative) says Zhukov's replacement by marshals "who are not big enough to be a threat" through a dictator."

The Yorkshire Post (Conservative) says: "Not a soldier with a strongly realistic view of the game of power politics," could have no grounds for Khrushchev's "threats and braggadocio" in the Middle East and might have said so.

The newspaper also suggests the dismissal might be meant as a rebuff to President Eisenhower. Zhukov's wartime friend.

Mentioning speculation that Zhukov might be promoted to a more important post, the Manchester Guardian commented: "It is hard to see what other appointment can be more important —after Mr. Khrushchev himself—than that of the minister of defence, with effective command of the armed forces of the Soviet Union."

CAMPAIGN AGAINST JEWS

CHICAGO (AP) — The American Jewish Committee reported today that the Soviet government is waging an organized campaign of "full scale" discrimination against 3,000,000 Jews within its borders.

For "outstanding service in the development of Canadian drama," Dr. Angus was awarded the Canadian Drama Award in 1948. The members of the local branch of Queen's Alumni and their friends will have the pleasure on Wednesday evening of hearing Dr. Angus discuss "The Little Theatre Movement in Canada."

HISTORICAL SOCIETY TO HEAR REV. B. SQUIRE

"History as Uncovered by the Archaeologist's Trowel" will be the theme of an address to be delivered before the Hastings County Historical Society on November 11, by Rev. Bowen P. Squire, Cancroan archaeologist. The meeting will be held in Shire Hall at 8 p.m.

A semi-retired Baptist minister, Mr. Squire has devoted much time in recent years to uncovering evidences of early human habitation on the farm near Consecon which he purchased in 1945.

Together with Mr. Malcolm Cummings of Belleville he has uncovered artifacts that date back to the Laurentian period, between 3,000 and 10,000 years ago.

Ontario Intelligencer readers were acquainted with Mr. Squire's work first in an illustrated article by Dr. Boyd Upper in June 1956.

MRS. RICHARD L. GRIFFITH

TWEED — In ill-health for the past six months, Mrs. Lillian Griffith, 24 Atlas Avenue, Toronto, passed away in Wellesley Hospital, at the age of 48 years.

The late Mrs. Griffith was born in Tweed, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Green. Married to Richard L. Griffith, also of Toronto, twenty years ago, she continued her residence in Toronto. A member of The T. Eaton Co. staff, with service of twenty-three years at the time of her death. Only a few years ago Mr. and Mrs. Griffith built a comfortable cottage at Kosy Kove, Stoco Lake, Tweed, where they have been accustomed to spend their holidays and many weekends.

Surviving besides her husband, are two sisters and three brothers, all living in Tweed; Mrs. Wilfred Card (Irene); Mrs. Vincent Sinclair (Velma), Morley, Percy and Francis Green.

The body rested at the Miles Funeral Home, Toronto, where services were conducted by her United Church pastor, Rev. William Wells, on Monday evening, October 21st. She was then brought to the W. M. Bush Funeral Home, Tweed, from where burial took place on Tuesday afternoon, October 22nd, with Rev. George Dyson of Thomasburg, being in charge of the service, and at the graveside in Victoria cemetery, Tweed.

Bearers were: Messrs. Morley and Percy Green, brothers of the deceased; John and Lloyd Griffith, Wilfred Clarke, brothers-in-law, and Orvil Conroy, a cousin.

Among those from out-of-town attending the funeral in Tweed were: Mrs. A. Griffith, Mrs. Mary Harris, Miss Nellie Griffith, all of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. R. Griffith, St. Catharines; and Mrs. Ralph MacDonald, Detroit; Mrs. Laura Bellyea and Fawn; Messrs. Gerald and George Bailey, and Mr. Llewellin Griffith, all of Toronto.

There was a large number of intimate friends present to pay their last respects.

The committal service was conducted by Rev. J. J. Buckley, Wellington Madden and members of the Canadian Legion were present to pay their last tribute to a comrade.

HOWARD JOSEPH ACKERMAN

Following a lengthy illness, Howard Joseph Ackerman, 19 Bettes Street, died at the family residence on Saturday morning.

He was born in Tegaski, Saskatchewan, 45 years ago, being the son of Mrs. Edward Charles Ackerman and the late Mr. Ackerman. He has resided in this city for the past ten years and previously resided at Picton and Toronto. For many years he was associated with the John Stewart Sales Company of Toronto. Mr. Ackerman was a handicapped and disabled person but despite his infirmity he had a bright outlook on life, made many friends who will sincerely regret his death.

He took an active interest in the handicapped and disabled persons in the city and in 1951 organized the Belle Haven Club, while in 1954 he reorganized the club.

In both organizations he worked hard and earnestly for the betterment of handicapped citizens. He was fraternally identified with Benjamin Lodge No. 274 and the Royal Black Preceptory. He was also a member of the Woodmen of the World, Belleville No. 162. A member of the United Church he is survived by his mother, Mrs. Charles Edward Ackerman and one sister, Miss Helen Ackerman of this city.

Well-Loved Music Will Be Played During Ballet Performances Here

When the National Ballet Company, which has become one of the largest touring attractions on this continent, comes to Belleville Saturday, November 9th, five music expertly played will make its important contribution to the complete entertainment which ballet provides. One of this year's innovations is a ballet danced to Rachmaninoff's famous 2nd. Piano Concerto. Rachmaninoff, den, well-known Toronto concert pianist, is touring with the company to play the solo role. Mr. Godden is assured of a sympathetic orchestral accompaniment, since George Crum, the musical director, began his musical career as a pianist on the concert stage before he took up the maestro's baton.

Tchaikowsky's lovely music is well represented in the matinee performance, when the company will perform Act II of "Swan Lake," the enchanting short French ballet, "Pas de Chance," and dances from the "Sleeping Beauty." In addition, the afternoon show will also include a dashing Spanish number, "La Fiesta," danced by Paul Moller to Manuel de Falla's melodious "Three Cornered Hat." Moller spent several years becoming an expert in the Spanish idiom.

Frankenstein, the ballet, "The Willow," by Grant Strate to music by Norman Symonds completes the program. In compiling the afternoon's entertainment, artistic director Celia Franca has kept the tastes of the children particularly in mind, since the hour and the lower seat prices are both suitable for a younger audience.

Another musical feast is promised for the evening performance, in addition to "Winter Night" the company will dance "Carnaval to Schumann's piano music of the same name which has been orchestrated by new Canadian Oscar Morawitz whose sister lives in Trenton. The seven popular "Offenbach in the Underworld" which introduces a lively potpourri of this composer's favorite melodies the program. For both performances George Crum will be in charge of a full orchestra of professional musicians.

Belleville audiences will see Miss Franca herself in the part of the queen in "Offenbach," a hilarious but exacting role. Jocelyn Terrell and Donald Mahler, who originally visited Belleville with Miss Franca, and who made such a favorable impression when they visited schools and service clubs, will dance at both performances and also have leading roles in "Offenbach."

All seats will be reserved for both performances, with prices of $1.00, $1.50 and $2.00 in the afternoon, and $1.50, $2.00 and $2.50 in the evening. Mail orders may be addressed to Box 91, Belleville (enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope) and tickets may also be obtained at Ed Thomas' Cigar Store, 182 Front Street.

Boys' Parliament Will Convene In Belleville

The 37th session of the Ontario Older Boys' Parliament will convene at Albert College in the Glass Room from December 26 to 31st.

Nominations for members will be received until November 1st by the Rev. H. E. Beare, Springbrook United Church, district returning officer for Hastings South constituency. In the case of an election, voters' lists must be completed by November 15.

To be eligible for parliament a boy must have reached his 16th., but not his 21st birthday by December 1. He must be a regular attendant of a Sunday School which participates in some form of related church weekday activity, be a Sunday School teacher or leader of a Christ-centred boys' group. He shall have attended at least 75 per cent of the meetings of his group or class.

Another requisite for eligibility is abstinence from consuming alcoholic beverages and he shall sign a declaration to that effect. Each candidate for parliament Act. This statement shall be endorsed by a Sunday School superintendent, minister, YMCA secretary or school principal.

Because members of the parliament will be in a position of leadership, as boys they have great influence with other boys. Each candidate for parliament must be a Christian and a statement to this effect shall be signed by his clergyman.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market edged lower today in the lightest morning trading in almost two weeks.

Industrials were down more than 1¾ points on indeed while western oils lost one-half point. Base metals gained nearly one-half point and golds eased the same on index.

The 11 a.m. volume of 644,000 shares was the lightest since Oct. 15. Friday's total at the same time was 722,000.

Industrial issues ranged to two points, led by International Paper at 81. Canada Malting lost a point at 46 while other declines were generally fractional with refining oils, utilities and papers having the greater number of declines.

Building products gained 1¾ at 34 on a single sale while U.S. Ford and B.C. Packers B each gained a point. Other gains were fractional and outnumbered by losses.

Western oils had the odd small gain but there were a number of moderate losses. Pacific Petroleum eased ⅛ point to 19¾ while Central Del Rio was off 29 cents to $8.60 among index stocks.

Senior base metals were fractionally higher, thus accounting for the small gain in the section's index. Campbell Chibougamau climbed 45 cents to $4.40 among coppers and Opemiska was up 20 cents to $6.30. Braminco were a shade lower. McIntyre lost 1¼ points at 67¾ among senior golds.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO (CP) — Prices on steers and heifers were 25-50 cents a hundredweight higher on an active trading on all classes of slaughter cattle. Good cows were steady with medium and lower-grades 50 cents higher. Fed yearlings, bulls and replacements, accounting for 1,000 head of the cattle on offer, were steady.

Veal calf sales were too few to establish prices. Hogs, sheep and lambs were steady. Bucks were automatically discounted $1 a hundredweight.

Livestock on offer: Cattle 4,900; calves 1,026; hogs 453; sheep and lambs 800.

Slaughter cattle: Choice steers 17.75-18.25 with sales to 18.50; good 16.50-17.50; medium 14.75; common 12-14; good heifers 15-16; medium 13.50-14.50; common 12-13; choice fed yearlings 20.50-21.50, with sales to 22; good 19.50-20.50; good cows 11-11.50 with sales to 12; medium 10-11; common 9-10; canners and cutters 7.50-8; good heavy bologna bulls 15-15.50; with a few to 16; common and medium lights 10-13 a hundredweight.

Replacement cattle: Good 17-18; common and medium 12-16.50 a hundredweight.

Hogs: Grade A 27.25; sows 20-22.50; 15 a hundredweight, on a dressed-weight basis.

Sheep and lamb: Good handyweight lambs 20.50-21; medium down to 18 a hundredweight; common 12-14; feeders 17-18; good light sheep 7-8; common 3-6 a hundredweight.

Montrealers Go To Polls to Select Mayor

MONTREAL (CP) — Montrealers decide today whether Jean Drapeau, the incumbent, or Senator Sarto Fournier, the aspirant, will be their mayor for the next three years.

The 340,000 eligible voters also will pick 66 city councillors. The other 33 members of the 99-man council already have been named by designated groups such as labor organizations and business-men's associations.

Mr. Drapeau campaigned mainly on his record, asking a new mandate for his cleanup program.

Opponents of the mayor and his ally, Chairman Pierre DesMarais of the city executive committee, united this year to form the Greater Montreal Rally, which threw its support behind Senator Fournier, 49, making his third bid to be mayor.

Senator Fournier had claimed the CAL's emphasis on morality was tinged with hypocrisy. He had alleged financial mismanagement and failure to complete a single major project despite an outlay of $500,000,000.

FAVOR METRO MOVE

Senator Fournier and the rally represent a move favored by the provincial government uniting the 35 municipalities of greater Montreal under a metropolitan form of government. Mr. Drapeau had called the scheme premature.

Each side charged the other with links with the underworld, and with planting in stuff ballot boxes.

In 1954 more than 100 persons were arrested in connection with election day disturbances and irregularities. Many were released without being charged.

To head off trouble with election "goons" today, 1,712 regular and 566 special policemen were on duty. Polls close at 7 p.m.

PRODUCE MARKET

The egg market was reported unsteady on A large with other grades steady. Demand was good with receipts adequate.

Country dealers are quoted on graded eggs, delivered here, in fibre cases: A large 34; A medium 32; A small 29; B 26; C 24. Wholesale to retail: A large 39; A medium 48; A small 37, B 41; C 29.

DOLLAR RATE

MONTREAL (CP) — The U.S. dollar was at a discount of 4 per cent in terms of Canadian funds at noon. Friday's noon rate was 96¼ cents. Pound sterling $2.69, down ¼.

Havelock Postoffice Safe Smashed, $4,500 in Cash, Stamps, Money Orders Taken

CAMPBELLFORD (Special) — Yeggmen forced their way into the Havelock post office some time early Sunday and, smashing open the safe, escaped with a total of about $4,500 in cash, stamps and money orders.

Police said $1,250 was in cash and the balance of the loot in stamps and denominative money orders.

The thieves smashed a glass in a window in the front of the post office and climbed through. Then they trundled the heavy five foot high safe from the post office sorting room into the mail lobby where it was tipped on its side and the door attacked by tining bars, sledges and an axe.

Mail bags were used to muffle the sound and it is also believed the thieves took advantage of long freight trains passing nearby to drown out the sound of their sledge hammer blows on the safe. The tools were said stolen earlier from a CPR tool-shed at Havelock.

SECOND IN TWO YEARS

This was the second time in the past two years which the safe at the Havelock post office has been entered, and is also the second experience of Postmaster Ross Bickus is having his post office safe smashed open. The first time several hundred dollars worth of stamps were looted from the safe.

Six years ago an attempt to enter the post office at Havelock was foiled when would-be safe-crackers escaped in a hail of bullets from the gun of former police chief Wesley Hart.

Sunday's safe job was discovered by the post office caretaker Percy Hill when he arrived at about 10 a.m. to clean up.

BOY, 5, SHOOTS BABY

Obituary

THOMAS HUGH O'ROURKE

Trenton

Thomas Hugh O'Rourke, lifelong resident and former councillor of Trenton, died suddenly at the Trenton Memorial Hospital, early Sunday morning. He suffered a heart attack some years ago and was visiting in Ottawa when he was taken seriously ill. He was rushed home on Saturday and entered hospital but succumbed to the attack.

Hugh O'Rourke was born in Trenton, 68 years ago, being the son of late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. O'Rourke. He received his early education in the Catholic Academy and Trenton High School and attended College but did not finish his law course. For many years he assisted his father in his law practice and also was a Justice of the Peace, when his father was Magistrate in Trenton. During his school years he took an active interest in track and field and was one of the foremost sprinters in the district. He also took an active interest in hockey playing on many of the early Trenton teams.

In the civic life of Trenton he took an active part for many years. He was a councillor from 1920 to 1923 when Senator Fraser was Mayor and he also served as councillor from 1934 to 1940 when Harry Corey was chief magistrate. Hugh was chairman of Finance and also was chairman of Streets and Sidewalks and was in office when Dundas Street was paved. During the First World War, being unfit for military service, he was employed at the Chemical Plant, while in the Second World War he was rent controller under the War-time Prices and Trade Board. He was active in politics being a staunch Liberal.

A member of St. Peter's-In-Chains Church he is survived by three sisters, Miss Eleanor O'Rourke of San Francisco, California; Miss Aileen O'Rourke of Montreal, Mrs. Wilfred L. (Jean) Clairmont of Ottawa and one brother, John E. O'Rourke of Los Angeles, California. A nephew, Thomas L. Clairmont and a niece, Miss Margaret Clairmont, both of Ottawa survive.

District Man's Body Found at Moira R. Mouth

The body of Leslie Hill, age 37, of Shannonville, missing since October 9th was found floating in the Bay of Quinte at the mouth of the Moira River here this morning.

A veteran of both World War II and also the Korean conflict, Mr. Hill was reported missing on October 9th when, members of his family became alarmed that he had not contacted them as he believed that he fell from the stone wall into the river off Fireman's Park, and then was carried by the current to the mouth of the river.

Police had been checking the river mouth and this morning Stanley Hill, brother-in-law of the missing man, checked the river from Victoria Park and spotted an object midway across the river mouth. He notified city police and with Detective Harold Reid rowed out identifying the floating object as the body of his brother-in-law.

The body was recovered by city firemen.

Mr. Hill is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hermon Hill of Shannonville; five brothers, Clifford, Gerald, Arthur, Wilfred and William, and four sisters, Mrs. Osmond Hart, Mrs. Austin Fuller, Mrs. Claude Sero and Mrs. Harry Hill.

Dr. J. Russell Scott, coroner, stated there would be no inquest.

Man Who Takes Zhukov's Post Great War Hero

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Malinovsky who took command of Russia's southern front in 1943 and drove the German invaders from the Ukraine, the Soviet Union's bread basket. For this he was promoted from general to marshal.

As far as is known, the 59-year-old marshal holds no Communist party position beyond that of alternate member of the party armies.

central committee. He was named to that post in 1952.

Sent to the Far East after the end of the European war, he led the Soviet armies that smashily overran Manchuria and North Korea.

Malinovsky remained as Soviet Far Eastern defence chief after the end of the war with Japan. Presumably he still held that position at the time of his appointment as defence minister.

In 1948 he was awarded the Order of Lenin for services to the Soviet Union and armed forces.

In 1951 he addressed the throngs in Red Square on the Nov. 7 celebration of Ivan Bolshevik revolution, declaring Russia had no plans for attacking any nation.

The liberator of the Ukraine and the Crimea, Malinovsky also built up a reputation as a fast-driving commander in the Soviet push across eastern Europe that at last joined the Western Allied forces.

ENCOURAGING EDUCATIONAL PLAN

A new secondary school was opened at Chatham last week.

With Ontario's population soaring, the opening of new schools can hardly be classed as startling news in most cases, but this school was different.

Not only is the building new, but the curriculum must be new also, for the school will offer grade 9 and 10 students an additional two years in which to make the choice between vocational and academic education.

The brief Canadian Press report on the opening ceremonies states that the school is "expected to blaze education trails in Ontario," - - in other words it is to be a "pilot plant" to test a system which may become general.

We hope that the test is successful, for it appears to be desirable that students be assisted in delaying for as long as possible an irrevocable choice in their studies which will determine their lifework.

One of the reasons why we have had some misgivings about the increasing stress placed in recent years on vocational guidance programs has been that we have feared that this work has not always been restricted to assisting students to choose their future occupations, but in some instances has resulted in a choice being made before the student was prepared to do so.

The early teens are an age at which the normal boy or girl is just starting to come to grips with life, and it would be extraordinary if many students just entering high school were fully equipped to make a definite choice of occupations. In the next two or three years, much will happen to them; they will grow not only physically but also mentally. Their whole outlook on life may change. If we are to avoid too many square pegs in round holes, and vice versa, it is desirable that the freedom of choice of an occupation be delayed as long as possible.

In this age of specialization the whole trend of the times is to make this delay in a decision difficult, if not impractical. It is therefore extremely good news that the Department of Education has had the courage to attempt to swim against this tide and the ingenuity to devise a method by which it is hoped this feat can be accomplished.

One word of caution may not be out of place. Over thirty years ago, when vocational education was in its infancy in this province, the Department had a course which, in effect, made it easier to delay a decision. It was termed technical matriculation and was designed to provide students with instruction in subjects necessary to enter university and with some vocational training. It was later abandoned.

It is to be hoped the present plan meets a happier fate.

STYLES IN CLOTHES AND WOMEN

A recent magazine article showed pictures of styles during the past half century. It was interesting to note the swing of the pendulum - - while there was certainly no similarity between the crinolines of 1950 and the styles a quarter-century earlier, there was a great similarity between the evening dress of 1957 and the knee-skirted day dress of 1912.

Another thought that strikes the viewer is that, in any event, these styles just represent a change in packaging - - the product is unchanged. And then one remembers a television show the other night - - Hedy Lamarr still as beautifully slim as ever but distinct change from the Dors-Mansfield-Monroe style of today.

And that brings up another thing. Hedy, of course, is an Austrian and in the television show it was noticeable that she has a distinct accent. The viewer does not remember any particular accent when this same Hedy spoke from the motion picture screen, even way back in the thirties when she was a newcomer to America. What is the explanation?

All of which does not make a very important editorial, except that looking at pictures of beautiful ladies in beautiful gowns, in any style, recalling the picture of Hedy Lamarr and talking about the appeal of strange accents is a very pleasant way to while away a few minutes of any afternoon - - and fill a few inches of space.

SOME REASONS

(Someone has asked why an automobile is called "she.")

I wouldn't say it is because
A motor is contrary,
And that she has a thousand moods
And each one bound to vary,
Nor would it is because
The motor has a tank;
But rather she first started by
A most persistent crank.

And there are other reasons, too,
They call an auto "she."
To keep one looking nice you have
To spend your salary;
And every time you take her out—
You'll find it so, my friend
An auto or a pretty girl,
You must have coin to spend.

They call her "she," perhaps, because
She's bound to have her way.
You cannot make her go if she Makes up her mind to stay.
If something should go wrong with her,
To set it right you try.
The more you fuss the worse she gets;
And that's the reason why.

Can Still Build Fortunes

According to a survey by Fortune magazine 45 per cent of the nation's richest men believe it's still possible for an enterprising American to start from scratch and build a $50 million fortune.

Forty per cent of the 175 wealthiest queried by the magazine think such a feat "improbable, 15 per cent say it can be done.

Fortune publishes its findings in its November issue along with a composite picture of this country's "Very Wealthy." To qualify in the poll it was necessary to have a personal fortune of over $50 million.

Fortune found that multimillionaires agreed on one particular: all of them try to appreciate capital rather than increase income. This helps somewhat when income tax bill arrives. The magazine also found that the Very Rich typically carry 8 per cent of their fortune in tax-exempt securities and some go as high as 25 per cent.

CAREFUL WITH MONEY

Fortune also found that most of the Very Rich consider themselves quite careful with money. "Never more than a fraction of the value of a dollar since the time it took to earn it," was the way one wellone California multimillionaire is quoted as saying. A small number of the Very Wealthy guessed actually live on a budget.

The most typical of today's Very Rich has "a down-to-earth quality characteristic of people whose standing is assured." Roughly 50 per cent of them have only one home or apartment, 25 per cent own two houses, another 25 percent have three or more. Only 5 per cent have servants range from one to fifteen; the average is three. As to cars, the most common number is three with those making do with more numerous than those needing four or more.

The cost of running the home varies from $6,000 a year in a small Illinois town to $75,000 for a Delaware mansion. Although their club memberships are many (between eight and eight for most) it was found that the Very Rich like to do most of their entertaining at home.

HARD WORKERS

Fortune says that a recent out-of-state visitor to Fort Worth was heard to complain that he could not find anybody to play with—all his Very Rich acquaintances were in their offices there clocking in the hammer."

For their children, a surprising 41 per cent choose public schools. Three out of five said they believed in giving their offspring special training on how to handle wealth.

If they had to live them over again few of the Very Rich said they would have done differently with their lives as far as use of wealth is concerned—on the whole, comments the magazine, the multimillionaire believes that the advantages of wealth far outweigh its disadvantages. Very few, says the magazine, feel sorry for themselves for being rich.

The Resuming of Smoking

New York Times

Anyone can give up smoking. It isn't at all hard. The main requirement is that the smoker have a will of iron, so that when he decides to give up smoking he stops forthwith. Other interests help. Reading is one of these, for the pleasures of books so long have been associated with the pleasures of tobacco that it is hard to separate. These other interests might include living for a year on a desert island, or sitting so tightly handcuffed that the slightest move of the hands pains the pocket. A continuing time of nonsmoking isn't hard either. All that is required is the will of iron, reinforced from day to day. Being handcuffed to a tree on that desert island is one of the other interests to get the non-smoker through the first couple of even the second or third day of not smoking. No, it is very easy to stop and, once stopped, to continue not smoking. The real trouble comes when the smoker is reached to start smoking again. This is as tough as anything which comes up in the entire realm of is, which comes up! with such frequency.

* * *

The reason is to be found, of course, in the fact that smoking is usually surrounded the giving up of smoking. No one can quietly give up smoking. He must be a half-smoked pipe and just put it away in the bottom drawer of a desk for an hour of stopping are named enough in advance so as to allow the necessary will of iron to take place. Others are encouraged to join the crusade against the cruel and ex-cruel—or quickly learns to call an expensive, unnecessary and untidy habit by the ugly name of decline, he calls attention to their obvious weakness of will. By the time the actual temptation for ceasing smoking arrives, he is so unbearable that others insist he not smoke when he enters. And after the final smoke, the pipe is red-hot when it is placed in the desk.

* * *

There is nothing to giving up smoking, really. There is nothing to living through the second and third days of it, and, nothing that handcuffs and a desert island would not cure. The tough time comes—and it is the resumption of smoking, because here the conscience is involved. Toward evening of the fourth day, say a fleeting thought goes through the mind that just one pipe would be a pleasant thing. The office has been more unnerving than usual, and the telephone has been far shriller than usual. For some reason—it is not the absence of tobacco, for the will has that well under control—a settled weariness is to be jangling. Just one pipe would be most pleasant. And one pipe would be no difference, of course, for the tobacco habit now has been pretty well under control, and tobacco can either be taken or can be let alone. Furtive—the bottom of the desk is opened.

* * *

Ever notice at night how many dogs are being walked by men who hold their heads over their pipes, as though trying to hide them from view? Smokers, a good many of them, remember but not daring to do it publicly, amid the raillery and laughter of th household. Ever notice how on even a below-zero night, the dens of many men have their windows wide open? Opened by smokers, a good many of them hoping that the fumes of tobacco will escape before the conscience in with the morning. Ever notice, at business luncheons, how many men furtively eye the menu of the restaurant, as though expecting something unwelcome to refer? Smokers again, a good many almost preferring to be caught there with a blonde than with a pipe. After all that talk about the will power, which is what makes the resuming of smoking so difficult.

Test Foghorn On Turnpike

Stratford Beacon-Herald

Motorists on New Jersey turnpikes will soon be hearing a foghorn. The device on which it will can be moved around for use as needed — has been developed for the New Jersey Department of Safety, hope that its warning of fog ahead will prevent some of the spectacular accidents that have taken many lives on the State's high speed turnpikes.

The foghorn is experimental. It may not work out as anticipated. But the impression is that the device that might be forthcoming, is a suggestion made the other day by the General Motors Vice-President in Charge of Research were carried out.

Dr. Lawrence Hafstad, a physicist who previously directed research development for the Atomic Energy Commission, wants teams of researchers, including "competent amateurs," tossed on traffic problems.

Such teams are used effectively by industry and the military. In the traffic field, Hafstad suggested, they might prevent some of the to duplicate traffic signals inside the car, a device to relay driving to the driver from roadside radar speed installations, or a system which Hafstad said is "sure to come for high-speed expressways" — that would automatically control the operation of a vehicle.

The idea is intriguing. But, having recommended a modern research approach to driving problems, who is in better position than Hafstad to carry his suggestions into practice? As research boss for the biggest manufacturer of automobiles, why shouldn't he be the one to assemble a team of experts and amateurs to explore the possibilities of "novel and interesting" as well as obviously practical approaches to greater highway safety?

Belatedly, the auto-makers are sensing that they have a responsibility to help prevent the slaughters of cars instead of just building bigger, longer, more powerful cars to go faster in order to get better highways. Individual motor companies and the industry as a whole, however, could do much, much more.

Judge Deroche addressed the pupils of Queen Alexandra School yesterday. He was introduced by the principal, Mr. Mitchell.

Residents on Catherine St. have sent out an SOS to the police headquarters department to rescue them from a sea of mud which makes cross street navigation extremely difficult. They claim that the road was ploughed for improvement and left in a worse condition than it was at the start.

Following are the scores made at the Belleville Rifle Club shoot: J. Deuch 97; C. J. Symons 94; W. Harden 90; Alfred R. Symons 90; A. Edwards 90; Clifford Walker 87. This was the first shoot of the season.

From our file copy 'at this time in 1897: Mr. E. C. Rosenal will examine Mr. H. Paisman's well at Melrose tomorrow. Water taken from the well recently contained a large percentage of petroleum and Mr. Rosenal desires to be in a position to report upon the nature of the oil to his company when he returns to Philadelphia shortly.

October 28th., 1907

Mr. William H. Farnham of Detroit, formerly of this city, was in town yesterday.

Mr. Walter Johnston was home from Toronto to spend yesterday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Hewston.

Dr. C. H. Reeves of Tweed is spending a few days at his old home on Charles St.

Mr. Owen Herlihy, proprietor of the Markham Sun spent yesterday here with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Herlihy, Lewis Street.

The Rev. A. M. Hubly of Emmanuel Church is spending a few days in Toronto.

Mr. D. E. K. Stewart, barrister, Madoc, was in town today.

Can Develop TV for Blind

Vancouver Sun

Still reeling before the accomplished fact of Sputnik, man is now confronted with the news from Lansing, Michigan, that television for the blind is only a few years off.

Dr. R. T. Lustig said blindman's TV is "merely" a matter of changing the TV beam's frequency so that it will activate the brain without bothering with the eye which "only transmits the picture" anyhow. The brain does the seeing.

How this is very good news for the blind. It would, indeed amount to giving them eyes. For it shouldn't be too much of a trick to transform images of objects that can be televised directly on the brain this way.

But what about the rest of us? Now, if we don't like the commercials we can shut our eyes or look the other way. Such an easy escape is doomed by blindman's TV.

And what a fiendish bonanza for the brainwashers! Big Brother will visit wherever he chooses. Right inside your head, where you cannot turn him off. "In your time and mine."

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

ON WHICH WE CAN STAND

Change, change, change nothing is the same as it was yesterday, or an hour ago. The whole face of the cosmos is changing since yesterday. Not that any natural catastrophe has taken place, but the nature of this world is such that nothing ever stays put.

Yet the Eternal God is unchangeable. The stars may change in a million years, but beyond the stars there is an area of the unchangeable. From the shifting of everything here on earth, from the ebb and flow of events, from the change of landscape and the ever-shifting of earth's crowds and the kaleidoscopic change of events arise our sense of insecurity. To men and women of faith, the stabilizing fact of life is that amid all this change there is something that never changes. Amid the shifting there is eternal stability. The Eternal God is indeed our refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms — and the everlasting love. God said to Jesus, God and His love, God and His purpose never change.

Here is stability in the midst of a universe that is largely quicksand. Here is something we can rest our feet on. Here we can stand — in real security.

Jesus Christ came to give us a complete and perfect sense of this security. The security of an impotent power, the security of true justice, the security of divine love.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

Arteriosclerosis Is All the Rage Now.

In days gone by, atherosclerosis was a malady one might read about in books but rarely if ever encounter in practice.

Arteriosclerosis (hardening of the arteries) is easy to diagnose. In fact, all you need know is that the patient is past fifty. If he is, he has arteriosclerosis. One person in a thousand or ten thousand may have it, but elastic arteries at 50 — just as one person in ten thousand may still have all his own teeth at 50. These are rare birds.

At first, atherosclerosis may well seem a slight mistake in spelling. I thought it was, the first time I collided with the word in medical literature. It's briefly jive, though, the half-long language of medical merchants who run phony "clinics."

The late, great Dr. Osler's description of arteriosclerosis, unsurpassed by that of any other authority of his time or ours, included this passage:

"In a study of 41 autopsies upon arteriosclerotic cases from my wards, Councilman follows the usual children into senile and diffuse forms. In the circumscribed or nodular forms . . . the coats (great artery) presents . . . numerous flat projections, yellowish or yellowish-white in color . . . the patches undergo atheromatous—the material constituting the button undergoes softening . . .

Remember, Osler was describing arteriosclerosis, hardening of the arteries. He used the right word to describe the softening that bothers our buttons in the lining of the artery — atheroma.

It remained for fast-buck charlatans to invent an imposing theory to go with atherosclerosis the hokum. The patches or buttons, they lead the suckers to believe, are "deposits" of cholesterol, a fat-like substance found in milk, yolk of egg, animal fats, seeds, etc. And so, the charlatans prescribe and the poor suckers try to follow a diet of low cholesterol content.

A correspondent told me that the New York bacteriology brothers went through the best advertised "clinic" and were inoculated with atherophobia and ever since carefully trim off or dissect out all fat before they eat their meat. The poor fools!

In fact, acknowledges the Journal of the American Medical Association, Sept. 7, 1957, "Despite the considerable effort that has been proved that lowering of dietary cholesterol . . . has no prevention of unsaturated fatty acids" (that is, a diet of low cholesterol) "specifically prevents atherosclerosis or subsequent coronary diseases."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

I was eleven years old in 1903 when two brothers now, in the States, engaged in the manufacture and repair, in a small way, of bicycles, put one of these newfangled gasoline engines, a twelve-horsepower one, in a sort of box kite, and flew free of the ground a distance of 850 feet.

That was before the days of headlines. The Age of Excitement had not dawned. And only a one column spot low down on the front page. At dinner that night, my brothers and I congratulated our father on the matter.

"There are always," he enunciated, "cranks and crackpots trying to improve on nature. Nothing will improve on the railway and the horse and wagon. It stands to reason."

I have been flown tens of thousands of miles all over the world. My father got away never once having a flight but he never failed to look up at passing aircraft with a slightly pitying expression, as if they had somehow affronted him.

The first thing I did when I read the screamers announcing the sputnik was to go out, at 3.30 pm. to see the school children pour by. And I tried to envision what these youngsters would do, fifty years from now, when they recollected the headlines of the past three weeks. Would they look back as bemusedly as I do, when I recollect the first one-column item about the Wright Brothers

The childhood of today is not as far removed from the grandchildren were in our time. The universe that was "big ball" became a million miles farther out than the sputnik. Two or three of the lads who stop for a chat with me on the steps were frankly disappointed at the Russian effort.

"They were in a hurry," said they. "They just wanted to beat everybody. You just wait until some of the real things get going into space. That thing was ball!"

They had box-kites. I am inclined to wait, as the boys suggest.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

MacKINLAY KANTOR

It has always been a joy to tell people who read this brief Talk of an outstanding author, or book as one appears. For years I have been reading and buying the books by MacKinlay Kantor. Each new one is an event with me. Recently this author received the Pulitzer Prize for his monumental work, "Andersonville."

Heretofore Kantor's fame has rested well on his unique documentaries — "The Voice of Bugle Ann," "The Daughter of Bugle Ann," and just published, his "Lobo," a miniature classic, one story. His novel "Glory for Me," here" is one of the finest ever written on the war between the States. Few writers have the interesting range of subjects that Kantor has. "Happy Land," "Valedictory," "Gentle Annie," and many others, are all worth while. He has never written a poor book.

I have Kantor's autobiographical novel, "Look Me Morn," which I found to be a fascinating story of a midwestern boy. Few writers have proved their genius so outstandingly in the variety of subject matter. His early life in Iowa, his love of horses and courage, and many a disappointment, but he met life with patience and dignity into his well deserved fame.

I read with a few more words about his latest dog story, "Lobo". It is unique. I doubt that there will be another quite like it. It is illustrated by Irene Layne. The author's wife is a great medical-chief handy as you finish some of his stories, notably "Valedictory" and "Happy Land."

I wish there were more writers like MacKinlay Kantor!

As Lovers Know

Walter Steevie New Comptroller Of Central Bridge

TRENTON (Special) — Walter Steevie who has replaced R. L. Worrall as controller of Central Bridge spent three years as office manager and chief accountant of Toronto Iron Works, the parent company in Toronto. In Trenton only a short time he has expressed a desire to take an active part in the life of the community and looks forward to building a permanent home here when he has acquired a suitable piece of property. He found temporary quarters in the meantime and has settled with his wife and two children.

Mr. Steevie holds several university degrees in personnel management and his management affiliations include the American Management Association, the National Research Institute of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce. Formerly, Central Bridge's new resident controller was employed as audit supervisor for Liddell Steel Charter Accountants, Montreal; assistant chief internal auditor of Turner and Newall Ltd., Montreal; chief accountant Atlas Asbestos Corporation.

A native of Montreal he obtained primary and secondary schooling there and graduated from McGill University.

COURSE FOR PRINCESS

LONDON (Reuters) — Princess Alexandra, 20-year-old cousin of the Queen, is going to take a course in child welfare at a London hospital. The princess, ninth in line to the throne, will begin her course next Monday. Palace sources said the course is Alexandra's own idea.

Baking Stall For Auxiliary Well Patronized

TRENTON (Special) — Members of the Third Trenton Scout Ladies Auxiliary worked hard on Saturday morning at their home baking stall in Trenton market. The results of their work in making and selling rolls, pies, cakes, cookies and fudge was a very successful and rewarding sale, which provided a good contribution to the funds of the group.

Trenton mothers and youngsters spent a good deal of Saturday in preparing and buying costumes for the forthcoming Hallow'een parties and shellouts which take the town by storm about this time every year. Pupils of Dufferin Street School will take special containers with them on their door to door rounds on Thursday night, and any money put in those special containers will be taken to the school for final donation to the United Nations Children's Fund.

H. S. Pane, Trenton sanitary inspector, who has just finished a tour of the town's hotels and restaurants, states that he is more than satisfied with the conditions obtaining on these premises, and that they are in first class condition.

Want 12-Mile Section of Barge Canal Deepened

SOREL, Que. (CP)—A move to get the federal government to eliminate a 12-mile Canadian bottleneck from the Montreal-New York barge canal was launched here Sunday.

The 12-mile section has a depth of 6½ feet.

The meeting, attended by Canadian and United States supporters of the Richelieu-Lake Champlain-Hudson route, sought a reappraisal of the costs and uses of the inland waterway.

The present water route from Montreal to New York, limited to self-propelling barges and small cargo ships with less than seven-foot draught is 452 miles long. The alternative voyage, down the St. Lawrence and into the Atlantic, covers almost 1,700 miles.

Supporters of the deeper system say Labrador iron ore could be transported cheaply via the Richelieu route to eastern United States steel mills. During wartime, the protected inland canals are particularly important, they say.

Booster Club Getting Ready For First Game

TRENTON (Special) — The executive of the Trenton Booster Club is holding a meeting in the Community Gardens early this week to make plans for a show of strength at the first appearance of their junior "B's" here a week from today. The Dixie Beehives who won the Ontario Junior "B" championship last year accepted an invitation from Ted Steadman to give the locals a 'send-off'. Arena manager Steadman figured that by meeting the best the Trenton boys would gain quick knowledge about the tricks of the trade in the top bracket. At the same time Steadman will use the results of the game as a yard stick for future reference.

Booster Club memberships since cards went on sale last Thursday total over 75.

The advantages of a Booster membership includes a reduction in admission prices for games in which the Trenton Juniors play. As an example, Boosters who show membership cards at the wicket this Saturday night receive a cut of 15c on adults and 10c on students. They are also eligible for the weekly jackpot draw which now stands at $15.

FLU VICTIM

LINDSAY (CP) — Wendy Switzer, 11, of Fenelon Falls died Friday of influenza-induced pneumonia. The child, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Switzer, is the district's first flu victim.

Police, Firemen Arrange Hockey Game for Needy

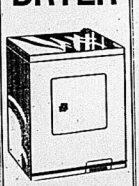
TRENTON (Special) — Police and firemen have gone to a lot of trouble to make unfortunate local people happy this coming Christmas. They've arranged a hockey game and ice show that stacks up with a big city effort. And when the entertainment lags if that could be possible the ball game take over with a new comedy twist called the race.

Radio announcer Ted Snider is giving of his time to MC the extravaganza. And then there'll be baton demonstrations by the Barbara Thrasher group and band music galore from Picton and Trenton musicians.

But before this all happens Police Chief F. J. Taylor and Fire Chief Clarence Orser are billed to say a few words. Mayor Ross Burtt taking part in the program can expect to enjoy a belated busman's holiday when he drops the puck to face-off for the blue-coats and firefighters.

Ticket holders have a chance to win any one of the 15 handsome prizes to be given away. The admission ticket which is selling at 50c says that the main prize is a portable TV.

In smaller italics the words "proceeds for benevolent purposes" explains the whole idea of the thing sponsored annually to help the needy and deserving.



It's for a good cause and unfolds at the Trenton Community Gardens Wednesday, October 30, starting at 8.30 p.m.

Y'S Menettes Induct Kingston Members

On October 23rd, 12 Belleville Y's Menette Journeyed to Kingston where they had been invited to induct members of the first Y's Menettes Club of Kingston.

Following dinner at the British-American Hotel, where the head table was decorated with autumn colored flowers and candles, the Belleville club was welcomed by Joyce Reynald of Kingston. The introduction of the head table was made by Muriel Haunts.

The traditional and impressive candlelight ceremony of induction of members and installation of officers then took place. Torch in hand, the Kingston members took their vows of service to the Y's Menettes Club under the direction of Mary Schurman, president of Belleville's Y's Menettes, and her executive, who, at the conclusion of the ceremony, bestowed congratulations and membership pins to the new members.

Preceding the induction, a white elephant auction sale took place, with Audrene Moorman of Belleville acting as auctioneer. Prior to the adjournment of a memorable evening, coffee and a decorated iced cake were served.

Birthday Party

Mrs Walter Morrow, Frankford, entertained a number of guests recently from Belleville and district, in honor of her mother, Mrs. Hern Casey, who was celebrating her 85th birthday.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECHMAN

HERE THEY COME . . .
QUESTIONS ABOUT CHRISTMAS CARDS!

Suddenly Christmas is just around the corner! Suddenly Christmas cards are blossoming all over town. And suddenly questions about Christmas cards begin to arrive in my mail. The question that arrived first is the question that is without doubt the most important question concerning the ordering of imprinted Christmas cards: What is the correct form of name to order when the name is to be imprinted after the message?

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

I am about to order Christmas cards for my husband and me. Heretofore I have always signed our names by hand, but this year we have decided to have our names imprinted on the cards, because we want to send many more cards than before, and also to include on the envelopes the address of our new home, in which we "took up residence" six months ago. I am completely puzzled as to what name form I should order. Should it be "Mr. and Mrs. John Brown" or "Mary and Mary Brown" or "Mary and John Brown"? I can't figure out from the style books, for I've noticed that some show the message signed with "Mr. and Mrs." . . . some with John's name first . . . some with Mary's name first. Is there really a correct form, or (as some of the salespeople tell me) is it simply "a question of preference"? This is a big step we are taking this year, and it is most important to us that the name form on our cards be correct. Thank you for your guidance. Mrs. Beechman. — Reader

Yes, there is a really correct form of names to order . . . and no, it is not simply a question of preference." Here are the three important facts to remember:

1. Mary and John Reader is the correct form of name to order.

Why? Your names will undoubtedly be imprinted under the printed (or carved) message, the greeting. This means, of course, that your names are your signature to the message. And your signature is your informal name. Example:

Christmas Greetings
AND
Best wishes for the New Year
Mary and John Reader

2. "Mr. and Mrs. John Reader" is not the correct form of name to use (either imprinted or hand-written) at the end of the printed message.

Why? Because formal names should not be used in a signature. No title in a signature . . . no "Mrs." or "Mr." or "Mr. and Mrs." or "Miss."

Also: You and your husband want your Christmas cards to be informal . . . don't you? Also you want them to be personal, cordial greetings from friend-to-friend . . . don't you? If you do want them to have this informal personality, then of course you should use your informal name. That makes sense . . . doesn't it?

3. Mary and John Reader. This it should be (Not "John and Mary Reader.")

Why? Because, when the names are imprinted (not hand-written) on cards, naturally it is courteous for the wife's name to come first.

WHO PAYS FOR THE WEDDING CAKE?

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

Please tell me who is supposed to pay for the wedding cake, the bride's parents or (as I've been told) the groom?

Bob R.

The bride's parents.

THIS SON IS NOT "JR."

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

My husband's name (for example) is David Grant Richardson. Our new son is to be named David Charles Richardson. Should we add "Jr." to our son's name? — T.H.R.

No. "Jr." is added to a son's name only when his name is exactly the same as his father's.

DRINKING BOUILLON FROM BOUILLON CUP

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

Is it correct to drink soup from a bouillon cup, or should the spoon be used to sip all the soup?

Wondering

First take a few sips of the soup with the bouillon spoon or teaspoon (whichever is provided), to test the heat of the soup, and then drink the rest of the soup as you would drink tea.

High Crowned Hats

By ALICE ALDEN

Popular favor has crowned the high-crowned hat with success and it appears in ever so many fabrics, the work of many master designers. John Frederics, for instance, uses supple soleil in a pale beige tone for a handsome high crowned cloche, ideal for now. A wide border and looped bow of matching satin add a further luxurious note as well as texture contrast.

The Pastry Cook's Triumph—Cream Puffs

By Mary Moore

For years I have intended to go into the details of making cream puffs and eclairs and bouchees. This week we were pushed into the issue because a new packaged cream puff mix has been introduced to the market and Marianne tested it and we thought it was excellent. Many young (and old) cooks will tackle cream puffs now who have never dared attempt them before. It may be that success with the packaged cream puffs will give them courage to make their own cream puffs from start to finish.

Remember that once you master choux paste — yes, that is what it is called (pronounced shoe pastel) you can go on to impress your buddies with chocolate eclairs and tiny bouchees filled with chicken or lobster salad or creamed for your reception! Pretty posh!

CHOUX PASTE FOR CREAM PUFFS, ECLAIRS AND BOUCHEES

One cup water, 1-2 cup butter or shortening, 1 cup sifted flour, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 4 large eggs. Heat water and butter together and to boiling point. Add, all at once, the flour and salt which have been sifted together. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until batter leaves sides of pan and forms a ball around the wooden spoon. Remove from heat. Beat in, one at a time, the eggs, being careful to beat each egg until well blended before adding the next. For Cream Puffs heap spoonfuls in 2-inch rounds on greased baking sheet, allowing 2 inches between puffs. Bake at 450 deg. F. for first 20 minutes, then reduce heat to 350 deg. and bake 10 minutes longer. To test, remove one puff from oven. Let stand on table. If it is not done, it will collapse at all when the crust is well baked and remove to rack and cool. When puffs are cold cut gash in side and fill with stiffly beaten, sweetened, whipped cream or cream filling or lemon filling and dust tops with powdered sugar.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

MONDAY

For chocolate eclairs shape the Choux Paste into strips 1 inch wide and four inches long (or force through pastry tube). Bake as cream puffs. When cool split and fill with custard or sweetened whipped cream. Frost top with thin chocolate frosting: In top of double boiler barely melt together 2 tablespoons butter and 2 squares chocolate (unsweetened). Remove from heat and stir in 1 cup sifted icing sugar and 2 tablespoons hot water. Beat until smooth but not stiff and carefully drizzle over eclairs lengthwise. Bouchees—anywhere from 30 to 50 — are made by dropping paste by teaspoonfuls on greased baking sheet and bake at 450 deg. and about 15 minutes at 350 deg. These are filled with chicken or turkey salad or creamed chicken or turkey or lobster or crabmeat and used as an entree or an item on your canape tray or for dessert.

BEAUTY

FLORALS FOR THE FOOTBALL SEASON

Some of the fashion ideas born last summer were much too good to fade with the falling leaves, it seems. This fact was forcibly brought to our attention when we attended a football game a couple of Saturdays ago. We hadn't been to a game in ages and, frankly we missed most of the fine points of this one. The boy friend didn't mind, however, and since we were wonderfully rewarded by seeing what the gals are wearing to the games this season, the afternoon was a huge success.

After all, it's on such occasions that you see what's really tops in casual clothes . . . the type of clothes which college girls adore. And we had an eyeful. Most of the outfits were two-piece skirt-and-sweater or dress-and-sweater, of course. But what surprised us was the number of floral prints!

Looking into the matter later, we found that these outfits, which combine floral-printed cotton dresses with Orlon sweaters to match, are quite the thing with campus belles this season. And why not? These prints were big and beautiful during the summer. So, what could be a more appropriate fabric for cooler weather? Especially since they're lightweight enough to wear under heavy coats and, what's more, so very launderable. Which reminds us:

Do you own a fine-gauge Orlon sweater, amethyst in color, with a fringed bow at the neckline? And an amethyst color tweed skirt to match? Well, if you don't, go out at once and get such a matched set! For sweaters and tweed skirts, dyed to match, are the very latest things in smart casual wear. Are you fond of navy?

The makers of sweaters and skirts have gotten together for this season, and you've never seen colors more harmoniously matched. Apparently everybody loves the lavender or amethyst tones. Not that you have to stick to tones, of course. You can have your pinks, blues, greens, yellows or beiges.

We can't honestly say we usually wash tweed skirts. But why not? They're washable, after all. And you can certainly wash wool. Use warm soap or detergent suds, warm rinse water, then blot out the excess moisture and hang it up to finish drying on a good skirt hanger. Or spread the skirt flat to dry over a clean sheet or a couple of clean towels. We do know that nothing washes more successfully than wool — if it's handled gently.

OLD MONARCH

Robert Bruce, king of Scotland, reigned from 1306 to his death in 1329.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Bertram S. — My mother-in-law tells the children lies about the facts of life.

* * *

Mrs. N.M. — You've got to start lying somewhere.

Bertram S. — I am a young widower with two children, 7 and 5. We all live with my mother-in-law, who undertook the care of the children when my wife died. My mother-in-law is a good woman, but extremely old-fashioned in her ideas. She believes telling the children all kinds of nonsense about the stork or the doctor bringing the babies is the right thing to do.

I have been reading a lot on this subject and I feel they should be told the true facts from an early age. Besides, all children today are told the truth. They must know it already from their friends.

When I have tried to explain certain things to the children, my mother-in-law jumps in and, says, "There's time enough for that." She says as long as the children are in her care she's going to see they are "protected." How can I make her see the light?

* * *

Mrs. N.M. — My son-in-law acts as though I am an idiot or something. I have read things too, and I know that modern psychology is wrong about a lot. They old enough to ask questions. Educators and religious leaders are unanimous in this view. There has been some discussion as to how and where this teaching ought to take place, but it is generally agreed today that the best place is in the home — from parents who are both well informed and at ease with the subject.

Since neither Mrs. N.M. nor Bertram knows how to handle it properly, they should take up the problem with their clergyman. He will be able to suggest some good books on the subject. There is absolutely no excuse for frightening the children.

Mrs. N.M. ought to realize there is really nothing modern or newfangled about this view. In earlier days children learned the facts of life by observing animals. The change their minds every day about the right way to bring up children.

All I know is that I've brought up six children — all healthy — and all happily married. They did not have any complexes and they didn't get into any trouble. A child of 7 believes whatever he is told. It is not necessary for him to know anything else until he is 13 or so. My son-in-law has frightened the children with some of the things he has told them. I told them not to believe it or anything their friends tell them. They have confidence in me and are good and happy children.

The way I see it, one question is bound to lead to another. Somewhere you've got to start lying. Why bring things to this point?

* * *

The Council: These children are in a very difficult spot, indeed. Bertram is right that "all children today are told the truth." Their grandmother may be able to reconvince them of her story for a while, but it won't last long. They will certainly lose all the confidence they have in her when they realize she lied.

Mrs. N.M. ought to know it is not only "modern psychology" which propounds the idea of slowly leading children to the truth about life from the time they are

A GENERAL MOTORS VALUE

It looks and feels like flight on wheels

It RUNS on gasoline and rolls on wheels. But beyond that, all similarity between this 1958 Buick and any other car you've ever known comes to a decisive end.

This B-58 Buick is literally born of aviation principles—starting with a greater use of aluminum than ever before, and going on from there.

With this stunning automobile you're in the forefront of styling's freshest advance.

With it you boss the B-12000 engine—command through a transmission that's the big talk of the automotive world—feel a modern miracle in buoyancy of ride, plus the never-before wonders of Buick Air-Poise Suspension.*

With it you can drive with more magnificent advances in automobile design and engineering than history shows in any single year.

This B-58 Buick is ready now in look and line and lift and life to thrill you to a tingle. Go see—at your Buick dealer's.

*Air-Poise Suspension optional on all Series, Flight Pitch Dynaflow standard on LIMITED and ROADMASTER 75, optional on other Series.

ALL IN ONE YEAR— ALL IN THIS BIG, BUOYANT BUICK

Miracle Ride Plus Buick Air-Poise Suspension*—You ride on four self-levelizing columns of compressed air—stay on a constant level, regardless of passenger load or road conditions.

Flight Pitch Dynaflow*—Lets you switch the pitch a million ways for exact power delivery at every phase of travel—gives smooth, instant response.

B-12000 Engine—Up to 10 to 1 in compression, and with 12,000 pounds of thrust behind every piston's power stroke. Most modern engine possible to build for today's fuels.

Sparkling Fresh Styling—From wide-sweeping Dynastar Grille to steepled tail towers, this is the bold face of fashion for '58.

Air-Cooled Aluminum Brakes—Heavier-lined, extra-powerful brakes with 45 radial fins that fan in cooling air. Smoother, more positive braking and longer lining-life. (Standard on front wheels only on most models.)

Magnificent Changes Through and Through—"Velvet wall" sound silencing, hidden exhausts, centre-of-percussion vibration control, ball-joint handling—plus many others.

Japanese Beats Sam Snead To Win Canada Cup Tourney

TOKYO (CP)—A little 42-year-old Japanese golf instructor outshot some of the greatest pros in the game to win the International Nakamura had sensational rounds of 69-68-67-71 over the par-72 Kasumigaseki Country Club course for a 72-hole total of 274.

His closest opponents were seven strokes away.

Nakamura's fine display was backed by steady play from team-mate Koichi Ono to give Japan the Canada Cup team trophy in the 30-country competition. They held a nine-stroke margin over the runner-up United States team of Sam Snead and Jimmy Demaret, with an aggregate of 557 to 566 or the Americans.

Canada's entry of Stan Leonard of Vancouver and Lachute, Que., and Toronto's Al Balding was sixth in the team standings at 578. Leonard, who won the individual trophy when it was first put up for competition in 1953 in Quebec, was tied with Ono for fifth place in the individual scores, each with 283.

GOLF "OLYMPICS"

The man who runs the show today predicted the Canada Cup competition soon will become "the Olympics of golf," the truest test of international supremacy in the sport.

"Even the Russians will find it inexpedient to stay out—they'll have to come in," added Frank Pace Jr., former U.S. secretary of the army who is president of the International Golf Association.

"The surprising victory of the Japanese here last weekend is proof in itself that the game has become global. The day is past when Britain and the United States can feel their Ryder Cup and Walker Cup matches determine the championship among nations."

Today all Japan was talking of golf and their two heroes of the links. Television networks carried filmed versions of the matches. Boys on the streets, who in the past had thoughts only for baseball, were seen taking swings with sticks and imaginary golf clubs.

Japanese golf has been a sport only for the reasonably well-to-do. Courses are rare, memberships expensive, and public courses almost non-existent.

Pace and the sponsoring newspaper, Yomhuri Shimbun, brought the top prize of 30 nations across the world to compete.

Meeker Wants To Settle Down

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Howie Meeker will be interviewed today for a coaching job at the Memorial Stadium and the former NHL player, manager and coach says money isn't his main object.

"I want to find a place where I can settle down and bring up my four children," he told reporters. "I've promised myself that my next move would be the last."

Meeker said he didn't foresee any financial obstacles should he decide to accept a job coaching some 2,000 Newfoundland junior and senior hockey players.

If he takes the job, the 33-year-old Meeker would sell his New Toronto home; a fishing lodge at Armstrong, Ont., and his interest in a pinball machine company.

On the Tracks

CAMDEN, N.J. (CP) — Nadir won the $277,150 Garden State Stakes Saturday but racetrack observers aren't convinced he is the best two-year-old horse in the United States.

Nadir was off for Kentucky today for a brief vacation, apparently having the two-year-old championship to Jewel's Reward if he can win the $171,000 Pimlico Futurity at Baltimore Nov. 23.

From the Claiborne farm of Elizabeth N. Graham, Nadir won the Garden State by two lengths from Terra Firma. The latter scored out the Rose Trellis for second place.

It was the first stakes victory for Nadir, who had lost twice to Jewel's Reward. The latter finished a dismal seventh Saturday.

It was the general opinion that Jewel's Reward would come up with a victory in the Pimlico Futurity.

Observers pointed out that neither Jewel's Reward nor Wheatley Stable's Misty Flight, which finished fifth, had been given prep races over the track, whereas Nadir got a feel of the track a week earlier when he finished in a dead heat for first with Music Man Fox in the Garden State.

TORONTO (CP)—Jockey Juan Sanchez and trainer Horatio Luro might consider Canada's richest horse race, the $60,000 Canadian Championship, the easiest mark in the business. They have a knack of winning a bundle of money on it.

The pair combined Saturday to win the first-place purse of $42,900 with Spinney, a four-year-old California-bred gelding. In 1956, Luro saddled Eugenia II and Sanchez rode him to victory in the same stakes.

Each time their mount has been a long shot. Eugenia II returned $55.60 for a $2 bet. On Saturday, with 15,564 persons in attendance, most of the wagering went on Find, a 1-to-5 favorite. Spinney crossed up the experts $11.10 and $4.20.

FFind, a gelded son of Discovery and winner so far of more than $650,000—$250,000 of it this year—was a disappointing third over the mile-and-five-furlongs distance.

CANYON SURPRISES

The big surprise was the performance of four-year-old Grand Canyon owned by Ken Kelman of Toronto, which came with a big rush to take the second-place $16,060 purse, one length behind Spinney and a nose in front of Find.

Breaking out of the gate in the outside position, Grand Canyon was dead last at the quarter, but headed into the stretch in fourth position about three lengths off the pace. He finished with a bold rush along the rail but couldn't catch Spinney, owned by Louis Rowan of Los Angeles.

The track was slow after late-week rains and a dip in temperatures and the winning time of 1:46.1 was far off the track record.

Quebec League

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Royals dislodged the idle Quebec Aces from third place in the Quebec Hockey League Sunday by downing second-place Chicoutimi Saguenees 4-2.

Tail-end Trois-Rivieres Lions scored their first win in eight starts, 4-1 over first-place Shawinigan Falls Cataracts. The Lions have two ties.

Moe Mantha, Walter Bradley, Murray Balfour and John Kowalchuk shared scoring for Montreal while Georges Roy and Jacques Deslaurier tallied for the Saguenees.

The Trois-Rivieres marksmen were Doug McMurdy, Roland Leclerc, Bob Chevalier and Graeme Hastings. George Faulkner scored the Shawinigan goal.

'Sooners' Rally To Nip Colorado

NEW YORK (CP)—Oklahoma Sooners, ranked top among United States college football teams, had to come from behind with a late last-quarter touchdown and conversion Saturday to nip Colorado 14-13 in a Big Eight conference game.

Iowa won 6-0 in a Big Ten conference game, Kevin Furling, a second string junior, carrying over the winning score after the ball had been fumbled back and forth in a freak pass reception.

Notre Dame beat Pittsburgh 13-7 on a 74-yard pass play from sophomore quarterback George Izo to Aubrey Lewis. Izo was replacing Bobby Williams, ejected in a squabble earlier.

Michigan State bowled a 26-12 upset Holy Cross 33-28; North

Michigan State bowled a 26-yard fourth-period touchdown run by Walt Kowalczyk to pull out a 19-14 triumph over Illinois.

Army trailed a tough Virginia team 15-6 after three periods but won 20-13 with two touchdowns in the final quarter.

ARKANSAS REVENGE

Arkansas, knocked out of the unbeaten ranks last week by Texas, handed Mississippi its first defeat 13-6.

North Carolina State overcame a 14-0 deficit to tie Duke 14-14. Florida snapped LSU's four-game winning streak, defeating the Tigers 22-14.

Texas A and M, ranked second only to Oklahoma, roared to its 12th straight victory, half of them this season, by shutting out Baylor 14-0. Navy overpowered Penn 25-7.

A FINE EFFORT

The Whitby Dunlops with an all-out assist from Old Man Flu, defeated our side Saturday night by a 7-4 score.

This is not an alibi. Even Wren Blair, Bus Gagnon and the popular Wally Brabin, who is Blair's right-hand statistical lieutenant will substantiate that statement.

The truth of the matter is, the virus Flu which is ridding the Dunlops' bandwagon, kicked in with a jolt at several key players of the Macs and the result was that the Belleville club dressed just ten men. Keith Montgomery, suffering with a knee injury who went along just in case, was called out of the spectator stands by playing coach Ike Hildebrand and pressed into service. And did a fine job, knee and all.

And get this, all Ike had was Gordie Bell, Moe Benoit, who as we have said before, is wearing a shoulder harness big enough for the fore-runner of a Percheron stallion, the ever reliable Floyd Crawford, Lionel Bolley and the press-man Montgomery on the defence.

Up front Ike had Minnie Menard, who scored twice on Long John Henderson, Paul Payette, Eddie Marineau, himself, and Davy Jones. Figure it out yourselves. Not bad for a bunch of cripples.

It is to be hoped that some, at least, of the flu-ridden Macs will be back in action for tomorrow night's game with the surging Lumber Kings from Pembroke. As is noted further down this column, Wally Lesner, sponsor-owner of the Kings, is in high glee following the inaugural performances of his regal puck court.

On Friday night the Macs entertain the "New Look" Chevies from Cornwall and then on Saturday comes the Whitby Booster Club trek to Kingston for the first clash with the arch-enemies from the Limestone City. On Sunday the Macs safari to Hull, Quebec, where they take on the starry Ottawa-Hull Canadiens in their first tilt of the season. That's if ice is available.

THIS GUY C... RIGHT!

Mayhap Pembroke's Men with the Golden Arm, Mr. Wally Lesner is a prophet with honor in his own neck of the woods.

The man said a week ago that his Lumber Kings would snatch a couple of wins from the Kingston CKLC's over the opening weekend—and that is just what they did. He also crystal-balled that his puck-chasers would treat Master Miron's Cornwall Chevies to a grease-job on Sunday afternoon. The result of that embroglio was not known at this writing.

And don't mention "old pros" to Lesner. He would probably laugh in your face. Look how he dolled the sniping for him. Gerry Plamondon, Nobby Clarke, Jim Farelli, Bucky Buchanan and those Glesbrecht boys, nearly all refugees from the pay-and-play gangs.

Mr. Lesner has also made the statement that his Lumber Kings will win the Allan Cup this season. It could be he wasn't fooling when he said it.

Meanwhile that 7-4 setback at the hands of the champion Whitby Dunlops should not cause too much worrie-scratching among Belleville fans. After all the Dunlops are supposed to be world amateur senior champions and is long ago rated it the strongest team last year's club. Besides the Macs have not yet reached their full potential and it is a long long trail awinding before the playoffs poke a snout over the horizon.

WEEKEND HODGE PODGE

That gleam in Mrs. Palmer's eyes were probably unshed tears as her beloved Larks from Montreal were ousted from further Big Four competition. The Tabbies from Hamilton defeathered the Alouettes 19-17 while "our" club from Ottawa were ripping the Toronto Argonauts 35-7 to take over undisputed rights to second place. We can sympathize with Mrs. P. for it is the first time in three years pathize with Mrs. P. for it is the first time in three years pathize with Mrs. P. for it is the first time in three years that the Larks have not been in Big Four playoff competition . . . Down Ottawa way our boy Gary Schreiber is not adding to this column's exchequer. Perhaps a dinpeeling off seven points with three converts, a field goal peeling off seven points with three converts, a field goal and a "miss that was good for a point . . . A tip to the lner or so to Toronto with Gary filling as a fourth at bridge friends through the long, lean and sometimes hungry years, is not adding to this column's exchequer. Perhaps a dinsaying. Gary's dad, Ed, one of this corner's best sports come tax boys. Don't believe what the wise guys are ... Frank Tyndall's Golden Gaels didn't have much defence ... the powerful Redmen from McGill and went down ... rushing 15-0 defeat. While in Toronto our Alma ... Stanley's Blues were swamped by a rangy-rebuilding bunch of ... mavericks from Western U, by a 34-30 score . . . Gerry Goyer and Wiener Brown had temperatures Saturday night ... would boil a kettle. Jump Into Loop Second Spot With 4-1 Victory Over Habs; Hawks Collar Red Wings 3-0

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The little guys are throwing around the most weight today in the National Hockey League.

That isn't a suggestion that Chicago Black Hawks and New York Rangers physically are smaller than the other four clubs. But for some years Hawks have been regular doormats and as for New York—well, against Montreal Canadiens any team can be considered a little guy.

Last night the Hawks won their first game in 13 starts on Detroit ice, clipping Red Wings 3-0. New York ended Montreal's seven-game unbeaten string and jumped into second place behind Canadiens with a 4-1 victory.

Saturday, rookie centre Frank Mahovlich scored twice to lead Toronto Maple Leafs to a 3-0 home-ice victory over Rangers. Maurice (Rocket) Richard's 501st regular-season goal broke a 3-3 tie and gave Montreal a 4-3 win over Boston Bruins.

The weekend results left Montreal on top with five wins and two ties in eight starts. New York's win, its third in four games, jumped the club into second, three points back. Chicago is fourth, one point behind Boston, which has lost four straight after opening with four victories in five starts. Detroit is sixth, two ahead of Toronto.

HALL OF EXPERTS

Former Wing goalie Glenn Hall was outstanding in Chicago's first visit to Detroit this season. The 11,828 fans cheered Hawks lustily and jeered Detroit.

Ron Ingram scored scoring in the second period and Nick Mikoski and Glen Skov clicked for third-period goals.

Former Wing star Ted Lindsay was not on for any of the goals. His three penalties included a 10-minute misconduct for arguing after drawing a minor for vigorously cross-checking former linemate Gordie Howe.

Rangers' Lorne Worsley was spectacular in making 22 saves. MAHOVLICH SHINES

Saturday at Toronto Mahovlich, with his two goals, began to live up to expectations. Toronto's most highly-touted rookie in many a year, he set out several games with flu and took a couple more to get untracked. Ted Sloan finished the scoring.

It was Ed Chadwick's second shutout of the season.

Montreal appeared to have its fifth victory in the bag when it opened up a 3-0 lead early in the second period Saturday. Henri Richard converted brother Maurice's pass after 30 seconds of play and Bernie Geoffrion and Jean Beliveau clicked in the last-

Bruins started their comeback when Johnny Bucyk's shot bounced off Dollard St. Laurent's stick, struck Moore in the face and bounced into the clear. Bucyk swooped in and whipped it home. Moore went out for five stitches.

Cats Clinch First-Place Tie As Riders Wallop Argos 25-7

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Alouettes were spilled off their perch as Big Four football champions Saturday by Hamilton Tiger-Cats 19-17 at Montreal and on Sunday the 'Cats followed up with a committee-room victory.

Tiger-Cats now are assured of at least a tie for first place in the race while Als can finish no better than second.

The 'Cats edged Alouettes 19-17 at Montreal and 24 hours later at Toronto the league executive tossed out the Montreal protest over an 18-15 Hamilton victory in the previous game. Neither decision was startling.

Everything, in fact, went as expected in the week-end Big Four action. The Rough Riders walloped Toronto Argonauts 35-7 at Ottawa Saturday before the season's smallest Big Four crowd—12,460. Riders have sole possession of second place, four points behind Hamilton and two up on Montreal with two games remaining in the 14-game schedule.

FIRST SINCE 1933

The Als, Big Four champions since 1953, were dethroned by Hamilton's first victory in Montreal since 1933.

The teams matched two converted touchdowns and a field goal. The victory margin came as a single by Jim Fraser and the a rouge when Hal Patterson pounced on a fumble in the Montreal end zone after he tackled Jerry McDougall at the goal line. Eddie Macon's 35-yard touchdown-and-run touchdown and a 13-yard sprint by McDougall gave Ticats their other touchdown both converted by Steve Oneschuk who also contributed a field goal. Joel Wells, on a two-yard plunge, and Bill Bewley, on the receiving end of a short pass from Sam Etcheverry, counted Montreal's touchdowns, converted by Bewley who also kicked a second - quarter placement.

Rough Riders jumped into a 7-0 first-quarter lead over Toronto on an 81-yard run-and-run touchdown play by George Brancato, made it 15-7 at half-time, then won it as they pleased. Bobby Judd scored two touchdowns and Gary Schreiber kicked a field goal, three converts and a single on another attempted field goal.

Bobby Bell scored Toronto's touchdown in the second quarter on a four-yard plunge. Vic Kritopaitis converted.

ALS VOTED DOWN

With field action out of the way, league officials went to Toronto and in a three-hour closed meeting rejected Montreal's protest by a vote of 6 to 2. The Als, as expected, were the only dissenters.

Montreal protested after Ralph Tosky of Tiger-Cats ran onto the field in the final minute of the Oct. 19 game in an effort to stop Art Powell of the Als from catching a pass. Montreal claimed it should have been awarded an automatic touchdown under the rule involving an "unauthorized person" going on the field.

Hamilton was penalized 10 yards for having too many men on the field.

The executives weren't sure whether the rule against going on the field when the ball is in progress applies before or after the ball is snapped by the centre. The Canadian Rugby Union will be asked to clarify the rule.

No direct action was taken against Tosky. The executive instructed Judge Allan Fraser, Big Four commissioner, to decide on this question. The commissioner has the power to impose a max imum fine of $200.

QUEBEC WINS 11-5

United Appeal Football Award Won by Ottawa

By MARTY GOODMAN

Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—In the United Appeal's ninth annual football tournament four games come up with a close match but it was worth the wait.

The three judges awarded the Golden Rule Award to its winner, Ottawa Fisher Park High School as the team that best combined athletic ability and sportsmanship.

The close game was also the one that most pleased the 7,500 fans. They started out Saturday backing a local favorite, Bathurst Heights Collegiate and Vocational School, and ended lauding Fisher Park for the gamest display of the two-day tourney.

Fisher Park won 22-15, first downs 13-12, yards 254-245 and winning the game after two thrusts had been stopped on the Toronto 1-yard line.

OTHER RESULTS

In Saturday's first game, St. Catharines Collegiate Institute and Vocational School beat Sudbury Mining and Technical School 20-6.

Friday, Kitchener - Waterloo Collegiate and Vocational School whipped Alliston Banting Memorial High School 40-0 and Windsor Collegiate Institute beat Toronto Parkdale Collegiate Institute 30-6.

Tournament receipts went to the United Appeal and Community Chest campaigns in the areas where tickets were sold. Last year the fund realized $21,750 and in its eight years the tournament has swelled the fund by $100,136.

The crowd reserved its loudest yells for the cheerleaders' cheers and boy-and-girl lines of pretty cheerleaders.

Teepees Share Junior Lead With Marlies

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Catharines Teepees have moved sort out the four-way jam at the top of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series and now share top place with Toronto Marlboros.

After edging Toronto St. Michael's 2-1 Saturday, Teepees repeated the dose yesterday, beating the Toronto squad 3-2.

Scoring was confined to the first period as Teepees took their Saturday win over St. Michael's. Ron Quenville and Ed Hoekstra scored for St. Catharines, Jack Costello replying for the visitors.

HOEKSTRA AGAIN

Hoekstra was on the target again when Teepees swept to their second win, scoring two goals. Rino Robazza was the other St. Catharines scorer, Jack Martin getting St. Michael's lone goal.

McFarlands Dress Ten Men In 7-4 Setback by Dunlops; Freddie Etcher Breaks Leg

WHITBY (Special) — Whitby Dunlops reversed the decision on their Friday night conquerors from Belleville here Saturday night, defeating the shorthanded McFarlands 7-4 before a crowd said to be 1,200.

The victory proved a costly one for the Dunlops. Fred Etcher was rushed to Oshawa General Hospital late in the second period with a broken left leg.

The McFarlands were able to ice only nine men, with many of their key players being down with the flu. Keith Montgomery, suffering with an injured knee, was called from the stands by Coach Ike Hildebrand to round out a club.

The Macs were shy Weinerbrown, Gerry Goyer, Russ Kowalchuk, Keith MacDonald, Tom Poole, Johnny Murdoch, with Moe Benoit and Montgomery skating with injuries.

The speed of the McFarlands amazed local fans, especially in the first period when both teams scored three goals, Ike Hildebrand scored his goal when the Dunlops were short, rounding Dunlops defencemana Tom O'Connor stripped the puck in the Loog John Henderson to score.

The pace told on the illness-stricken McFarlands in the second period when the Dunlops banged home three unanswered goals. The teams spilt a pair of markers in the final chapter.

The game was a typical rugged Whitby-Belleville affair with referee Stan Boshier handing out 16 penalties, nine of them to the McFarlands. Moe Benoit drew two minors and a misconduct, the big fella getting the ten-minute sentence in the second period.

A near-riot broke out in the third period when Gordie Bell and Doug Williams came to blows with the feelings spreading into the stands where the gendarmes were called to restore peace.

The game was not two minutes old when Burns took Etcher's pass to score the first Whitby goal but this was nullified two minutes later when Minnie Menard accepted the count from Davy Jones. Botley and Sinden got chased for roughing and a minute later Tom O'Connor got the heaveho. Ike Hildebrand broke away from a Dunlop powwow play and slipped around Ted O'Connor to put the Macs one up.

Samolenko again tied the count with Treen and Attersley in on the play but Minnie Menard took Marineau's pass for his second goal of the night to give the Macs a 3-2 lead. Etcher knotted the count with three minutes left on a three-way play with Burns and Tom O'Connor.

The Dunlops took over in the second period scoring three times without a reply with Tom O'Connor getting a pair and Gagnon one. Moe Benoit drew his misconduct in this period.

The teams battled on even footing in the third frame, each scoring a goal. Davy Jones teamed with Hildebrand for the McFarland's counter and Doug Williams scored for Whitby with Charlie Burns getting credit for the assist.

Belleville — Goal, Bell; defence, Benoit, Botley, Crawford Montgomery; forwards, Payette, Marineau, Menard, Hildebrand, Jones.

Mustangs Roll Over Varsity; Queen's Beaten

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Intercollegiate Senior Football Union race has been reduced to a two-team contest between University of Western Ontario Mustangs and McGill Redmen.

The Mustangs rolled over University of Toronto Blues 34-20 in Toronto Saturday for their fourth straight win while the Redmen, called the powerhouse before the opening of the six-game schedule, blanked Queen's Golden Gaels 15-0 at Kingston.

With each team having two games left, the Mustangs are alone in first place with eight points. The Redmen have six points, having dropped a 26-7 decision to the Mustangs in the opening game.

The Blues have one victory while the Gaels are winless.

FINAL GAME TELLS TALE

A victory over McGill in the season's final game at London two weeks from now will give Western the championship automatically. The only way a playoff can be forced is for the second-place team to win a game against first-place Western.

Quarterback Dick Carr led the Redmen to victory at Kingston, tossing touchdown passes to Steve O'Farrell and Jan Sandzelius. The converts were kicked by Sandzelius, who also added a second-quarter single.

Swedish Star Will Remain An Amateur

MONTREAL (CP) — Sven Johansson, centre with the Swedish team that won the world amateur hockey championship in Moscow last March, has decided to remain an amateur after a five-game trial in the Quebec Hockey League.

Lynn Patrick, general manager of the NHL Boston Bruins, parent club of the Aces, said Johansson, 24, plans to return to his homeland. With the aces, the six-foot, 185-pound Johansson had one goal and three assists.

Patrick said Johansson was a good skater, with a neat shift, but found it difficult to adapt to the QHL's rugged style of play.

Albion Edges Manchester U.

LONDON (CP) — Once-mighty Manchester United fell before West Bromwich Albion 4-3 Saturday in the English Soccer League's first division. It was United's fifth defeat in eight games.

Albion, which toured the Soviet Union before the season opened, moved within two points of league - leading Wolverhampton Wanderers. The Wonders, beaten 1-0 by a 1-1 tie at Newcastle, have 23 points.

Third-place Everton, with 18 points, bowed to Preston North End 3-1. Preston is in a five-way tie for fourth place.

A sellout crowd of 66,007 turned out at Chelsea to see the traditional London rivals battle to a scoreless tie. Jimmy Greaves, Chelsea's 17-year-old inside forward, tipped to become England's youngest international, starred but failed to make a dent in Arsenal's tight defence.

In the second division, Blackburn Rovers beat Grimsby 4-3 to keep their one-point lead over Liverpool, Stoke City and Middlesbrough.

Redskins Upset New York Giants; Browns Nip Cards

NEW YORK (CP) — Cleveland Browns took sole possession of first place in the eastern division of the National Football League with a 17-7 victory over Chicago Cardinals Sunday.

The victory, coupled with Washington's upset triumph over New York, gave the Browns a 4-1 record.

Quarterback Babe Parilli and Bill Howton worked a sensational 75-yard scoring pass play in the last 29 seconds for a furious finish by the Green Bay Packers in beating Baltimore Colts 24-21.

In Pittsburgh quarterback Earl Morrall connected on a 33-yard touchdown pass to end Ray Mathews in the second quarter and earned the hometown Steelers a 6-0 victory over Philadelphia Eagles.

Los Angeles Rams—playing at home—defeated Detroit Lions 35-17. The Rams showed their power by scoring touchdowns the first three times they got the ball.

San Francisco 49ers, also playing at home, whipped Chicago Bears 21-17 in a comeback victory before 59,593.

Cornwall Tops Eastern Loop Hands Pembroke 7-2 Setback

Give Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen the choice and they'll play Southern Ontario hockey squads anytime. Northern teams, they are finding, are not hospitable this season.

The Dutchmen's first three starts against southern teams in the new Ontario Hockey Association-Northern OHA Senior A loop produced three wins. Their next three played in the north, have brought two defeats and a tie.

Second loss in a row came Saturday as the Dutchmen, still clinging to top place in the standings, were edged 3-2 by North Bay Trappers.

Windsor Bulldogs scored an upset 7-4 win over Soo Greyhounds in the series' other weekend game.

Action in the OHA's Senior A eastern division saw Cornwall Cheviks go to the top of the standings Sunday with a 7-2 win over Pembroke Lumber Kings, who gradbe a 4-1 win from Kingston CKLC on Saturday night. Whitby Dunlops hit form with a 7-4 win over Belleville McFarlands.

LAST-MINUTE WIN

A last-minute goal by centre Kenny Gribbons gave Trappers their victory over the Dutchmen who had levelled the score with 2:34 left in the period.

Don MacGregor and Ches Koneeny were the other Trapper scorers. Centre Jimmy Leamon got a pair for the Dutchmen.

Three goals by centre Frank Bathgate gave Bulldogs their Sunday win over Soo Greyhounds who trailed 2-2 at the end of the second.

Bob Brown and Chester Warchol, with two each, were the other Windsor scorers. Johnny Lumley with two, and Don McLean and John Bailey, scored for soo.

Three second-period goals gave Allan Cup-champion Whitby Dunlops the edge over Belleville McFarlands Saturday.

Tom O'Connor paced Dunlops' attack with two goals, Charlie Burns, Sam Samolenko, Fred Etcher, Doug Williams and Bus Gagnon getting the others. Minnie Menard, with two and Ike Hildebrand and Davy Jones tallied for Belleville.

MacPHEE, GRIGG LEAD

Doug MacPhee and Reg Grigg paced Cornwall Sunday with two goals each, singles coming from Bob Leger, Moe Savard and George Aitken. Bucky Buchanan and Jim Maxwell scored for Pembroke.

Big Four Semi Set for Nov. 13

TORONTO (CP)—The Big Four football sudden-death semi-final game, Wednesday, Nov. 13 will be played at night if it is held in Hamilton or Ottawa and during the afternoon if it is in Montreal, it was announced today.

Bob Moran, league president, said after a league executive meeting that the game will start at 7 p.m. EST if it is played in Hamilton or Ottawa and the game will be televised, starting at 7:30 p.m.

The semi-final will be played on the home field of the team finishing second. In the case of a tie for first or second place the best scoring record in the games played between the clubs will determine the order of finish.

Dutchies Edge Golden Bears

SARNIA (CP) — Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen moved into first place in the Ontario Rugby Football Union Senior series with a 16-14 victory Saturday night over Sarnia Golden Bears before about 2,000 fans.

The Dutchmen lead London Lords by one point and are four up on the third-place Bears. The Dutchmen play the winless Beaches in Toronto Tuesday night and the Bears are in London Wednesday night.

Tex Robinson, formerly with Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four, scored both Kitchener touchdowns. Ray Norcia kicked one convert and a 15-yard field goal in the third quarter. Dick Gregory and Tom Dwinnell scored Sarnia touchdowns, both converted by Gene Lekenta.

Sarnia made 19 first downs against 15 for Kitchener. Sarnia quarterback Gene Rossi completed 18 of 28 passes attempts and had one intercepted while Kitchener quarter Bob Celeri threw seven passes and completed three.

The Bears weakened when end Bob Sokol, tackle Walt Jenkins and halfback Dick Dixon left the game with leg injuries.

Eskimos Muffle Lions' Roar As Stamps Beaten by Saskys

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Calgary Stampeders will be in the Western Conference playoffs this year for the first time since 1952. But all the credit goes to Edmonton Eskimos.

When the third - place Stamps lost 33-14 to the tail-end Saskatchewan Roughriders at Regina Saturday, it brought the Calgary record to five straight defeats in which they have been outscored nearly five to one.

B.C. Lions had been closing the gap with only one loss in five starts. But Eskimos muffled the Lions' roar Saturday with a 29-0 whipping, and Lions were left a hopeless three points behind Calgary with just one game remaining.

Stampeders will meet Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the semi-finals Nov. 9 and 11. Eskimos have a bye into the best-of-three finals which start Nov. 16.

THREE GAMES LEFT

Three remaining games will have no effect on WIFU standings. Stampeders and Bombers clash at Winnipeg tonight and the schedule closes Saturday with Edmonton at Regina and Winnipeg at Vancouver.

The Edmonton fans didn't see much of Eskimos' razzle-dazzle. Jackie Parker called a cautious game as Eskimos scored determined to avoid injuries.

Normie Kwong, Johnny Bright and Jim Shipka scored Eskimo majors. Joe Mobra kicked two field goals, two singles and three converts.

MARLOW SHOWS WAY

At Regina, fullback Bobby Marlow had a cast on his broken hand, but scored three touchdowns and ripped holes in the Calgary line consistently.

Halfback Sam Westley scored the other Rider touchdown and guard Reg Whitehouse converted all four. A safety touch and two singles provided the other four Rider points.

Riders won the game along the ground, moving 299 yards to Calgary's 42. Calgary quarters Ron Clinkscales and Nodoy Wirkowski completed 16 of 32 passes for 281 yards, but six of their forwards were intercepted.

U.S. TOPS RUSSIA

RIO de JANEIRO (Reuters)—A United States team won the women's world basketball championship Saturday night, defeating Russia 51-48.

SPORT IN BRIEF

ENGLISH WIN TROPHY

HARRISBURG, Pa. (CP)—An English equestrian team won the International jumping competition trophy at the Pennsylvania National Horse Show Saturday. Paced by the perfect performance of Dawn Palethorpe, riding Earlsrath Rambler, the English team had a total of 105 points for the 11 events.

Second was the United States team with 88 points. Mexico was third with 54. Canada was seventh with nine points.

GRAND PRIX TO BEHRA

CASABLANCA, Morocco (AP) Jean Behra of France, driving a Maserati, won the Grand Prix of Morocco Sunday. World champion Juan Manuel Fangio of Argentina, competing despite a high fever, finished fourth.

Over the 260.3-mile course Behra averaged 111 miles an hour. He finished 38 seconds ahead of Britain's Lewis Evans, who drove a Vanwall. Maurice Trintignant of France was third in BRM.

BRAVES CLEAN HOUSE

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Milwaukee Braves Saturday fired three of their four coaches.

Bob Keeley, manager Fred Haney's bullpen coach and general handyman, was retained. Dismissed were Connie Ryan, Charlie Root and Johnny Riddle.

Hired were Whitlow Wyatt, dropped recently by Philadelphia Phillies, and John Fitzpatrick, a coach with Hollywood in the Pacific Coast League last season.

OWNER DIES AT GAME

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Tony Morabito, 67, principal owner of the San Francisco 49ers, died in hospital Sunday shortly after suffering a heart attack in the Kezar Stadium press box during a National League football game between the 49ers and Chicago Bears. He had suffered from a heart trouble for years.

STOCK DRIVER KILLED

MEXICO AIR CHANCES

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP)—Mexico won the North American zone elimination series and qualified to compete in the world soccer cup finals in Stockholm in 1958 by tying Costa Rica 1-1 Sunday. At Buenos Aires, Argentina qualified to represent South America at Stockholm, downing Bolivia, 4-0.

HEADED STANDARD PAVING

TORONTO (CP)—George Gates Robinson, 66, president of Standard Paving and Materials Limited, died suddenly Friday. He lived in Weedsport, N.Y. He was past president of Ontario Road Builders and Canadian Construction Associations.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

When a palooka makes a wrong play he is a poor bridge player. When the same thing is done by a master he has made a bad guess. As in this world championship deal number 151:

NORTH
♥ A 4 3 2
♦ K J 8 7 4 3
♣ Q 10 6

WEST
♠ J 10 4
♥ K J 8 6
♦ Q 10 9
♣ K 5 4

EAST
♠ A 9 7 6 5
♥ 7
♦ 6 2
♣ 9 8 7 3 2

SOUTH
♠ K Q 8 3 2
♥ Q 10 9 5
♣ A J

In both rooms, south became the declarer at four hearts. In each room the opening lead from west was the four of clubs. This is not a rule lead. It was not a good lead.

Against a suit contract, leading away from a side-suit king is most often undesirable. And, although most experts seem to do it, the bottom card lead from three is indefensible as a lead to partner.

The rule lead in this case would be the jack of spades. But with the club opening lead, declarer in each room won with the jack and in each case the queen of trumps was sent back.

Dummy captured the west king cover with trump ace and return trump was lost to west jack. A trump came back from west and went to south who cashed diamond ace and led a diamond.

Both rooms did it that way up there. In room one, dummy jack was finessed successfully and diamonds continued until west ruffed. In this way opponents got only two tricks and declarer took 11.

In room two, however, dummy did not finesse the diamond. It was taken with diamond king and a diamond return was ruffed by south. He then led a high spade, sluffing a dummy diamond, losing to east ace.

East returned a club and forced the south blanked ace. The south high spade was cashed and a spade was ruffed with the last dummy trump. But west took the two remaining tricks with a trump and club king.

Thus did opponents get a trump, a ruff, and a club; four tricks. This left only nine tricks for declarer and the contract there went down by one trick.

Masters often glue to their private point of view.

Alan Ladd's Lad David 10, Has Fat Part in Dad's Film

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—For years I have maintained a policy against interviewing child and animal actors. But I went and broke it for a second generation Ladd.

No, I was never bitten by baby LeRoy or Rin Tin Tin. But I have been bitten by non-responsive sessions with various moppets, horses and dogs. Hence the policy.

But the invitation to speak with David Ladd was persuasive. After all, the boy was playing his father Alan's son in The Proud Rebel. And not just a walk-on, but a fat part as a deaf mute.

And didn't the producer, Sam Goldwyn Jr., brag that the boy would be a star when the picture comes out? So we had lunch. David had a chocolate malt and cheese-burger. I had the willies.

UP ON WITH IT

"Let's get on with the interview," David suggested as he munched on the sandwich. "I want to see if you ask the same questions everyone else does."

"How did you get the role?

"Mr. Goldwyn sent for me. He saw me in The Big Land with my father and thought I could do this picture. I guess I think I wanted my dad to do this picture and he used me to help get him. So we had signed, I went with the deal."

David further revealed that he is 10, attends military academy, makes 90s in his grades, is on the swimming team.

GOES TO COLLEGE

"I go to college," he remarked. "Huh?"

"Yeah, I went to UCLA to learn the sign language for this picture. Well, let's get on with the interview. Why don't you write down notes?"

"I don't like to. How much do you get paid for this picture?"

"Thirty-five cents a day. How much do you get paid?"

"None of your business. I'm doing this interview."

"Then get on with it. I want to go for a bike ride around the studio."

DAD'S MOVIES BEST

"Do you like to see movies?"

"Some of them. I like dad's movies. They're always good. He never makes any bad ones. Why haven't you asked the question everyone asks?"

"Do you like being an actor?"

"That's not the question. Yes, like being an actor. But it's hard work."

"It looks easy."

"Yeah? It ain't as easy as being interviewer. All you gotta do is ask questions."

It struck me that the question he is always asked is: "Do you have any girl friends. "One," he said. "But you're not going to find out her name."

NBC's 'The Fabulous Infant' To Tell Story of Television

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—People occasionally ask why television doesn't turn its cameras on itself for a close look at the fabulous infant.

Operating under the "why not" theory, wide wide world (NBC-TV) will do exactly that Nov. 10 in a 90-minute program appropriately entitled The Fabulous Infant. It will take a look at the last 10 years of television, at its present and its future.

A feature of the show will be the return of "Mr. Television" himself, Milton Berle—not as a comedian, but as a serious commentator on the problems of television.

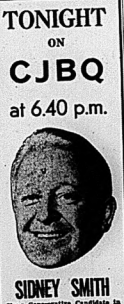
NETWORKS CO-OPERATE

"The program will be not a tribute to television, but the story of television," says Wide Wide World executive producer Barry Wood. Other major networks, CBS-TV and ABC-TV, have offered the fullest co-operation.

Thus the viewing audience will see in the opening segment of the program brief kinescopes of the TV stars of yesteryear.

It will in part answer the question of "what did television promise 10 years ago?"

SPOTLIGHT UNKNOWNS .....



To demonstrate that talent of the future is large measure depends on relatively unknown performers, cameras will turn to local performers in Omaha, Boston, San Francisco, Detroit, Chicago, Utah, and Springfield, Mo.

An interesting phenomenon of television performers—"the big break" will be seriously discussed by Ernie Kovacs who rose to popularity on the basis of a single half - hour program early years in the medium.

While the show will not stress the technical aspects of television, the people behind the cameras will be given their day before the cameras.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RICHTER

(Author of the new "Astrology and You")

The Stars Impel . . . They do not compel! What you make of your life is largely in you."

Monday, Oct. 28, 1957.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Argument brewing? Twist an issue-cisle and an officer could easily get you in the middle of it today. Endeavor to keep away from these individuals, and devote time to matters of importance with general public.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Disturbed individual may call or write from out of town unpleasantly and endeavor to rub your day's which calls for doing precision and exacting work. Rise above this quickly and remember that he or she is not responsible.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Display full thoughts of an unpleasant nature by being with happy, successful friends. Avoid the company of depressive accountants, or those who would make you gloomy. You know what you are doing. A day's respite from work will be good for you.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21) A conflict exists today between home life and an outside business interest. Endeavor to separate them or you stand to lose out in both spheres. Give fair attention to both and win out.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) In early A.M. make an outline of all duties for the day and follow religiously, or you will be unable to accomplish all indoor and door duties. Take care not to argue with people or you lose a great deal.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) Refrain from urge toward extravagance today. Content self with regular visit to beautician, barber, and be your best natty self. Later, conversing at length with vital person will prove very beneficial.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) Many constructive, fine plans are on your mind today, and your mind today, and your physical condition is tops — a splendid combination for immediate action. A close tie, new understanding, may try to stop you. Don't permit it.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 22) A private anxiety could easily drive you to harsh words with a partner who is just in the mood to lash back angrily. Don't take this out on innocent person but on offender. Use wisdom, control and patience.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A day for great fun and enjoyment with pals, but remember it is not necessary to go broke entertaining them. True devotion and kindred spirit of camaraderie is of far greater mutual value.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You are in quite a nervous state today over certain business differences and you want to lash out at the boss, other important people, rebel against civilized laws. Do your tasks better than usual instead and all is ok.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Refrain from frittering away this day; fiddling with this and that, bemoaning your fate because you cannot have certain things. " . . . seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you." Study newspaper.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) Determine to spend day talking with intelligent, successful friends or you will give in to the temptation to go running after the ephemeral, follow some foolish hunch and get yourself in a real pickle.

If your child is born today . . . The interesting child born today is the type who will seem quite unpredictable, since one second he or she will appear as weak as a kitten, and the next will roar like a lion. As early as possible, see that little duties are laid out for your child to perform, and you will have a happy child who evolves into a wonderful coach, sports writer, athlete, at maturity.

Little Benny's Notebook

I was taking a Saturday walk with pop, and we started to go past the art store, and I said, Cc pop, what's that suppose to be?

Meaning a picture in the window with a sine next to it saying On Display, Modern Paintings by Claraby Smith, and pop said, Well let me see, there seem to be several peculiar objects in it.

I said, What are they? I said, and pop said, That's not a fair question. In modern art the painter puts down what he happens to be feeling, not what he happens to be seeing, he said.

Then why dont they write what they're feeling at the top? I said, and pop said, Because if you appriciate modern art you're expected to feel the same way the artist felt, and then you'll know what the picture represents.

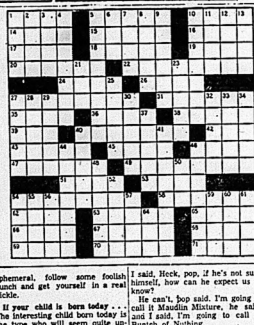
Which just then 2 men with paint pails and floppy neckties started to go in the art shop, and then said, I see they've put your best one in the window, Scarsby. What do you call that one, I forget, he said, and the other man said, I cant remember whether I named it Fruit in Search of a Season, or Dance of the Vegetables. Both names occurred to me, he said.

And they kept on going in, and I said, Heck, pop, if he's not sure himself, how can he expect us to know?

He can't, pop said. I'm going to call it Maudlin Mixture, he said, and I said, I'm going to call it Buntch of Nuthing.

And we kept on going feeling like modern artists.

PRINCE TOURS PLANT



DOUNREAY, Scotland (Reuters)—The security veil covering Britain's top-secret atomic plans was lifted for Prince Philip when he visited the nuclear experimental station here Friday. For four hours he toured plants and laboratories costing £20,000,000 and now nearing completion.

TYPHOON KILLS NINE

PARIS (AP)—A typhoon named Irma killed nine persons in central Viet Nam last week, Agence France - Presse reported today from Saigon.

PAINTING STOLEN

SWANSEA, Wales (Reuters)—Police today opened an investigation into the theft of Gustav Courbet's famous painting, Coast Scene with Cliffs and Breaking Waves, from its frame Friday at a local art gallery. The painting was part of a current exhibition of works by Daumier, Millet and Courbet.

MADOC

H-S Assoc. Enjoys Mexican Travelogue

MADOC — The October meeting of the Madoc Home and School Association was held on Monday evening in Grade 8 room of Madoc public school.

The regular business was conducted by the chairman, Wilfred Fairchild. The attendance banner was won by Mrs. Wagner's room, Grade 7. Plans were made for a home baking sale as a fund raising project, this to be held on November 16.

Mr. Forestell reported on the progress regarding the building of a new school and found it to be most encouraging.

Mr. Harold Brintnell introduced the guest speaker of the evening, Miss Marilyn Johnston, who spoke on her trip this past summer to Mexico as a representative of the Canadian Girl Guides at the opening of the International reset of Girl Guides throughout the world.

Miss Johnston showed some views of the Mexican people and also showed a series of colored slides, which were interesting.

Appreciation for her comments, pictures and narration to her being one of the two chosen to represent Canada, is credit to her for her diligence to Girl Guide work and a credit to her family, and community was expressed by Mrs. Greg Murray as she thanked Miss Johnston on behalf of the Home and School Association.

A social hour completed the evening.

BELIEVE ZHUKOV

Sir David Kelly, British ambassador to Moscow from 1949 to 1951, told The Sunday Times in London:

"Even if Marshal Zhukov is not in quite disgrace, his removal from the military command is a most serious step for Khrushchev to have taken."

Moscow radio broadcast an editorial by Communist party boss Khrushchev, appealing for Soviet unity. A similar exhortation by the Communist Daily Worker said the central committee of the Soviet Communist party had decided to discuss Zhukov's removal today.

"While there is no official or even unofficial information available," The Daily Worker said, it seemed Zhukov was not slated for promotion."

COMMUNISTS CONFUSED

Other Communist newspapers in east Europe took the line that Zhukov will receive another high post, but the Moscow correspondent of L'Humanite, organ of the French party, appeared to retreat somewhat from this interpretation.

In dispatch from the French correspondent, Pierre Henigen, said "there is every reason to believe" Zhukov is taking up other important tasks. He hinted the marshal is being delegated to arrange genuine talks between top Soviet leaders and his wartime friend, President Eisenhower.

Moscow correspondent B. J. Cutler reported in the New York Herald Tribune that there is speculation among foreign diplomats in Moscow that Zhukov will become deputy premier.

In Washington, officials were especially interested to the fact that the marshal was removed while he was out of the country. This was interpreted as evidence he had been downgraded, possibly in a swift move to prevent him from using the military forces to save himself.

RECORD QUAKE

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—University of California recorded a sharp earthquake, probably in the Pacific Ocean, at 12:17 a.m. PST Friday. It appeared to centre about 4,000 miles northwest of Berkeley.

ROSSMORE

W.A. Sponsors Successful Bazaar, Tea

ROSSMORE — The Rossmore W.A. sponsored a successful bazaar and tea Wednesday afternoon at Tobe's County Gardens. Enticing home cooking and candy sold steadily during the afternoon.

The apron table was laden with aprons of gaily colored prints for everyday use, as well as those for party use, and tiny ones for the little Miss.

Fancy work and novelties and articles suitable for Christmas gifts were artfully displayed at another table.

The tea table was covered with a lace cloth, centred with bronze dahlias and white 'mums. Silver tea services graced either ends. The small tables looked festive with their gay cloths, pinks, and tiny 'mums. Tea and fancy sandwiches and small cakes were served during the afternoon by the tea hostess and assistants.

A most happy afternoon was enjoyed by a goodly crowd and many prizes were awarded. The door prize, a lovely TV lamp, was won by Mrs. Mason from the grocery basket, by Mrs. Harold Potter and the doll and wardrobe by Mrs. Dorothy Heaven; the set of glasses by Mrs. Nellie Alyea.

Madoc

MADOC — Mr. Garnet Tufts of Vanscoy, spent a few days in Madoc, visiting his sister, Mrs. Jim Bird and cousin, Harry Tufts.

Mrs. Saunders of Moncton, N.B., spent a few days with Mrs. Irene Crawford.

Rev. M. W. Heslip is a patient in Belleville General Hospital. Mr. Phillip Gowsell is acting for him a speedy recovery.

Mrs. Walter Whytock is spending a few weeks in Toronto with her daughter, Mrs. Noble, Mr. Noble and family.

WELLINGTON

The monthly meeting of the Federated Women's Institute of Women Teachers was held on Tuesday evening at the Cold Creek School. Mrs. Velma Matthews was hostess, and her school room, well decorated with autumn and Thanksgiving motifs, was a fitting place to hold the October meeting.

The meeting was called to order by the new president, Mrs. Gladys McFaul, who spoke briefly, greeting those present.

NEW OFFICERS

The slate of new officers was read: president, Mrs. G. McFaul; past president, Mrs. V. Matthews; vice president, Mrs. A. Shannon; secretary - treasurer, Miss I. Stark; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Wallis; convener of finance, Mrs. M. Branscombe; research, Mrs. Spencer; superannuation, Miss V. Wallace; visitors, Mrs. R. Gough; goodwill, Mrs. McKay.

The president's bulletin was discussed by Mrs. McFaul. This included mainly the death of the executive secretary of the F.W.T.A.O., Mrs. Helen Keefer, and the fall conference to be held in Brighton. Mrs. McFaul and Mrs. Taft will be the delegates to that conference.

Mrs. G. McFaul and Mrs. J. Mayhew gave a summary of the annual meeting which they attended in August.

The meeting was then turned over to the hostess, who in turn introduced Mrs. Walter Hind. Mrs. Nind gave a short talk and showed films of Norway House, in Manitoba. Here, she visited her daughter, Mrs. John Murie, and took films of the life of the Indians on the government reservation there.

The pictures showed the work and a few of the white missionaries, doctors and Mounties, the churches and their congregations and a general look at the wonderful but rugged scenery.

Mrs. Nind was thanked by Mrs. Hall.

Light refreshments of tea and other delicacies were served by the ladies committee.

Since November meeting is a joint meeting to be held in Bloomfield, the next regular meeting of the Wellington unit will be held in December at Mrs. Redner's school.

STUDENTS? HA!

GARY, Ind. (AP)—The Indiana University extension centre here mailed cards to its students asking: "What do you think the effect of Sputnik will be on America's future?" Ten per cent of the first- and second-year college students answered they didn't know Russia had launched a "moon" satellite.

Man Can Now Split Atom But Deep Inside He Still Believes in Devils, Witchery

By JOY MILLER
Associated Press Staff Writer

Beneath modern man's synthetic suit beats a heart as fearing and credulous as his medieval ancestor's. He can split the atom, but often as not, deep inside he still believes in devils.

Science, though, has given him a veneer of nonchalance in the face of the unknown.

Now he reads detailed symptoms in the newspapers and takes his aches and pains to a doctor. Seldom does he blame his malingering on an old crone sticking pins in a waxen image.

On Halloween, instead of barring their doors against hellish shapes abroad that night, our enlightened adults send their children forth to mock them.

TORTURED TO DEATH

Today not many people with hex appeal are consigned to the flames for trafficking with Satan. But in Europe from the 15th to the 18th centuries 300,000 to several million accused witches—like tenants vary — were burned, boiled, drowned, hanged, strangled, flayed alive and tortured to death.

Admittedly, we have made progress.

Many a modern, fingering the rabbit's foot in his pocket as he talks, will insist witchcraft has died out altogether, except perhaps for voodoo among remote, primitive peoples.

The truth seems to be however that the darkest practices of black magic have gone underground in civilized societies, leaving exposed on the surface a scattering of apparently harmless superstitions.

These superstitions range the length and breadth of the world, adapting themselves, chameleon-like, to local conditions and fears. Probably no one is entirely free of them, so much a part of our daily lives have they grown.

You know the kind: Spilled salt tossed over the shoulder, planting according to phases of the moon, the horseshoe over the barn door.

In fact, so socially acceptable have such hyproducts of the black arts become that they've been lumped together by anthropologists and writers on local color under the term folklore—about which the unkindest word said these days is "quaint."

Some unconverging critics decry spiritualism and the various methods of foretelling the future —by cards, palms, stars and crystal balls—as modern black magic. But practitioners of these skills include sincere students of the occult as well as the more publicized charlatans.

PRACTICE SPREADING

Robert Fahlan, former inspector of Scotland Yard and thus well acquainted with diabolical doings in London's back alleys, says the practice of black magic is spreading rapidly and that there is more active satan worship today than in the dark ages.

Voodoo, an African fetish religion, spread to Haiti and around the world. In the United States it crop, up in sections of the south, in the poorer districts of large cities, among some uneducated peoples.

Police are familiar with the voodoo conjer bag—containing a mixture of powerful devil-repellants such as graveyard dirt, hair, parts of animals, perhaps human fat — worn around the necks of various petty criminals they've arrested.

In New York City's Harlem, specialists in either putting on hexes, or curses, or taking them off do a brisk trade.

ONE KILLED IN CRASH

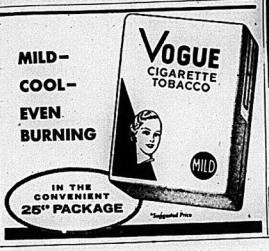
PORT COLBORNE (CP)—Raymond A. Minor, 62, was killed and Rusty Wagner, 29, severely injured Friday when the car in which they were riding left the road and piled into a tree.

Hog Assembly Points Opposed

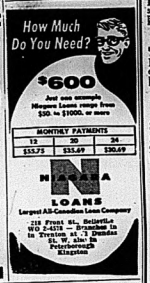
GUELPH (CP) — Albert Cormack, past president of the Ontario Farmers Union, Thursday described as misleading a statement that hogs had been penned up during a price drop spell.

The statement, made by a union delegate to a convention at Ontario Agricultural College earlier this week, said 3,000 hogs had been penned in an Ontario hog board assembly point at Kitchener.

It was made during discussion on a resolution calling for the ending of all assembly points in Ontario.



Mr. Cormack said the statement was not made by an official or executive of the union. He said the union favors hog marketing schemes, but does not agree with the assembly points.



Statements made during the heat of a debate, he said, do not necessarily have the official sanction of the union.

Assembly point officials in Kitchener denied hogs had been held longer than one night.

TRIO REMANDED

TORONTO (CP) — Magistrate C. A. Thorburn Friday remanded until Nov. 1 three men separately charged with the murder of Ling Lee, a Toronto laundry - owner. Crown counsel J. B. Gallbraith said the three, William Fredericks, 27, Ronald Carriere, 35, and Glenville Allen, 20, will be jointly charged with the crime. Allen was arrested in Niagara Falls, Ont., Thursday.

FARM-AID STILL AWAITS APPROVAL OF PARLIAMENT

Two Days of Debate Fails to Bring Vote

OTTAWA (CP) — Government legislation to provide cash advances on farm-stored Prairie grain still awaits Commons approval after two days of debate, despite general approval from all parties and an "emergency-rush" label placed on it by the Progressive Conservatives.

Two cabinet ministers and an ex-minister spent a good part of Monday and Tuesday debating whether it is a better solution to the West's grain surplus problem than the two-year-old Liberal program of government-guaranteed bank loans.

The debate continues today.

Former Liberal agriculture minister James G. Gardiner said that while he supports the cash advances scheme he doesn't think it will do any more for farmers than the Liberal plan of bank loans on farm stored Prairie grain.

CONCEDES NO INTEREST

"This in principle is the same," he said, though conceding the government pays no interest. The banks could charge five per cent under the bank loan plan.

Agriculture Minister Harkness said the new scheme will pump between $100,000,000 and $150,000,000 into the Prairie farm economy. It would cost the treasury between $2,250,000 and $3,500,000 to absorb interest charges.

Resources Minister Alvin Hamilton said the bank loans plan had placed only $8,000,000 in circulation on the Prairies. Cash advances would be "the fundamental reforms" needed to cope with the current revolution in the Prairie agriculture.

There are indications the cash advances bill will delay other less major hurdles toward passage. If it does, the government has promised further debate on the measure to increase old age pensions and associated social welfare payments.

BOTH EMERGENCY

Prime Minister Diefenbaker has described both measures as emergency ones. The Conservative leader has traditionally occupies the opening days of a session, has been adjourned as we do and doesn't want to face the music."

Under the advances plan, farmers can collect up to $3,000 against farm-stored grain on the first 100,000 bushels for each delivery-quota acre, at 50 cents a bushel for wheat, 40 cents for oats and 35 cents for barley.

St. Laurent Denies Liberals Made Any 'Deal' With Massey

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker has severely criticized Rt. Hon. James G. Gardiner for linking Governor-General Massey to the Liberals' current Commons support of the new Progressive Conservative government.

Mr. Diefenbaker used blunt words on the former agriculture minister Monday after Opposition Leader St. Laurent denied in the Commons that Mr. Gardiner's remarks meant the Liberals had made a "deal" with the Governor General when giving up office last June.

"There never was any question of any bargain being made between the Governor-General and Mr. St. Laurent.

Mr. Diefenbaker said: "I am sure we welcome the explanation of the Leader of the Opposition. But it is not sufficient."

Mr. Gardiner's reference to the Governor-General "was designed clearly and to definitely that the explanation of the leader of the Opposition does not meet the situation."

The prime minister added:

"However, I am pleased to have his assurances in this regard, which are entirely consistent because there was no representation made to me of any such thing either by him or anyone else. I formed the government and we are free to act on such assurances (of Liberal support.)

"But to use the Governor-General's name as an explanation for a course of action difficult to explain will also be equally inexplicable."

Another point, while Mr. Gardiner listened in silence, Mr. Diefenbaker said:

"There should not have been any mention of the Governor-General in this House. That is the first principle of parliamentary government.

"I refrained from saying anything at the time because—well, I was shocked by the statement that was made."

Both Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. St. Laurent referred to a Commons speech by Mr. Gardiner, MP for Melville, Sask., in the House last week. The Opposition leader quoted this sentence of the former agriculture minister's speech:

"When the government of the day (the Liberals) found it necessary to give assurances to the Governor - General, those assurances, of course, were given: 'To the effect that we would carry on in such a manner as to make it possible for the new government to have sufficient support in the House to be able to place their policies before the people of this country and carry on from there.'"

Mr. St. Laurent also read this excerpt from a letter written by Montreal Star Leslie Roberts published in Monday's Montreal Gazette:

SEN. FOURNIER ELECTED MAYOR OF MONTREAL

Civic Action League Elects 33 Members

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal hailed a new mayor today in Senator Sarto Fournier, 63, a lawyer whose third attempt was successful Monday as he narrowly defeated reform incumbent Jean Drapeau in voting both peaceful and heavy.

The senator gained the $18,500 mayor's post while his Greater Montreal Rally supporters—united only recently on anti-administration sentiment—trailed in the council posts also contested.

Mr. Drapeau's Civic Action League, seeking a second three-year mandate to continue a "policy of morality cleanup," elected 33 to the rally's 20. There were 12 Independents named.

But it was anticipated the new mayor could canvass sufficient support for council control from among the Independents, or Civic-Independent candidates.

APPOINTS COMMITTEE

The 99 - member council appoints the powerful six-man executive committee of which the mayor is an ex-officio member.

Senator Fournier defeated Mr. Drapeau, a tenacious, slight fellow lawyer of 49, by about 4,000 votes. The actual count when polls closed Monday night was 72,729 to 68,729 with six of 1,547 polls to come.

Mr. Drapeau's chief ally, Lucien Cardarais, was elected but Lucien Croteau, the new mayor's chief opponent, was not.

It appeared that the new administration would be "errand a driving force" behind the city and Premier Duplessis, who has been at loggerheads with Mr. Drapeau.

The result also indicated that metropolitan government would come more quickly for greater Montreal's suburban districts.

Fournier was a main campaign plank of Mayor Fournier and it had been labelled by Mr. Duplessis as a "must" for Montreal. Reverse l imes as a necessity regardless of Monday's result.

HIGH PERCENTAGE

More Montrealers than ever before voted Monday with 340,000 persons eligible and about 163,000 balloting. But the percentage of about 48 per cent was far below the 1954 record of 51 per cent. Then there were 151,257 ballots cast.

Soviet Leaders Believed Locked In Power Battle

Zhukov May Have Gained Supporters in Struggle

Lands Plane On City Street To Ask His Way

LONDON (AP) — Leaders of the Soviet Union were believed locked today in a showdown battle over power and policy touched off by the decision to fire Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov.

The central committee of the Communist party, which has been meeting off and on ever since Zhukov was ousted Saturday, had been expected to make an important announcement this morning.

Reports reaching London indicated that it would tell 72-year-old Zhukov even the 15-man party Presidium, its all-powerful Politburo of which he became a full member only four months ago.

But both Moscow radio and the Moscow press remained silent. Hints filtered through censorship in the Soviet capital that the committee still was grappling with its problems after an all-night session.

Senior editors of Moscow newspapers were called Monday to a conference at which Western observers believe they were briefed on the expected announcement.

WITHOUT WORD

All the papers went to press this morning, however, with no mention of either Zhukov or the central committee meeting.

This was taken in some quarters as an indication that Zhukov had marshalled unexpected strength to resist the move to bring him under control over the Soviet military machine.

The Communist Daily Worker in London said in a dispatch from its Moscow correspondent that it might be possible with the party rulers by hindering the work of party commissars in the army ranks. These are the party appointees who keep tabs on army personnel independent of the military command.

The dispatch said before announcing the decision to take the defence ministry away from Zhukov and appointing Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev outlined his complaint against him at a meeting of Communist party organizations attended by leading Soviet army officers.

The Daily Worker correspondent would have access to information not available to other Western newspaper men. The wording of some of the story suggested it came from an official source.

IMPOSES CENSORSHIP

During the night Moscow censors imposed a complete censorship on dispatches of three-hour period on Western correspondents in the Soviet capital.

When it was finally possible to get through by telephone to London just before dawn, the correspondents were able to say little except that the story suggested it came from an official source.

Corridor Diplomats Waiting For Russian Stand on Syria

Mink Collars For Golf Tees His Invention

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Gene Zeller, who is in the fur business, has formed a company to promote golf tees covered with mink.

He adorns the tees with miniature collars of mink, attaching the fur with cement. Zeller says they will stand the impact of a misdirected five iron.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) — Corridor diplomacy in the United Nations on the Syrian - Turkish Middle East dispute went into abeyance today pending Russia's re-entry into the General Assembly debate.

Meanwhile, Foreign Minister Andre Gromyko's second major assembly speech in the current controversy was awaited — particularly by advocates of the Syrian idea of a UN commission of investigation — for latest solid word on the Eastern position.

This followed a busy period Monday during which some of the middle powers, including Canada, were reported working on terms of reference by which the assembly could intervene without appearing to support the Russian and Syrian contention that a major crisis exists because of Turkey's concentration of force on her southern frontier with Syria.

U.S. STEPS OUT

The United States has stepped out of the picture as far as official motions in the assembly are concerned, but has been available—reported encouraging a number of smaller states to continue in making the first move.

The apparent reason for this is that the U.S. now may feel that any American-proposed settlement idea might line up the Arab members of the assembly against it.

Minister of State Allan Noble of Britain accused the Soviet Union Monday for "trying to create a war scare, beating its drum, their ends by every mischievous and dangerous means short of war."

"Nobody believes that Turkey is going to attack Syria," he said.

Turkey has said repeatedly reiterated that Syria's fears are groundless. If Turkish forces in the north-east are to be reinforced, says the Ankara delegation, it is in connection with the north atlantic treaty manoeuvres in the eastern Mediterranean.

FIRST PLANE

WINDSOR (CP) — The first Trans-Canada Airlines plane to leave Windsor airport on a cross-Canada route, a Viscount, left Sunday with 44 passengers. Flight-Lieut. of the passengers, including Mayor Patrick Patrick and his wife and the air line President, G. R. McGregor, were special guests. The passenger was to deliver gifts for the mayors of Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary and Vancouver while making stops there.

Price Increases Announced for All GM Lines

DETROIT (AP) — Price increases ranging from two per cent in the Oldsmobile line to $27 per cent for Pontiac were announced Monday by the various U.S. General Motors car divisions for 1958 model automobiles.

Chevrolet's, GM's No. 1 sellers, will cost an average of 4.5 per cent more.

In Oshawa, a General Motors spokesman declined to say whether new Canadian car prices will be higher than those for last year's models.

But in Toronto E. G. Pigott, president of Pigott Motors, said the price of some Buick models will go up from $144 to $198, and H. Stein, secretary-treasurer of Plaza Chevrolet, said Chevrolet prices are up about five per cent.

Expected in Dec.

LONDON (AP) — Diplomatic sources here said Monday President Eisenhower and Mrs. Eisenhower are expected here in December for a return visit to Queen Elizabeth.

The president may come to London en route to the NATO meeting in Paris in mid-December, these sources said.

Announcement of the Eisenhower visit here is being delayed for purely formal reasons, the sources said.

The Queen and Prince Philip returned last Tuesday from a visit to Canada and the United States.

B.C. Slander Suit Dismissed Corruption Probe Demanded

VANCOUVER (CP)—A slander suit brought by a former Social Credit forests minister was thrown out of court Monday but the government's political opponents let it be known they're not going to allow the charges of bribery and corruption to die.

Robert E. Sommers sued Vancouver lawyer David Sturdy for slander for statements he made before a royal commission on forest industry management.

Mr. Justice J. V. Clyne dismissed the case with Mr. Sommers failed Monday, for the fourth time, to appear in Supreme Court.

Thomas Dohm, Mr. Sturdy's lawyer, said Mr. Sommers had decided he did not want to go ahead with the 22-month-old case, "that the matter be allowed to rest."

Mr. Dohm told the court, that the reason is that Mr. Sommers knows as much about this as we do and doesn't want to face

Dismissal of the action meant that Mr. Dohm couldn't read the evidence he asked to be submit. He said the evidence would have no other interpretation but that Mr. Sommers was guilty of "a crime of bribery and corruption." The commission on which Mr. Sturdy's case was based were filed with the Supreme Court registrar.

The leaders of the B.C. legislature's three opposition parties made demands for an immedi-ate judicial inquiry to decide whether Mr. Sommers accepted bribes in exchange for forest management licences.

Identical demands were made for a judicial inquiry were made by Opposition Leader Robert Strachan, CCF leader, Liberal Leader Arthur Laing, and Deane Finlayson, Progressive Conservative chief.

If an inquiry proved the charges against Mr. Laing said, it would be necessary to prosecute any logging firms implicated and to bring forward deep management licences.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett, Attorney-General Robert Bonner and Mr. Sommers are equally guilty, Mr. Strachan said, because now "it appears the libel suit was merely a stalling procedure to stall an impartial investigation."

Premier Bennett said in Victoria he had "no comment on the matter at all" and rescheduled his usual Monday press conference for afternoon.

The whereabouts of Mr. Sommers for the past two months remains a mystery. He resigned his cabinet post 19 days before he showed himself to the lawsuit. He was re-elected as member for Alberni-Qualicum in the landslide Social Credit election of September, 1956.

James Proudfoot, of Victoria, Mr. Sommers' lawyer, said he hadn't seen his client since July 24 when he said he was sick and leaving to take a rest.

Bomb Hurled Into Parliament At Jerusalem

JERUSALEM (Reuters) A bomb was hurled into parliament building tonight and shots were reports said Foreign Minister Golda Meier and Minister of Religious Affairs Moshe Shapior were slightly injured.

The bomb said the bomb thrower was detained.

The bomb was thrown on the anniversary of the Kafr Kassim massacre in which 49 Arab villagers were killed by Israeli border police.

Lone Survivor Of Massey Crash Is Recovering

MASSEY, Ont. (CP)—Hospital authorities Monday night said Ivan Obernick is recovering from injuries suffered in the crash that killed his wife, two children and three miners.

Condition of the 29-year-old truckdriver from Sudbury, Ont., was described as "improving." He has a broken arm and perhaps a fractured spine.

Mrs. Obernick, 31, and the two children, Barbara, 19 months, and Hockey, nine months, are to be buried Thursday in Massey. Four other Obernick children are staying with grandparents.

The bodies of Bernard Harquail, 35, and John P. Thompson, 28, were to be buried today in their families in Campbellton, N.B., and that of Jack Riching, 31, in Gore Bay Ont. All three men were uranium miners at Milliken Lake, 30 miles northwest of here.

Police are awaiting the recovery of Obernick to learn the cause of the two-car, head-on crash Sunday on a straight and clear section of Highway 17 near this community, 53 miles west of Sudbury.

Queen Expresses Thanks for UN Welcome

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Queen Elizabeth Monday expressed "sincere thanks" for her welcome a week ago when she and Prince Philip visited the United Nations.

A letter to Sir Leslie Munro of New Zealand, president of the General Assembly, from Sir Michael Adeane, the Queen's private secretary, said the Queen and Prince "were deeply interested in their visit and "glad to have been able to see the UN in its permanent and splendid home."

"They hope that you will tell the representatives of the United Nations and also the members of the staff, how much they enjoyed their visit and how pleased they were to meet so many of them personally," Sir Michael wrote.

DOG SAVES CRIPPLE

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — A pet dog saved his semi-paralyzed master from a fire Sunday night. Dr. A. M. Cartier, 37, a retired physician, escaped injury. He said he dozed while watching television and was awakened when Johnny, his doberman, pulled at his leg. The dog dragged Cartier off a burning couch and neighbors completed his rescue.

Queen's Grenadier Guards Retreat From Brink of War With Irate Boys

WINDSOR, England (AP)—The battalion of the Queen's Grenadier Guards drew back today from the brink of war with 40 angry Cockneys.

And Michael Bosles, 14 - year-old leader of the Bachelor's Acre Bonfire Gang, withdrew the battle men who picketed Victoria Barracks Monday with signs saying "You rotters, you set fire to our bonfire," and "Down with the guards!"

The situation was still tense but improving.

Bachelor's Acre, a park in the centre of Windsor, is the site of a huge bonfire each Nov. 5, memorializing the Guy Fawkes plot to blow up the Houses of Parliament in 1605. The Acre bonfire gang had been gathering material for weeks. By Sunday, it had grown to a towering 20 feet high.

Sunday night somebody burned it down.

Residents passed the word they were not in the guards uniform tossing matches at the pile.

The bonfire gang immediately organized for battle.

As the guard marched to Windsor Castle Monday, boys along the route displayed placards with such sentiments as "To hades with the guards" and "Grenadiers, you ought to be ashamed of yourselves."

Steals Plane for Suicide Plunge Into Pacific 100 Miles off Seattle

SEATTLE (AP) — A coast guard cutter, hampered by rain and low visibility, today sought the wreckage of a stolen plane whose pilot believed he was making a suicide dive into the Pacific 100 miles off the Washington coast.

The plane, a rebuilt Stinson, was stolen Monday from Boeing Field here. It buzzed downtown office buildings and a Puget Sound ferry, then headed west and disappeared in the clouds.

Last heard from the pilot, who identified himself as "J. A. Greenawalt of Seattle," was a radio message about 9:45 a.m. PST that he was "taking this way out" to solve recent mental depression.

Civil Aeronautics Administration officials said a military radar station had spotted the plane going down from 31,000 feet. Greenawalt's wife and two children are believed to be living in Fairbanks, Alaska. Officials in the Seattle air control centre, where Greenawalt used to work, said he was 22.

Says Mortgage Regulations To Be Relaxed

TORONTO (CP) — Harry J. Long, immediate past president of the National Home Builders Association, said Monday night he had been told the federal government will relax mortgage regulations Friday.

Mr. Long said the regulations would apply only to homes to be built in the future not to those under construction or completed.

Mr. Long said in an iterview following a meeting of the Toronto Metropolitan Home Builders Association that if the government goes ahead with the plan, it will mean the type of homes now just outside the budget of prospective home buyers would be within reach because the buyers could then qualify in a lower income bracket.

The maximum limit of a National Housing Act mortgage now is 90 per cent of the value of the house. Mr. Long said the proposed change will mean a total of 95 per cent of the value would be advanced for a house sold with an NHA mortgage.

$50,000 IN GEMS STOLEN

NEW YORK (AP)—A tray of 15 diamond rings worth $50,000 vanished Monday from a showcase in a busy midtown jewelry exchange. Clerk Morris Zanger said he had replaced the tray about 10 minutes before a young woman asked to see an engagement ring. When he went to get the tray again, it was gone.

Basic Principles Of Navigation Not Changed

Changes in navigation techniques over the Atlantic by aircraft from the early days of trial-and-error to the present day exacting methods using pressure patterns and radar were described briefly at Rotary luncheon by Donald C. Willis, assistant chief navigator of Trans-Canada Airlines, Montreal.

Mr. Willis, a veteran of World War II since the saw action in the Far East with the Royal Air Force, has been with TCA since 1946 when he came to Canada from his birthplace, England.

The basic principles of navigating the Atlantic Ocean have not changed since Alcock and Brown first blazed that blustery trail many years ago. But the advances in this science are remarkable. New electronic apparatus and the invention of LORAN (long range aid to navigation) radar have, in a sense, decreased the navigator's work and placed a far greater demand for accuracy and speed on him. Nowadays trans-Atlantic aircraft navigators must constantly check the atmosphere for the slightest change in wind velocity and direction, changing climatic conditions and shifting of the earth on its axis in relation to the stars or sun.

NAVIGATOR IN CHARGE

While the pilots aboard an airliner are responsible for the safety of everyone on board and perform the physical functions of operating the plane, it is up to the navigator to inform the pilots of all changes in weather conditions or variations from the plane's intended track through the sky.

Praising the efficiency of North Star aircraft, the speaker remarked that the fast and efficient trans-oceanic hop in one of these four-engined planes would allow an automobile to travel across Canada 30 times. Cost of keeping a North Star in service is staggering, while the cost of keeping the larger and more powerful Super Constellations in service amounts to about $10 an hour. And when TCA inaugurates trans-Atlantic flights in DC-8s a few years from now, these aircraft will cost the company about $95 an hour to remain in service.

Willis cited safety, comfort and efficiency as TCA's main interests.

He remarked that Russia's launching of "Sputnik" a few weeks ago "exchanged many concepts" about aviation and hoped that now would arise a will to take advantage of these changes to improve his lot.

The speaker was introduced by Frank Murray and thanked by L. N. (Len) Gilchrist.

Local Hungarian Patriots Honor Fallen Comrades

A meeting of the local refugees from Hungary was held in St. Michael's auditorium on Saturday to commemorate the uprising in their country one year ago. About seventy-five attended, and while many happy reunions were witnessed mixed with feelings of sadness for the beloved friends and relatives who unfortunately were unable to escape from the land of their birth and were doomed to stay under the oppression of the communists.

Mr. Jeno Fulop acted as chairman and several recitations were rendered by Miss Judy Fulop and Mr. Jeno Fulop Jr.

The chairman in his address stated that this was not a day of celebration, but rather a day for prayer and remembrance for the brave people who gave their all for the country they loved.

He urged his countrymen to be ever mindful of the obligation to resist on them as emissaries of Hungary to tell the world of the debasement of the communism as witnessed by them and to offer advice to all people not to be misled by the false doctrines and propaganda that seem to be Russia's great weapon.

ALWAYS BE GRATEFUL

"Let us also be ever grateful" said Mr. Fulop, "to the Canadian government and the wonderful kindhearted Canadian people who unselfishly opened the doors of freedom for us enter and to enjoy the hospitalities that are offered to the people of their own country.

"We must prove our gratitude to the people of this land by hard working diligently, conforming with the forces of law and order at all times, and by taking special interest in everything that is patriotic and helpful to betterment of this wonderful country.

"For the land of our birth, I remember that we must hope and pray very hard that the yoke of the oppression will be lifted from our people and may God help them in their suffering," he concluded.

Mr. Thomas Kemeny in his address stated: "Most of us have found in this new land nearly one year . . . this great land where we have enough freedom privilege of one day becoming a citizen in what is truly the home of democracy."

"On that day we will proudly say: today I am a Canadian," but "we will never forget the land of our birth or the true sacrifices that were made by our people," he said in referring to the Hungarian revolt of last year.

Mr. Kemeny remarked that although they have left friends, relatives and everything that was dear to them behind when they emigrated to Canada, they will keep alive the memories of those that were forced to stay behind the Iron Curtain.

"We must open our hearts to them and must share our many blessings with them," he said, and expressed the hope that in the near future on organization will be formed to assist their people at home in their fight for freedom from Russian domination.

Ross Ketcheson New President Of Federation

Mr. Ross Ketcheson, Moira district farmer, was named president of the Hastings County Federation of Agriculture at their annual meeting in Madoc on Monday evening at the Stirling Community hall.

The new president of the Federation succeeds Percy Ray of Zion Hill, who was named zone director.

Approximately 75 Federation members turned out for the meeting and heard Charles McGinnis, president of the Ontario Food Producers' Association, Lloyd Jasper, president of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture and Kay Homan, representative of Hastings county in the Federation Prince and Princess competition.

Mr. McGinnis told his listeners that a crisis was now shaping up for the hog producers' marketing scheme as the organization competed with the packers and drovers for a bigger share of hogs marketed. He said that the marketing agency handled only about 23 per cent of all hogs marketed in the province and urged farmers to direct their hogs through the agency.

Mr. McGinnis reviewed the activities of the Federation during the past year and spoke of the forthcoming Federation convention. He urged support of the Federation pointing out that the organization was the backbone of all commodity groups.

Miss Homan also stressed the importance of the Federation of Agriculture and explained the speech given earlier at the Federation Prince and Princess competition, pointed out the reasons why the Federation is important to farmers.

Mr. McGinnis was introduced by Ernest Tummon of Foxboro, Miss Homan was introduced by Ed. Mr. Jasper.

Vice-presidents of the county Federation are: Philo Harris, Madoc; John Kane of Stirling and Fred Ketcheson of Thurlow township. Don Leeming, R.R. 4, Belleville, is the new secretary, succeeding Robert Philp, of Stirling, while George Curtis of Stirling, was renamed to the office of treasurer.

2 Toronto Men Hurt in Crash East of City

Two Toronto men, Norman Newmorch and Paul Bellemere, both about 25, were injured and their split express truck was almost completely demolished late yesterday afternoon when their vehicle slammed into the rear of a parked highway maintenance department truck on the four-lane highway east of the city.

The driver had to be pried from their wrecked truck which was welded around the rear of the steel platform by the force of the impact.

The men were taken to Belleville General Hospital by Pinkston and Luscombe Ambulance. Newmorch suffered injured and suffered a broken foot, while his companion had a dislocated hip.

The two Toronto men were westbound at the time of the accident and the highway float was said stopped on the south side of the westbound lane to load up a bulldozer when the small truck slammed into the rear.

The float was in charge of Harold Vaudry of 16 Brown Crescent, Belleville.

Two Candidates Stepping up Their Campaigns

With the November 4th byelection in Hastings-Frontenac little more than a week away the two candidates, Progressive Conservative, Dr. Sidney Smith, and Hoss Dowson running on a Labor ticket, are both stepping up their campaigns.

Both candidates are planning a series of public meetings in various parts of the huge riding.

Mr. Dowson, self-styled Trotsky-ite who at the last minute was nominated thereby ruling out the anticipated acclamation for Dr. Smith, is touring the riding meeting with union members and others from whom he seeks support.

Dr. Smith, former University of Toronto president who resigned his position to accept the role of External Affairs Minister with the Diefenbaker Government is scheduled main speaker at commencement exercises to be held at Sharbot Lake high school this week.

Robert A. Wyatt Charged With Manslaughter

Robert A. Wyatt, 57, Belleville chiropractor, arrested here on Monday afternoon on a charge of manslaughter arising out of the death of a 16-year-old Toronto district girl, was remanded in custody until Friday when he appeared today before Magistrate T. Y. Wills in city magistrate's court.

Mr. Wyatt is charged in the death of Patricia Kyle, of Kleinburg, Ont. who died in Toronto General Hospital on October 13th following an alleged. illegal operation. The girl was admitted to hospital in Toronto on October 4th. .

The local chiropractor, who has been in business in Belleville since 1930, was arrested yesterday afternoon at his Dufferin Ave. home by Inspector Clair Hayes, who has conducted the investigation. Insp. Hayes is being assisted by Inspector Robert Wannell of the C.I.B. of the Ontario Provincial Police.

NOT ASKED TO PLEAD

Arraigned on the manslaughter charge in magistrate's court his morning, Mr. Wyatt was not asked to plead. He is charged with performing the illegal operation between August 30th and Sept. 19th.

Louis Maraskas, Belleville solicitor appearing for Mr. Wyatt, made application for bail but this was declined by Magistrate Wills who said granting of bail on such a charge may be a matter for the Supreme Court.

Crown Attorney John Pringle noted the seriousness of the charge and asked that bail, if granted, be substantial.

Mr. Maraskas told the court that his client was a substantial property owner in the city and suggested bail of $25,000.

This was declined by the magistrate who remanded Mr. Wyatt until Friday, when the matter of bail will again be discussed.

Nasser Suspects U.S. of Drafting Plan for Attack

CAIRO (Reuters) — President Nasser said in an interview published in the Egyptian newspaper Al Massaa today he suspected United States of drawing up a plan with Turkey to attack Syria.

Nasser said his suspicion had arisen out of his experience from the "last aggression" against Egypt «last year's Anglo-French-Israeli attack».

He said the United States is trying by any means to overthrow the present government in Egypt and Syria to obtain conditions for the formation of other governments ready to co-operate in the way Washington wants.

IN MEMORIAM

COLDEN. — In loving memory of a dear husband, Frederick Colden, who passed away January 14th, 1942, and a dear son, Frederick Colden, who passed away August 13th, 1918. Lest we forget how they died, lest we forget how they died.

1942.

In St. Paul's Cemetery sotty sleeping.

Where the flowers gently wave.

Those we loved so dearly.

Those we could not save.

Dearer to know we'll meet again

Where troubles are no more.

And that the ones left behind as well.

Have lost none on before.

—Sadly missed by wife and mother Mrs. John Allen.

CARDS OF THANKS

I would like to express my sincere thanks to all who visited me while in the hospital and since returning home. Also for the lovely flowers, cards and other gifts. Special Dr. thank you to Dr. Smith, Dr. Pringle, Dr. Donald Scott, my special nurse, the staff of the 2nd floor and friends who donated blood for me. Edith I say "thank you".

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market turned moderately higher today in average morning trading.

The base metal index, featured by Opemiska Copper, climbed two points. Industrials were also ahead more than a point on index while golds and western oils each added a quarter of a point to their indices.

The 1 a.m. volume was 668,000. Monday's sales at the same time were 644,000.

Campbell Chibougamau led individual copper issues with a 75-cent jump to $6.95. Geco was up 50 cents to $8.50 and Opemiska 60 cents to $6.95. Copper Rand gained 30 cents to $1.52. International Nickel was ahead 1¼ points at 68¾ among senior base metals and Noranda added ¾ at 37¾.

Uraniums lost some ground. Denison was off ¾ at 13¼, Algom ¼ to 14¼ and Gunnar ¼ to 15¾.

Ford A and Walker's, both index stocks, each added a point among industrials. Canada Iron Foundry, Aluminium, Consumers Gas and Trans Mountain Pipe Line were ahead major fractions. McColl trading ex-dividend, lost a point at 50. Other changes were fractional.

Western oils were quiet but enough of the index stocks had small gains to push the index ahead.

Red's Liberalism In Poland Ends, Iron Fist Back

By DON BALLAS

WARSAW (Reuters) — Warsaw and Moscow are moving closer together in their basic thinking about communism, well-placed sources say.

With this change on the ideological front, they see fewer reasons for friction between the two capitals today than there were several months ago.

After studying two recent pronouncements by the Polish Communist party, observers also say the period of intellectual "liberalism" within the party appears to be over.

Polish communism is viewed as moving back to old, orthodox viewpoints on its ideology — or basic thinking — after a year of experimenting.

Limits are being set for free expression in a Communist state.

DRAWING THE LINE

The line is being drawn sharply between genuine, "justified" criticism and political "opposition-ism."

The first is permitted, even encouraged. The other is being outlawed.

Those who fail to toe the party's line will feel its bootand some already have been expelled.

The two key documents are the 15,000-word speech by party leader Wladyslaw Gomulka at last week's plenary session of the party central committee and a 2,500-word formal resolution adopted at the conclusion of the session Saturday.

The resolution, issued Monday night by the Polish official news agency Pap, was published in Warsaw newspapers today.

FORM CONCLUSIONS

Observers draw these conclusions from the two documents:

1. If Gomulka has his way, Poland will develop a type of communism which has several points in common with Marshal Tito's brand of communism in Yugoslavia.

2. While insisting that "new course" policies are being pursued, Poland's Communist leadership will crack down on political "oppositionists" and on demonstrations against the government.

3. The Polish authorities will take further steps to control the general tone of newspapers and to "regularize" the position of the press.

A press commission already has been set up to define the tasks and responsibilities of journalists.

Police Blotter

Two minor break-ins with small amounts of cash stolen in both instances, have been reported to city police within the past 24 hours.

One of the forced entries was at the Superior Cleaners where $5 in petty cash was taken and the other was at the office of Watson and Wiegand where $4 was taken.

Two teen-aged Rossmore girls, Gail Thompson 15, and companion Joanne Thompson, reported missing yesterday, were located in Belleville Monday evening. A city patrol officer spotted the two girls and they were returned home.

A Kingston army officer, Bernard J. Lyons, was charged with careless driving and with having liquor after his car struck a parked vehicle near McEvoy's Grocery store.

CHILDREN LEAD 27 HORSES TO SAFETY

In a matter of minutes, level-headed children led 27 horses out of this building to safety before it was consumed by flames. The stable, operated by the Niagara Riding Academy at Niagara Falls, Ont., was valued at $100,000. The fire is believed to have been started by a 10-year-old boy playing with matches.

Keiller Mackay Said Successor To Breithaupt

HAMILTON (CP)—The Spectator says in a Toronto dispatch Mr. Justice J. Keiller Mackay of the Supreme Court of Ontario is expected to be named lieutenant-governor of Ontario, succeeding L. O. Breithaupt.

It says:

"Mr. Justice Mackay is expected to be named to the post before the end of the year. Mr. Breithaupt's regular five - year term expired in the spring and he carried on for an interim period at the request of the federal government."

Arrest Two Men At Gunpoint

TORONTO (CP)—Police today arrested two men at gunpoint in suburban North York and charged them with the early-morning robbery of a west-end fur store in which $7,500 in furs was stolen.

Charged with breaking and entering and receiving were Rocco Morrisetti, 34, a bricklayer, and Bernard Melinsky, 29, a furrier.

Police said Noel Collins, who lives above the fur store, spotted the licence number of a car used in the robbery. He was awakened when the thieves smashed a door and set off the burglar alarm.

Will Seek Tax Relief For Shipbuilders

TORONTO (CP) — The Navy League of Canada plans to ask for a federal tax relief for shipbuilders to strengthen the industry as a security measure.

A resolution to this effect was passed at the league's annual meeting last week.

C. K. McLeod of Montreal was re-elected president. Other officers elected included J. Gordon Dunlop of Cobourg, Ont., vice-president for Ontario and Quebec.

Warns Hospitals Plan Not Chance To Get Luxuries

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario hospital services commission official says co-operation, planning and control by hospital authorities is needed for the success of Ontario's projected hospital insurance plan.

E. P. McGavin, director of the commission's finance branch, told an Ontario Hospital Association officials' will be faced with controlling rising costs while filling the needs of the public for more hospital care.

He said:

"No hospital should consider the commencement of hospital insurance as an opportunity to obtain luxuries or make expenditures which previously had not been necessary."

The provincial plan provides general hospital accommodation at public-ward level, regular nursing services and a variety of hospital treatment and services. It will cost $2.10 a month for a single person and $4.20 for a family. The plan goes into effect Jan.

D. W. Ogilvie, director of the commission's hospital care insurance branch, said "It is fully realized this is an open-end contract which can be abused."

He said every control available will be employed to guard against misuse of the plan services.

Water Resources Body Member Dies at Soo

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—A member of the Ontario Water Resources Commission and a former Sault Ste. Marie mayor, William H. C. Brien, QC, died suddenly Monday night.

Mr. Brien, 65, died in hospital less than 24 hours after being admitted for treatment of a pulmonary throat ailment.

He was mayor of this Northern Ontario city from 1946 to 1950 and was one of five men named to the water resources commission when it was formed in May, 1956.

Mr. Brien was born in Victoria County near Lindsay and came here in 1918 to set up a law practice.

Movie Tycoon, Louis B. Mayer, Dies of Anemia

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Louis B. Mayer, the film tycoon who assembled the biggest array of stars in motion picture history, died today at the age of 72. He grew up in the Maritimes.

His death was believed to have been caused by anemia. Mayer had been receiving blood transfussions for several weeks.

For 25 years Mayer was one of the movies' most powerful executives and from 1937 to 1943 the highest paid worker in the United States. He began his business career assisting his father in a ship salvage business in the Maritimes.

Born in Minsk, Russia July 4, 1885, he was taken at three months to Saint John, N.B. That was where he joined his father's business after a short public school education.

He entered the fledgling movie industry as an exhibitor in Massachusetts in 1907. He became a theatre owner-manager, then a film distributor and finally, needing more films to show, the co-organizer of a production company.

WAS PRODUCER

He came to Hollywood in 1917 and from 1924 to 1951 was executive in charge of production at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio. MGM climbed to greatness under the production genius of Irving Thalberg. When he died in 1936, Mayer took over direct control of production.

His great talent as a discoverer of stars brought under the MGM banner the greatest galaxy in film history.

Mayer's salary was the highest in the United States for seven years. In 1947, for example, it was $1,138,992.47.

ANNOUNCE SUCCESS

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Military officials announced today that Chinese Nationalist forces in the Matsu islands have carried out 24 patrol missions on the Red China mainland in the last six months. The announcement said the patrols killed "scores" of Communist soldiers and captured 21 junks and other small craft.

READJUSTING PENSIONS

The Liberal Government of Rt. Hon. Louis St. Laurent raised old age pensions $6 a month. The Progressive Conservative Government of Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker now proposes to increase them by $9 a month.

Both $6 a month and $9 a month are "odd" sums - they do not fall into the even multiples of five which, for some reason, appear most reasonable to us. We said "appear" deliberately, for in fact comparatively few people think of income in monthly terms. Rather they gauge their pay by the size of the weekly pay envelope or the amount of income they have to declare on their annual income tax returns. An "even" monthly sum cannot be translated into another "even" sum on either a weekly or an annual basis, since months will not divide into a whole number of weeks and the number of months in the year is another "odd even number," twelve.

In this case, though, the two "odd" sums of $6 and $9 a month add up to a number which is reasonable, though still "odd" in a different sense, $15.

As a result of the two adjustments, pensions will be raised by $15 a month. This represents an increase of seven-eighths of the former pension, $40 a month, or 37½ per cent. We suspect that the Canadian people will consider this a reasonable adjustment. The Liberals, we have been told, did not select the $6 figure at random, but picked it because it represented approximately the amount needed to restore the buying power of the old age pension to the level it was at the end of 1945 when the universal pension law first came into effect. Most Canadians, though, in the intervening years, have enjoyed wage increases which have done more than merely offset the rising cost of living. These increases have also provided some improvement in the standard of living and most Canadians, we believe, will feel that old age pensioner ought to share in the improvement made possible by the increase in the gross national product, in the productivity of our country.

A CHANCE TO MAKE GOOD

The life of an inventor must be one crammed full of excitement, tension and fatigue, with a pronounced feeling for adventure prodding him on. Our world is full of inventors. Some hit pay dirt while others - - the majority - - only satisfy themselves that they have produced a gadget that will help them finish the job at hand. Most "do-it-yourself" craftsmen are in this latter class.

Inventor is defined as "one who makes or introduces a new contrivance." There is a great demand for new devices in this world of increasing complexity. Manufacturers are not always looking for new gadgets that they can put on the market. Most of them would be thankful for any kind of device that would help purchasing costs and hence speed a finished article to the consumer. That is where the man comes in who has a shop down in a corner of the basement. Chances are that at least once he has had to improvise when working on a new end table or smoking stand. Some of the most remarkable devices for "cutting corners" have been developed in a dimly lit home workshop, yet few of these inventors have even thought of submitting their inventions to a patent office.

Many years ago a gentleman bent a piece of steel and found he could pin things together with it. That was the birth of the safetypin. The inventor is wealthier today than he would have been had he not thought of visiting a patent office with his invention.

These amateur craftsmen have a wonderful chance of cashing in on "big money," if they would only develop interest and confidence in the contrivances they whip up in their shops. Some inventions that are accepted by industries are invented by paid engineers, while a good many more new gimmicks are developed by men who quit an office job at five o'clock and spend their evening tinkering in the basement.

CLIPPING OUR WINGS

Large numbers of American-built aircraft are permitted to enter Canada duty-free while Canadian aircraft are virtually excluded from the U.S. market by a 15 per cent ad valorem duty. Second, U.S. Customs follow the practice of arbitrarily imposing higher appraised values on Canadian planes entering their country than those on U.S. planes coming into Canada, thus further increasing the trade advantage of the American manufacturer over his Canadian counterpart. THE WHISTLING BOY

Long before the sun is painting
Blazing skies the eastern rim,
Or before the stars have faded
And their light is growing dim,
Comes a whistle, oh, so merry!
Sounding far adown the street,
And I know the little newsboy
Once again is on his beat.

Care-free happy little youngster
Up a whistle on your way,
Light of heart and free from sorrow
You are at the dawn of day;
And you know no care or burden.
Smooth the path before your feet
So I bid you keep on whistling
As you travel on your beat.

Life is now unopened to you,
But the years will bring their cares;
And the trials and the sorrows
Will steal on you unawares.
But I hope what'er befalls you,
What it be your fate to meet,
You will have the heart to whistle
As you travel on your beat.

Market Butterflies

Hamilton Spectator

The most disconcerting ghost around as Hallowe'en looms up has been the lusting stock market, and the ghouls will like to put an accent under the anniversary of October 24, which ranks as the greatest Wall Street collapse in history. The Broadway hint that just the other day was a blizzard of ticker tape and bunting is greeting the 35th anniversary of the black autumn day of 1929 a convulsion of dismay. Thousands upon thousands of accounts were wiped out, and yet even the gloomiest reaction could have hardly sensed that this crash would signify five years of universal depression.

* * *

As the market has been shaking along with a lot of nerves, a fairly circumspect one, it is of course to compare today's situation with the upheaval of 1929, but there are some points of course; because our long spell of sunshine since around 1946 was launched by those happy days between 1922 and 1929. The differences are not as many as between the twenties the stock market bore less of a likeness to the economy than it did to history. Book-black boys and industrialists, farmers and speculators took their chances. Luck might turn an investment of $500 to $5,000 in a few months, or a thousand dollars. It might be less — but it was always something. People invested because they wanted to take a trip aboard or by a car, put their cash in this way rather than that, or on their own own mind; that the cash profit was only a matter of how much. Call money was borrowed by people who would pay 10 per cent for it to buy stocks that yielded less than 5 per cent. Margins were like the money during "no-cash-down" installment buying of today. As low as ten to fifteen per cent of the total value would hold a stock; now margin requirements are from sixty to seventy per cent. There has been no panic selling in the recent "paper loss" skids; or are market certainties reflected in the broader, basic tides of our highly-productive economy.

* * *

Today the market, no matter how wicked its flutters, is under the immense forces of investments of stocks by pension funds, trusts and the like, while to many leading business brains the trend should be to tie even more of this money to long term gains in capital investment. Stock yields, edited very good, are watched like a bond return. But more than anything else the new role of government in controlling violent money tides, though far from unprecedented stems from the lessons learned after the crash of 1929. Also in those good or bad old days protections like unemployment insurance, old age pensions and mild doses of relief are almost mystical stages of politics.

* * *

Perhaps the bluntest reminder of the market's recent butterfly tendencies is that a whole generation has grown up to which it is only a memory. They have been children in the last twenty years but an almost uninterrupted climbing graph of prosperous times with a few sometimes said that fear of another depression is the best insurance against a repetition of the 30's. But those who remember its impact are getting fewer and the real economy which appears to have shrinked with the returned necessities have to face the ancient challenge of horse sense — and that seems to be producing a new kind of a lesson every decade or so.

Royal Visit Not 'Staged'

New York Times

A tribute and Godspeed to Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip runs the danger of being obvious, sentimental, trite, a matter of form. Yet, now that this happy and memorable visit has ended, one grasps for words to express sincere feelings and also to carry the conviction that the sojourn was extraordinarily successful.

No one should know this better than the royal visitors. The reception they extended in Jamestown, Williamsburg, Washington and New York was planned in most of its details long before in the United States nobody is going to plan for a genuine cordial atmosphere. There has to be genuine predisposition on the part of all Americans and then the rest is up to the visitors.

That Queen Elizabeth charmed everyone she met was obvious. The same was true of Prince Philip. We know this not only from being themselves, but we would be going too far to call it a mere reflection of their personal feelings of pleasure and satisfaction. They have made it clear that what they enjoyed their visit, that they were interested in what they saw, and that touched by the clear evidences of the genuineness of the hospitality and the public manifestations that were extended to them. From beginning to end this seemed to be a visit in which no one played a conscious part like actors on a stage. It was a friendly and timely visit from two young people whom, and rightly, touched their hearts, partly because they were the Queen and Consort and her consort, but also because we liked both the guests and were attracted by them.

This does not mean that the visit was not significant. The reigning monarchs of the British Commonwealth do not often leave the country to come here. The visit of Queen Elizabeth's father and Queen Mother George VI and Queen Elizabeth, in 1939, was recognized soon afterward as truly historic, coming as it did just before the great war and symbolizing for everyone could be the enduring bonds of friendship and interest between the United States and the nations for which the monarchs of England speak.

Today we live in a different world history that has its own gravity and gravity a period that may be terrible or wonderful, but that certainly will be among the most momentous in human history. At such a moment it was good to see and to welcome Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip, and we say good-by with regret, but with a sense of comfort and satisfaction that this delightful young couple should have come to visit us in this exciting autumn.

Punishment Fits Crime

St. Thomas Times-Journal

One of the delights of the Mikado, in the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta of that name, was to punish people for any crime. Taiwan is not in Japan, but it is very much like the capital of the Chinese island of Formosa. There the local authorities have passed a law that any person responsible for a death must take care of the victim's family "as long as you live."

Here a driver can kill a person, but he may be charged with criminal negligence or dangerous driving and get off with a fine or $15 fine. He need not bother to know how the dead man's family is faring.

No such law as the one in Taiwan will be passed here, but in the case of highway killings the punishment should be made much nearer to fitting the crime.

Perpetual Forests

Windsor Daily Star

Mineral production, says economist Beckett, is a good chance of overtaking forestry as the leading industry in Northwestern Ontario. That could be correct, but only in the short-term view. Our vast, rich though they are, can't replenish themselves indefinitely. Under a well planned and enforced conservation and reforestation program our wood resources have an indefinite life.

Not All Folk Prosperous

Windsor Star

A country may be quite prosperous in general but a lot of its people definitely are not in that category. That is true even in the United States, the most prosperous country in the world. There are pockets of people in various parts of that country, and 6n most of its cities, who are quite destitute.

That also applies in Canada is proved by statistics put out by Commons by Miss Margaret Aitken, P.C., Yorkminister. They show that more than 2,500,000 persons in Canada earn less than $4,000 a year and of them much less than that. She asserts these folden years of tax cuts and reductions, because they need relief most.

People earning $4,000 or so probably are getting by all right. But they are not getting rich. Those earning much less than $3,000, and endeavoring to maintain themselves on the border line of poverty or below it in this inflationary period.

Poor Souls Please Listen

A Midwest reader writes: "I have followed your teachings for many years. Have had excellent results from your prescriptions for chronic running ear, the home made fool proof cough medicine, calcium and D and several others.

"Particularly I have you to thank for reducing my weekly sick headaches to maybe one sick headache a year.

"Your daily advice about nutrition has changed my family's habits and benefited us all.

"So, hope you may stay around for many more years, to teach more poor 'geeks' how to live.

(Signed) .....

A letter like that cheers me up for several days, even on days I don't bowl. It helps me to keep trying.

One ingredient the recipe for cough medicine calls for was first prescribed a few years ago. Indeed, it was formerly used to modify cow's milk for infant feeding — a few grains of it in each ounce of formula. But my readers built up the demand for it and, by some shenanigans, the manufacturers printed on the container: To be dispensed on prescription. If a veterinarian he has been using sodium citrate (citrade of soda) for years and never had to have a prescription, the druggist has only to show the container — but not long enough for the customer to realize that it doesn't prohibit dispensing without prescription. One druggist tells me he knows no reason why a druggist can't sell sodium citrate by the ounce or pound without prescription.

However, it is my druggists in your town are difficult about it, use potassium citrate instead of sodium citrate, in the same quantity. To the best of my knowledge, the phony prohibition has not yet been applied to potassium citrate.

There's no dope whatsoever in the Home Made Fool Proof Cough Medicine. That's what makes it Fool Proof. It may do no good; although for some reason or other, a good many readers report a batch does relieve a member of the family — infants or adults begins to cough. But even if the baby gets hold of it and drinks the whole batch, it can do no harm.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

As we drove in the weekend stampede on the highway, we came to a detour, where there were little bits of sticks, odds and ends of laths, trimmings and scattered across the pavement. The second batch of these I drove through, I noted with some alarm that there were nails sticking up out of some of the fragments.

Every few hundred yards, we would come to another scattering of this debris, sometimes in mixings and trash from some building operation. We slowed down and dodged our way through the mess, seeing nails in more than half the pieces.

Two miles up, we came to a car pulled off on the road shoulder with a flat tire.

In the course of five miles, we encountered no fewer than ten of these random broadcasts of trash and nails, mostly of new wood; and at last came upon the barrio that had half of the junk. Obviously it had fallen off some vehicle ahead.

Soon thereafter, we overtook a junshackle truck, in a state of decay, staggering along at about thirty miles an hour. It was heaped with bags of this junk, and had a number of punctured and likely to fall off at any minute. We signalled the driver; and we drove on and on. There we walked back and informed him he was scattering mischievous nails in his path. It all along the highway. And incidentally, we advised him that there was a $50 fine for doing this very thing.

The driver, an elderly Portuguese, sidestepped and sullen stare complete, wanted to know if a person could be arrested for an honest living. TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

AUTUMN'S GLOW

I always look forward to the matchless beauty of the Autumn days, especially those of October. All about me as I write is the glow of brilliant yellows of gold, orange, violet, and of course, crimson. The Great Artist is at work, the Master of Heaven and earth. There is not another season of the year so full of the spirit of peace and good will.

From my library window I look out upon a tapestry of color that the Creator alone could weave and blend into such glory. Silently and persistently the leaves of the maple, oak, beech and elm fall to the earth. I walk over my yard and pick up a handful of golden purple leaves. What a work of art! Each leaf with its own characteristic symmetry, and delicate and perfect. And note the exact duplication of form and design. How can we ever cease to wonder.

We look upon the falling leaves of Autumn as part of the tree's annual housecleaning. But there is more than that. We observe the glow and color of the leaves as they

Life Fantastically Different From Earth on Moon, Mars

Editor's Note: What is there in space that pulls the minds of men with more force than earth's gravity? Maybe it's just the same lure of the unknown that sent explorers across oceans and pioneers across plains. Whatever the reason, it's there. And since space is just around the corner, it's time to examine what's out there and how man can make his way through it. This is the first of four articles.

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP)—Your wrist watch tells you it is high noon.

You glance out a porthole, and the sky is entirely black, save for brilliant, unwinking stars.

Your nose itches. You reach to scratch, and slap your own face viciously . . . you forgot again. No gravity.

Suddenly a too-loud ping echoes through the ship. You freeze in fright, wondering if a meteor made a hole . . . then relax; for no alarm sounds.

Thirsty, you drink some water, but not from a glass. It comes from a plastic squeeze bottle with the nozzle carefully planted in your mouth.

GOAL: ANOTHER WORLD

For you are going to the moon or Mars aboard a spaceship, where life is fantastically different from earth.

This is the promise now that the space age has opened with a man-made moon circling earth.

More little moons are coming. Americans as well as Russians during the current International Geophysical Year.

They will discover actual space conditions and the hazards which partly will determine when and how humans go journeying safely through space.

Rocket and space experts have drawn the general plans, even designed ships and protective measures to visit humans to our sister planets . . . and home again.

FALLING, NOT FLYING

It's only your second day out on this rocket hurtling through space, so you can be excused for having slapped yourself when your nose itched. Really, you've rapidly getting used to a most peculiar problem of weightlessness, from lack of gravity.

Your ship is really falling through space, not influenced by the earth's gravity. You have no weight, neither does anything else aboard the ship.

With no gravity, when you are actually falling into a bottomless pit. Sneeze, and you'd fly backward to bang against a cabin wall.

Is that passenger across the cabin standing upside down—or are you At meals, drop a piece of toast, and it hangs in the air.

SPIN MAKES "GRAVITY"

But your ship preferably is spinning, creating centrifugal force to substitute for gravity. The direction "down" is the outer edge of your round, spinning spaceship.

Gravity gave you a bad moment, you recall, at takeoff from earth. But it was soon over and you taxied up to the space platform 700 miles above earth, dined there, and then boarded this ship for the journey to Mars.

Your cabin is, of course, pressurized. You know you'd live only a few seconds in the vacuum of space, unless protected by special pressurized space suits.

This worries you. Space is crowded with flying meteors, travelling thousands of miles an hour, mostly very tiny. But a big one could smash straight through your ship. The little pioneer manmade moons found this chance was fairly small. An alarm system warns of any hole for quick plugging.

BOTH HOT AND COLD

You gaze out the porthole, and wonder how cold it is right outside in space. The captain explains: Space has no temperature really as we ordinarily mean temperature. There's precious little air to heat up. The side of the ship exposed to the sun gets very hot, but the side in shadow is very cold and radiates heat into space.

The nothingness of space is why it is black, also. There is no air to scatter light. Stars shine with brilliant steadiness.

Up ahead shines Mars, and soon you'll know for yourself just what his "canals" really are.

Mr. Harkness, opening debate on the motion for second reading—approval in principle—of the bill, announced that Prairie elevator companies have agreed to foot the bill for a small proportion of any losses through default under the proposal.

Their liability would be 10 per cent of any losses, up to a maximum of one-quarter of one per cent of total advances by individual line or pool elevator firms. The federal treasury would be liable for the rest.

MENTIONS COMMITMENTS

Referring to wheat export prospects, the minister said that United States barter shipments of wheat "are not likely to be important" in future if the U.S. keeps to the commitments made to Canadian ministers at recent Washington talks.

Sales to the United Kingdom and Europe in the current crop year began Aug. 1 "should compare favorably with last crop year," Mr. Harkness said. Canada shipped about 179,000,000 bushels of wheat to the two areas in the 1956-57 year.)

Mr. Gardiner's speech was criticized from the smaller Commons parties.

"The Liberal administration fiddled around with agriculture in Western Canada got into its present state," said Mr. Cryderman (CCF—Kindersley).

J. A. Smith (SC—Battle River-Camrose) said Mr. Gardiner's speech was "definitely one of confusion with no information."

Both members criticized the government for its decision not to fill the post of transport controller vacated last Dec. 31 by Roy Milner. Mr. Smith said it will mean another year of confusion in grain boxcar distribution.

Picton Grocer Goes on Trial For Slaying

PICTON — Mr. Justice D. C. Wells is presiding at the sittings of the Supreme Court being held in Picton this week. Chief among the record number of cases on the docket is a charge of murder against Clarence A. Jones, Picton grocer. He has been held in Prince Edward County Jail here since July 17 when the lifeless body of his wife was found in their cottage on the Glenora road, two miles south-east of Picton. She had been shot to death.

When court reassembles today, the Grand Jury, named yesterday, will present its report as to whether there is sufficient evidence to commit the accused for trial. If a true bill is returned, the case will get under way this afternoon.

The thirteen member Grand Jury was named yesterday, with Chris Lockyer as foreman and Laird Adams, George Baitley, Merton Bentley, Roy Brooks, Kenneth Gerow, Bruce Hart, Curzon Moore, William McKane, Keith Noble, Donald Alexander, Garnet Ackerman, Sam Armstrong as the other members.

Following their impanelling, the Grand Jury was asked to retire to one of the chambers to hear evidence from witnesses endorsed on the indictment. This was heard in camera and jurors were pledged to secrecy at this stage of the proceedings.

EXPLAINS MURDER

Mr. Justice Wells explained that murder exists where the person who causes death means to cause death or means to cause bodily harm which results in death, and is reckless whether death ensues or not.

He further instructed the jury as to their duties which includes inspection of the County House and jail, the County buildings, the registry office, the Home for the Aged, and their report may include recommendations for changes, equipment or conditions existing.

When the Grand Jury had been dismissed to hear evidence in the murder trial, the Court proceeded to trial of divorce actions of which there were four.

Prosecution in the murder case is being handled by Alex Hall of Oshawa. Defence counsel is Arthur Martin, QC, Toronto.

Ninety Prince Edward County residents have been summoned for petit jury duty, several of whom are women.

Three motor vehicle damage accident cases, a motion to set aside an agreement, are also on the docket.

QUEEN'S

By the time the guard marched from the castle back to the barracks, every red-blooded small boy in town was on hand to harry the blushing column. A crowd of moppets in front of the barracks shouted "Build back our bonfire!"

QUEEN'S KIN ACTS

In due course the matter came to the attention of Col. J. C. Boxer-Lyon, a cousin of the Queen and commander of the battalion.

Soon thereafter a battalion spokesman said the guardsmen had decided to help the children restore the bonfire. The job of finding volunteers (and wood) was delegated to Sgt. Maj. Sidney Felton who called it the "queerest assignment I've had in 24 years with the army."

"We know the cad who did it," said an anonymous guardsman. "But we won't give him away—he was drunk at the time."

One of the oldest flowers cultivated, chrysanthemums have been known for over three thousand years in China and Japan. First ones must have been yellow for the name means "golden flower". It's from the Greek "chryson" or gold, and "anthemon", flower. Today the family includes pyrethrum, costmary, many daisies and feverfew.

"Your Crowning Glory" Talk at Alpha Lambda

Mrs. Bernard Downman presented a most informative talk to the members of Alpha Lambda Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi last Monday night, choosing as her topic, "Your Crowning Glory." The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Robert Laughlen, Dufferin Ave.

Mrs. Downman traced the history of hair styling dating back to early Greek and Egyptian times when mudpacked coiffures were worn by most fashionable women. During the early Classical period it was noted that men too took up the challenge of making the body more beautiful by means of an attractive array of long tresses hanging in loose ringlets or in an arrangement of braids that were wound around the head, rolled around the headband or knotted at the back of the head. Short hair came into vogue after the Grecian wars with the extreme style being a shaven head for convenience in wearing special headdresses and wigs.

STYLE DEPENDEN TON FACIAL CONTOUR

Times have changed insofar as milady now chooses a hairstyle not because it is the current vogue, but because it is attractive to her, personally. The shape of the face determines now which style should be worn and the style chosen can be aided by the use of color tints. Her chosen style should tend to her own good features and minimize the poorer ones. "Whether it be hair or clothes, women always have and always will try to improve their appearance," Mrs. Downman pointed out.

A question period followed during which hair styles suitable for square, round, oval and triangular shaped faces were suggested.

President Mavis McLean conducted a short business meeting during which plans for the "Ritual of Jewels" dinner were outlined. The dinner is to be held November 18. A report from the Samaritan Cupboard was given and assignments given.

Mrs. Laughlen and co-hostess Mrs. John Snetsinger served refreshments.

Organ Recital By Virgil Fox Much Enjoyed

By EUGENE LANG

For the second time in less than a year Virgil Fox, renowned organist of Riverside Church, New York City, enthralled hundreds of devotees of organ music with his masterful playing of the new Casavant Organ in Bridge Street United Church. Mr. Fox is recognized as one of the leading concert organists on the continent and his fame gained an enviable reputation in the musical field of endeavor wherever he has appeared. Ely, graduate of the Peabody Conservatory of Music, he carried off all honors while studying there for one season, including the meritorious honor of giving five complete recitals from memory, thereby setting a record unmatched in the school. He has appeared in many cathedrals and concert halls and has always left a profound impression on the thousands who have heard him. His recordings are gaining notoriety gradually.

The program that he chose for last evening was more dignified and reserved in some aspects than the one he gave here earlier this year. Opening with a lively movement of Handel's Fourth Organ Concerto which Mr. Fox played in a delightful and vivacious manner he then turned to the works of the mighty Bach for his next three offerings. Bach's Chorale Prelude "Rejoice Beloved Christians" was beautifully molded in its combination of lovely melody and embellished figures and as Mr. Fox gently carried its lilting swaying motion in steady beat.

The Adagio Cantabile from a Bach Violin Concerto was another example of a serene legato tone being softly encased in warm harmonies that demonstrated the glowing tones that this new organ can elicit when put to the test. Then came the most famous of all Bach organ show pieces, the familiar Toccata and Fugue in D Minor which all organists love to get enmeshed in. This piece reminds one of a bed of quicksand —everyone wants to see if they can conquer it without getting bogged down before they get through its many winding traps that Bach so skillfully set in the musical score to snare the unwary organist.

Mr. Fox gave a very thrilling reading of this work even though the opening scale passages seemed a trifle ragged in their over zealous speed.

TONALLY SOLID

The huge structure was tonally solid in its wondrous orchestral climaxes but an impression was given that the wrong mortar was at times used in the musical bricks of construction, viz.: the registration used was somewhat too much of the theatre than cathedral resulting in a comparable Hookswistian lushness of sound. For sheer excitement of pulse Mr. Fox supplied the utmost, but the devotions of accepted tempo were sacrificed to over indulgences that Bach does not warrant.

As Mr. Fox stated in his very informative remarks, the Brahms Sonata in C Minor on the Ninety-Fourth Psalm was the next best beef of the musical repast, and here he tackled this tough and sinuous organ work in such a masterful manner that every fibre of this superb composition was perfectly exposed and carefully digested. The organ in the agile hands of this fine organist poured forth layer upon layer of every increasing brilliancy and splendor and swelled its lungs to musical zenithis as the recitalist tapped all its resources in his marvellous interpretation of this great work.

Mr. Fox was truly exceptional in his playing of this Sonata.

Another fine example of Mr. Fox at the four manual Casavant was his expertly skilled performance of the Prelude and Fugue in G Minor by the living French organ master, Marcel Dupre. The rhythmic fugue seemed to skip along with joy in the exuberant manner in which Mr. Fox played it. Here again the soloist received tumultuous applause after his fine rendition of this selection. Three encores were graciously given including the stately Trumpet Voluntary of Purcell in which the fullness of the organ seemed to shake the very rafters of the ceiling and the virtuoso Perpetual Motion for pedals only, the latter work gaining for the organist the title of the Gene Kelly of the Pedals. Tremendous dexterity of footwork was exhibited in this short eye catcher. Again, Mr. Fox cast Belleville lovers under a spell as he has hundreds of organ fans who will anxiously await his return again. Mr. Alec Gordon introduced the guest artist and Rev. R. M. Davis, minister of Bridge Street United Church, intoned the closing benediction.

Mr., Mrs. Charles Cannons Mark Golden Wedding Anniversary

Last Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cannons, of R. R. 2 Consecon, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary by a party in their honor given by their brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Templeton, at their home in Consecon and Rachel Mathews and several nieces and nephews.

Ernest Margetson, brother-in-law, presented Mr. and Mrs. Cannons with a lovely bouquet of roses with a golden-striped vase. Their god-child, Hilda Fresquette, Hay, on behalf of all, presented them with a lovely three-tiered anniversary wedding cake.

A toast was made to the bride and groom to which they ably responded. Reminiscing by the older members of the party concluded a delightful evening.

On Sunday evening an "at home" was held for Mr. and Mrs. Cannons at the home of their son, Bert Cannons and grandson, Charles Cannons, of R. R. 2 Consecon.

Mrs. C. Mathews of Canniffon presided at the lovely dining-room table which was set with silver tea service, flowers, and wedding cake adorned with an ornament from the 50th anniversary cake of the bridegroom's parents. Several granddaughters served refreshments to the many callers during the evening.

The bride and bridegroom received many gifts, among them a pop-up toaster from their four children; an electric clock from the senior grandchildren; a bed-lamp from the junior grandchildren, flowers and dishes. A greeting from the Parliament buildings was also received and was read by Norris Whitney, M.P.P., Ameliasburg.

On behalf of all, presented them with a lovely three-tiered anniversary wedding cake.

Centre Hastings Presbyterial Meets in Cordova Mines Church

Despite the heavy rain on October 24th, 61 ladies met in Cordova Mines United Church for a rally of Group 2, Centre Hastings Presbyterial Women's Association.

Mrs. Kenneth Weaver (Mt. Pleasant), presided. Following the opening exercises, Mrs. T. Bateman, Mrs. F. E. Madden and Mrs. J. Murphy, of Marmora, conducted the devotional service. This was based on the theme "The Call of the Master," and was reverently and meaningly presented.

The address of welcome was given by Cordova W.A. Mrs. J. Pollock of Wellman's, sang the solo "He Smiled on Me."

Minutes of the 1956 rally were read and approved and Mrs. C. Burkitt of Springbrook, presented the treasurer's report.

A discussion followed, re. date of future meetings. It was unanimously decided that the fourth Wednesday of October be set as the permanent date for the rallies. Ygerton church will be the 1958 meeting place. The nominating committee's report was then received and accepted.

The offering was collected by members of Salem W.A. and dedicated by Mrs. J. Holmes (Mt. Pleasant).

INTERESTING REPORTS

The reports from 14 associations were interesting and informative, and showed that during the past year the members of these groups have been tireless workers. Over $9,000 was raised by various methods, and used for the upkeep, improvement and furnishing of parsonages and churches, for children's work in Sunday schools, at camp and for welfare work.

One association reported sending a girl to the School for Leaders at Whitby. All associations told of their work being done among the sick and shut-ins. The three giving definite numbers called on 658

Women's Institute Observes 60th Birthday of Founding

By CAROLYN WILLETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Two women stood in a hushed hall to cut a four-tier birthday cake surrounded by 60 small, flickering candles.

Together, Mrs. J. W. Adams of Ethelton, Sask., and Margery Lee of Hamilton officially paid tribute to the diamond anniversary of Canada's first Women's Institute, born 60 years ago at Stoney Creek, Ont.

On the opening day of the Federated Women's Institute of Canada's first, four-day national convention, national President Mrs. Adams spoke.

"Remember . . . there is not enough darkness in all the world to blow out the light of one small candle," she told more than 600 convention delegates and guests.

RECALLS 1897

Her companion, Miss Lee, is the daughter of a Stoney Creek farmer who in 1897 invited Hamilton housewife Adelaide Hoodless to form a women's institute. The Hamilton cook was created by the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada as "Mrs. Hugh Sumners of Fonthill, Ont., a vice-president of the Associated Country Women of the World—an international outgrowth of the Canadian movement — recounted the history.

Mrs. Hoodless had started a campaign for pure milk after her 18-month-old son died of typhoid fever. She also crusaded for home economics education for girls.

Mr. Lee, president o fthe Farmer's Institute of Stoney Creek, thought a women's institute also was needed. He enlisted Mrs. Hoodless for the cause.

The movement grew. In 10 Canadian provinces there now are 8,500 Women's Institutes with a membership of 400,000 members.

The ACWW now embraces 31 countries with 6,000,000 members.

CEYLON MEMBERS

Among the convention guests Monday night was Mrs. Y. Yogasundram, wife of Ceylon's minister of affaires in Canada and daughter of Lady Coomaraswamy of Ceylon, an ACWW vice-president. Ceylon was host to the international meeting last summer.

More than 40 Canadian delegates attended the Colombo conference and met Mrs. Yogasundram from a rural women's organization conducted by Dr. Mary Rutnam of Wilthy, Ont.

BIG REUNION

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP)—It was a red-letter day for Mr. and Mrs. Victor Latimer when they celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. For the first time in more than 30 years they had their family—their four daughters and three sons, with five of their 12 grandchildren.

Bethel United Church Marks 83rd Anniversary

The Bethel - Rawdon congregation of the United Church recently observed the 83rd Anniversary of the founding of their church with a large assembly of worshippers in attendances from the community and nearby points.

The church was adorned for the occasion with baskets of variegated 'mums, and the two pedestal standards were decked with 'mums and autumn blooms.

The Rev. F. E. Madden, B.A., of Marmora, was the guest minister both morning and evening and preaching two inspiring sermons. His morning message based on "Living by Routine", with Luke 4:16, taking as his text "And as His custom was, He went into the Synagogue on the Sabbath Day."

The routine of the Christian life needs three things. It needs the guarding. We need to keep the path to our prayer room well trodden. It needs the constant use to keep the prayer routine in fact.

It needs to be made the channel of the spirit. Worship can become a mere vehicle unless the fire be kept burning on the altar.

"We must be responsive of the transforming power and new leadings of the Spirit. Then revivals will come only as we are willing to follow where His Spirit leads."

EVENING SERVICE

At the evening service, Mr. Madden spoke on the subject "Towards Iron Undies" Luke 1:20, 21 as his text, "That they all may be one, that the world may believe."

'Jesus' prayers are a mirror of the mind of Jesus. The way to the union of Christ-mindedness through personal union with the Lord. In God's love received and matured in the heart; as the love of Christ penetrates and possesses the life, so we value what is good in other denominations. They are not to be left behind as we must go on to grow in the Christian life in grace and knowledge.

Special music, arranged by Mrs. Harold Johnson, Bethel church organist, was rendered by a full choir at both services. In the morning the choir rendered the anthem, "Sing Praises to the Lord", by C. E. Walter.

The guest soloist, Mr. Jack Grant, of Marmora, sang, "I Walked in the Garden", by M. Weaver and Miss Mary Meikle-John of Marmora and Mr. Grant rendered the duet, "The Heart of God", by C. B. McAfee.

The morning service the choir sang the anthem "The Heart of the Master", by F. H. Brown with Mrs. D. Heath and Mrs. C. Potts taking a duet part.

Mr. J. Grant sang two numbers: "At Morning, Noon and Night", by Jacobs-Bond, and "A Touch of Thy Hand, O Lord", by J. Ackley.

The evening service closed with the rendition of "Softly and Tenderly Jesu is Calling."

Carmel Cookies 4-H Club Elects Officers

The first meeting of the Carmel Cookies 4-H Homemaking Club was held at the home of Mrs. Carl Thompson with nine members present.

The following officers were elected: president, Patsy Dafoe; vice-president, Loretta Wilson; secretary, Bev Urch; press reporter, Lorraine Lutton; pianist, Donna Robinson; sing-song and games, Carolyn Thompson and Ruth Hanton.

The leaders, Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Rodberg and Mrs. Dafoe, led weighing discussions on working procedures, requirements of club members, patterns for everyday eating, requirements for health, and cereals.

Mrs. Rodberg demonstrated methods for measuring various cereals. The girls practised some simple experiments in measuring.

Refreshments were served at the end of the meeting.

The second meeting of the Carmel Cookies was held at the home of Mrs. Rodberg October 24. It was agreed to hold the next meeting at Mrs. Thompson November 28.

Mrs. Rodberg led a discussion on "Eating a Grain of Wheat" which included the parts of a kernel of wheat, and what food nutrients each part has.

Mrs. Thompson gave hints on cooking cereals and led a discussion on "Around the Clock with Cereals."

Mrs. Rodberg prepared and baked muffins for a demonstration. All enjoyed the muffins at the end of the meeting.

Mrs. J. E. Buchan Says Plan Will Up Demands

TORONTO (CP)—Reports submitted Monday at a convention of the Women's Hospital Auxiliaries Association of Ontario showed more than 180 auxiliaries raised about $600,000 or hospitals last year.

The three-day association meeting, which opened Monday, is held in conjunction with the Ontario Hospital Association convention.

The money raised or hospital work by the 43,000 members was used to help building programs, buy equipment, support nurses' training programs and provide bursaries and scholarships for nurses.

President Mrs. J. E. Buchan of Belleville told 300 delegates the advent of a hospital insurance plan in Ontario in 1959 will increase the demand for services of the hospital auxiliaries.

Sliding From Little to Big War Big Danger, Pearson Tells W.I.

By CAROLYN WILLETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Hon. Lester B. Pearson has warned that the world's biggest danger is that of sliding from a little to a big war.

The former external affairs minister, recently awarded the Nobel Peace Prize, said he believes the great danger today is not so much that of a third world war.

It was, rather, the "wrong assessment of risk" which might lead from small to large conflict. It was also a place where the United Nations—particularly with a permanent UN police force—could, and had, played an important part.

Mr. Pearson told the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada's first national convention a UN police force could "stand between countries frightened of each other."

UN FLAG

A sponsor of the United Nations Emergency Force which went into the Suez conflict last year, Mr. Pearson said that the UN flag stands for peace, "not many countries are going to ride over it as an aggressor."

He told more than 600 banquet guests—including more than 340 official FWIC delegates from 10 provinces—that the UNE was it- not a superstate.

"It can only do what member governments allow it to do . . .

when it falls we fail."

With the emergence of Asian states as national powers, the UN now really reflects the world in which we live, he said.

Canada should defend its way of life by ensuring that its own institutions were healthy and free, maintaining its defences and helping to settle international problems to make armed defence eventually unnecessary.

Mrs. J. E. Houck of Brampton, Ont., a Canadian delegate to the UN General Assembly last session, told the convention one thing she learned was that "we of the Western world are much too smug and self-satisfied."

"Every citizen who is grateful for what God has given should be helping others who are less fortunate," Mrs. Houck said.

"Better check with the manager again . . ."

BEAUTY

By MME. QUI VIVE

SPEND ONE EVENING A WEEK ON YOU

Take time to test new lipsticks; find the color most flattering to you!

There's nothing in the world quite so uplifting to a woman's morale as a visit to a beauty salon — especially if her budget's reached a stage where she can say, with utter composure, "she works, please." Of course, she wouldn't use those words, but they do sum up what's really included in a head-to-toe job — shampoo, set . . . maybe, a color rinse . . . facial, manicure, pedicure and eyebrow-shaping. That's really "the works". And it's the "works" which those lucky Hollywood stars have every day of their lives. No wonder they always look glamorous!

Well, let's face it, girls. There aren't many of us who can afford such luxury, but we can compromise. And the best way to do this is to allot at least one evening a week in which to give ourselves "the works".

You can devise any program you like for the "full treatment" depending on your individual schedule and or the routine best suited to your beauty needs, but here's one that we've tested and think should work out well for most women:

"First (and this may surprise you) remove polish from fingers and toe nails. Don't worry about the rest of the manicure or pedicure at this point . . . just get the polish off. Now, a shampoo. Make this a thorough job and set plus curls immediately. Put a net over pincurls and you're ready to work on your face.

A thorough cleansing comes first, of course. Then apply a mask. Most masks do their best work within twenty or thirty minutes. So, while this skin-freshening job's being done, you can give yourself a pedicure. Even if the polish on your toenails isn't quite dry at the end of thirty minutes, you can remove your facial mask according to directions for your particular brand. Cotton pads between toes will prevent polish from smearing while you sit quietly removing the mask, applying astringent — and admiring yourself in the mirror!

Tackle your manicure now. Your nails's all set, your face is in order, your toes are twinkling prettily, so sit back and work on the fingernails. The polish having been removed, the rest of the job is easy.

You think this is a lot of work? Not at all! It's one of the most relaxing ways you can spend an evening. Call pallid Polly in to dry, turn on your TV and watch a favorite program. Time will fly. As a matter of fact, we'll bet you may not even wait to see the finish of the program. You'll decide that this is the evening to try out some of those new cosmetics you have bought . . . three lipsticks, and you're not sure just which one is right for you . . . that lip stick brush you've never quite learned how to use . . . the eyeliner pencil you simply must practise with . . . and all of a sudden you'll be having fun! Of course, you'll cream all these cosmetics off again, but comes the dawn and, with your new knowledge, you'll be a prettier girl facing a new day.

LEADS DOUBLE ROLE

Wanda Sutherland, a petite brunette who works for the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation in Ottawa, leads a double life at least two nights each week. During the day she works as secretary to the CBC's industrial relations officer but at night she becomes Airwoman Sutherland with the Ottawa Radar Squadron of the RCAF Auxiliary. A 20-year-old native of Sydney, N.S., she has been doing the two jobs for more than a year and says "Sure, I like it." She is shown here at her daytime desk, and in her uniform discussing air interception exercises with Lester Taylor (left), St. John's, Nfld., and Bill Lugosn, London, Ont., navigators with 428 Squadron based at Uplands airport. Members of Ottawa Radar Squadron Enjoy Training

By CAROLYN WILLETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—A petite brunette here forgets about dates at least two nights a week.

Each Tuesday and Thursday evening Wanda Sutherland slips out of civilian dress and steps into the tailored blues of the RCAF Auxiliary. The secretary in the industrial relations officer of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation here then becomes an aircraftswoman, first class, with the Ottawa Radar Squadron.

"Sure I like it," says the hazel-eyed 20-year - old from Sydney Mines, N.S., who has been secretary by day, and fighter control operator by night, for more than a year.

REAL TRAINING

She's one of about 50 women in Ottawa's 3416 Aircraft Control and Warning Squadron of some 200 members. Their spare time they serve as eyes and ears for the RCAF.

Uniforms are provided, there's a chance to progress through the ranks and once get paid too, Wanda said in an interview.

Auxiliary service includes weekly training at uplands airbase, one weekend a month for duty at a heavy radar site and optional summer camp training.

As a fighter control operator, Wanda learns the duties involved in tracking and plotting aircraft by radar. She studies the fundamentals of navigation, meteorology and radar theory, with all its technical terminology.

Homework "definitely" is required, says Wanda. "I've only scraped the surface—there's so much I don't know."

LIGHTER SIDE

But the job has its lighter sides, too. Wanda's career as a secretary extends to the combined airwoman - airman's mess. She's mess secretary this year, helping to plan parties, dances and other functions.

Wanda joined the auxiliary, she says, she has met people from all over Canada. Auxiliary personnel are young. Lowest age is from 18 to 29, but the average age for airwoman in the squadron is about 21.

Aware that it is an important peacetime job, Wanda explains that the auxiliary is trained to take over from a regular force base in an emergency. Similar squadrons are established across Canada.

Suited for Comfort

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

When the boxy, casual, Chanel-type suit took over, it was a natural that wool jersey would be the ideal material for this sort of thing. So the stores are filled with handsome easy-fit suits of wool jersey, and these are useful and attractive coats of the same springy, light yet cozy fabric. This one is of glen plaid wool jersey and resembles a middy with slashed sides rather than a suit jacket. Collarless, it buttons at the neck and waist. The skirt is slim. Worn with it is a gray sweater shirt. A joy for the traveller, and an easy, comfortable selection for general wear.

GOOD MANNERS

HEART-WARMING PLAN FOR THEIR HOUSEWARMING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My Ben and I were married a short time before he was sent on his 2-year service in Germany. He returned last April and fortunately his company made it possible for him to return to his old position. While he was overseas, we both "ardently" saved every penny, and recently we were able to buy a nice simple little house not very far from the place where we both have always lived. We've moved in, are more or less settled, hope to be really settled by the first part of December. We have been reading your suggestions about housewarmings, and just last evening at dinner we got excited and thrilled with the idea that perhaps we ourselves might have a housewarming. It will be our first home together and our first Christmas in "our" home — pretty wonderful! Will you please answer two questions for us?

1. Is it ever proper for the owners of the new home to give their own housewarming, or should we, must we, wait until someone, relative or friend, suggests giving a housewarming for us?

2. If you say it's all right for us to give it, what would you say to our giving our housewarming sometime during the coming Christmas holidays? And what kind of invitations would you suggest we send? Thank you a bushel and a peck for your help. We give us, — "We Two"

Wonderful news indeed . . . to have a home of your own and to be living in it at Christmas-time, your first Christmas together . . . Rich felicitations to you!

1. Not only is it proper, but it is customary, for the hostess and host of the new home to give the housewarming. And this is really the most sensible and practical procedure too, for naturally the hosts have been given what they prefer to give the party, how they want it to plan it, whom they wish to invite.

2. It would be the perfect plan, I think, for you to give your own housewarming during the coming Christmas holidays. The festive time for festive parties! I suggest you give your party in the afternoon, say 4-to-7, or 4-to-6, or 3-to-6 o'clock.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Joan B. — Everything seems to fail flat for Cora.

Cora L. — I just fill up time.

* * *

Joan B. — I am very much concerned about my good friend who is a middle-aged woman — a widow with two married children living in different cities. She has a part-time job and a small income left to her by her husband. Her situation in life may sound ideal, yet she is very lonely and unhappy.

I have tried to interest Cora in certain clubs and volunteer work I like. It just doesn't seem to take. She is a well-educated, intelligent woman and the usual routine jobs bore her. I have suggested she take some entertaining and gadding about, but this too seems to fall flat.

It seems to me that Cora ought to marry again, but as she points out, free men at her age are few and far between. Nevertheless, I am pretty sure this is the answer and she should make the effort.

* * *

Cora L. — How does one go about making an effort to do something for which one has no inclination? All my friends say marry, marry, marry, yet I don't see them producing the men to marry.

I am one of those unfortunate individuals who have a good overall knowledge of many things, but a talent for nothing. Routine bores me, petty details drive me wild. When I join a club and they give me post cards to address or lessons in hand-weaving, I know I've had it.

My children, my friends, my relatives are all busy with their own affairs. I entertain and visit occasionally, but it doesn't fill up the long, empty hours. Everything I do is just a matter of filling up time, making the days pass. Is this the way to live? Surely there must be more meaning, more sense in life than this.

* * *

The Council: Cora's sense of futility and boredom seems to be based in a deep, underlying sense of being left out of life.

She points out other people are busy, apparently with things that really concern them, but she alone must use activity to make time pass. She seems to feel other people could give her something worthwhile, if they had less concern about their own affairs and a little more interest in her.

Cora should recognize, however, that it is not others who have left her out of life. She has shut herself out. Their affairs really concern them because they bring warmth, love and enthusiasm to British Cars Selling Well in Canada and U.S.

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's automotive industry is purring like a well-tuned engine over the way its products are becoming increasingly big business in Canada and the United States.

More than 50,000 North of orders for British cars were placed by North American buyers during the annual motor show here last week.

The show's organizers, the British Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders, said the flood of new orders raised a shipping problem.

"Auto exports already are running at an unprecedented level, it explained. However, to ensure prompt deliveries, manufacturers have arranged for an extra ship a week to be available for Canadian and American shipments during the next year.

QUOTES DISTRIBUTOR

Jaguar reported that orders totalling £15,000,000 already have been placed and quoted one U.S. distributor as saying:

"We can take everything you can give us and we can sell twice as many."

The British Motor Corporation said its overseas orders through the show are a record. One order alone, the firm will ship $30,000,000 worth of Austin, Austin-Healey, MG and Morris automobiles to the U.S.

The Standard Motor Company said the debut of the Triumph sedan and Triumph estate wagon in the United States resulted in $11,000,000 in orders for the last three months of this year.

HUGE SALES

Alan F. Birkbeck, president of Standard Triumph Motor Company Incorporated, New York, reported further orders from his distributors indicated he would sell $25,000,000 in Triumph products during the first six months of next year.

Ford spokesmen said that while volume orders were not taken at the show, the company was well on the way to shipping 20,000 English Fords to the U.S. this year.

And, they added, in the next few months Ford expected to pass its two-year-old export record of 188,486 vehicles.

Vauxhall, Rootes, Aston-Martin and Lagonda all reported heavy home and export orders as a result of the show.

Lightning Flashes Disclosing Unexpected Secrets of Space

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP) — Whistling lightning flashes are disclosing unexpected secrets about space 6,000 to 30,000 miles above the earth.

The lightning indicates space is not so terribly empty after all. Our electrified high atmosphere seems to include thousands of miles, not just 200 or 300, as long thought.

Lightning does this by generating a kind of silent radiowave thunder which spreads far out into space, and back again. The sound comes home, on radio receivers, as "whistlers." The whistle runs from a high to a low pitch, like the last half of a wolf whistle over Marilyn Monroe.

The radio whistle from a single lightning flash in your city can reach 15,000 miles through space, coming to earth in the southern hemisphere. Then it can echo back on the same path to the starting point.

At least one whistler has made more than 20 such great round-trips within a minute, audible at both places each time. It probably covered a total distance of 2,000 miles.

To do this, it had to follow earthly lines of magnetic force reaching far into space. To do that, there had to be some atmosphere of electrons of electrified particles in the magnetic fields.

The general scientific idea has been that our electrified upper atmosphere, the ionosphere, reached only 200 miles or so above the earth, tapering off within a thousand miles or so to nothing.

Whistlers are saying "no," that there are 400 or more electrified particles in less than a thimbleful of space at distances of nearly 20,000 miles.

Such a concentration could be bad news for our baby moons which go exploring space soon. They may meet so much air drag that they fall to earth much sooner than anticipated. Experience with the first Russian moon may shed some light on this.

So intriguing are the findings from whistlers and from the "dawn chorus"—another kind of radio sound from space — that they have been made a major study during the International Geophysical Year. At least 40 whistler and dawn chorus stations are at work around the globe.

Agenda for NATO Council Meeting Not to Be Changed

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The cast has changed but the script won't have to be rewritten for the annual December Paris meeting of the NATO council.

Although the Washington communique issued last Friday by Prime Minister Macmillan of Great Britain and President Eisenhower of the United States called for the council meeting to have "special character" it appears that that is to be obtained by having chiefs of government lead each of the 15 member countries' delegation.

The agenda will comprise no element not anticipated before last week's Washington talks, followed by conversations last Saturday in Ottawa between Mr. Macmillan and Prime Minister Diefenbaker, both attended by top foreign-policy and defence aides.

Even the Washington communique's special call upon nations of the free world to seek peace "with vigilance" was detail by which such an idea could be implemented.

Its report is to be the basis of discussion by the December meetings with ministers of the various prime ministers and presidents. It is to be attended by each member country's ministers of external affairs, defence and finance.

The NATO council set up the task force last December after a report by its Three Wise Men—Canada's L. B. Pearson, then external affairs minister; Norway's Halvard Lange and Italy's Foreign Minister Gaetano Martino.

The TV at their report laid great emphasis on the need for co-ordination and co-operation among NATO members. Progress in the field, it said, "is so crucial to the future of the Atlantic community that NATO members must assure that every possibility of fruitful co-operation is examined."

NOTHING SPECTACULAR

They recommended exchanges of information, especially on the recruitment, training and utilization of scientists, engineers and technicians; continued interchange of defence views among member countries, and a conference to propose specific measures for international scientific co-operation.

Dr. Matloch, liaison officer in London, England, for the National Research Council, was named by Canada to the task force, on which the United Kingdom, the United States, France, Belgium and Italy also are represented.

No spectacular policies are to be initiated by Canada in December, sources close to NATO affairs in Paris and Ottawa said.

Line on other major questions to be discussed, such as budget, arms and forces standardization, await their spelling-out by countries which have a special interest in them.

While the proposed scientific pool, which also would co-ordinate research among NATO members as to avoid duplication, has foreign-policy connotations, it is considered in Ottawa to be essentially a defence matter.

Only in atomic matters, however, would it change the present course of Canada's defence flow of information—and that is dependent on the outcome of an appeal President Eisenhower said he would make to Congress to modify the McMahon Act so that the clamps on atomic information could be eased.

Defence-research information now flows freely in both directions between Ottawa and Washington on all except atomic matters. It flows equally freely between Ottawa and London—but on that circuit it includes atomic information, for both Canada and Britain have acknowledged world leadership in peaceful uses of atomic energy.

Fields in which Canadian research would become more widely available to NATO partners include electronics, upper atmospherics, naval sciences, human engineering determining man's physical capacities, and the science of sound and sound-detection), Arctic warfare and operational research.

The expectation is that it will take some time for Congress to dispose of President Eisenhower's request on the McMahon Act and until that is done little could be accomplished in setting up a pool of nuclear-science information.

Actually, the projected summit NATO council meeting robs Canada's prime ministership of little of the prestige he might otherwise have got.

Mr. Diefenbaker decided in New York last September, when he addressed the United Nations General Assembly, that he would attend the NATO council meeting in December.

At that time he was the only head of government planning to attend.

The first satellite launched Oct. 4 changed all that, however, and Mr. Diefenbaker now will be heard in Paris as a full-fledged starter among equals, rather than as one among cabinet ministers.

The Ottawa trip will permit Mr. Diefenbaker the opportunity to stop in London and be received as a member of the imperial privy council, to which he was named last month.

ST. LAURENT

"The Rt. Hon. James Gardiner's statement in the House of Commons, to the effect that the Opposition has refrained from bringing down a motion of no confidence in the Diefenbaker government, because the Governor-General exacted a promise from the outgoing prime minister that a new administration must be given sufficient opportunity to set its program before Parliament, again raises the question of impropriety on the part of the representative of the Crown.

"It was equally improper on the part of Mr. St. Laurent as the leader of a government to accept such a decision.

Mr. St. Laurent added:

"This is a different statement of what the honorable member for Melville actually said.

"I should like to make it clear that no assurance or pledge was asked of me by His Excellency and that no assurance was given His Excellency by me apart, of course from the assurances given in the public statement I made at the time I tendered the resignation of the government."

Mr. St. Laurent then read from his statement last June promising that the Liberals "will not attempt by obstruction to prevent the new government from carrying through Parliament the program it has placed before the people, though we shall of course exercise our right to express our views freely on the measures introduced by the party."

He said he was sure that Mr. Gardiner had been referring to this statement.

The Opposition leader concluded:

"It is true of course that His Excellency was aware, as were the public, of the attitude which the members of the outgoing administration proposed to take. But there was nothing more than that."

Hundreds of Caribou Killed While Migrating Northerly

By DON HANRIGHT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

URANIUM CITY, Sask. (CP)— A fisherman peering into the cold, clear waters of Martin Lake can make out skeletons of caribou on the rocky bottom. From his boat he can see caribou bones scattered along the shore.

This is all that remains of the sudden march on this northern mining community last spring of an estimated 10,000 caribou. They picked this route for their northern migration.

Hundreds were killed by Indians and halfbreeds. It took others, broken up into small herds, two or three days to pick their way through the area and on into the Northwest Territories.

ON MAIN STREETS

During that time, they wandered up Uranium Road and down Fission Avenue and along the other streets in this town of 2,000, followed by children, dogs, hunters and camera fans.

Dess Fogg, 27-year-old editor of the weekly Northland News, watched as eight or nine caribou paraded past his hotel window. "Naturally," he lamented, "I didn't have my camera."

"A taxi taking people to the airport was held up, when the road was blocked by caribou," said Norma Jeppeson, hotel manager. "They just stood in the middle of the road and stared at the car. They wouldn't move for quite a while."

Mrs. Jock McKeekan, wife of the editor of the Uranium Era, the town's other weekly, said she "stood knee-deep in slush ice on Martin Lake and watched hundreds of them move across. When the Indians started shooting, I headed for the bush."

A few weeks later one housewife complained in a letter to the Uranium Era that her drinking and cooking water, for which she paid 15 cents each 45-gallon barrel hauled from the lake, contained caribou hair.

DRESSING PROBLEM

The migration has its serious side. The caribou are declining in population, and biologists are working to prevent the present herds from going the way of the musk ox.

Harold Reid, northern game supervisor for the Saskatchewan department of natural resources, said he saw the estimated 10,000 to 15,000 caribou herd in last year's migration crossing Lake Athabaska in a solid line.

"Sadly fall, the Indians around Stony Rapids in the Fond Du Lac area (about 100 miles east of Uranium City) heard of the migration and went out to meet it," he said.

"They followed the herd, killing animals here and there as it moved. The carihou were left in caches that were pretty crude affairs. As it turned out, the caribou passed close by Stony Rapids where the bulk of the meat was stored. Hundreds were forgotten. We figure that around 6,000 caribou were taken."

A solution to this slaughter is the goal of every northern game officer, it is practically impossible to forbid the killing by Indians, most of whom depend on the caribou for winter food.

Mr. Reid said one possibility now being considered is the establishment of an organized quarter for Indians. In these, the Indians could be transported to the migration route as soon as it becomes known. There kill only as many caribou as necessary.

Meanwhile, the Chipewyans continue to kill the only way they can, for food. Animals left for ravens and wolves.

Quebec Liberal Head Will Resign His Post

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)— Georges Lapalme, 50, leader of Quebec's Liberal Opposition party since 1950, has announced plans to submit his resignation to the provincial executive Nov. 9.

During the legislature's last session, Mr. Lapalme was absent because of ill health and Rene Hamel, Liberal member for St. Maurice, conducted the duties of Opposition leader.

SEN. FOURNIER

In 1954, Mr. Drapeau won handily against eight opponents on support based on his record as a counsel in a vice probe inquiry. Senator Fournier was fifth then.

Police called Monday's vote among the quietest in the city's troubled election history. There was none of the so-called "goon" violence, contributed by gangs hired for the day, of the 1954 election. Nearly 1,800 regular police patrolled steadily afoot or by car, augmented by 566 special constables sworn in at the behest of the defeated mayor.

There were 40 arrests, most of them persons suspected of impersonating voters. Police quickly called up extra squad cars on one occasion when a crowd of about 50 roughly-dressed men converged in northern Montreal near a polling station. The potential mob was dispersed.

In winning, the senators duplicated the feat of Vancouver's late Gerry McGeer who served both chief magistrate and a senator for eight months in 1947 until his death. Camillien Houde, mayor 10 times and also in 1928, had been a Quebec legislature member and later a member of Parliament while Montreal mayor.

Senator Fournier was Liberal member of Parliament from 1935 until his summons to the Senate in 1953.

Prime Minister Talks on Talks At Washington

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Monday that last week's Washington talks between Prime Minister Macmillan and President Eisenhower will open the way to more than Anglo-American co-operation.

It will give many countries "an equal opportunity" to strengthen their peace and security within NATO, Mr. Diefenbaker told the Commons.

The North Atlantic alliance would be "one of the principal means through which practical results can be achieved" from the general talks taken at Washington.

Mr. Diefenbaker made the statement as he reported to the Commons on his talks here Saturday with Mr. Macmillan following the British leader's conference with Mr. Eisenhower.

Mr. Diefenbaker, who will head the Canadian delegation to the NATO council meeting in Paris Dec. 16 - 18, said the Washington meeting opened "a clear road . . . on which Western countries could go forward in . . . interdependence and co-operation."

The proposed fields of co-operation included disarmament, collective defence, sharing of scientific knowledge and economic co-operation.

The proposed fields of co-operation included disarmament, collective defence, sharing of science.

FINAL DECISIONS' LATER

Hon. Lester B. Pearson, former Liberal external affairs minister, asked whether Canada was invited to be a member of a committee set up at Washington on scientific co-operation.

Mr. Diefenbaker emphasized that the meeting decided only on general direction to be taken without making final decisions on . . . about achieving the goal.

"When the permanent committees are set up in order to implement the decisions arrived at there, then there will be time for Canada to be represented on those committees."

Later, Mr. Diefenbaker made a statement on the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference he attended at London in June and July.

He said that while there was occasional disagreement in terms at London, there was "a unity in the common dedication of all members of the Commonwealth to the preservation of freedom."

"It is my view that within the Commonwealth framework a great deal more can be done than has in fact been accomplished to increase and diversify international trade and expand the means whereby Commonwealth members can assist each other's economic development."

PEMBROKE TONIGHT

Tonight the Men of Lenser invade the city intent upon standing the fin-injury-riddled McFarlands on their collective tails and at the same time chalking up their third victory in four starts in the young Eastern Senior "A" Hockey League.

Mr. Lenser's crystal ball winked at him twice over the weekend when it predicted two victories over the Kingston CKLC's but it apparently developed a cataract when it called the shot on the Sunday Cornwall-Cheveles game. For the commoners from the environs of Cornwall dunked the Pembroke royalty no end, sending them home to Lenserville with a 7-2 defeat tacked on their kingly carcasses.

And that won't add to their frame of mind tonight. They'll be out for figurative McFarland blood—and they won't be fooling.

Now if we could arrange a battle of the misty with between Lenser's crystal ball and "Snipe" Matthews' "wesky" authority, the boys in the back room could get an idea where to place the lettuce.

For Lenser's globe has called two out of three, and if you can believe "Snipe," which we do, his Ghostly Gal called the correct score of the McFarlands-Whitby game Saturday night.

The Lumber Kings, headed by the three Petawawa brothers of the Giesebrecht clan, come heralded as a hard hitting club which doesn't spare the horses when it comes to clouting the opposition. Much has been written in Pembroke sports columns about this defenceman, Danny O'Connor, who has yet to meet the immovable object. This Danny boy is claimed to be able to straighten up a punch-drunk bull elephant with one of his body jolts, but we shall see, mes amis, we shall see.

Aiding the court's prize cloister is one Vic Fildes, Ken Campbell, who is the assistant coach, and Jack Douglas. On the Kings' first line are Bert and Jack Giesebrecht, centred by former Cornwall coach and National Hockey Leaguer, Gerry Plamondon.

Other players wearing the royal insignia of the Kings are ex-Buffalo Bison Jim Farelli, Jim Maxwell, Denise Menard, said no relation of Minnie or Willie; Bucky Buchanan, who played for the Kingston CKLC's last season; Nobby Clarke, well known to circuit fans, and who formerly played with Brockville in the old senior "B" loop; Bruce Giesebrecht, and a player named Barber.

That is the club which Lenser claims will bring the Allan Cup to the confines of Pembroke next spring.

The full contest of the McFarlands was not known at this writing but Manager Drury Denyes said he expected Russ Kowalchuk, who has been "fit'd" for the next week will be in action. He was skating with the club yesterday morning. So was Conrad Poets, who has been sidelined with a pulled tendon in a leg. Tony says he's "ratin'" to go but that decision rests with Coach Ike Hildebrand. It is likely "Poetsy" Poetsy will be back in action but Gerry Goyer's presence depends on his condition.

Manager Denyes said Barton Bradley arrived in the city last night and will start on tonight's line-up. He should help the Macs a lot, especially in their present condition.

A Booster Club member who submitted his name in good faith, was last night the object of a series of caustic Boosters about the treatment they allegedly received from Whitby fans during the Saturday night brawl. He claims the Boosters were "rootin' long and loud for the Macs and Dumlops fans took exception."

"A man who was said to be a high-ranking town official, had pollee take two of our club out of the arena, but since no charges could be laid they were allowed back."

The fan says he and his booster pals were not using abusive or profane language, merely yelling for their home town club, which is any fan's right if he has paid admission.

The affair is probably that referred to by our Whitby correspondent who reported occurrences in the spectator ranks "where peace had to be restored."

JUNIOR HOCKEY MEETING

A meeting of those interested in the organization of a junior "B" hockey club for this city has been called for 7.30 this evening. It is hoped the meeting will be concluded before the hockey game starts.

The meeting has been called so that the city's position in the proposed district junior "B" league can be clarified at a district get-together slated for city hall tomorrow night at eight o'clock.

Has 8 Goals, as Many Assists In Equal Number of Games; 'Pocket', Moore Close Behind

MONTREAL (CP) — Maurice (Rocket) Richard, 36, got to a sensational start in his 16th season, continues to set an amazing pace among the National Hockey League scorers with his current total of 16 points.

In eight games of the new campaign Montreal Canadiens' 36-year-old star has scored eight goals and collected eight assists.

Right behind the Rocket, in the official NHL statistics released here Monday, are linemates—brother Henri (Pocket Rocket) Richard and Dickie Moore. Henri has seven goals and seven assists for 14 points and Moore a five-eight count for 13.

This formidable trio, far and away the most devastating line in the league during the first three weeks of campaigning, has accounted for 30 of Montreal's total of 33 goals—a potent factor in the top position of Canadiens.

Richard Leads

Jean Beliveau of Montreal holds fourth place with 12 points on five goals and eight assists.

Highest man among the other five clubs is Bronco Horvath of Boston Bruins. Montreal castoff who was grabbed in the draft by Boston last summer, Bronco has four goals and five assists.

He is alone with nine points in fifth place, tweested by seven other players grouped in a six-place tie with eight points each.

Among them are two more Bruins, Vic Stasiuk and Don McKenney, each with four goals and four assists. Flemming Mac-Dougall of Boston is in the same bracket with three goals and five assists.

Rocket Richard tops all scorers with his eight goals and shares the league leadership for most assists—eight—with Moore and Bellveau. Henri Richard is closest on goal production, with his seven, tied at five with Moore and little Camille Henry of New York Rangers.

Loses First

Canadiens split two games last week, absorbing their first loss of the season, at the hands of New York Rangers, but still top the standing with 12 points.

Rangers, with two wins and a loss last week, follow with nine points. Boston has five points on eight despite a 0-3 record for the week. Chicago Black Hawks were the only club with a perfect record, two wins in two starts, and hold fourth place with seven points.

Detroit split even in two games and follows with six points. Toronto Leafs also split a pair and are in the cellar with four points. Just 4 year ago Detroit was on top with 12 points and Toronto and New York were tied for second place with nine. Boston had seven, Montreal five and Chicago three.

Trappers Win Over Sudbury; 'Bobo' Scores

SUDBURY (CP) — North Bay Trappers, who Monday night beat Sudbury Wolves 5-4, have taken top place in the Ontario Hockey Association-Northern OHA Senior A standings—but there is a shadow over Trappers' camp.

Playing coach Chuck Scherza, who has steered the team into the limelight, needs an operation to save vision of his left eye, injured in Saturday's game against Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen.

Trappers' physician, Dr. Paul Girard, said Monday he has been in touch with a prominent Boston eye specialist to arrange the operation. At best, Scherza will be absent from Trappers' line-up for many weeks.

Trappers' teammate caused Wolves' downfall. Howey Hornby, who Saturday traded to North Bay scored Trappers' first goal and assisted on another to break a 4-4 deadlock. His old squad had taken a 3-0 lead.

Johnny Bodnecki, Don MacGregor, Goose Gosselin and Ches Koneczny were the other North Bay scorers. Ray Lalonde, with two, Joe Malo and Nick Tomluk scored for Sudbury.

Petes Nudge Barrie Flyers

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—The Peterborough Petes, who had 16 goals scored against them in their first two Ontario Hockey Association Junior A games, have broken their losing streak.

Barrie Flyers' overtime goal by Jerry Brisson gave coach Ted Kennedy's squad a 5-4 win over Barrie Monday night.

But Flyers gave Petes a tough struggle before cracking. Trailing 3-2 at the start of the final period, Flyers burst into life, tying the game 4-4 before Brisson's clincher at 1:20 of the overtime.

Gary Darling scored two and Wayne Connelly and Guy Black got the other Peterborough goals. Barrie's came from Bernie Cote, with two, and Jim Josephson and Bob Blackburn.

Gerry James Paces Bombers To 30-13 Win Over Calgary

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Gerry James, who never kicked a placement in league play before this year, has used his educated left foot to boost him to a Western Interprovincial Football Union individual scoring record.

The brilliant Winnipeg Blue Bomber fullback booted 10 points Monday night as Bombers handed Calgary Stampeders a 30-13 spanking in the Cowboys' final league game of the season, who wind up next Saturday in Vancouver against British Columbia Lions, meet Stamps in the two-game total-point semi-final, opening here Nov. 9.

The league-winning Edmonton Eskimos and the tail-end Saskatchewan Roughriders play in Regina next Saturday in the other game winding up the schedule.

PERSONAL TRIUMPH

While the game meant nothing as far as the standings were concerned — Bombers already had cinched second place and Stamps third—it was a personal victory for James, a Winnipeg native, who has been practising diligently on his placement kicking this year.

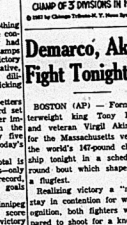
James' 113-point total betters by two points the old record set in 1952 by Calgary Stampeder import end Bob Shaw when the touchdown was worth only five points, compared with today's six points.

The Bomber fullback's total is made up of 16 touchdowns—only two short of the league record, three converts, four field goals and one single.

A crowd of 12,855 at Winnipeg Stadium watched Bombers score their fourth successive victory over Stamps during the regular season. Winnipeg went ahead 3-0 on James' first-quarter field goal and never looked back.

SUBS FOR NORBY

James converted his own touchdown early in the second quarter before Stamps got on the scoreboard with Ron Clinkcake's first of two touchdowns. Bud Korchak converted to make it 10-3 at quarterback for the injured Nobby Wirkowski, turned in a capable performance.



Leo Lewis scored two touchdowns in the second quarter, Korchak converting one, to give Bombers a 23-7 lead at the end of the three-quarter mark.

Dennis Mendyk, who joined the Bombers just before import cutdown date, scored another touchdown early in the fourth quarter. James' third convert made it 30-7. Clinkcake wound up the scoring about four minutes later, taking over on a quarterback sneak from two yards out.

Bombers went most of the way with unried Canadian quarterback Barry Rosebrough after regular James Jones had been suffered a charley horse early in the first quarter. Piere's injury is considered serious and he is expected to be ready for Saturday's game against Lions.

Demarco, Akins Fight Tonight

BOSTON (AP) — Former welterweight king Tony DeMarco and veteran Virgil Akins, rated for the Massachusetts version of the world's 147-pound championship tonight in a scheduled 15-round bout which shapes up as a flugfest.

Realising victory a "must" to stay in contention for world recognition, both fighters were prepared to shoot for a knockout in their Boston Garden clash. The bout will not be available to television and radio broadcasts.

DeMarco, the No. 1 contender for the title vacated by Carmen Basilio's advance to the middleweight championship, was made a 10-8 choice by the oddsmakers because of his punching power.

The 25-year-old slugger, who lives in the shadows of the Garden, also will have the advantage of being cheered on by a hometown crowd.

While DeMarco is considered by many as the better hitter in his class, the 29-year-old Akins also is highly regarded as a puncher with power in both hands.

NAME MISS BLUE BOMBER

WINNIPEG (CP) — Maureen Finn, 18, a second-year nursing student, Saturday was named Miss Blue Bomber for 1957.

Five-foot-seven, 120 pounds, the dark - haired beauty won over seven other entries. Statistically she's 36-24-36.

Marlies Lead Junior Series Points Battle

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Marlboros and St. Catharines Teepees are the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series leaders after the weekend's opening games, and it's easy to see why Marlboros are in top spot.

Four of the league's five top scorers, including the top two, are Marlboro players. The figures include games to Sunday Oct. 27.

Centre Henry Marczak and right wing Jim Murchie each have five points, Marczak on three goals and two assists and Murchie on two goals and three assists.

Peterborough's Gerald Brisson is in a three-way tie for third with Toronto's Jack McMaster and Carl Brewer, all with four points. Brisson and McMaster have three goals and one assist each and Brewer has one tally and three assists.

St. Catharines share the lead with Marlboros with two victories in as many starts but have only one player among the top 10 scorers. Ed Hoekstra is tied with seven others for sixth spot with three points, all goals.

St. Catharines' Roger DeJordy leads the goaltenders, having allowed one goal in each game for a 1.0 average. Marlboro's Len Broderick is in second spot with four goals against in two games each for a 2.0 average.

Bing Has Bride, Now Gets Part Of Ball Club

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Bing Crosby has acquired not only a lovely young bride but also about 5% per cent of the Detroit Tigers baseball team.

The singer's brother and longtime sportsman, Larry, announced Monday night that Bing has exercised an option to buy stock in the team which finished fourth last season in the American League.

Bing was a member of the syndicate which bought the Detroit team last year.

At that time, baseball commissioner Ford Frick ruled Crosby could own stock but not take part in the Tigers because he also held stock in Pittsburgh Pirates of the National League.

Larry Crosby said that, if Frick approves, Bing and his two sons will actually buy the singer's approximately 10-per-cent interest in the Pirates.

Frick's office said Tiger director Paul O'Brien has been in touch with the commissioner in connection with the Crosby deal. But Frick asked for a written statement of the negotiations before making any comment.

Larry Crosby declined to disclose the value of the Detroit stock. However, when the club changed hands last year the sale price was $5,500,000. Estimates of the Tigers' profits run as high as $500,000.

"Actually, I'll be a very minor stockholder," said Bing, who came here Monday to record a radio show. He has been honeymooning at his ranch near Palm Springs with his bride of five days, Kathy Grant.

Stamp Manager 'Slugs' Player After Defeat

Hunter says the incident occurred on the Stamps' railway car just before the train left Regina for Winnipeg. Masterson "slugged halfback Harvey Wylie on the mouth, cutting him and puffing up the side of his face," Hunter writes.

He quotes Wylie as saying he was putting his coat into his berth when Masterson came down the aisle.

"He shoved me and I shoved him back and then he said 'don't shove me' and then hit me on the mouth," Wylie is quoted as saying.

DROPPED A PUNT

Hunter says Wylie told him he thought it was because he had dropped a punt, setting up a Saskatchewan touchdown, during the Saturday game in which Saskatchewan Roughriders defeated Calgary 23-14.

Hunter says Masterson later told him he had hit Wylie but that at the time he didn't know who he was striking.

"It was walking down the aisle with a suitcase in each hand and when I passed a group of players one of them gave me a hard elbow in the ribs. Maybe it was accepted but I was in no mood for horseplay after the ball game.

"I dropped one bag and swung around instinctively and hammered out with a backhand and hit somebody . . . certainly it had nothing to do with Harv personally."

Name Shantz American Loop Comeback Player of the Year

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "It was darn nice of the fellows to remember me," said little Bobby Shantz today upon learning he had been voted the American League comeback player of the year in an Associated Press poll of baseball writers.

Sixty-nine of the 132 participating writers in the annual poll voted for Shantz, Gene Woodling, Cleveland outfielder, was named on 32 ballots. Ted Williams of Boston, who won the league batting title, was third with 12 votes followed by Washington outfielder Roy Sievers and Baltimore pitcher Billy Loes, each with nine.

Shantz's modest reaction was typical of the tiny southpaw who almost quit baseball two years ago because of shoulder miseries. His troubles started in September, 1952, the year he won 24 games for Philadelphia Athletics and was selected the league's most valuable player.

HIT BY PITCH

In mid-September, Shantz was hit by a pitch and suffered a broken wrist. "Then came the shoulder trouble — torn tendons, the doctors said. He won a total of 13 games in three years for Athletics who later became the Kansas City A.

Shantz, whose 11 victories this year helped New York Yankees win the American League pennant, said:

"Gosh, if you can't win for the Yankees, who can you win for"

"They are a great defensive team as well as a hitting club. You don't realize how good Mickey Mantle is until he's in back of you.

"EXPECT TO WIN"

"And it's true what they say about being a Yankee. They expect to win. It's hard to describe exactly what it is about the Yankees, but whatever it is, it gets into you."

It got into Bobby. He won 11, lost five and led the league with a 2.45 earned run average.

Shantz' only regret in 1957 was that he couldn't win a world series game. Bobby lost one, did a fine relief job in another, and in his own words, "was lousy" in the seventh game won by Milwaukee.

"Great tackle, pal! Come see me after graduation an' I'll make you some real nice uppers!"

Hopes to Extend Number of NFL East-West Games

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Commissioner Bert Bell of the National Football League says he is working on a new six-year schedule which would allow more games between eastern and western conference teams.

The commissioner disclosed on Monday that four of the six eastern conference teams feel the big gate receipts are in the western conference and want more games with their more fortunate brothers.

Under the present NFL system, each team plays home and away against members of its own conference and two games with clubs from the opposite conference.

Philadelphia Eagles, Chicago and Pittsburgh Steelers, all of the eastern conference, have expressed dissatisfaction. They feel all the "big money" is in the western conference which consists of Chicago Bears, Los Angeles Rams, San Francisco 49ers, Green Bay Packers, Baltimore Colts and Detroit Lions.

Bell noted that Cleveland Browns and New York Giants of the eastern conference still are doing well.

Under Bell's new plan, each team would add a game against a club in the opposite conference, dropping one away-game with a team in its own conference.

Marauders Whip RMC Redmen

KINGSTON (CP) — McMaster Marauders appear destined to go through their entire Ontario Intercollegiate Football Conference schedule without a defeat. Monday they romped to a 55-0 win over Royal Military College Redmen here and now have five wins in five starts.

Marauders have now scored a total of 293 points with only seven tallied against them.

Quarterback Bruce Jackson led Marauders' attack with four touchdowns and six converts, with Gene Geskie, Gerry Elliott, Don Young and Butch Rogers added the other majors. Marauders' other point came on a rouge kicked by Doug Piteau.

Mask, Pad Boys Name President

GALT (CP) — Jack Sims of Hamilton Monday was elected to his third term as president of the Intercounty Umpires' Association.

Other officers elected at the annual fall meeting:

Frank Stock, Kitchener, vice-president; Bill Almas, Preston, secretary-treasurer; Bert Bryant and Ab Culliston, Galt, Bill Watson, Waterloo, Les Ellins and Tom Tortl, Brantford, executive members.

Kickers Hold Top Spots in Scoring Race

TORONTO (CP)—The players who do the booting in the Big Four Football Union are making things interesting in the scoring race. The convert, field goal and punting specialists broke down three of the first five places.

Statistics compiled by The Canadian Press show Montreal's Hal Patterson in the No. 1 position with 72 points on 12 touchdowns, but he is being crowded by Gary Schrieder of Ottawa Rough Riders. The former Queen's University star is 10 points back with 62 and has scored one touchdown for 50 of these.

Cookie Gilchrist, power-driving fullback with Hamilton Tiger-Cats, is in third place with 54 points and the next spot is shared by Bill Bewley of Alouettes and Steve Oneschuk of Tiger-Cats, each with 50. Both Bewley and Oneschuk have scored only one touchdown each, the remainder of their points made up of converts, field goals and singles.

BETWEEN TWO

The Ontario Rugby Football Union senior championship has developed into a battle between Eddie Norris of the league-leading Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen and Don Wright of London Lords Rugbies, with 97 points on five touchdowns, 20 converts, two field goals and one single, is two points back of Wright who also has scored five touchdowns. Wright has booted 17 converts and a field goal and three singles.

Jan Sandzelius of McGill Redmen is next with a nine-point game Saturday to take over the third position from Jerry Heeman, leadership. He now has 29 points, five ahead of team-mate Joe Loffler and Dale Creighton of the University of Western Ontario Mustangs, tied for second place.

Daily Double Pays $4,199,60

ALBANY, Calif. (AP) — The largest daily double in California racing history was recorded Monday at Golden Gate Fields when a combination of Pasadena Slim and Teliyah.

Pasadena Slim, on whom only a total of $68 was wagered, paid $222, $181.20 and $34.20 to winning the first race. Telyar completed the big double by winning the second race and paying $9.80, $6.70 and $4.70.

The record high for California was $3,935.20.

Texas Aggies Top 'Sooners'

NEW YORK (AP) — Texas A and M have again demonstrated that even the best college football teams can't afford to let down for a moment. The Aggies rolled into first place today in The Associated Press weekly ranking poll as Oklahoma slipped to second after a 14-13 decision over Colorado.

It was the second time this season that Oklahoma's Sooners, unbeaten in 43 consecutive games had lost the lead just because they didn't play decisively. They dropped behind Michigan State earlier, then regained the No. 1 spot a week ago.

The Aggies rolled over Baylor 14-0 for their straight sixth win this season and their fourth shutout in six starts, to gain their new status Iowa retained third place.

The rest of the top ten, their order and points shuffled during the week, are: Auburn, Notre Dame, Michigan State, Duke, Ohio State, Army and North Carolina State.

OTTAWA (CP)—Five sectional championships covering all of Canada have been formed by the Canadian Figure Skating Association.

A spokesman said Monday this will give all Canadian figure skaters an opportunity to compete in finals from which a team will be picked for entry in the world championships at Paris, Feb. 12-15.

At the annual meeting in Montreal during the weekend, E. S. McLaughlin of Oshawa was elected president.

Gump Worsley Tops Goalies in National League

TORONTO (CP) — A Lorne (Gump) Worsley is the busiest goaltender in the National Hockey League so far this season but rival forwards are anything but happy with his stinginess.

In eight games the New York Rangers' iron reminder has been tested 249 times. He has been scored against 18 times for a .928 "stinginess" average, tops among the regular NHL goalies.

The second-best percentage belongs to Glenn Hall of Chicago Black Hawks, who has stopped 213 of the 230 shots fired at him for a .910 mark. Charlie Hodge, who replaced Jacques Plante with Montreal Canadiens for the first six games, had a .900 mark but Plante, who has since returned has played has a .833 percentage, last in the league.

Here are statistics:

	S	M	G	Pct
Hodge, M	189	158	19	.940
Worsley, NY	249	231	18	.928
Hall, C	230	213	17	.910

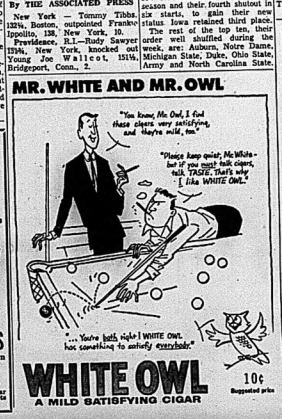
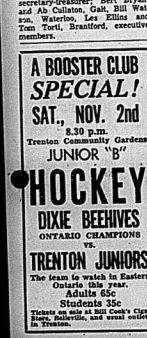
Russians Lead Ten Nations In Pentathlon

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Russia reaped another victory in the world pentathlon championships Monday by winning the pistol shooting event both in total of 2,820 points. Alfred Three events, horse riding, fencing and pistol, the Soviets lead 10 other competing nations with 7,868 points, Hungary is second with 7,764 points while the United States is third with 6,797.



Hungary was second in the pistol shooting with 2,520 points and Russia third with 2,500.



V. Cerny of Czechoslovakia was top man in the shooting with 980 points. The same score notched by Russia's Igor Novikov for second place. Another Soviet shooter Alexander Tarassov, was third with 940 points.

Cerny still holds first place in the individual standings with 2,788 points and seems almost certain of winning the gold medal as world pentathlon champion. His teammate, Nikolai Tatarinov is in second place with 2,674 points.

Swimming will be held today and the championships end with the cross country running on Wednesday. Both Russians are strong in those events, and their only serious opponent appears to be Finland's Vaino Korhonen, now third in the individual standings with 2,596 points.

May-December Marriages Mostly Succeed in Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Bing Crosby's wedding to a girl the same age as one of his sons follows the trend in May-December marriages in Hollywood. Perhaps surprisingly, such marriages have had a good average in a town where divorce is sometimes considered a way of life.

There is 20 years' difference between Bing and his bride, Kathy Grant. Far from being a handicap, the gap is considered an advantage by some observers of the filmland scene. Take a look at the record.

Many of Hollywood's mature leading men have chosen wives decades younger than themselves. And several female stars have married older men in recent years. It's true that such alliances are often second, third or fourth marriages. But they have stuck where others failed.

SET PATTERN

William Powell set the pattern in 1940. He chose as his third wife an MGM starlet, Diana Lewis. He was 47 she could barely vote. Hollywood gave the marriage six months. The Powells still are happily wed.

Humphrey Bogart, 45, had a headlined romance with his young leading lady, Lauren Bacall, 21. No one gave her a chance to accomplish what three other women had failed to do—tame Bogart. But she did it, and his last decade was the happiest of his life.

Rudy Vallee was another three-time loser. In 1949, he married a University of California co-ed, Eleanor Norris, though he was 29 years older, their marriage has remained constant.

Twice - divorced Cary Grant was another star who fell in love with his leading lady. She was Betsy Drake, with whom he appeared in the prophetic Every Girl Should be Married. When they married, he was 46 she was 22. They are one of the town's most devoted couples.

FOUND COMPANIONSHIP

Saddened by the death of his first wife, Fred MacMurray found companionship with June Haver, an also unhappy from a series of personal tragedies. They married when he was 45 and she was 26. She seems perfectly content to forget her career and take care of their home and their adopted twins.

Older women were among Clark Gable's first four wives. As his fifth, he chose Kay Spreckles, 20 years his junior. Gable's third, for married Ursula Theiss, a dozen years younger than he, and Gregory Peck, at 39, wed a 22-year-old French girl, Veronique Passani.

Among the female stars, Elizabeth Taylor well showman Mike Todd, a grandfather with a son older than Liz. Though their battles are constant, observers feel they are well matched — so far. Jennifer Jones appears to be happy with her older husband-producer David Selznick.

Kirk Douglas Will Appear On Mike Wallace Interview

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—Kirk Douglas believes that "every once in a while you have to stick your neck out."

Saturday night he appears on Mike Wallace Interview (ABC-TV 11 p.m. EST), the first top Hollywood star to undergo Wallace's searing cross-examination.

The interview was filmed recently in Douglas' home. Douglas was making his new movie, The "Knowing Wallace's reputation for quick perusal of the gridcle, everybody urged me not to do it," Douglas said. "But I found a kind of challenge in it. More valid, from my viewpoint, however, is the fact that I feel every once in a while you have to stick your neck out.

CHANGE OF A FALL

"I mean that I, as an actor, every so often should be seen off-balance by the public with the chance that I'll fall on my face. The public deserves a chance to see it."

As everyone recognizes, this courageous attitude is unlike that of nearly all stars who dread that they may fall flat on their faces before the public.

Of the interview itself Douglas said Wallace "surprised me a few times."

"He plays a little rough, so I was a little rough too. I called him a snob—and I hope he didn't rise. Took out of the show.

LIKES MIKE NOW

"Frankly, I liked Mike better after the interview than before it. He seems able to take it as well as dish it out. I see that some of his questions are unfair, but I think I see why he does that. He wants to throw you off balance.

"I think Wallace fulfils a worthwhile purpose. People are interested in people and Wallace tries to get to the truth about a person. Actors are often like magicians—now you see it and now you don't. Wallace makes you hold still. To an actor that's like being under a microscope."

On the Tracks

LONDON (AP) — A racehorse who changed owners a few days ago for $28,000 Monday replaced American-owned Fairy Stone as favorite for Wednesday's running of the Cambridgeshire Handicap.

Britain's top bookies made Heritiere the 9-1 favorite for the one mile and an eighth race over Newmarket's turf course and dropped Fairy Stone to odds of 100-8. Heritiere was a 40-1 shot a fortnight ago.

Heritiere was a doubtful starter for the big race before 31-year-old Archie Kidston of England bought the filly.

Complete betting odds at Monday's calloverr:

Heritiere 9-1; Fairy Stone 100-8; Primera, Stephanidis and Lopplyjugs 100-6; Variety King 20-1; Westmarch 25-1; Water Snake, Punch, Roll Away 25-1; Velets, Precious Heather, Sun Flight 28-1; Maid, Rose Petal, Chief III 33-1; Mosterion, Reputation, Cash and Courage, Rolstar, Tudor Junks, Pathelien, Venus Slipper 50-1; Burlington Belle, Lucky Sovereign, Sweet Rosa, Sweet Rosa's Daughter, Sweet Rosa's Daughter, Sweet Rosa's Daughter

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

(Author of the new "Astrology and You")

The Stars impel . . . They do not compel! What you make of your life is largely up to you."

Tuesday, October 29, 1957

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Take care you do not permit a close tie to interfere with the plans or work you have scheduled today and upset the applecart. He or she is not familiar with all details and may ruin your great chances.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — An argument between an associate and a higher up could involve you seriously today if you don't avoid both and keep nose to the grindstone. It will resolve itself soon and you are in the clear. Get bills paid.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Avoid that irate and upset fellow worker today. Delve into all sorts of business opportunities, other interesting facets that will make your future brighter. Now the time to get ahead, but don't overdo.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21) — Put a rat rubber band around your wallet today when that urge seizes you to spend money like water. This releases fine energy for work of high calibre in home, garden, office, etc., and adds a new notch to character.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Dynamic, clever associate could today get under your favorite's skin with some rather unusual act or conversation — may even shock you, but see that he or she is not hurt by others, for there is an element of jealousy oresent.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Display your complete loyalty today at business, and do not go along with grips or schemes of others. Then keep your appointments, do shopping, write important letters, clean files. Be the master of the situation.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Spend today taking in those amusements that help your ego, raise your consciousness to where you have admiration from others. This is not the day to be extravagant with possessions. Get haircut or new hair-do.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — An unfortunate day with family ties, since they do not agree with your ideas at all, it seems. Yet, ultimately, a good threshing out of ideas brings greater understanding and mutuality of opinion in aftermath.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — "Less talk and more work" is the order of the day for you, or you are apt to flit about thither and yon fruitlessly. Mind is very active and you feel like being everywhere at once. That is impossible. Dig!

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Luckily, your partner has many fine ideas to offer if you will heed them intelligently and put them in motion quickly, after studying every detail. They are a bit complicated. Guard against investing too much money.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — A day to heed every law that concerns your own activities and life and follow same wisely. Be kind and generous with others as you work and see that bills are paid, credit in best possible shape.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Your ambitions are such that occasionally you want to sit and complain about slow progress being made. Dwell in the positive instead. You have sown the seeds of success and faith will now do the rest. Read and study.

If your child is born today . . . The provoking little child born today will be the fascinating kind who will try every trick in the book to see just how far he or she can go in getting away with things. But once you prove yourself worthy, your progeny will have deep respect for you and others in authority throughout life and make a very tolerable success in almost any field where imagination and nerve are needed.

Little Benny's Notebook

Ma was darning holes out of socks, and she said to pop, Wilkins, I have not been able to find a single unflattering greeting card to send Mrs. Beetlebuse for her birthday. I just cant bring myself to send her one of those lavishly sentimental verses when my feelings tords her are really lukewarm to the point of coldness, she said.

There surely must be a card that simply says, Birthday Greetings, period, pop said, and ma said, Well as a matter of fact if there are no see or 2 like that, but they are just as expensive as the ones with rediculously flattering verses, and it seems walsiful to spend that mutch money and not even get a rime.

Why not send her a plain one and write an unflattering rime on it yourself? pop said. For instance. Berthdays come but once a year, Which at your age you'll be glad to hear, he said, and ma said, William, that gives me an idea.

Hey, you wouldn't write that to her, pop said, and ma said, Certainly not, I'll write, Berthdays come and berthdays go, And I wish you a million more or so.

But yee gods, her most ardent asimirer couldn't wish her more that that, pop said, and ma said, Of course, it's so wildly exaggerated that she's bound to doubt my sincerity, and that's the whole idea. William, that was a very good suggestion. Thank you, she said.

I feel slitely dizzy, but I'm sure you're welcome, pop said.

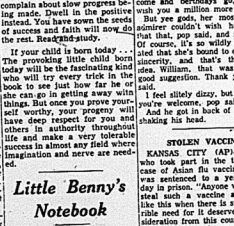
STOLEN VACCINE



KANSAS CITY (AP)—A man who took part in the theft of a case of Asian flu vaccine Friday was sentenced to a year and a day in prison. "Anyone who would steal such a vaccine at a time like this when there is such a terrible need for it deserves no consideration from this court in spite of a lack of a prior record," U.S. district Judge Richard M. Duncan told James Glayzer, 24-year-old potato chip salesman.

IMPOSES TAX

PARIS (AP) — The French government imposed — a 20-per-cent tax on all imports today, in effect completing devaluation of the franc begun last August. The value of the franc in international exchanges now will be 420 to a dollar.

SOVIET POWER CHANGES HANDS

Downgraded in another Moscow power shift, Marshal Zhukov has been removed from the post of defence minister and has not been nominated to any other position. A West German newspaper stated that Zhukov recommended co-operation with the U.S. and angered Nikita Khrushchev, Communist party secretary.

Believed to be the chief tactician in the Communists' Korean campaign, Marshal Malinovsky is Russia's new defence minister. Now, some observers say, his talents will be used in making a battleground of the Middle east.

FORMER OFFICIAL SHOT

PARIS (Reuters) — Hocine Cherchalli, former deputy mayor of Algiers who worked in Paris for an insurance company, was shot to death Monday as he came out of a subway station. Police said the assassins were members of the Algerian National Liberation Front. He had refused to join the rebel organization.

SMALL TEXAS TOWER ON LAKE ERIE

A small-size Texas Tower is now in operation in Lake Erie, drilling for gas alongside other permanent structures. The tower, like its bigger prototypes, raises itself on its own pipes, which rest on the bottom of the lake. This model is triangular in shape, measures 60 feet to each side. It is operated 10 or 12 feet above the water, with its legs extending up to 45 feet. Several other drilling rigs have struck gas in Lake Erie.

HOSPITAL COURTROOM

This is believed to be one of the first photographs taken in a British Columbia court room. while the court was in session. Mr. Justice Harold McInnes (left) gave permission for photographers to take the pictures. Virginia Weony (centre), shot in the back August 8 was testifying from a wheelchair in a courtroom set up in North Vancouver General Hospital. Michael Paul Mahonin, father of two of her children and with whom she had been living, was charged with attempted murder. Defence counsel Bernia Isman appears at right. (CP Photo).

Manufacturers Request Changes In Labor Laws

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario division of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association today presented a brief to the select committee on labor relations of the Ontario Legislature asking stricter enforcement and changes in the labor laws.

The brief said the "old-time picture of the trade union . . . which needed to be protected against the 'oppressive' employer" has little relation to the situation today.

"Today there is much more need to think in terms of protecting the interests of the public, the employers and the individual employee," it said.

Recommendations included:

1. Stricter enforcement of laws governing unlawful strikes, such as those occurring during a term of agreement or after an agreement has expired but before conciliation has been completed.

2. Stricter enforcement of picketing laws and an amendment to the existing law which provone for prevention of picketing in certain instances, such as during a strike called illegally, when an agreement is still in force.

3. Making unions answerable in damages for loss to a company or individual resulting from unlawful acts by union members. At present, no union can be sued in its own name for damages, but only by means o 'representative action directed against individual members.)

4. Prohibition by law of secondary boycotts, as when union members refuse to handle or install materials which have been handled or manufactured by non-union workers.

5. Protection of an employee by restricting by law a union's right to bring about an employee's discharge by expelling him from the union.

The brief also commended existing laws relating to the present conciliation procedure in Ontario and expressed a favorable opinion of the use of judges as chairman of conciliation boards.

It recommended no changes to this portion of the Labor Relations Act.

London Cabbie And Wife Given Holiday in U.S.

CHICAGO (AP)—Jack Wall, a London cabbie who hadn't had a vacation in 10 years, is living it up in Chicago now—and he says it's all possible because of a secret benefactor.

Wall said his benevolent friend —whom he will identify only as a "shipping magnate" — forked the transportation bill for him and his wife from England to North America.

That made the difference for Wall, who told a reporter he makes about $20 a week.

TOLD OF "DREAM"

It all started, the 53-year-old cabbie said, last April when he picked up an "executive type man" at London airport. During the 40-minute drive to the city conversation turned to Wall's dream of an American vacation.

"I mentioned that I had never been more than a few miles from London, but that my life's ambition was to travel to America. I told him about my wife's relatives in Toronto and Chicago."

"When he paid his fare he said to let him know when I was ready for the trip and that he would do something about it."

WIFE URGED HIM ON

Pressed by his wife, Rose, who maintained that "a man of that calibre doesn't say a thing like that unless he means it," Wall said he called.

The executive kept his word. He arranged in mid-August for Wall and his wife to fly to Hamburg, Germany, and there board a ship for the United States. Aboard ship they occupied the owner's cabin, Wall said. They have a reservation for the return trip Nov. 12.

Wall told a reporter that as part of the bargain he would not discuss the name of the "shipping magnate."

Rescue 'Deejay' From Atlantic, Cost $300,000

HAMILTON, Bermuda (AP) — The coast guard cutter Rockaway finally hauled disk jockey Melvin West and his outboard motorboat out o fthe Atlantic Monday.

The coast guard estimated West's 11-day voyage from North Carolina had cost the U.S. government more than $300,000.

The cutter reported the 26-year-old disk jockey was "tired but in good physical condition."

West left Morehead City, N.C., Oct. 17 in his 15-foot craft The Impossible with fuel for about 72 hours. He hoped to make the 550-mile trip in 40 hours but heavy seas held him back and he ran out of fuel.

SEARCHED TWO DAYS

A freighter spotted him last Monday and refuelled him. The coast guard called off the search it had been making for two days and later refused to look again when he did not reach the British colony.

A coast guard plane spotted West Sunday out of gas and adrift. The plane dropped him a radio and rations.

Via radio West pleaded for gas to continue. Fed up, the coast guard dispatched the cutter to pick him up and kept an aerial patrol over him until he was rescued.

COW HAS RIGHTS

PARIS (AP) — The French Supreme Court has decided that a cow is within her rights to kick a veterinarian. The court turned down any damages to a veterinarian who suffered a fractured skull when the cow kicked him while he was trying to give her a shot.

LIGHTNING HITS EXPLODING WATER

An unusual photo of an unusual phenomenon brought about when scientists exploded a routine depth charge during a test at Chesapeake Bay, Va. When the charge was detonated below the surface of Chesapeake Bay, the resulting 300-foot-high water plume inducted a stray low-level cloud to discharge its electrical energy in three consecutive lightning bolts, all following the same ionized path and striking within one second.

Marmora

MARMORA — A convention will be held in Marmora town hall on October 30th at 2.30 p.m. by the Hastings-Frontenac Liberal Association at which a candidate will be selected to represent the party in the next Federal election which may take place next year. The public is cordially invited.

RCAF Station At Centralia May Be Closed

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — RCAF station Centralia, one of the country's major flight training centres, may be closed, it was learned Monday as one of the department of national defence's moves to cut back military expense operations.

Militia units have already been told that summer training camps will be suspended, and five days has been cut from their training time. Royal Canadian Army cadets have also been informed that the maximum number of training days is to be reduced.

An official in Ottawa said that with the end of the NATO training program a number of flight training stations in Canada would be closed, some as early as next year, and that Centralia "is one of those which would be considered for curtailment."

Another official said it has been the idea of the RCAF for a number of years to move the flight portion of Centralia to Western Canada, apparently because of better flight training weather.

Asked to Resign

SIMCOE (CP) — Traffic Constable Earl Barnes, suspended from duties after he wounded William W. Collins, 34, of Waterford, with a bullet from a .32 calibre revolver after Collins allegedly resisted arrest, has been asked to tender his resignation.

The request was made Saturday at a hearing into the incident.

Russian Moon Spins Silently In Outer Space

LONDON (AP) — Russia's pioneer earth satellite spun silently in space today as world scientists redoubled efforts to track the orbiting sphere by visual and other means.

Radio Moscow announced meanwhile that still another satellite—this one carrying a spaceunravelling dog named Kudryavka —will be launched in the near future.

Sputnik No. 1's beeps died away Saturday, three weeks after the moonlet was launched.

Soviet scientists confirmed that the satellite's batteries finally had failed, and asked scientists of other countries to aid in tracking the now-voiceless sphere.

Moscow radio introduced the dog designated to ride the second satellite into space.

The announcer described the animal as "a small, shaggy dog named Kudryavka," already trained to use a space suit and transparent helmet. Kudryavka was introduced to the radio audience, and barked into the microphone.

'Ghosts' Prove To Be Gas From Wall Insulation

ST. HAILIRE, N.B. (CP) — Their "haunted" house was quiet and Armand Albert and his family slept easier Sunday night.

But they and the people of this northern New Brunswick village won't soon forget the excitement the "spooks" caused.

The hallowe'en preview started at 1 a.m. Thursday while the Albert family were asleep. His terrified wife and children and his father and mother left to seek shelter elsewhere.

HUNTED FOR "SPOOKS"

Assistant fire marshal Frederick Fournier of Edmundston was called down to look for the "ghosts."

"I bored two holes under a window in the wall the noises were coming from," he said. "I thought it might be gas."

Thursday night hundreds of people gathered outside the house to see if the spooks would return. None would go inside.

About 7 p.m. the thumping and pounding started again.

Mr. Fournier was called again Friday.

"This time I took off two boards on the bottom of the wall just above the foundation and a lot of gas came out. That stopped the noise. It's been quiet ever since."

BLAMED ON SHAVINGS

Mr. Fournier said the gas apparently came from green hardwood shavings placed in the wall as insulation. Chemical reaction produced gas.

"A little gas was getting out under a window," he said, "but the wall was so tight that most of it was held back.

"Then the pounding started—the sort you sometimes hear when pressure builds up in a boiler or radiator.

How did he happen to find the trouble?

"Well," he said, "I just don't believe in ghosts."

Grenade Blast Injures Premier, Israel Ministers

Deranged Jew Hurls Bomb At Parliament Session

JERUSALEM (AP) — Moshe Shapiro, Israel's social welfare minister, was reported in serious condition today, a victim of a deranged young Jew who hurled a hand grenade into the Israeli Parliament.

Premier David Ben-Gurion, foreign Minister Golda Meir and four other cabinet ministers escaped with minor injuries when the explosive went off Tuesday night near the Speakers' dais. But anxiety was expressed over the condition of Shapiro, who was hit in the stomach, head and chest. Police said the grenade was thrown from the rear of the public gallery by Moshe Ben Jacob Douek, 25, a former patient in a mental hospital. A maintenance employee nabbed him.

Police quoted Douek as saying he had a grudge against Youth Aliyah, an immigration organization which helped him migrate from Iraq to Israel several years ago. He once tried to set fire to one of Israel's largest hospitals, Hadassah, in Haifa, and was leader of Israel almost since its founding, was hurled superficially on his left hands and left leg by bomb splinters. He remained in hospital overnight although the superficial wounds were bandaged. He received a slight splinter wound in his right foot.

Communications Minister Moshe Carmel, who suffered a broken left arm, also was in hospital.

Health Minister Israel Mbarisha was scratched but returned to Parliament when the session was resumed about two hours after the explosion.

Father, Mother, Six Children Perish in Fire

PICKFORD, Mich. (AP) — A mother and father of six and their seven children were killed early today when a fire destroyed their home six miles southwest of Soo Upper Michigan community.

Verne Carrick, 43, his wife, Irene, 30, and their children Dennis, 9, Harold, 7, Norma, 5, Joy, 3, Dawn, 1½ months, and James, 1½ months, died in the flames.

The sole survivor is 11-year-old Rose Carrick.

State police said Rose told troopers she was awakened shortly after midnight by smoke and fire.

The girl ran to the nearby home of her uncle, Arthur Carrick, to summon help. She said police she saw her father attempting to awaken her mother as she fled.

By the time the uncle returned to the burning home, firemen prevented his entry.

State police said the cause of the fire was not determined immediately.

11 Canadians Win $784,000 In Irish Sweeps

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Eleven Canadians — three from Toronto — won a total of $784,000 in Irish sweepstakes prizes on the three horses in the Cambridgeshire handicap at Newmarket, Eng.

Three won first-place prizes of $140,000. Five held tickets on the second horse with $56,000 each and three more won $28,000 for third.

Stephanotis was first, followed by ex-favorites Heritiere and Fairy Stone.

Winners on Stephanotis, identified only by nom de plume, were listed as Little Larry of Calgary, Crazy Eights of Trenton, Ont., and Doni Jo, Kitchener, Ont.

Winners on Heritiere were $56,000 each to Winner Larry Bernier, Kitchener, Ont., a holder listed as Pat Port Alberni, B.C. and called Once More at North Bay, Ont., and two in Toronto listed as Valencia and Audrey.

Douna Patricia Aubert of Vancouver — $28,000 winner — along with H. K. Lean, unlisted, and a holder called Mac at Toronto.

Canadians had drawn 82 tickets on the 85 original handicap entries and there were 293 Canadians eligible for prizes ranging from $56 for the fourth-place starter to the jackpot of $140,000 for the winner.

The other three holders of tickets on second-place Heritiere were identified as H. E. Ashman of North Bay, Larry Bernier of Kitchener and Howard Smith of Port Alberni, B.C.

The other two Canadians holding tickets on third-place Fairy Stone were identified as Donna Aubert of Vancouver and H. K. Lean, whose hometown was not available. They each win $28,000.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: — Overcast skies and light rain falls were reported in Ontario today as fast-moving low pressure centre moves from northwestern Canada. South to southwest winds preceding the storm mean continuing mild weather in the south, and a swing to slightly higher temperatures in central and Northern Ontario today.

By Thursday, however, colder weather is expected to push southward again into central Ontario once the storm has passed.

In Southern Ontario variable cloudiness and temperatures about the same as Wednesday are forecast for Thursday.

DOCTOR PREDICTS VAST CHANGES FOR HOSPITALS

Design and Function Affected by Plan

TORONTO (CP)—A doctor has predicted vast changes for hospitals as a result of the Ontario government's projected hospital insurance scheme, scheduled to go into operation Jan. 1, 1959.

Speaking Tuesday to the Ontario Hospital Association's annual convention, Dr. Harvey Agnew, professor of hospital administration at the University of Toronto, said both the design and function of Ontario hospitals will be changed.

He forecast an increased demand for hospital care when the plan started.

The plan would produce regulations requiring all potential patients to be diagnosed before being admitted. Such a move would stop the crowding of hospitals by persons in for diagnosis. Eventually separate units designed for diagnosis would be established.

HOME CARE

Other effects: More home-care programs, possibly the addition of special wings for long-term patients; more office accommodation for doctors in hospitals.

Malcolm G. Taylor, associate professor of political economy at the University of Toronto, urged hospitals to be on guard against persons who wanted to stay in hospital longer than they should.

While the doctors discussed insurance plans, Premier Frost urged the federal government to repeal a section of the Hospital Insurance Act requiring six provinces to introduce plans before they get the contribution towards the costs.

He said in an interview the requirement is fantastic and silly.

Although six provinces, including Ontario, had declared they would take part in a hospital insurance plan, only five sufficient placed in the act by the former Liberal government were frustrating Prime Minister Diefenbaker's administration, he said.

He said in the interview the efforts have been shared the federal government has dealt with provinces individually.

NUTRITION SURVEY

A nutritionist from the Toronto public health department told the convention a survey made among 4,300 Grade 8 students here showed they were not getting the proper proportion of foods.

Ann Mathews said the children on an average received less than half enough milk, they did not, and were suffering from malnutrition.

Fluoridation Defeated

HAMILTON (CP)—City council defeated by a vote of 14 to 6 a motion to seek enabling legislation to put fluoride in the city's water supply.

A motion presented to city council by Aldermen Allan Munro and Hugh Brown was defeated 12 to 8. The motion requested the city solicitor be told to make application to the provincial government for private legislation to enable the city to fluoridate the water supply.

Controller Ada Pritchard said fluoridation is a controversial issue and the city should get a week approval of the voters before seeking enabling legislation.

William Richardson, 22, of Trenton, and father of two children, reaped a golden harvest today by holding an Irish Sweep ticket on "Stephanotis," winner of the Cambridgeshire handicap in England.

Wins $140,000

William Richardson, Trenton Holds Winning Sweeps Ticket

On Tuesday, Bill Richardson (he's Mr. William to a lot of people today) went to his $2,100-a-year job as a clerk at the RCAF Station at Trenton.

Tuesday night after supper he went down to Lorne Westfall's pool room, where he worked part time to augment his salary so he could support his wife and two young children.

This morning, The sun never shone brighter nor the sky looked bluer for Mr. Richardson, for Dame Fortune tossed a dazzling smile at him, aided and abetted by a horse named "Stephanotis" who won the famous Cambridgeshire race in England, and dropped $140,000 into the Richardson exchequer.

The twenty-two-year-old Trenton-born clerk lives at 118 Division Street. He married a Trenton girl, the former Shirley Nicholls, who incidentally is sharing the seventh heaven today with her husband. They have two small boys, William Thomas, 3, and Christopher Wayne, three months.

This morning over the telephone, Mr. Richardson sounded like a chap with a vocal St. Vitus dance.

"It's wonderful," he almost shouted. "I'm so nervous and happy. I can hardly talk. I'm shaking all over. I have never seen nor heard of so much money in my life before, let alone own it."

INFORMED BY HIS WIFE

Mr. Richardson heard the good news first from his wife, then from the Ontario intelligencer. Mrs. Richardson was so upset she could hardly tell her husband of his good fortune.

Was he congratulated by his friends? "I never knew I had so many friends in my life. Yesterday it was the time of day. Today everybody is talking to me."

How about the inevitable salesmen? "I haven't been contacted by any yet," Mr. Richardson said, "As soon as I get through my work, I'm going home and lock all the doors. I'm going to discuss this new wealth with my wife so I won't spend any of it foolishly."

WILL BUY HOUSE

The first thing he is going to do with his tax-free funds is to buy a brand new house for his wife and family. After that, he is going to make investments with well-informed persons, and probably invest a lot of money in bonds.

But his days of worry over supporting his family are over. "I pay $60 a month rent, besides food, and other costs. I had to work at two jobs to make things decent for my family. But that is over now. They are my first concern and I am going to see that they are taken care of."

Mr. Richardson is now firmly convinced that second thoughts are a prerequisite to financial success, or luck, call it that.

Besides that, from henceforth four will be his lucky number.

FOURTH TICKET

He had purchased sweeps tickets in three previous races, but had drawn a blank. He had his first glimpse of what could be financial heaven the other day when a telegram brought him the news that he was drawn "Stephanotis" in the Cambridgeshire. He signed the ticket with NEWMARKET, England (CP) — The Irish-trained colt Stephanotis, a well-backed 100-to-6 chance, won the Cambridgeshire Handicap over nine furlongs here today.

A field of 28 runners raced down the undulating heath and it was not until they neared the finishing post that Harry Carr brought the four-year-old son of Stardust to the front to gain a clever win by-three-quarters of a length.

Several horses finished almost in a line across the broad course and the judge had to call for a photo before placing the filly Heritiere 100 to 7) second and another filly, Fairy Stone 100 to 9), third.

Mister Snake finished fourth. Variety King started the favorite at 10 to 3 with Fairy Stone and Loppylugs joint second favorites at 100 to 8. Heritiere was next at 100 to 7.

One of London's best known bookies, Alfred Cope, said afterwards: "We had thousands of small bets early this morning for both Stephanotis and Fairy Stone but the result was not really bad for bookmakers."

Followers of Loppylugs got hardly a race for their money. The five-year-old bay gelding trying to become the fourth horse to win two of the Cambridgeshire to win two straight times, swerved badly at the start, was never in the picture and finished out of the race almost before it had started.

Open Czarist Russian Secret Police Documents

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP)—A secret file of Soviet family skeletons was rattled Tuesday when the Hoover Institution opened 16,000 packing cases of Czarist Russian secret police documents.

Dr. Reda Bensky thought the documents were burned some 30 years ago.

The 300-pound wooden packing cases contain the files of the Czarist Police Office of Foreign Affairs, a Russian secret police of more than 40 years ago.

Bensky holds a veritable who's who of the expatriate and exiled revolutionary world has flocked to Western Europe after the abortive 1905 revolution. Hoover Institution officials hope they will yield considerable background information on spies and suppressing of the Communist Hierarchy.

The files were shipped secretly from Paris to the United States in 1926 by Basil Maklakoff, then pre-Communist Russian ambassador to France.

Maklakoff, apparently realizing the great value of the papers, signed a statement that he had burned them. Feeling his life would be in jeopardy if the truth were known, he stipulated that the cases should remain sealed until at least three months after his death. He died in July in Switzerland at the age of 86.

50 Passengers, Nine Crewmen Given Nervous Three Hours on Airliner

BOSTON (AP) — A runaway propeller, causing fire in the left outboard engine and teeth-chilling control when the liner was two hours beyond Nantucket Island, to "feather" the propstop it—failed.

Capt. Fire Herefjord, 38, turned back to Boston because that city was 120 miles closer than New York. Herefjord jettisoned 20,000 pounds of fuel and reduced altitude from race out of 6,000 feet.

An emergency message went out by radio at 5:45 p.m. A coast guard amphibian met the liner about 100 miles east of Boston and escorted her to Logan.

The propeller on the left outboard engine began to race out of control when the liner was two hours beyond Nantucket Island, to "feather" the prop—st

Drivers of two vehicles suffered injury and heavy property damage was reported by provincial police following a two - car crash on the No. 8 C. D. road at No. 3 highway Tuesday evening. Injured were Floyd Hayes, of Consecon Hill, and Roland Rock, Middleton Park. Details of the accident were not learned.

U.S. Matthews Heads Adventist Church

Orval S. Matthews of 49 Grove Street, was elected leader of the newly organized Seventh-Day Adventist Church in the city.

First step in the organization was taken a year ago when a number of families were brought together by H. E. Reimche, district pastor, and regular services were planned. The final step was taken last Saturday when the congregation was organized by G. Eric Jones of Oshawa, president of the Ontario-Quebec Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, with Pastor Reimche assisting.

The Belleville church became the 48th congregation in the conference, and joins the 11,800 churches around the world with a total membership of well over one million. Institutional and evangelistic workers number 42,250 last year.

Local services are held regularly each Saturday morning at 9:30 o'clock in the Legion Hall, 312½ Pinnacle Street.

Property Damage On Hallowe'en Out Say Police

Stern warning that there will be no toleration of malicious damage by Hallowe'en celebrants on Thursday night was made today by Police Chief Walter Probert who said prosecution would follow for anyone damaging property.

"We expect people to go out and have a good time but they must refrain from doing property damage," the chief said. "We don't want any repetition of damage such as was reported last year."

And to back up warning that there must be no repetition of last year's excessive property damage, the police chief said that extra police patrols would be carried out. All police leaves will be cancelled and all off-duty men will be called in to assist in patrolling streets and in keeping a check on any possible damage.

So, boys and girls, go out and have a good time tomorrow night. But keep the fun innocent. If the party gets too rough and property damage results, the celebrants will likely find themselves hailed into court to answer for their fun.

REVEAL ARMS SHIPMENTS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States shipped more than $1,000,000,000 worth of military equipment to its free world allies in the first six months of this year, President Eisenhower told congress Friday. In a letter accompanying the semi-annual report on the mutual security program, Eisenhower said the aid program helps "make military aid less likely" by contributing to a strong defence.

Herbert H. Reed Retires From Unemployment Service

Manager of the Belleville office of the Unemployment Insurance Commission since April, 1942, Mr. Herbert H. Reed, 119 Victoria Avenue, is retiring from the service on November 1st and with Mrs. Reed will go to Kelowna, B.C. to live.

The Belleville office will be taken over temporarily by Mr. A. Leahy, supervising supervisor with the U.I.C., who will be acting manager until a new appointment is made.

Former field supervisor with the Remington Machinery Company with which firm he was associated for 17 1-2 years, mostly in Western Canada, Mr. Reed joined the Unemployment Insurance Commission in 1942, and took over as manager in Belleville the same year.

Prior to that time the employment office in Belleville was operated by the Province of Ontario. Mr. Reed took over from the then acting manager, Mr. Harold Nash, who left the Federal employment organization here.

In 1943 when Mr. Reed came to Belleville the employment office was situated on Campbell street and had a staff of five. A week later the office was moved into quarters on the second floor of the city hall and nine years ago was moved into the present quarters in the Jamieson Bone Building. The staff has now grown to 40.

At the moment Mr. Reed sees a long rest ahead and next summer expects to "catch some good trout fishing" in the mountain streams of British Columbia.

In Kelowna, Mr. and Mrs. Reed will be with a married daughter, a second married daughter lives in Edmonton, while another daughter, Mrs. Douglas Locke, lives in Belleville. Mr. and Mrs. Reed expect to leave for Kelowna about the middle of November.

4,112 Vehicle Checks in Sept.

Indicative of the intensive campaign to improve safety on the highways, provincial police in the No. 8 district, including the counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington and Frontenac, made a total of 4,112 vehicle checks during the month of September.

There were 117 accidents reported in the district, resulting in five highway deaths and 67 persons injured.

A total of 707 warnings were given by patrol officers while 615 charges were laid.

C.A.S. Reports Heavy Demand For Services

The regular monthly meeting of the board of directors of the Children's Aid Society was held last Friday. In the absence of C. B. Morgan, president, due to illness, Charles L. Hyde presided. It was reported that requisitions to the recently purchased property at 73 Highland Ave., are progressing satisfactorily and that it will be ready for use as a receiving home and observation centre early in January. The board approved the appointment of Mr. and Mrs. Ormal B. MacMullin as supervisors of the home, their duties to commence as soon as it is ready for occupancy.

Mrs. E. E. Follwell stated that there has been a favorable response to the society's request to local service organizations for assistance with the furnishings and that many essential items had already been obtained. In particular, Mrs. Follwell mentioned the gift of an automatic washer and dryer by the Belleville optimist Club.

89 CHILDREN CARED FOR

In his comments on the activity of the society, Bruce M. Kerr, local director, stated that as of the end of September, 89 children had been committed to the care of the society by the court.

"There is an unprecedented volume of work being directed to the society," Mr. Kerr said, "More children have been committed to our care in the first nine months of the year than ever before in the history of the society.

The cause cannot be attributed to any one single factor, but rather to a multiplicity of reasons, none of which is particularly unusual. Many of the children placed in C.A.S. care this year are in the early teenage group and being emotionally upset make heavy demands on staff time.

In order to maintain the high level of service, it has been necessary to add to the staff of the child care department. Fortunately, the adoption program has kept pace with the intake and it does not appear as though there will be any substantial increase in the total number of children in our care, commented Mr. Kerr.

The board approved the appointment of Calvary Temple secretary to the field staff. Mrs. Woolley is a graduate of Master University and for the past three and one-half years has been a member of the staff of the Children's Aid Society for Hamilton.

Mrs. Woolley is assigned to the protection department and replaces Miss Maude Watson, Miss Watson, who for the past three and one-half years has worked exclusively in Belleville, has been transferred to the child care department where she will be responsible for the supervision of all children under the age of five years in foster home care.

Rev. B. Campbell Special Speaker At Convention

A three-day Sunday School convention commenced Tuesday in Calvary Temple, under the auspices of the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada, Eastern Ontario District. Special speaker each evening is the Rev. Bird Campbell of Springfield, Missouri. The Rev. M. W. Holmes of Lindsay, District Sunday School Director, is the convention chairman.

In his address on Tuesday evening, Mr. Campbell challenged Sunday School teachers to a greater consecration and a realization that they were called and ordained of God to obey Christ's injunction: "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations . . . to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you."

"If want you to see the value of teaching, as a member of the church school staff," said Mr. Campbell. "There is much spiritual ignorance in the religious world today because somebody did not or would not teach properly. An individual may learn the facts of religion without experience but there is too much of the transmissive type of teaching instead of head to heart contact. The result of true religious education should be changed lives.

"It is important that teachers be trained in efficient methods and techniques, filled in the Holy Ghost, 'study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth.'

"Too often Sunday School methods are outdated and slipshod, whereas the things of the world are up-to-date and efficient. The Gospel is the same, but Jesus depends on His people to present it in the day and age in which we live. Jesus told his disciples, 'For the children of this world are wiser in their generation wiser than the children of light.' It is a terrible indictment on us in our own generation."

THREE CARDINAL POINTS

Three cardinal points mentioned by Mr. Campbell that a teacher should apply were: Knowledge of the word of God, which involves planning and many hours of study; loving the word, getting it across intelligently; cultivating the word, making it a living, breathing, pulsating experience in the lives of the pupils.

Above all, said the speaker, teachers must have a genuine spiritual experience themselves if their work is to be acceptable in others that personal knowledge of Jesus Christ.

Several vocal and musical numbers were contributed by the male quartette of Calvary Temple, comprising Hugh and Roberta Johnson, Dave and Irene Dyer, Walt Taylor and Ed Taylor. The offerings of these talented musicians were thoroughly enjoyed by the listeners.

Greetings of welcome were given by the host pastors, Rev. Laurie Price and Rev. H. M. Hall, by Rev. Bird Campbell, Superintendent, Mr. H. G. Harris, Group convenors were conducted by Mrs. Tom Richardson of Brockville, Rev. Janet Rodger, pastor of the Pentecostal Tabernacle and Rev. H. M. Smith of Belleville.

Afternoon and evening sessions will continue on Wednesday and Thursday. Profitable conferences and workshops, to which the public are invited, will be conducted by experts in Sunday School methods. The radio choir of Kingston will provide the music on Wednesday evening and the Havelock brass band will be in attendance on Thursday evening. Interesting sound films will be shown each evening, forming a very comprehensive display of Christian publications and supplies in a large booth, developed by the Christian Book Room of Belleville.

HUGH O'ROURKE

TRENTON (Special) — Solemn Requiem High Mass was said in St. Peter's Catholic Church, Trenton, by Rev. W. H. Carty yesterday morning for the late Hugh O'Rourke, a member of one of Trenton's oldest families.

Mr. O'Rourke, who became ill while visiting friends in Ottawa, was brought back to Trenton on Saturday and died in Trenton Memorial Hospital on Sunday morning.

A son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. O'Rourke, Mr. O'Rourke was born in Trenton and lived here all his life. He was a former Trenton town councillor, and was a great athlete in his younger days.

He was a charter member of Trenton Rotary Club, and a member of St. Peter's Catholic church.

The late Mr. O'Rourke rested at the Weese Funeral Home in Trenton, until time of service. Committal rites were performed by Rev. W. H. Carty, and interment was in Mount Calvary cemetery.

The bearers were: Amadie Lamorre, Ian Gardiner, Councillor D. J. MacDonald, Vic Alger, Wayne Simmons and Alex Macklam.

80-Year-Old Man Said Missing From His Home

An 80-year-old man, missing from his home since yesterday afternoon, was still being sought by city police at noon today.

Police said that William Hay, living with his granddaughter, Mrs. Roy Bennett, Albion Street, was reported missing last night at midnight. Mrs. Bennett said Mr. Hay had gone to cash his pension cheque and had failed to return.

Police are checking on the possibility that Mr. Hay may have gone south for the last 24 to visit relatives in the Campbellford area.

50 ALGERIANS KILLED

ORAN, Algeria (Reuters)—French military authorities early today said 50 Algerian terrorists were killed during clashes with security forces in the past 24 hours in the Oran area. Zitouni Lakhdar, leader of the insurgents in this area, was killed in one of these operations.

President Will Attend Meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower said today he plans to attend the mid-December NATO council meeting in Paris—assuming a majority of the members of the government of the other 14 member nations also will.

NEEDS NEGOTIATIONS

JERUSALEM (Reuters) — Israeli Foreign Minister Golda Meir said Monday night that Israeli-Arab peace can be achieved only through direct negotiations. She told Parliament there can be no settlement in the Middle East unless it is "with our participation and agreement."

IN MEMORIAM

GRANT, — In loving memory of a dear father, William, who passed away October 30th, 1956.
Gone, dear father, gone forever,
How we miss your smiling face,
But you left us to remember
That in heaven is your place.
Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by his daughter Rose.

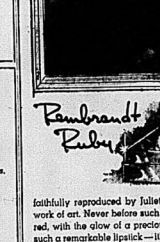
GRANT, — In loving memory of my dear father, William Grant, who passed away October 30th, 1956.
Sadly missed, dear dad, today,
Father, dear, we think of you,
Memories fond of you we treasure,
Memories true, yes, and more,
Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by his son-in-law Harold and grandchildren.

GRANT, — In loving memory of our dear father, William Grant, who passed away October 30th, 1956.
Dad, we need a special day
To bring you to our mind;
As if we ever could think of you
A little while behind.
The world were sure to give,
If we could, yes, and more,
To see the face of White dear
Once smiling round the door.
Sadly missed by wife Lillian and sons Arthur and Charlie.

GRANT, — In loving memory of a dear father, William Grant, who passed away October 30th, 1956.
Dear you, and beautiful and kind;
Your loving memory we'll always find.
Sadly missed by daughter Rose Jarret, Jessie and Bonnie.

GRANT, — In loving memory of my dear dad, William Grant, who passed away October 30th, 1956.
Dad, you left us all too soon
The family chain is broken now,
But memories still remain.
To us you have not gone away,
For memories keep you near.
Just entered God's eternal home
And left us sorrowing.
Sadly missed by daughter Rose and husband Rusty.

CARDS OF THANKS



We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks and appreciation for the many acts of kindness, messages of sympathy and beautiful floral tributes received from our relatives, friends and neighbors in the passing of a beloved husband, father and brother, Lawrence Ketcheson. May God richly bless all who were so kind to Mrs. Ketcheson and brother Orannemer, the Rev. Janet Rodger, Dr. Rose for their kind and efficient service, and for their thoughtful deeds will always be held in grateful remembrance.
Mrs. Ketcheson and Children
Stan and Estella Sherry, Harry and Lila Ketcheson.

We wish to thank all our friends and neighbors for the many kindnesses shown and the beautiful floral tributes received in the recent illness and death of our husband, Mr. Rex Stobbard for his words of comfort during our recent sad bereavement.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market edged ahead today amid the lightest morning trading in nearly three weeks.

Base metals, which drew most interest, gained a point on their index. Industrials added one-half point but there were few prominent price changes and interest among individuals was at a minimum. Golds were a shade easier and western oils slightly higher on index.

The 11 a.m. volume of 497,000 shares was the lightest since Oct. 10. Tuesday's sales at the same time totalled 669,000.

Cattle Breeding Assoc. Purchases Outstanding Bull

The Quinte District Cattle Breeding Assoc. has purchased one of the most outstanding Holstein sires to be brought into this district.

After making arrangements with Pabst Farms, Inc., of Oconomowoc, Wis., such that they could still continue to use the service of the new sire, who is named Pabst Sir Leader Rag Apple, the purchase was arranged.

This bull promises to be one that will do a tremendous job of herd improvement, since he combines the greatest proving available on a sire and dam that could be obtained. He is sired by Wis Leader, the Excellent and Gold Medal senior sire at Pabst Farms, who has been sire of the All-American Get in 1956, and the Reserve All-American Get in 1955.

The dam of the bull, Pabst Burke Rag Apple 7th Kid, is an Excellent cow still producing in the Pabst Farms herd at the age of fourteen. She has produced 21,438 lbs. of milk, and 774 lbs. of fat as a five-year old.

The outstanding thing about this cow is the long line of progeny which she has that have been so outstanding.

She is the dam of the All-American "Produce" in 1950, and the dam of the Reserve All-American "Produce" in 1951 and 1952. She is the dam of the All-American heifer calf in 1947, Reserve All-American two-year old heifer 1948, and the Reserve All-American three-year old heifer in 1950. She is the dam of three daughters that have all made between 730 lbs. and 926 lbs. of butterfat.

She is the dam of Pabst Sir Roburke Rag Apple, an Excellent and Gold Medal sire that is in artificial insemination's use in the state of Illinois, and who was twice Reserve All-American winner. He has a production proof on his progeny of 1,558 lbs. of milk and 72 lbs. of butterfat on a daughter-dam comparison. -

A second son of this cow, Pabst Monarch is a Very Good and Gold Medal sire, that is in regular service at the Badger Breeders Co-Op. at Shawano, Wisc.

Still another son of this great cow which is also graded Very Good and has a Gold Medal proof pending, is Pabst Revelation, in artificial service at Consolidated Breeders Co-Op. at Anoca, Minn.

Only through co-operative efforts could such a valuable sire ever be used in the farmer herds of this district.

Delivery of the bull will probably be made during the middle of November, and service from this bull will commence the latter part of that month.

Liquor Theme in Murder Trial of Clarence Jones, Well-Known Picton Grocer

PICTON (Staff) — Harold Haddon, a clerk in Jones' Groceteria on Main St. here, testified before the Supreme Court of Ontario Tuesday that Clarence Jones, owner of the store, had confessed to him that he had shot his wife, Mary, on July 17 but gave no explanation for doing it.

Mr. Haddon said: "I received a telephone call at my home at about 7.15 a.m. on July 18. I did not recognize the voice, but I knew it was a man. He said, 'Would you mind coming to the store right away, Harry?' I asked him who was calling. 'It's Clarence Jones,' he said."

A short while later, in the store, Mr. Haddon testified Mr. Jones told him: "I've got some bad news for you, Harry."

"What is it?"

"I shot Mary last night."

Then Mr. Jones asked his friend to get Police Chief George Pitt.

Hon. Mr. Justice Dalton Wells adjourned the court after hearing 11 witnesses called by Crown Prosecutor Alex Hall, QC, of Cobourg. Mr. Hall is expected to complete his case some time today, with Mr. Arthur Martin of Toronto opening the case for the defence immediately afterward.

Clarence Jones is charged with murdering his wife, Mary Ann, by shooting her in their Glenora Road cottage last July 17 at about 6.30 p.m.

DELAYED AT START

Court was delayed starting because the court reporter was recalled to Toronto Monday evening when a death occurred in his immediate family. A replacement did not show up until the noon recess yesterday.

According to people who know Mr. Jones, he was considered a highly respected citizen in this community. Witnesses for the crown, on being cross-examined by Mr. Martin, testified that Mr. and Mrs. Jones always appeared fond of each other and at no time had one been overheard to threaten the other. Both had apparently become heavy drinkers. In fact, Mrs. Jones was not allowed to purchase liquor at the local L.C.B.O. after Barton R. Reid, a liquor vendor, received a telephone call from a woman (whom he believed to be Mrs. Jones' mother) asking him not to sell her any.

BOUGHT TWO BOTTLES

He told Mr. Jones two 25-oz. bottles of whisky on the day Mrs. Jones died.

Other witnesses testified that Mr. Jones drank liquor during business hours, usually in the grocery warehouse.

O.P.P. Corporal Reginald Rackham, of Belleville, a photography and identification expert, found eight empty beer cases in the Jones' cottage, a full 25-oz. bottle of liquor in a man's raincoat in the cottage, a pint of beer in a purse lying on the verandah, and a number of empty beer and liquor bottles elsewhere in the cottage and in a garbage can outside. He also found the brass head of a bullet on a window sill and a few empty .303 bullet jackets in the cottage sun porch, where Mrs. Jones was found dead on the morning of July 18 by Mr. Haddon, O.P.P. Corporal H. G. Bolster of Picton, and Sergeant Sco Hele of the Picton police department. Corporal Rackham also told of finding three holes the size of a bullet, in a window frame in the sun porch, and cone "live" .303 ammunition.

Cpl. Bolster said that Mrs. Jones' body was covered when she was found on a couch in the porch. He impounded an empty .303 Lee Enfield rifle found in the bedroom. Then leaving Sgt. Hele guarding the cottage, the corporal went to Mr. Jones' home where he encountered the accused and Fred Ward, Q.C., who is assisting Mr. Martin at the trial.

Cpl. Bolster said Jones asked him: "Is she dead?" to which he replied "Yes."

Mr. Jones was jailed at 9.10 a.m. on July 18, roughly 15 hours after the shooting is believed to have occurred.

Wearing a dark blue business suite, white shirt, black tie and shoes, Mr. Jones sat impassively through the first day of his trial. Acquaintances said he was once weighed about 135 pounds. He has lost considerable weight.

Miss Kathleen Camp, an employee of Mr. Jones, said Mr. and Mrs. Jones were in the grocteria until about 12.30 p.m. on July 17. They appeared to be on good terms, she said, and they were sober.

RELIED ON WIFE

Miss Camp remembered two occasions when Mr. Jones collapsed in the store, presumably, she thought, because he had overindulged in an alcoholic beverage. She added that Mr. Jones relied greatly on his wife to transact business in the store and to make decisions pertaining to the business.

Vernon Wheeler is believed to have been the last person to see Mrs. Jones alive. He told the court that he passed the cottage in a boat about 250 feet offshore at approximately 2.45 p.m. on July 17. Mrs. Jones, clad in shorts, was walking in the yard.

Mrs. Helen Thompson, who lives near the Jones cottage, thought she heard a gun shot at 7.30 p.m. Then she heard dogs barking in the direction of Jones' cottage.

Earl Grubin passed the cottage in a boat about 200 or 300 feet offshore at 7 p.m. and saw Mr. Jones standing midway between his station wagon and the cottage, looking at the cottage. Several minutes later he [illegible] he recognized the Jones' station wagon driving slowly toward Picton.

Mrs. Jean Hepburn [illegible] Jones' vehicle to the top of the town hill and recognized the driver and a hound in the back. She said the station wagon was being driven slowly by the accused.

Mr. Haddon said Mr. Jones had spent the night of July 17 at the Grubin apartment behind the store which he usually occupied with Mrs. Jones.

Cpl. Donald E. Champagne, of the RCMP criminal laboratory in Ottawa who is a ballistics expert, said the empty shells found by Cpl. Rackham had been fired from Jones' 303 rifle, but the bullet head found on the floor of the sun porch was so battered that conclusive proof could not be found that it had been shot from the same rifle, although there was indication that "it could have been."

Jurors selected were: Russell Alexander, Picton; Leonard Chapman, Sophiasburgh; Orville Dalnard, South Marysburgh; Garrett Harris, Wellington; Douglas Herrington, Wellington; Roy Ferguson, Hillier; Norris Shortt, Sophiasburgh; Gerald Ackerman, South Marysburgh; Reginald Barber, Ameliasburgh; Bernard Parks, Athol; Clinton Hambly, Sophiasburgh; Morley Handley, Sophiasburgh.

EXAMINATION TIME COMING

High school students might term examinations drawbacks in getting an education. There is a right and a wrong way to tackle them, and perhaps the most common wrong way is not preparing for them.

Most of us were in high school at one time or another. We have, therefore, faced the same frustrating and worrisome problems of examinations that students today encounter. Some of us learned ways to "beat" anxiety, while others did not and so went through school dreading the coming of exams - - and there are plenty of them in secondary schools.

The Christmas exams will soon roll around in high schools and wise students are already preparing for them. Many, though, will wait until the last minute and cram three months of work into a week (or less) of studying. Those who are "boning up" now are in a favorable position to meet their examinations with a better-than-average chance of passing them, providing, of course, they have been paying attention in class.

Psychologists have studied various methods of preparing for all kinds of exams and they have concluded that the poorest way of getting ready for one is to cram.

Experience has taught many students that learning is one thing but to know their school subject thoroughly by the night before the paper is to be written, there is no use in trying to prepare for it then. A student can read through several text books in a night, but that is all he has done. It is impossible to retain much of that is all he has done. It is impossible to retain much of what he has read, and a percentage of what is retained by the student does not understand.

Lack of preparation for an examination can ruin a student's chances of enjoying the vacation which usually follows each set of exams. All too soon students will face real frustration and anxiety when they get out into the business world.

High school is not the place to start getting ulcers. School should be a place of learning and having a certain amount of fun, but not enough fun to detract from the real purpose of being there.

This year students will have about a week and a half of Christmas holidays before they get the results of their pre-Christmas exams. What easier way to spend the vacation than by worrying over the exams that have been written? The water has passed under the bridge and cannot be brought back. After writing a paper, students should forget about the answers they have given until school is back in session after the holidays.

If students believe exams are peculiar only to high school, they have a shocking surprise coming to them after they graduate and get out earning their own salt. There is no room in the world today for one who wishes to stand still. And the only way they can advance in business is by studying, writing examinations and proving their abilities to hold a more important job.

FRUSTRATION

Let's invent a time machine, climb into it and travel back to the Dark Ages. They could not be as frustrating for the man who has an appetite for facts as the Twilight Time in which we now live. A rocket is fired into space, travelling perhaps 1,000 miles out, perhaps 4,000, and all we get is the bare report of that fact. It is fired, if you please, not from the earth but from a platform 100,000 feet in the sky - - and we are told that and nothing more. Columns and columns could be filled about who is with whose wife in Hollywood night clubs; more columns and columns about who has been arrested for drunk driving; reams of copy describing a bride killing a guide, a man shooting a waitress, a husband slaying his rival for his wife's affections, but a thousand reporters relating the whole of a queen - - and not one word describing the balloon that carried the 4,000-mile rocket, not one phrase telling of the rocket's shape, or length or weight. No information as to who invented it, who built it, what happened to it after its trip into regions where nothing man-made had ever before ventured.

This is the worst piece of frustration that has lifted man out of the primeval slime into the starry sides.

CHIP SHORTAGE

Letting the chips fall where they may is more than commendable candor, comments the Windsor Star. It's also a good way to condition the soil. A Cornell University test of chip-treated soil showed it had three to 10 times as much organic matter as untreated soil. Apparently, though, if you want wood chips the best way to get them is to chop your own. The saw has all but ousted the axe in most wood-cutting operations. Cornell's research, perhaps, should extend to the soil-conditioning properties of sawdust.

Putting Away the Boat

New York Times

The autumn carries with it one thing that is sadder still than the falling leaves and the frost on the garden. This is that the time must inevitably come to put away the boat. The size of the boat does not matter, not its relationship to the ocean, the lakes, rivers or streams of the nation. All boats are the best of their class when they are launched, beautiful, and the sadness at putting up a kayak is as deep as it is over putting up a yacht. Likely the corporate proprietors with of the Constitution, the Liberte, and the Queen Mary feel no worse when their ships are placed into drydock. Indeed, it is likely they feel much better, for a trip to drydock can last but a few months, though boat must be rained on land throughout the winter. From this point, on the marine calendar, the winter season is stretch on until it passes all recognizable landmarks of infinity. It is a mournful affair, this putting away of the boat, even if it is done on a sunny day, the occasion suggests the long wall of winter and the dirge of the tolling bell on the channel buoy.

The boat is tied up with the summer as serenely as to seem by the one month of the summer, and easily the best of them all, as the boat is hauled across the long lake it travels each day, gathering in time a wealth of memories. Again, the size does not matter, the length, the tonnage, the fact that the boat may comfortably sleep six or uncomfortably nine is a single man who must breathe carefully or upset. Nor does power matter, the big cruiser, the throbbing diesel, the lowly oars, the outboard motor with seems always to be shut down in the rushing waters a bare quarter mile, the full sail of the sloop. For have a motor go dead just above the falls? Well, a sailing ship can always contribute its full share of summer memories, to be thought about while putting up the boat.

The boat never has looked so jaunty as on this day, when the time has come to put it in. Some call it — those from the great drylands of Indiana and Illinois like — a ritual, while the true mariners of New England call it a shift. It is tied to a stake a little offshore, to protect it from rocks, and the pulley and painter arrangement by which it is summoned, is a credit to the spring genius who made it. Bobbing up and down with the ripples, the boat seems to beckon its friends, nodding much as a dog does when he wishes to be taken for a walk. It seems cruel to ignore this, indeed to do worse by callously draw it to the shore. Once on the land it is as lifeless as are all other sea things on land, and there is a terrible moment when it appears no more than carefully molded wood marred by innumerable gouges and scratches. But memory and boats are such that the moment soon passes.

Even this gouge near the bow sets off memory. It dates from August's trip to the Southwester, for while other boats on the point broke loose, this one was held by the pulley and painter rigged by the genius. Nor did it come ramming against the submerged stump while angling for the near record bass at the far end of the lake. An immediate inspection proved that one near record bass had been landed with no damage whatsoever. Nor did it come when one of the children, learning the intricacies of outboard motors, drove the whole hull speed into the dock. Here, on this sad day of putting up the boat, is the place to begin can be remembered as a part of a happy summer. But the gouge near the bow is real, boats are human, or they would not call a ship a she, and likely that scratch was contrived by the boat itself. So that the owner, embarking next summer, will find a new boat with the nearest thing to a scar that is new when they leave it, and of getting another new car 18 months later.

In Detroit, the automobile capital of the United States, it is estimated that the average family has there are 275,000 rented passenger cars, and 260,000 commercial vehicles.

Besides helping the agents the system has attracted new business to the lessee. This is how it works:

The customer goes to a prospective automobile dealer and makes contract for a car for 18 months. He will pay from $100 to $187 a month according to the kind of car he wants. When the car needs repairs, he goes back to the rental firm. Repair charges — as well as license tags, insurance and property taxes — are covered by the monthly rental fee. Gasoline, driver's license and highway tolls are paid for by the driver. At the end of 18 months, the customer turns in the car and, if he wishes, gets a new car on another lease.

After that the dealer turns the car over to the used-car lot, where it will still command a good price.

It seems an expensive way of running a car but it has advantages for both parties, and both ...ess and professional men are said to be making much use of it.

Curiosity Spice of Life

Hamilton Spectator

When your parents were children, curiosity killed the cat." It was usually voiced by the adult to say: "I don't know the answer." In those days parents seldom wanted to be disturbed to their children that they didn't know everything. It was taken as a sign of weakness that might undermine their authority.

Why the cat was chosen as the victim no one knows. Every animal, and presumably every young animal has an inborn curiosity which at some time or another is more powerful than the natural instinct for danger. Something like glitters that must be examined; anything that moves.

Brothers, both two-legged and four-legged, have taken advantage of curiosity since the world began. Ruth Corbett, in his book, "Man-Eaters of India", tells of the deer fascinated by a wretched movement of the long grass and gradually drawn closer until the striking distance of a tiger. The tiger, of course, had been stirring the grass to entice the deer.

Yes, through the ages curiosity has cost us and our children, as well as the lower animals. Yet without curiosity, the world would be dull. The questioning mind has brought the world from the caves to the moon.

Without curiosity you would not be a part of this great country. Columbus, North America would still be peopled only by aborigines.

Without curiosity Benjamin Franklin would never have discovered electricity, nor would Edison have made a light bulb. Without curiosity Marconi would never have experimented with air waves and pointed the way for radio and television.

Thomas Carlyle once wrote: "The man who cannot wonder, who does not habitually wonder, were he president of innumerable Royal Societies and carried the whole Indian Ocean in his single head, is but a man of speeches behind which there is no eye."

Many in U.S. Now Rent Cars

Stratford Beacon-Herald

New cars are expensive nowadays, and will probably be more so next year — and they're the United States, where cars are cheaper than here, are inclined to the system of renting cars, instead of buying them. Agents are encouraging this simple method of getting rid of their stock, and customers find it a convenient way of operating a car that is new when they lease it, and of getting another new car 18 months later.

In Detroit, the automobile capital of the United States, it is estimated that the average family has there are 275,000 rented passenger cars, and 260,000 commercial vehicles.

Besides helping the agents the system has attracted new business to the lessee. This is how it works:

The customer goes to a prospective automobile dealer and makes contract for a car for 18 months. He will pay from $100 to $187 a month according to the kind of car he wants. Letter To The Editor

Plymouth Church Needs Assistance

192 Beacon Park Rd.
Peverell,
Plymouth, England.
29-10-57.

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

When St. Andrew's Church in Plymouth was blitzed in World War II, it was impossible to hold services there, but the promise that the Church, in every part of the word would remain active was given by the placing of a board with "Resurrection" on it on a door. The structural restoration is completed, now it requires refurnishing. We have been instituted a scheme whereby members and friends of the church are given a "penny" (2/6 (two shillings and sixpence) to utilize to bring increase. We can using mine for postage on letters to various papers across Canada appealing to them to help from the S. W. of England, also those who visited the Church or were stationed here during the war, in fact all and sundry who are interested, to help me to reap a rich harvest for the benefit of our historical church. To those who may not be able to slip a note or cheque in an envelope, coins may be scotch taped to a paper.

When all is gathered in, acknowledgement will be made through papers carrying this appeal.

Thank you for your kind cooperation.

Toast Queen Correct Way

Victoria Colonist

"What is the correct way of calling for and responding to a toast to the Queen?" This is a matter which assumed special importance during Her Majesty's visit to Canada, and it is remarkable how many chairmen and guests at formal gatherings perform the ritual improperly. To remove doubts as to the right procedure in the Canadian Armed Forces, the Association Executives recently sought the advice of the Chief Protocol Officer at Ottawa, and here is the tenor of the reply:

The chairman of a gathering at which both ladies and gentlemen are present rises once after the dinner and proposes the National Anthem is played or sung, "The Queen." Ladies remain seated at attention while the National Anthem is played or sung, gentlemen rise to attention. Then after the anthem are glasses lifted from the table and held for a moment at eye level. Either before or after drinking one sip the words "The Queen" are spoken and the glasses are then replaced on the table.

No other form of salutation and response is correct. All such introductions as "I ask you all to rise and drink a toast to Her Majesty the Queen, after which, we will sing one verse of the National Anthem" are improper. It is wrong also to hold the glass in one's hand while singing the anthem, and equally improper for guests to clink glasses together when responding to the toast.

Strength for The Day

WHO SUFFERS?

Several times I have read of the death of subway motormen or bridge tenders who were run over and killed by their own vehicles. In this case, the cause of the tragedy was apparently the motorman who drifted had failed to set the brakes properly before getting out of the cab to attend to some duty at front wheels.

Such an accident is, of course, an extreme example of a mistake which directly affects the person who made it. But events in life usually work much less directly than that. Some other person or other people suffer from or pay for our mistakes as much as we ourselves do.

A postal clerk missorts the mail, and an important letter is delayed. Sometimes takes your coat by mistake in a restaurant, carrying off one of your hats and your papers. A drunken driver loses control of his car, and injures or kills a passing motorist.

In our relationships with other people, this sort of chain reaction is very common. We can almost never absorb all the consequences of our actions ourselves — they go on to affect other people. Many times while, once done, we would like to undo; but we cannot, and their consequences make others suffer.

Don't be selfish! Everything you do affects others, and often those nearest and dearest to you. Think

Waiting for the Doctor

Trick specialists and "clinic" racketeers use a simple artifice to impress their simple customers. They instruct everyone to be at the office at 10 a.m. or maybe 3 p.m. This gives each sucker the impression that doctor must have a whale of a large practice — he finds so many other suckers waiting. Waiting, waiting with him.

Most of them wait. Occasionally a customer with enough brain power to see through the charlatan's trick moves his freight out of there and goes to a doctor who has some respect and consideration for his patients' time.

This habit of having all customers come at 10 o'clock or 2 o'clock becomes routine with some medical merchants, and they follow it even when they do a tour of dispensary or out-patient service.

Thus the unfortunates who seek medical help in the out-patient departments or dispensaries of one of the largest countries in the country are required to be there promptly at, say 8 a.m. or else they'll get excluded for the day. Some of them have to sit on hard benches for three or four hours or longer waiting their turn. Some must be brought by a member of the family who has to lose a day's time and wage. The head man of the dispensary or hospital staff knows nothing about it. Some are dares to suggest that the patients be permitted to report also at say 9 or 10 or 1 or 4 o'clock. Out-patient departments and dispensaries are for the convenience of doctors — not for the comfort of patients.

Now I'm not a bit of critic—I will make me less popular, if that is possible, than ever with my colleagues. That doesn't worry me at all. What does worry me is the ever-present fear that my eyes will confirive to turn it into a fever pre by me out of my teaching job.

And so to the bowling green. The bowling green is no mere figure of speech. It is a real factor of health, vite and longevity. In my opinion, it is as important as (a) functionally efficient heart, (b) conservatively and (c) the staff of life.

One day next week, I'll tell the 2,000 out of the thousand readers who don't bowl what everybody should know about the game for the good of his or her health. Meanwhile, read the description of the sport game in Encyclopedia Britannica under the title BOWLS.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Tomorrow night is Hallowe'en; and if, as is very likely you are not in on the UNICEF program for Hallowe'en in your home, you ought to be ready to greet any children who come to your door with the special boxes and ask for a shekel for UNICEF.

For they will be the forerunners of what well may be, in a very few years, the be-all and end-all of Hallowe'en.

UNICEF stands for the United Nations Children's Fund. Four years ago, it occurred to the Canadian committee of UNICEF that the greatest thing that could happen to the children of the free world would be to enlist in the aid and rescue of the children of less blessed lands all over the world. And since childhood is on the prowl on Hallowe'en as on no other night of the year, it seemed a logical thing to ask the children to cry shellout not for themselves but for the millions of youngsters both far and near for whom it is impossible that anything, ever, should be shelled out.

The first year, the idea was barely born: but quite a few thousand dollars were raised. Last year, Canada, large and small, all across Canada, wherever the idea had taken hold, collected $42,000.

This year, it is hoped close to 1,000 groups of children will be enlisted in city and town and countryside; and the target is $100,000. If the idea gains a foothold in Canada, it is very likely literally millions will benefit.

For these youngsters who call with the UNICEF boxes will have taken pocket amounts to cry through your letterbox.

Quite possibly, the entire contribution one child against TB.

One cent provides five glasses of powdered milk for an undernourished child.

In case you feel like enlisting, the Canadian can very soon find out for you the location of the nearest UNICEF office.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

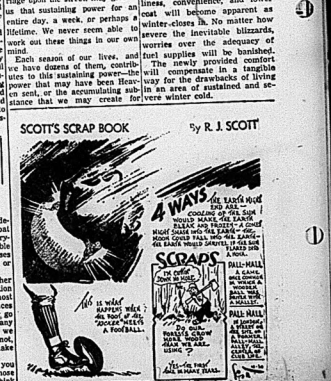
SUSTAINING POWER

It is essential for us all to have some sustaining power to guide us through life and to give us hope and the comfort that often comes deep within the heart. It may be religion, Nature's majesty and wonder, the understanding of a few friends, a love of books, or the realization that we are not alone, and that we are created and put here upon this troubled earth to make others, not ourselves, happy.

Mere money cannot bring this sustaining power, which must be deep within us, but that material loss something that contributes all that is worthwhile in this life, the smile of a child, in its carriage upon the street, may give us that sustaining power for an entire day, a week, or perhaps a lifetime. We never seem able to work out these things in our own mind.

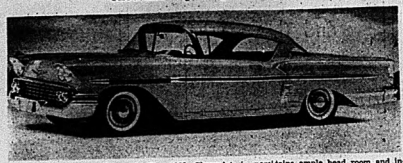
Each season of our lives, and we have dozens of them, contributes to this sustaining power—the power that may have been planted, we scoff, or the accumulating substance that we may create for ourselves out of a distilled belief in the kindly mercy of a Heavenly Father. It is the source of multiple blessing, like the shine of a star in the night sky.

I have a small group of carefully selected books in my library that rarely to pass is an inspiration, because I know them so well — and they all know me. They have come over long gone to their sleep, their messages of hope silently work in my heart and heart. Books are such treasures. They were once men and women!



Natural Gas a Boon

Regina Leader-Post



The boon of natural gas must be experienced before it can be appreciated to the full. Its cleanliness, convenience, and lower cost will become apparent as winter closes in. No matter how severe the inevitable blizzards, worries over the adequacy of fuel supplies will be banished. The newly provided comfort will compensate in a tangible way for the discomforts of living in an area of sustained and severe winter cold.

Chevrolet Impala Sport Coupe

Details of the dramatic new styling and outstanding engineering advances of the 1958 Chevrolet are announced by General Motors of Canada Limited.

Labeled "the car of the year" by newsmen and technical writers who have attended private showings, the new models will be unveiled Thursday in Chevrolet dealerships across the country, among whom is Trudeau Motors of Belleville.

The 1958 Chevrolet is new from bumper - to - bumper and from frame to roof line. The all-new features include:

A completely re-styled car which is longer, lower and wider and emphasizes flowing sculptured lines from the dual headlamps to softly flared rear fenders.

An X-shaped frame which allows a lower silhouette but retains ample head room and increases leg room and luggage space.

Two suspension systems for a more luxurious ride along with remarkable handling, stability and durability. Sturdy coil springs, front and rear, are standard. A new "Level Air" system which automatically adjusts to all load weights is optional.

Algeria, Inflation Basic Causes of Crisis Forgotten

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

For the last 30 days, France has collected its taxes, enforced its laws and waged a full-scale war in Algeria while looking for a prime minister to run a country which appears capable of running itself.

Undoubtedly the knowledge that the efficient French civil service is capable of carrying on by itself has contributed to the ease with which rival politicians sabotage each other's efforts to form a government.

Algeria and inflation, the basic causes of the crisis, are almost forgotten as leaders of fragmentary party groups take turns in paying off old scores—and giving rise to new grudges to be fought over in future government crises.

FAVOR STATUS QUO

Even the basic party divisions between left and right lose their significance. The Radical-Socialist group led by Pierre Mendes-France, which see eye to eye with the Socialists on most foreign policy issues, was among the opponents of Socialist leader Guy Mollet, the most unsuccessful candidate for the premiership.

If anything unites a majority of the contending factions it is the doctrine of "immobilism," a fear of drastic action in dealing with political or economic problems. Only the Communists and the extreme right - wing followers of Pierre Poujade, totalling approximately 200 in the 584-seat Chamber of Deputies, pursue policies consistently opposed to this trend.

The forthright policies of these two parties are the luxury enjoyed by politicians whose exclusion automatically excludes them from the patchwork coalitions that have ruled France since the war. But there solid blocs of opposition votes immediately eliminate the cabinet-building efforts of their colleagues.

HEALTHY ECONOMY

Of the remainder, Mollet's 101 Socialists and the 96 independents led by Antoine Pinay are by far the largest groups in the house. Either, combined with the Communists and Poujadists, can command a majority of the house to overthrow a government.

Since the views of Mollet and Pinay are diametrically opposed on almost every issue of consequence, any cabinet commanding the support of both inevitably has little chance of initiating bold, aggressive policies. The defeat of the last premier, Maurice Bourges - Maunoury, on a virtually meaningless Algerian bill makes a case in point.

Economically, there is not much wrong with France that would not be cured by a settlement of the expensive Algerian conflict, which is the major cause of inflation in a country in which production is steadily expanding. But the deep internal divisions on Algeria's future, plus the increasing bitterness of the fighting, have banished all hope of settlement in the foreseeable future.

Officers Seize Net Equipment

ST. THOMAS (CP) — Ontario lands and forests officers seized four sets of equipment at Port Stanley during a recent swoop on fishing tugs based at Lake Erie ports, a department official said Tuesday.

Dr. Keith Reynolds said the department had been receiving many complaints about net sizes in recent weeks. He added charges were pending.

Nets seized were in sizes not legal for lake fishing. He did not release names of the fishermen.

A&P to Build Supermarket Early in Year

TRENTON (Special) — It has been confirmed that work is to start in the beginning of next year on the new Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company Ltd. supermarket to be erected in Trenton.

Surveyors were at work on the lot on Saturday morning and it is understood that the lot may continue to be used as a parking place throughout the winter months until work is able to be commenced in the spring, following all the necessary preliminaries.

MARK ANNIVERSARY

Large congregations marked the occasion of the 104th anniversary of King Street United Church, Trenton, on Sunday, when the special speaker at the services was Rev. A. K. Edmison, M.A. The church was founded in 1853, the same year as the town of Trenton first came into existence as a corporation.

The bell tower in the church contains a fine carillon, the gift of two of Trenton's citizens, N. J. McNaly, in memory of his wife, and Mrs. A. J. Sutcliffe in her husband's memory. The bells can be heard throughout the town playing well known hymn tunes. Rev. G. J. Minielly is a popular figure in the town.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES

The 104th anniversary services of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Trenton, were also held on Sunday, when a full congregation attended both the morning and evening services. The minister, Rev. D. C. McLelland preached at both services. Pfc. E. E. Gray was the vocal soloist at the morning service.

The first Presbyterian congregation in Trenton originally met in a meeting hall over the store of a Mr. A. C. Thompson on Front St. Later, about 1867, a church was built at the corner of Sidney and College Streets and the present building was erected in 1880.

Private Talks May Be Used To Solve Crisis

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) The president of the United Nations General Assembly, Sir Leslie Munro of New Zealand, says he also is willing to try to solve the Turkish-Syrian crisis through private talks.

The blunt-spoken diplomat, who is presiding over the bitter Middle East debates, said in an interview Tuesday that he—like his predecessor in the post — is ready to go outside the meeting halls to aid in solving problems facing the world organization.

In the present crisis, he asserted, "quiet diplomacy can play an important role," and the assembly president can help by conferring privately with the "principal protagonists and discussing the problem with them."

CONTINUES TODAY

The Middle East debate continues today in the assembly. There is growing belief that the necessary two-thirds majority can not be mustered for either of the two suggestions made informally to the assembly — the Western proposal asking Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold to mediate and the Syrian suggestion that a special investigation commission be sent to the trouble area.

Munro said he did not take too seriously the charges of the Russians that he had deliberately delayed assembly debate on Syria's charge that Turkish troop concentrations were a threat to Syria.

He said the Syrian-Turkish issue must be kept apart from other Middle East problems. The most pressing, he said, are the Palestine refugee problem, the future of the UN Emergency Force and the financing of the Suez Canal clearance.

Munro said these problems, like the Syrian-Turkish crisis, could best be dealt with privately rather than in the glare of publicity.

KINETTES MEET

The meeting of the Kinette Club of Belleville was held recently at St. Thomas' parish house with 36 members present.

President Phyllis Fraser announced the song leaders would be Emily Fraser and Mary Atkinson with Grace Burfoot as Sergeant-at-Arms.

Betty Sullivan read the secretary's report followed by the treasurer's report read by Elsie Smith.

The birthday box was passed to three members and a wreath was chosen to be placed at the cenotaph on Remembrance Day.

President Phyllis extended a vote of thanks to Nell Farrow for making the clothes for the Christmas doll and to her husband, Harold, for building the wardrobe, which is on display at present on Front Street.

At the close of the business meeting Kinsman Bill Fraser demonstrated to the Kinettes how to package the light bulbs which the Kinsmen were beginning to distribute and the next hour was a bustling hive of activity as the Kinettes worked to complete the job.

Refreshments were served.

H-S ASSOCIATION

The regular meeting of Shannonville Home and School Association was held on Monday with 14 members present and Mrs. McKenzie in the president's chair.

A Hallowe'en party will be held at the school on Thursday night, 7-9 sponsored by the Home and School Association. Also there is to be a special meeting on November 5th for plans for the bazaar.

It was decided to change the regular meeting night from Monday to Wednesday. Next one will be November 20.

Mrs. McKenzie and Mrs. Johnson attended a Home and School conference at Peterborough on October 10. Mrs. Johnson gave a short interesting report on the meeting, speeches, and their subjects.

Mr. Sherry introduced Miss Kay Homan who gave an interesting talk on supervised play grounds for children which was enjoyed by everyone.

Mrs. Ryckman thanked Miss Homan on behalf of the members for her interesting talk.

Mrs. McKenzie adjourned the meeting.

An enjoyable half hour of chatting was spent over tea and cookies served by the conveners, Mrs. Ryckman and her helpers.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Adams Happily Wed For 50 Years

The days of the old Carman Opera House which before the turn of the century was the stand for opera companies and travelling road shows, were recalled here yesterday by William M. Adams, 96 Stanley Street, who with Mrs. Adams observed 50 years of happily married life.

This afternoon and evening Mr. and Mrs. Adams are "at home" to relatives and a wide circle of friends. Among the many messages of congratulations received were personal letters from Prime Minister John Diefenbaker and Premier Leslie Frost.

As one time stage carpenter at the Carman Opera House, managed by his father, Mr. Adams recalls the many opera companies which used to stop over in Belleville for stands ranging from one day up to an entire week.

Tough times in the show business spelled the doom of the Carman Opera House and it later became the Griffin Theatre, showing motion pictures.

But in its last year of operation, the local opera house had no less than 141 one-night stands as well as longer stands by the bigger opera companies.

With the closing of the opera house, the Adams family turned to agriculture and operated a farm in Sidney township before moving to North Hastings.

MET WIFE AT HERMON

It was in the Hermon district northeast of Bancroft that Mr. Adams met his future wife and just half a century ago they were married on the front lawn at the bride's home. Mrs. Adams is the former Mable Coleman.

At the time of his marriage in 1907 Mr. Adams had already commenced a railroad career which was ended ten years ago when he retired as a railway engineer.

Since then he has spent much of his free time in the summer in his big flower garden which is the showpiece of the area. Home grown flowers decorated the Adams home for their 50th anniversary.

An ardent fisherman and hunter, Mr. Adams is leaving later this week for his "camp" in North Hastings where, with a few of the boys he expects to enjoy a spot of deer hunting.

"I've seen a lot of changes in Belleville in my day," recalled the 78-year-old ex-railroader. He remembers when the waterworks went in and also remembers the old Belleville rolling mills and how its monthly payroll boosted business in the city.

MEMBERS OF CLUB

Mr. and Mrs. Adams are members of Christ Church. He belongs to the Men's Club and Mrs. Adams to the church guild.

Membership in their many fraternal organizations gives them an active social life.

He is a life member of The Belleville Lodge No. 123 and also Quinte Friendship Chapter No. 102; he is a life member of Minerva Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star and also belongs to the White Shrine of Jerusalem.

Mrs. Adams belongs to the Eastern Star and the White Shrine and both belong to the respective C.N.R. Firemen and Engine organizations.

The couple have lived in the same house since 1911 and their family of four daughters and two sons was raised there.

Children are Mrs. Lloyd (Olive) Weese of Trenton; Mrs. Garfield (Hilda) Matthews, of Belleville; Mrs. Cleo (Mary) Spalding, Belleville; Mrs. Ronald Hubert (Mable) Foster of Frankford; Frederick C. Adams, London, and William George Adams of Trenton. There are 13 grandchildren and eight great grandchildren.

JOINT CELEBRATION

GUELPH, Ont. (CP)—By coincidence the 80th birthday of Guelph's prominent artist, Miss Effie Smith, and the 10th anniversary of the Creative Arts Association were being celebrated on the same day, with Miss Smith officially opening the exhibition.

Worthy Matron Entertains O.E.S. Members

Mrs. Fred Pottruff, Worthy Matron of Minerva Chapter O.E.S., entertained the members at a lovely tea in her home on Sunday afternoon. A large assembly was graciously welcomed to the home which was adorned with lovely bouquets of bronze and yellow mums.

The lace-covered tea table was most attractive with its centre-piece of bronze 'mums, candelabra and silver tea services. The ladies presiding at tea table were: Mrs. R. Henning; Mrs. M. Hunt; Mrs. A. Elliott; Mrs. L. Jordan; Mrs. N. Clarke; Mrs. B. Woonacott; Mrs. M. Moorman, and Mrs. B. Marsh.

The serving and replenishing of the delicious refreshments were in charge of Mrs. D. Tugnett; Mrs. K. Bushell; Mrs. A. Stewart; Mrs. M. Brennan; Mrs. N. Milligan; Mrs. F. Lennon; Mrs. F. Marner; Mrs. M. Finkle; Mrs. P. Clare; Mrs. A. Furmidge; Mrs. J. Bushell; Mrs. M. Parsons; Mrs. A. Hart; Mrs. E. Humphries, and Mrs. J. Williamson.

Weddings

SYCHLA — JAMIESON

A quiet wedding was solemnized in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville, Saturday, October 26th, at 7 p.m. when Muriel Gladys Jamieson, of Belleville, was united in marriage to Eugene Sychla, of Three Creeks, Alberta. The Reverend R. D. MacLean officiated.

Miss Nona Shaw and Mr. Harry Eaton, of Belleville, were the attendants.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mitts, Trenton.

Holloway E.W.A. Plans Bazaar, Views Film

On Tuesday evening, October 22nd, the regular monthly meeting of the evening W.A. of Holloway Street Church took place at the Church. The vice-president, Mrs. Jean Bateman, welcomed the group and called the meeting to order.

A brief business meeting took place and reports were given. Most of the business discussed centred around the coming bazaar.

The devotional part of the meeting was taken over by Mrs. Jean Digby. The subject was the 23rd Psalm — "The Lord Is My Shepherd". A thorough synopsis of this wonderful Psalm was given and everyone there felt spiritually enlightened by it.

FILM ON PLASTICS

The social part of the evening followed with a special film on plastics. Through the courtesy of the Bakelite Company of Canada Ltd., this fine film was obtained. Miss Mary Thain, a senior member of the staff at Bakelite and Mrs. Jean Digby helped to make this part of the meeting interesting and enjoyable.

Delicious pumpkin pie and coffee was served afterwards by the girls in Mrs. Eileen Moore's group with Mrs. Hilda Lawrence as special hostess for the evening.

Frank Tumpane who writes the column "Sincerely Yours," would likely be the last person who expects us always to agree with him. However, we suspect that Mr. Tumpane is not immune to the natural satisfaction derived from agreement when such agreement is sincere. In his article last Monday in the Toronto Telegram "Sincerely Yours" comes out forcefully, militantly and courageously for sterner measures against the dope peddler and his too often socially accepted boss who secretly spreads hell on earth. There is a tendency today to deplore what is called "purple language." Sometimes we feel that good old fashioned purple words are the only words adequate to describe purple horror, and the dope traffic is horror incarnate.

T & T supports Frank Tumpane and endorses his use of strong language. He suggests correctly that if hanging is justifiable for unpremeditated murder then hanging is too good for premeditated "living murder." In our small voice we hope that Frank Tumpane receives much encouragement in his forthright advocacy of making this evil business into the ground that he will continue his crusade relentlessly. Since we are on a women's page we quite naturally think of the especial living death and degradation that this evil brings on boys and girls. Keep it up, Frank Tumpane.

May we take this opportunity to thank the many women's clubs and church groups who so kindly sent us complimentary tickets to their fall bazaars and teas! There seem to be more and more of these gatherings every year, and more power to them. Their aim is to make money for the good causes of their organizations, but they accomplish much more than this! If there is anything warmer and friendlier than bazaars and tea we have yet to see them.

The women who work together for them have planned and created many months ahead. Their pride is their work, which has all been done along with their housework and other activities, shows in their smiling faces. The visitors' appreciation and purchases round out the feeling of good will and the social relaxation over a cup of tea tops everything.

Besides the practical purpose of bazaars, they are wonderful places to pick up gifts for Christmas and other occasions, and to round out your own stock of jams and jellies.

Thank you again for your invitations and, though it is impossible, we will wish we were at every one.

The monthly letter for October from the Royal Bank of Canada has this to say about being a leader. "This acceptance of higher standards of living is the basis of all human progress. A love of high quality is essential in a leader." Those words "high standards" and "high quality" seem to have lost their appeal to a great many young people, indeed to other age groups too. But it seems more tragic to find it in the young.

We heard a mother, a former school teacher, say of a white age, that her son's IQ taken at school showed him to be well above average. It is to be assumed he has an absolute horror of excelling or of standing out in his schooling.

There are many such cases and that peculiar attitude is very difficult to combat. The young people do not realize it, and probably the name is a little too much, but it is a kind of anti-intellectualism. It is the same kind of thinking that prompts the calling of men like Adlai Stevenson "eggheads." It will be a sad day if our higher standards of judgment and our love of high quality become more and more pushed aside.

We are reading at the moment a book from the library of the late Rev. J. G. Hornsby. It is entitled "Italian Characters" in the epoch of the unification. Having read the Royal Bank letter coincidentally with the above, the significance registered that history is not an optimist, yet, history reveals that the qualities of leadership reach their noble best during periods of great strife. Maybe it or when society learns to keep alive, or if you prefer to keep from going to sleep, in peace and prosperity those "high standards and high quality," then part at least of our catastrophic epochs may be eliminated. T & T recommends to our boys and girls and to ourselves that they secure a copy of this essay on leadership and ponder it well.

By VERA WINSTON

Lingerie takes on the lush, lovely attributes of the new fashions. Chantilly type nylon lace, fragile but so very practical, adorns the bodice and hem of this luxurious slip of black nylon tricot. The slip is bordered with flesh-colored net which is also used for the shoulder straps. Nice underpinning for the new slim dresses!

Homemade Handouts For Hallowe'en

By Mary Moore

Every year as Hallow'en gets closer, I determine to stop making homemade candy for the little callers. When they find out there's homemade fudge, etc. being handed out they scuttle off and tell their buddies or even passersby that there's homemade candy at Moores' and we are besieged.

But I can't bear those bags and baskets and pocketsful of sealed wrapped kisses they are loaded with. Besides it does something for my inner spirit to put some of my personal effort into their fun.

Do you understand me?

Would you like to make some expert caramels? This would be good practice too for Christmas candy making.

VANILLA CARAMELS:

Two cups sugar, 1 cup light corn syrup, 2 cups table cream, 1/3 cup butter or margarine, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla, ½ cup chopped nuts (optional). Combine sugar, corn syrup and 1 cup of cream in large saucepan. Cook over medium heat about 15 minutes. Add remaining cream very slowly so that mixture does not stop boiling at any time. Cook about 5 minutes longer; add butter, about a teaspoon at a time, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and cook slowly until a small amount of mixture forms a firm ball when tested in very cold water (or mixture reaches 248 deg. Fahr. on your candy thermometer). Remove from heat; add salt and vanilla mixing gently. Allow to stand about 10 minutes and then add nuts, a few at a time. Pour into well-buttered 8-inch square pan; cool until firm enough to cut. Turn the block of candy out of the pan; cut into squares with a sharp knife. Wrap individually in waxed paper. Yield: 2 pounds caramels.

PEANUT BRITTLE:

Two cups granulated sugar, 2 cups chopped, skinned, salted peanuts, 1 teaspoon salt. Put the sugar into a heavy iron frying pan or your electric frying-pan and heat slowly, stirring constantly, until the sugar is melted and turns a light brown color (300 deg. Fahr. or a little higher). Spread the chopped peanuts in a preheated tin, buttered, and pour the melted sugar over the peanuts. When cold crack with knife handle.

BEAUTY

By MME. QUI VIVE

IF YOU'RE GOING TO A HALLOWE'EN PARTY — ENJOY IT!

As after-five "luxury bath" assures happy dancing hours.

Tomorrow's the big night — for the witches on their broomsticks, the pumpkin-faced dancers, evil-eyed bats and bedevilled black cats.

It can be a big night for you, too. So many parties! And such fun — ducking for apples, dunking for doughnuts and, most important of all, looking into the magic mirror which will positively show you the face of the man!

Not so much fun, though, if you have worked hard all day and have to drag yourself out only half-alive. So how to get in shape and have fun after the nine-to-five grind? To say nothing of the bewitching hours? It's easy, honey. Just treat yourself to a luxury bath before you dress. Put your faith in the lovely fragrances which make bathtime not only a cleanliness time, but a period of wonderful relaxation.

First step is to decide which type of scented water softener you would like to use — bath oil, crystals, or bubble bath. If you use oil, merely fill the tub with the desired amount of warm water and pour as much of the oil as you like into it. If you use crystals, fill the tub with a little water, and pour in the crystals. Then fill the tub completely so that the fragrant bath salts may dissolve. Or, if you prefer bubble bath, measure off several capfuls of the grains and pour them into a dry tub . . . then turn the water on full force. You'll see the grannies froth up before your very eyes and the scent will greet you like a smile.

Whichever type bath softener you use — and they're wonderful — you'll find that the velvet gentleness of the water will caress your skin, and the magic of the fragrance will revive your spirits almost from the very moment you step in. Take time to relax, even if only for a few minutes, to relax in the tub . . . you'll feel the weariness melt away, whether you're ready to lather up, help yourself to a cake of bath mitt soap in a fragrance matching that of the bath softener. And when out of the tub, apply a splash of cologne or toilet water and a cloud of bath powder over your body — and whether you're anticipating Hallowe'en on the town, or a gobin party at home, your fragrance will help you to carry it off beautifully and make you feel on top of the world.

POP CORN BALLS:

Two-thirds cup light molasses, 1½ cups sugar, ¼ cup water, ½ teaspoon vinegar, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon salt, 3 tablespoons butter or margarine, 12 cups popped corn. Combine molasses, sugar, cinnamon, water, vinegar and salt. Cook slowly without stirring to 270 deg. Fahr. or when small quantity dropped into cold water separates into heavy threads. Remove from heat, add butter or margarine, stirring only enough to mix; pour over popped corn, stirring constantly. Shape lightly and quickly into balls.

What with Christmas coming and Christmas presents, this is a perfect time for you to begin gently to guide your little daughter into the charming ways of writing thank-you notes.

WHO PAYS FOR "FLORAL CORONETS" FOR BRIDAL ATTENDANTS?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have quite a knack at making special floral designs, and my florist is an artist in carrying out these designs. I'm to be married soon, and I'd like to have my attendants (maid of honor, matron of honor, and four bridesmaids) wear "floral coronets," headpieces made of small red and white flowers (their dresses are of red satin) and miniature ivy. But this is a problem to me: When I order these headdresses, should I have them charged to my father's account as, for example, the flowers for the church and reception); or to the groom's account with the flowers he is to pay for (my bouquet and the corsage for the two mothers, for example); or should I accept each bridal attendant to pay for her own headdress, or she pays for all the other details of her costume?

— Bride-to-be

These floral headdresses should be considered as part of the attendants' flowers, as their bouquets, and so should be charged to your father's account. (Customarily, the attendants' flowers are provided by the bride's family.) There would be no reason why they should be charged to the groom's account (customarily the groom does not pay for the bridal attendants' bouquets). And when the headdresses are such delightful fleeting things, would not have any future use to the attendants, they should not be expected to pay for them.

GOOD MANNERS

CHILD OLD ENOUGH TO WRITE THANK-YOU NOTES

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My little daughter can write a combination of writing and printing as taught in her school — but so far I have always written her thank-you notes for her, notes for Christmas presents and so forth. Very soon she is to have a birthday and a birthday party, and I had intended to write notes of thanks for her birthday presents. But yesterday, as I happened to mention this to my cousin, who has a daughter just about my daughter's age (they are in the same class in school), she said that I was absolutely in the wrong not to let my child write her own notes of thanks. What's your opinion about this? — Mother

So you are wrong about this, dear lady. You are doing your child a great injustice by not starting her, guiding her, in this rewarding habit of writing a note for every gift she receives. Since your daughter is old enough to write, she is old enough to write a thank-you note . . . even though it is a very short, very simple note. Actually children love to write letters, and it is really a simple matter to guide them to write letters in the early years of their lives. And it's too bad when a mother doesn't make the effort to guide her child about this. I'd like to say that your cousin was absolutely forthright in her suggestions.

A child should have some delightful little-notes paper (and there are so many charming designs today in this type of paper) . . . a comfortable pen . . . and other pleasant accessories . . . and have the gift directly in front of her so that she can write the sentence or two about special feature of the gift: "It is such a nice color, my favorite color," or

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Mildred F. — A woman needs more than her home.

Donald F. — A man should not have to wash his own socks.

• • •

Mildred F. — Last year, after 25 years as a homemaker, I went back to work. My husband and I have two married children and one away at college.

It was Don's idea that I take a job. He thought there wasn't enough for me to do around the house with only the two of us. Besides, the extra income would help us build up a retirement fund. I wasn't particularly keen about going to work, but once I started I loved it.

The problem now is Don. He isn't used to doing anything for himself. He doesn't like helping out around the house and he gets all upset if things don't run on oiled wheels the way they used to when I was home. He wants me to give up my job now and stay home, but I feel as though I'd be putting myself back in a jail. I love my home, but a woman needs more than that.

• • •

Donald F. — Okay, I was wrong. I made a big mistake. I didn't realize how much Mildred had to do in the house, even just for the two of us. Now I'm ready to appreciate everything she does — if only she'll stay home.

Mildred seems to think it's a joke when I have to struggle with the dinner dishes or when she sees me making a mess of washing out a pair of socks, but I don't think it's funny. A man shouldn't have to start learning to do things like that at my age.

The worst of it is that Mildred has turned out to be a real busybody people who brings the job home with them at the end of the day. All evening she talks about what the office and I don't get a chance to get in a word edgewise. It doesn't take more time to sew on a button than to talk all that nonsense, but Mildred would rather talk.

• • •

The Council: It's too bad Donald can't see humor in the fact of a man of his age being shocked for a loop by a pair of socks and some dinner dishes. We agree with Mildred. It's really very funny.

It is fortunate Donald has had this opportunity to see the effort entailed in making "things run oiled wheels" in a home, but we don't go along with his plan for mercy — not yet. Mildred has had 25 years of housework. She still has the health and energy to put her wings and expand her life. It would be very unfair to put her back in the home at this time purely for Donald's convenience.

Donald ought to try to enter into the spirit of this thing with a little more enthusiasm. He should realize Mildred is doing more than escaping housework. She is tasting life and he should have the generosity to share her excitement.

On the other hand, Mildred ought to be a little more sympathetic with Donald's situation. It is not really just a question of the dinner dishes. Donald feels that his whole world has gone to pieces because Mildred is not planning her normal, wifely role. It wouldn't be a bad idea for her to do a little button sewing and sock washing — just as reassurance of her love.

We have a notion Donald pretends to more helplessness in these matters than he actually feels because he doesn't want Mildred to get so absorbed in her job that she'll no longer need him.

Leopard and Leather

By ALICE ALDEN

Leopard has climbed aboard fashion's handwagon and is evidently enthroned there for the months ahead. Here is the spotted, tawny beauty splendidly allied with luxurious palest beige cabretta leather for a coat that is as useful as it is right. Albert Arfuis gives his creation push-up sleeves and fashions the fur into a flattering shawl collar. Should prove a splendid travelling companion as well as a fine choice for town or country.

St. Joseph's CWL Plans Parish Church Campaign

The October meeting of the St. Joseph Subdivision of the C.W.L. was held Monday evening in the school. The Reverend J. J. Buckley, in his address to the members, announced that the parish campaign is now opened. The objective is to raise the sum of $75,000 for the purpose of beginning the construction of the new church, a necessity now with the increased congregation. An outline of future plans was given and all members urged to give their conscientious support to the campaign.

On November 6th, a dinner meeting will be held in the Knights of Columbus hall at 7 p.m., when the men of the parish will be honored to have as their guest speaker, the Most Reverend Archbishop O'Sullivan of Kingston. The parish canvass will take place on November 10th. It was remarked the efforts of the ladies of the C.W.L. had been extraordinary in the past and a continuance of the good work was asked to be maintained.

REPORTS GIVEN

Previous to Father Buckley's address the business of the meeting had been considered. Mrs. P. Halloran, first vice-president, presided. The minutes were read by the secretary, Mrs. D. Dunning, and the treasurer, Mrs. E. Hopkins, gave the financial report. Mrs. T. Kelly, corresponding secretary, reported three cards sent and one received.

Brownie work is underway and progressing well as advised by Mrs. T. McQuaid, co-convenei. Mothers of the Brownies were informed that fees included insurance and should be paid promptly.

Mrs. E. Cooper, for radio, TV and films, advised mothers to show particular attention to the type of movies their children attended.

Mrs. P. Halloran reported there are 108 memberships to date, also that the marathon bridge had commenced. A large bridge party is planned for the close of the marathon when prizes will be awarded. There are 16 teams playing and they were asked to have their games over by the second Monday of the month so that all may finish together.

HOME EUCHRES

Mrs. J. C. Baker reported on the home euchres and listed the ladies who had so generously helped in this work to date. The ladies who held home parties for the month of October were Mrs. V. Muldoon, Mrs. F. Maund, Mrs. S. Klazek, Mrs. T. Mavety, Mrs. P. Mulhoir and Mrs. J. C. Baker.

For the month of November, the hostesses are: Mrs. H. Bone, Mrs. W. Carroll, Mrs. L. Kennedy, Mrs. J. Anton, Mrs. J. Doran and Mrs. C. Murphy.

Mrs. Baker asked to be advised of names of new parishioners so that welcome calls may be made.

NEW APPOINTMENTS

The chairman announced the following appointments, as convener Spiritual, Mrs. T. Silver; Register, Mrs. R. Collier, and League magazine, Mrs. C. Murphy.

Mrs. T. Silver reminded the ladies of the Monthly Communion Sunday, November 3rd. For the League of the Sacred Heart, Mrs. H. Carr-Brainf gave a brief but impressive talk about the league.

Mrs. F. Maund, convener of the Hallowe'en tea and sale, on November 1st, thanked all for their fine co-operation in the work towards this event. There will be an auction at the November meeting. Mrs. R. Lynch and Mrs. J. Thorne will look after this. Mrs. T. Black will convene the refreshments.

Early in December there will be a Christmas party for the members, similar to last season. Mrs. R. Johnston is convener.

The ladies of St. Joseph's C.W.L. will prepare the Christmas baskets for the hospital patients this year, Mrs. H. Carr-Brainf convener.

The meeting was adjourned by Mrs. J. Doran. Father Buckley said the closing prayers.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. R. Lynch and Mrs. J. Thorne.

Women's Activities

UNITED CHURCH WMS

FRANKFORD — The W.M.S. of Frankford United Church met last Thursday afternoon in the United Church. The meeting was preceded by quiet organ music by Mrs. S. Martin. The president, Mrs. F. Charlesworth, was in charge of the meeting, and gave a thought for the day.

Mrs. C. D. Powell led in prayer and was in charge of the devotional period, the theme being "Thanksgiving and Christian Stewardship." The text was taken from 1st Peter.

Mrs. Charlesworth welcomed everyone and visitors from Wooler and King Street United Church W.M.S., Trenton.

The secretarial and treasurer's reports were given. The supply secretary, Mrs. G. Spencer, gave a report on the bale of clothing being packed for Korea and the Missionary Monthly secretary, Mrs. P. E. Bonistesl, spoke on renewing subscriptions. The Associate Helpers secretary, Mrs. C. W. Scott, reported two new members enrolled. Roll call showed 16 members and 18 visitors present.

Mrs. Charlesworth introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Lane, of Canboune, president of the Cobourg Presbyterial, who spoke on her experiences as a delegate to the Dominion Board and where the missionaries attended. Mrs. Charlesworth thanked Mrs. Lane for her fine address.

Mrs. W. Morrow rendered a vocal solo accompanied by Mrs. S. Martin at the organ.

Greetings from Wooler and Trenton W.M.S. were extended from their presidents, Mrs. R. Rowe and greetings from Frankford Evening Auxiliary.

Thank-offering was received.

The ladies retired to Rose Lowery Hall, where refreshments were served.

WHITE'S DISTRICT — Mrs. Frank Sandercock and Mrs. James Sandercock were hostesses to the ladies of the White's Woman's Association for their October meeting held in the evening with a good attendance of members and several visitors.

The president, Mrs. Ritchie Ketcheson, presided.

The devotional service was taken by Mrs. A. Skaarup who read Corinthians 13 and gave a story of the lesson of "Love."

Mrs. George Bilham put on contests with Mrs. Jack Glydon and Mrs. A. Skaarup being the winners. The lucky cup was won by Mrs. Ritchie Ketcheson.

There was a sale of watermelons, vegetables, cookies, potholders and other articles which brought in extra funds. Money was handed in for the autograph quilt.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses and a social time enjoyed.

The president, moved a vote of thanks for their hospitality.

National Office For Institutes Near Reality

OTTAWA (CP) — A national office for the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada is nearing reality.

Federation president Mrs. J.A. Adams of Ethelton, Sask., Monday told delegates at opening sessions of a four-day convention here that, "though the national office project is not yet accomplished, it is possible."

The FWIC is holding its first national convention in its 60-year history.

Mrs. Adams later said a location for the proposed permanent office has not been chosen. It was not expected to be in Ottawa but would possibly be near the home of the incoming federation president, who is to be elected Thursday.

Canada and Nationhood Topic Of Discussion by Study Guild

The Women's Study Guild met, for its regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. H. G. Wylie, Bridge Street East, on Monday evening.

The president, Mrs. G. D. Williamson, conducted the business session and read a letter from an Italian child whose education is being paid for by the Guild under "Save the Children Fund."

Mrs. A. D. Archibald conducted the worship service and read passages of Scripture from the 23rd Psalm and the Gospel of St. Matthew, which showed the responsibilities of inhabitants in making their country into a nation. The theme of this service was "Blessed is the Nation Whose God is the Lord."

Topic of study for the evening was "Has Canada Achieved Nationhood?"

Mrs. H. G. Wylie took the first part of the subject showing what Canada has achieved, pointing out that Canada is a true example of co-existence. Over the years Canada has made great progress, especially by building transcontinental railroads, by adopting Confederation, by becoming a nation with only allegiance to the Crown and by gaining Canadian citizenship, Canada has given Doctors Banting and Best to the medical field, also contributions to the literary and artistic fields and of recent years has gained recognition in the United Nations and General Assembly.

NO NATIONAL FLAG

Mrs. G. E. Maybee showed the things that have not been accomplished yet toward the status of nationhood, mainly that Canada has no national flag or national anthem. She pointed out that Canada must grow up and quoted from a book, "On Being A Canadian," by Vincent Massey:

"If every Canadian citizen were to believe in sound work, team spirit; awareness of ourselves, we can look forward to achievements beyond his imaging."

A spirited discussion took place while tea was served. The hostesses for the evening were Mrs. M. Beresford and Mrs. Ashley.

Club Activities

SUNBEAM M.B.

FRANKFORD — The Frankford United Church Sunbeam Mission Band held its meeting in Rose Lowery hall on Friday afternoon. As members arrived two games were played, "Japanese Fruit Basket," and "On a Farm in Tokyo."

The president, Donna Chase, called the meeting to order, after which the secretarial and treasurer's reports were given.

The worship service opened with the theme "Giving Thanks for Family Life."

Elaine Sharp read the Scripture, Psalm 103.

The offering was received by Leslie Schriver and all sang "Father Bless These Gifts We Bring Thee."

Pictures were shown of Japanese families and members were requested to bring articles for a scrap book.

Mrs. P. Chase told the primary story of "Hannah's New Home". Mrs. R. Rowe told the junior story of "Kenji".

Ructions Seen Over Raiding By Teamsters

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Ructions are in prospect over Canadian operations of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters union, thrown out of the AFL-CIO in the United States.

A behind-the-scenes membership scrap has found the tough teamsters trying to raid a big Canadian union and apparently bumbling their union nose at the potent 1,000,000 - member Canadian Labor Congress.

The teamsters are tackling the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees and other transport workers, largest Canadian transport union with 35,000 members and also a fellow-member of the congress.

The Canadian Labor Congress, it was learned, is trying to tone down the bare-knuckle type of organizing that the teamsters go in for, but available information is that the CLC is not getting far up o now.

TRY TO SMOOTH OUT

The latest quiet move of the CLC to smooth out the situation got a snub from some unions reported to be helping the teamster outfit in ganging up on the brotherhood.

Teamster tactics in trying to steal CBRE membership are reported centered for the moment on the west coast and to be directed from Seattle, Wash., headquarters of the huge union's West Coast Conference.

The teamsters in British Columbia are run from Seattle. Other Canadian branches also are run from the U.S.—there is no over-all Canadian boss—but informants say the Jimmy Hoffa outfit is not doing any overt raiding in other parts of the country.

But on the west coast, CBRE officials say, the teamsters have worked up a power play against the brotherhood with the help of CLC - affiliated building trades unions and the International Union of Operating Engineers, which itself is under suspension from the congress for raiding memberships of other congress unions.

Meanwhile, the teamster-brotherhood hostility is getting hotter. Expectations are it will explode—barring developments in the meantime at the CLC's biennial convention in Winnipeg during late April.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED by Mrs. Lou Sarden (MOTHER OF 3)

During the last half of the first year you'll delight in your baby's increasing sociability. Now's the time to schedule more social sessions with dad and the whole family so baby can learn the joys of sharing in group activity.

Assorted values. There's no "perfect food" which supplies the more-than-sixty essential nutrients in proper proportion. That's why a variety of foods is so important. Variety not only increases meal appeal but provides a pleasant way to meet energy, protein, mineral and vitamin needs.

To further the cause of a well-balanced diet, Gerber offers you a choice of 25 Strained Fruits, Vegetables, Soups, Meats, Special New Meat Dinners, Desserts and Egg Yolk. Also, specially cooked cereal for higher retention of nutrients than is possible in the usual methods of home cooking. Made by the people who specialize in baby foods—and quality.

Introductory idea. If baby turns thumbs down on a new food, it's wise to wait a few days before offering it again. Tips that may turn the trick on the second try: (1) When you introduce the food, try serving it in a gaily-colored dish baby hasn't seen. (2) Offer it after the first hunger pangs have been satisfied by a favorite food.

There's a good chance baby will turn thumbs up on a new food, it's this brand new baby food! Gerber New Meat Dinners have unusual flavor interest because they're brimming with meaty goodness. Yes, these special dishes have 3 times as much meat as regular vegetable and meat combinations . . . meat you can really taste. This extra meat is happily combined with selected vegetables and cereal to provide a generous assortment of proteins, minerals and vitamins in one delicious dish. 7 Varieties—Strained or Junior. Beef Noodle, Veal, Chicken, Chicken Rice, Turkey or Liver and Bacon. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

Little Benny's Notebook

Ma was thinking to herself with an unsatisfied expression, saying to pop Oh dear, William, I wish I didn't have to send a birthday present card to Mrs. Berdhouse, even though she sent me one for my berthday.

Maybe she felt the same way about it as you're feeling about this one, pop said, and ma said, I have no doubt she did, because there's no love lost between us. The trubble is, all the greeting cards in the stores are so slowery, I couldn't find one that sounded sincere without exaggerating my good wishes. I must of looked at a hundred cards, William, and they all consist of poems assuring undying affection and everlasting friendship, she said.

Doesn't the fact that they are in verse add a touch of improbability to their sincerity pop said, and ma said, Well yes, I thought of that, but still, I dont think that would occur to Mrs. Berdhouse, she's so incurably concested. I certainly dont want her to get the idea that I'm fermly convinced she's wonderful. So what would you suggest, William? ma said.

I suggest that you send her a flowery one but omit to put a stamp on the envelope, pop said. So after she goes to the expense and annoyance of paying the postman for the stamp, the cloying sweetness of the greeting will have a sour undertoon, he said, and ma said, I see what you mean, William, but still I don't know.

Neither do I, pop said, and ma said, Oh well, I'll probably think of something.

Which she probably will.

YOUTHS BURN BOY

Confused About HOME IMPROVEMENT LOANS?

They're so easy to get . . . so simple to arrange — you'll wonder why you waited to make the improvements you've been wanting.

HOUSTON'S BUDGET PLAN

lets you make home improvements easily . . . without straining your pocketbook.

Many home owners have never heard of a lumber yard home improvement loan. Of those who have, many are so hazy as to what sort of projects can be financed with this plan, that needed repairs and renovations and changes are simply put off and never get done. Many other people don't know how to go about making the necessary arrangements for a loan and give up in frustration.

Houston's hope to clear up these misunderstandings and show you that it is easy and inexpensive to get a Houston Home Improvement Loan.

Here's everything you need to know . . .

WHO IS ELIGIBLE?

Any home owner who has a good credit standing and a reasonable equity in his home. No endorsers are required and no security has to be posted.

WHAT IMPROVEMENTS CAN BE FINANCED UNDER HOUSTON'S PLAN?

Generally speaking, any repair, alteration or improvement to an existing structure, including detached garages. To list just a few . . . finishing attic and basement rooms, adding rooms, reroofing, new flooring, modernizing kitchens, bathrooms, interior and exterior painting, etc.

WHERE DO I APPLY FOR ADVICE?

Houston's Lumber at 75 St. Paul St., Belleville. Qualified "Houston" personnel will organize the entire project and arrange a suitable budget plan. If you like to "do-it-yourself", Houston's have plans for you too.

HOW DO I ARRANGE FOR CREDIT?

All you have to do is fill out a simple application form. All transactions are confidential and no co-signers are required.

ARE THERE LIMITS AS TO AMOUNT AND TIME ALLOWED FOR PAYMENT?

Yes. The minimum credit is $100 and the maximum $3,000. The repayment plan provides for equal monthly payments over various periods, ranging from 6 to 36 months. After the cost of your job has been determined, a payment plan to suit your budget is worked out.

WHAT ABOUT DOWN PAYMENT?

No down payment is required, but you are reminded that it isn't good business to take on payments larger than you can afford to pay out of your income.

WHAT ARE THE CARRYING CHARGES?

Carrying charges vary depending on the number of months you choose to pay. Whichever plan you select, though, you'll see that our interest rates are lower than those charged for any other commodity you might buy on time.

IS EVERYTHING HANDLED WITH ONE LOAN APPLICATION?

Yes. This plan not only includes materials supplied by Houston's, but also those of other suppliers and trades such as plumbers, electricians, painter, masons, carpenters, etc.

WHO HANDLES THE CONTRACTING?

This is entirely up to you. However, Houston personnel are experienced in working with the contracting trades and suggest that you take advantage of this experience by allowing us to make the necessary arrangements. In this way you are guaranteed of a quality job, at reasonable prices, with a minimum of inconvenience to you.

CAN I DO THE JOB MYSELF?

By all means! The same loan arrangements are available to "do-it-yourselfers" and to give you a hand, Houston's will loan you specialized tools to help you do a professional job. Here are just a few of the tools available . . . tile cutters, linoleum rollers, glue spreaders, hand staplers and spot nailers, floor sanders.

HOME IMPROVEMENT is easy . . . by cash or on budget at HOUSTON'S

Space Ferries and Taxis Will Be First Steps in Human Travel to Mars, Venus

Editor's Note: What's new upstairs? Well, one thing coming up is a space hotel. It will be an overnight stop en route to Mars. It's all part of the tricky business of actually getting man off into space. This is the second of four articles.

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP)—Space ferries and taxis will likely be the first steps in human travel to Mars, Venus and elsewhere in space.

They will make short hops—riding up only about as high as Sputnik did.

Their job will be to build and supply space platforms or hotels circling steadily around the earth. Up there the space cruisers will be built and launched to carry humans on explorations of space.

This is the view of most experts on rocketry and space travel.

GIANT LIFTING JOB

A well-supplied space cruiser in which humans could live safely and comfortably for weeks or months could weigh many dozens of tons. Getting that weight off the ground takes enormous rocket power.

Just to send up a 20-pound baby moon in the U.S. project Vanguard calls for a 22,000-pound rocket, half a ton of rocket for each pound to be hung in the sky.

Numerous experts have proposed designs and plans for the space hotels and cruisers.

First rockets are shot into an orbit 200 miles or higher above the earth, timed to be bunched together. Then the first human astronauts go up to join the rockets together.

SHOOT MATERIALS UP

More cargo ships carry up materials to build the space cruiser. Trained crews ride in it to man it.

The space hotel is travelling around the world in an orbit at five miles a second. Now the space cruiser is launched, then rockets thrusting it forward to reach a speed of seven miles a second. With that speed, it can break away from the earth's gravity and begin its space journey.

The space cruiser isn't streamlined, for there's no air or friction to slow it down.

DOESN'T NEED AIR

And it's easier to get the cruiser going fast high in space than from the ground. This astounds people who think a rocket has to have air to push against. It doesn't.

Rockets go because they burn fuels and create compressed gas inside the rocket. The nose end is closed. Gas molecules are pressing against this closed end.

Against this action, there is no action as gas molecules rush out the narrow, opened back end. The high speed ejection of this mass produces a thrust in the opposite direction.

Launched from a space platform, it has less force of earthly gravity to overcome.

Once a rocket is aimed for Mars, it will coast through space. Then power, falling through space in a great circle to intercept its target planet.

ROCKETS AS BRAKES

Approaching Mars, the captain turns his ship by firing small steering jets. Then he uses his main rocket power to offset Mars' pull of gravity enough to back down slowly and gently onto the planet.

On the way home, he first resjoins his space hotel, then comes back to earth aboard ferry or taxi rockets.

Re-entering the earth's atmosphere, rocket engines can be fired as brakes, and approaches can be made in sweeping glides to make safe landings.

Rockets now ride up on chemical fuels, either liquid or solid propellants or both. They are being made ever more powerful. Atomic energy is a future fuel.

Enthusiasts for space travel is coming. But there are Doubting Thomases, and many persons who wonder why humans should go traipsing around the universe anyhow.

(Answers to Goals and Aims from space explorations)

Ousted Mayor May Ask For Recount

MONTREAL (CP)—Jean Drapeau, defeated in a bid for election as Montreal No. 1 civic post in one of the city's closest municipal contests, may seek a judicial recount.

Senator Sarto Fournier, Mr. Drapeau's chief opponent, was in Monday's municipal elections on his third attempt.

He polled 3,000 from the 1,547 polls show the 49-year-old senator won by a 4,279-vote margin, receiving 84,304 votes against 79,931 for the 41-year-old Mr. Drapeau.

Among those who asked for a check on the ballot figures was Lucien Croteau, president of the Montreal Municipal Rally which backed the senator. Mr. Croteau failed in his bid for re-election to city council and there have been rumors that an elected CMR councillor might resign to make room for him.

Another rumor was that Mr. Drapeau's father, councillor-elect J. N. Drapeau, would resign his seat to make room for his son.

It is apparent that the Independents will hold the balance of power in city council and that Senator Fournier would have to count heavily on their support to win approval of the 99-member city council on any program or project.

The Greater Montreal Rally won only 20 of the 66 council seats at stake. The Civic Action League which supported Mr. Drapeau elected 32. The remaining 13 went to Independents.

In addition, there are 33 councillors appointed by business, labor and education bodies who are independent by tradition and do not side with any political faction.

The senator Tuesday told the Civic Committee of the Montreal that he hopes party politics will be abolished at city hall.

Canada Counts 126 Dead in Wake of Flu

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canada has counted at least 126 dead in the wake of the fall influenza outbreak.

Ontario has 59 dead, Quebec 30, Alberta 12, British Columbia 7, Nova Scotia 6, Manitoba 4, Newfoundland and New Brunswick three each and Saskatchewan 2. Prince Edward Island has reported no deaths from influenza or attendant diseases.

A Canadian Press survey showed no official concern in any area. Ontario officials said the province usually has a death toll of 125 a year and the national total each year from flu and complications usually is between 1,000 and 2,000.

In Ontario flu was reported "definitely on the decline in all centres" and there was a normal rate of absenteeism at schools.

In Quebec City, Quebec epidemiologist, said flu is decreasing in the province after a peak in Quebec City and district and increasing in the east. Two to three times as many children as adults had been affected.

IMPROVES IN MONTREAL

Montreal's health director, Dr. Adelard Groulx, noted a definite improvement there last week and declines in absenteeism in industry and at schools.

The Prairie provinces said more than half the flu cases are of the Asian variety. Manitoba reported more than 300 new cases last week and about 75 Winnipeg classrooms closed because of sick teachers.

Saskatchewan officials said the province is in good shape after the "first round" of flu, which has unchanged but intensity has cut thirds of the victims. A second round, which affects the rest, is believed already started in Wayburn and Estevan.

Dr. Orford-Smith of the Alberta health department said one in four Albertans has had flu and in most cases it has been the Asian variety. He said incidence has unchanged but intensity is easing in the south and moving to the north.

In Nova Scotia, flu has eased at hard-hit Cape Breton, where six deaths occurred, and now is severe in several mainland towns. All Cape Breton schools are closed. Those at Halifax are open despite an absentee rate of 27.7 per cent Monday.

Woman Fined $100, Costs Drove 95 MPH

BRADFORD, Ont. (CP)—Lilla Tillson, 47, of Galt, Tuesday was fined $100 and costs for careless driving. Provincial police constable John Fox testified he clocked her at 95 miles an hour in a 45-mile chase on highway 400.

Crown attorney William Kennedy said he will consider appealing the sentence imposed by Magistrate Crawford Guest of Toronto because Mrs. Tillson was not given a licence suspension.

Indians Cashing in on Mine Boom in Northern Manitoba

THOMPSON, Man. (CP)—Manitoba's northern Indians now are cashing in on the mine boom here and making up to $450 a month.

In the Moak and Mystery lakes area 400-miles north of Winnipeg where the International Nickel Company of Canada is developing two nickel mines at Thompson and Moak, about 300 Indians now are employed on construction work.

Inco officials said the Indians come from settlements at South Indian Lake, Nelson House, Norway House and Cross Lake.

They said the Indians usually stay at the project for about three months, working seven days a week and 10 hours a day. Their families stay at the settlements.

J. C. Parlee, chief of Inco's Manitoba operations, said in an interview at the site that the "Indian labor is satisfactory."

"Some of the Indian boys come down the river in canoes. Some have walked from as far as Thicket Portage, looking for jobs."

Thicket Portage is about 60 miles south of the CNR's Hudson Bay line.

"They comprise about 30 per cent of the labor force," one of the engineers said. "Some are doing installation work, but generally they don't do heavy jobs. Brush cutting and that sort of thing suits them better.

"One drives a tractor and one operates a truck, but that's all."

They always had a wide grin for waiting reporters.

"They earn about $450 month," Mr. Parlee said. "And they buy a lot of expensive things."

At the Thompson construction site is a modern Hudson Bay store, well-stocked.

One of the Indians, who live in shacks and tents at the site, bought a $175 hi-fi set through the store. Three weeks went by, but no sound was heard from his cabin.

"He never did use it," said Mr. Parlee. "Some of the boys went down there one day and all the Indians were standing around the set but none of them knew how to operate it. But they still were impressed at its fancy."

At Moak Lake, 17 miles northeast of Thompson, where another mine is being developed, about 50 to 75 Indians work within its exploration camp.

"The exact number we're never quite sure of," said Oryn Pritchard, a geologist from Sudbury, Ont. "The Indian labor force varies from day to day, depending on when they want to go trapping.

"The Indians always take off quite frequently," he said.

At the construction site of the Manitoba Hydro-Electric Board's generating station on the Grand Rapids of the Nelson River, the labor force is about half Indian.

"There are many good workers amongst them," said P. J. Cassidy, project manager. The Indians live in company bunkhouses at the site.

Pleads Guilty To Uttering Forged Ticket

TORONTO (CP)—John G. Roberts, counsel for William Najduk of Toronto, Tuesday charged a ring of counterfeiters is operating at New Woodbine race track here.

He said they are duping unsuspecting people into cashing counterfeit mutuel tickets by promising them cash.

Najduk, who was said to have cashed a forged daily double ticket, was not needed that "big money," pleaded guilty to uttering a forged document and was given a six-month suspended sentence.

Mr. Roberts said Najduk was approached at the race track by a well-dressed man who offered to pay him for cashing the ticket which would have been worth $726.

Warbles Safety Ditties Then Drives 100 MPH

TORONTO (CP)—Cliff McKay, CBC television star who sings a road-safety ditty as his program every Saturday night, explained in court in suburban North York Tuesday that he was driving at 100 miles an hour on Highway 401 "to clean out the engine of my new car."

Magistrate Fred W. Bartrem fined him $40 and costs for speeding.

SLICED WHALE

YARMOUTH, N.S. (CP) — The motor vessel Bluenos was on time on her run from Bar Harbor, Me., despite the "bump" near the Lurcher lightship. A large whale trying to surface in the ship's path was sliced up by the propellers.

Heavy Turnout Expected in Liquor Vote

EDMONTON (CP) — Today is voting day in Alberta's first liquor plebiscite since prohibition ended in 1923 and a heavy turnout is expected, especially in urban ridings. Fine fall weather is the order in most regions.

The vote is the result of a resolution, passed 28 to 27 in the legislature last spring, that requested the government to ask the people of the province whether they want additional types of liquor outlets, such as cocktail bars and restaurants serving liquor with meals.

On its outcome hinges the possibility of first major change in the province's drinking regulations since prohibition was voted out in Alberta's first plebiscite nearly 35 years ago.

Polling times are 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. MST.

ELIGIBLE TO VOTE

An estimated 550,000 persons are eligible to vote across the province. About 130,000 of these are in the Edmonton area and another 112,000 in the Calgary area, both of which will vote on a second question, that of extended drinking in beer parlors.

The province-wide question is: "Do you approve additional types of outlets for the sale of beer, wine and spirituous liquors subject to a local vote?"

Should an over-all negative vote result, the issue will be settled so far as the government is concerned, but it could be brought up again in the future in the legislature. The government has said it will not consider a negative vote as approval of existing regulations. It is opposed, however, to additional types of liquor outlets.

If a majority affirmative vote is recorded, the government will interpret the result, taking into consideration several things, including the number who vote, the margin in favor and perhaps the regional trends.

Present conditions permit sale of beer, wine and spirituous liquor by the bottle and case at government liquor stores, the sale of beer by the glass and bottle in beer parlors and the sale of liquor by the glass only in private clubs.

Mental Patients Surrender 36 Unharmed Hostages After Dramatic Nine-Hour Revolt

MEDICAL LAKE, Wash. (AP) Simmering unrest among criminally insane patients at the state mental hospital blew up into a dramatic nine-hour revolt that ended harmlessly Tuesday night for 36 hostages.

"It was all a misunderstanding and there will be no changes in the program," said Dr. Garret Heyns in two radio broadcasts the rebels ordered him to make before they would give up.

Dr. Heyns is state director of institutions.

Not until the patients heard Heyns' voice over their radios in the big maximum security building would they release the guards and turn over weapons that included two makeshift knives, a fire hose and a tear gas riot gun.

Heyns, who raced to Spokane 15 miles away, in a state patrol car to make the broadcast over a commercial radio station, didn't say enough in his first statement.

"We were very well treated, played cards and listened to the radio after the first shots were off," said guard Roger Blue. "We were fed and weren't awfully worried."

State Senator Karl V. Herrmann has called for a legislative investigation of what he called "shocking conditions," including bad food at the hospital.

Identify Body Of Woman

TORONTO (CP) — Police said Tuesday the body of a woman found in a creek between Brantford and Hamilton in September is that of Mrs. Christina Paitich, 50, of Hamilton.

A provincial police spokesman said identification was established by fingerprints.

Mrs. Paitich's body was found in the creek trussed with wire and wrapped in a blanket. She had been missing since Sept. 1.

Police said the woman's husband, George Paitich, 53, died in a traffic accident on the Queen Elizabeth Way Sept. 26, five days after his wife's body was found in the creek.

Assists Insurance

A patient then asked by telephone that Heyns also assure them that Governor C. R. Hodgson would be retained as medical director of the security unit. Heyns went across the street to another station and repeated a promise about Hodgson in a second broadcast.

Only minutes after Heyns reported from Spokane, the patients told the 17 guards on the night shift, waiting outside, to go ahead to come in, that the hostages would be released when they arrived at the door. They were.

The hostages came out the gate one by one and were greeted by tearful wives who had waited in the rain for hours, some while state patrolman unloaded rifles and shotguns from their cars for possible assault, and waiting while Heyns, Hodgson and Dr. G. Lee Sandvister, hospital superintendent, conferred with patients inside.

GUARD RESIGNED

Albert (Rock) Hutchings, chief security guard at the building, resigned Monday at Heyns' request. He and the patients had read newspaper accounts of it. Heyns said they apparently thought Hutchings' departure would change the treatment system.

"Jest a Second"

New hope for prevention of Heart Disease

Despite the outstanding work carried on by medical men and surgeons, heart disease is still the greatest killer today. What causes it? Can it be prevented? The National Heart Foundation of Canada, recently formed, will intensify the search for the answers to these questions. It will also correlate the excellent work already being done across Canada.

The Life Insurance Companies in Canada are supporting this Foundation because it is so important to the future health of Canadians. They have made substantial grants to cover the cost of launching the organization.

The aim of the National Heart Foundation is to step up the tempo of research into the causes of heart disease. The Foundation will encourage the practical application of research by every possible means. It will seek to stimulate professional and lay education and help Canadian doctors to keep abreast of the newest developments in diagnosis and treatment.

Support of the National Heart Foundation is just one of many ways in which the life insurance companies in Canada are helping to create a healthier, happier life for Canadians.

Diefenbaker Says U.S. Trade Policy Altered

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker says that "a marked change of attitude" by the U.S. in regard to the effect on other trading nations, such as Canada, of its surplus-disposal policies may be chalked up as a credit to the new Progressive Conservative government.

He did not amplify this statement Monday night but obviously was referring to recent Washington talks at which Canadian cabinet ministers were assured by their American counterparts that in all surplus-disposal activities it will be the intention of the U.S. to avoid, as far as possible, interfering with normal commercial marketings.

Mr. Diefenbaker spoke on television in the CBC's annual free-time political series, The Nation's Business.

New hope for prevention of Heart Disease

In spite of accurate diagnosis, advanced medical science and surgery, heart disease is still the greatest killer today. What causes it? Can it be prevented? The National Heart Foundation of Canada, recently formed, will intensify the search for the answers to these questions. It will also correlate the excellent work already being done across Canada.

The Life Insurance Companies in Canada are supporting this Foundation because it is so important to the future health of Canadians. They have made substantial grants to cover the cost of launching the organization.

The first concern of the National Heart Foundation is to step up the tempo of research into the causes of heart disease. The Foundation will encourage the practical application of research by every possible means. It will seek to stimulate professional and lay education and help family doctors to keep abreast of the newest developments in diagnosis and treatment.

Support of the National Heart Foundation is just one of many ways in which the life insurance companies in Canada are helping to create a healthier, happier life for Canadians.

STEALING FOOD

VIENNA (Reuters)—The Hungarian government has ordered all workers in the food industry and state stores to be searched daily, the Hungarian evening newspaper Esti Hirlap reported in an issue reaching here today. The move follows "disappearance" of large quantities of foodstuffs.

Melrose

MELROSE — The Cubs, with their leaders, spent an enjoyable forenoon on October 19th, when they journeyed on to Trenton and were shown through the airport. The troop is indeed grateful to the patient guides who conducted the tours.

Mrs. Newton Demille returned home from the Belleville hospital on Sunday afternoon; much improved in health.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant McLaren and Mr. Jack McLaren attended the funeral of their relative, Percy Kilpatrick, at Foxboro, on Monday afternoon.

The Cubs enjoyed a Hallowe'en party at their regular meeting on Wednesday evening.

Many in the community have been suffering from 'flu. The Melrose teacher, Miss Scott, has been a victim and has not been able to meet her classes for a few days. More than half the school children were absent on Thursday when Miss Scott was able to return.

The ladies of the Melrose United Church were a busy group as they catered at the Warden's complimentary dinner on Thursday evening in the Masonic Temple, Belleville.

Special music, with Mrs. Gardiner of Belleville assisting both morning and evening was a part of the anniversary services at Melrose United Church. The Rev. VanSchepen and Miss Thelma Stickle, conducted the service at 11 o'clock and the Padre from the training camp at Picton was the guest preacher for the evening.

Service and Sabbath School were withdrawn for the 27th as Shannonville charge held its anniversary services.

Melrose Modern Mixers held their meeting at the home of Mrs. Jack Macfarlane, on Friday evening.

Tweed

TWEED — The C.G.I.T. at St. John's Church has again organized and is under the superintendency of Mrs. Alan Hewitt. Mrs. Hewitt will lead the senior girls, and Mrs. J. D. Wilbur will be the junior leader, replacing Miss Phyllis Kleinsteuber of last term. The department president is Miss Gwen Leal.

The C.G.I.T. is open to any girl of 13 years and upward. If they wish to join, consult the leaders mentioned or Miss Leal. The meetings are at 7.30 sharp on Tuesday nights. The younger girls will soon be initiated, as the seniors have won their chevrons, for last year, and can hardly wait for initiation.

Rt. Rev. K. C. Evans, Bishop of Ontario, along with 146 other bishops, clerics and lay delegates of the Anglican Church in Ontario, attended the 13 session of the Synod of the Ecclesiastical Province of Ontario in Stratford on Tuesday and Wednesday, October 8 and 9. The sessions were presided over by Most Rev. William L. Wright, metropolitan of the province and Archbishop of Algoma.

Briefs From House

OTTAWA (CP)—A native Canadian Indian will be appointed to the Senate at "the earliest possible date," Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Tuesday in the Commons.

At least three prominent Canadian Indians have been mentioned recently as possible nominees. They are Gilbert C. Monture, 60, retired head of the federal resources division of the federal mines department; Jim Gladstone, 70, chief of the Blood band of Alberta and president of the Alberta Association of Indians, and Andy Paull, president of the Native Brotherhood of British Columbia.

OTTAWA (CP) — Parking apparently is as bad on Parliament Hill as anywhere else in Canada.

"It's chaotic," Social Credit Leader Low complained Tuesday in the Commons. He said members of Parliament are often pushed out of their parking places by persons who work in downtown Ottawa and park their cars all day on Parliament Hill.

OTTAWA (CP)—There is no butter surplus in Canada, Agriculture Minister Harkness said Tuesday. That is the reason he gave in the Commons for discontinuing sale of government-held butter stocks at a 31-cent rebate to approved hospital and religious institutions. The disposal program was set up about two years ago and discontinued in August.

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister Starr Tuesday introduced in the Commons a bill to give all workers under federal labor jurisdiction one week's vacation with pay after one year's service and two weeks after two years.

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has made no decision to set up a Canadian coast guard, Transport Minister Hees said Tuesday in a Commons reply.

OTTAWA (CP) — An unidentified man was removed from the visitors' gallery in the Commons Tuesday night after twice clapping loudly about remarks being made in debate on the floor below. A uniformed member of the protective staff warned the man the first time that no applause or other demonstration is permitted in the visitors' gallery.

OTTAWA (CP) — A plea for more humane and kindly treatment of Canadian farmers by federal income tax collectors was made Tuesday night by Senator F. W. Gershaw (L—Alberta). He said in the Senate throne speech debate that some collectors are abusive and "hint that the farmer is dishonest when all it amounts to is a lack of knowledge and inadequate records."

OTTAWA (CP)—A world food bank would remove the need for such measures as cash advances on prairie farm - stored grain, Bert Lebos S. C. Cariboo said Tuesday night. Speaking in the Commons on the government's proposal to make such advances, he said a food bank would provide places in various parts of the world where surplus wheat could be stored against future lean years.

OTTAWA (CP) — The Senate Tuesday reconstituted a committee which last session studied land use in Canada and methods to ensure that land resources are most effectively utilized for the benefit of the Canadian economy. Among other things, it will study methods to increase both agricultural production and the incomes of Canadians engaged in this branch of the economy.

ELECTION TALK

The practice—admitted by both Conservatives and Liberals—was condemned as an "undemocratic procedure" by CCF Leader Coldwell. It should be stopped immediately, he said.

The ruckus arose from the dismissal last Friday of an assistant gang foreman at a St. Lawrence River canal at Cardinal, Ont. The man, not named in the Commons, has been identified as George W. Forrester.

Transport Minister Hees said he was dismissed after A. C. Casselman (PC — Grenville-Dundas) said in a written declaration that the man had actively campaigned for the Liberals in the election.

He said the man was hired May 16 on the recommendation of the Liberal candidate in Grenville-Dundas.

FOLLOWS PRACTICE

"I think it is clear that this has been the practice which has been accepted by succeeding governments over a great many years, and that . . . I have simply followed that practice," Mr. Hees said.

The short-lived debate recalled reported statements last summer by Works Minister Green and Postmaster - General William Hamilton that their departments were abolishing patronage — the hiring of people on recommendation of politicians. Mr. Hamilton also issued a directive that rural mail contractors engaging in politics during the course of their duties might lose their contracts.

Stanley Knowles, deputy CCF leader, called the Cardinal firing "patronage in reverse" and asked Mr. Diefenbaker how it squares with the reported statements by Mr. Green and Mr. Hamilton.

Mr. Casselman, who is deputy chairman of committees of the whole House, maintained that he was "perfectly justified" in asking for the employee's dismissal. The man had campaigned against him.

He added that he is "not one who believes completely in the spoils system."

"In my riding there are 300 patronage jobs and outside of this position . . . I have not had any man dismissed."

CCF Leader Coldwell said that in 21 years in the Commons he has never heard of such a practice. He corrected himself later when Mr. Hees said Mr. Coldwell himself had taken part in a debate on the topic years ago.

HECALLS INSTANCE

Mr. Hees, obviously well prepared on the subject, recalled that Rt. Hon. James G. Gardiner, as Liberal agriculture minister in 1938, had declared in the Commons that he would follow the practice.

He added that Rt. Hon. C. D. Howe, as transport minister in 1936, had written to a Liberal MP from Prince Edward Island saying that a wharf worker at Victoria, P.E.I., would be dismissed on the member's complaint and replaced by the member's nominee.

Former Liberal transport minister Lionel Chevrier admitted that the practice of summarily dismissing a government employee on an MP's certification that the employee engaged in political partisanship, has existed for decades. But he said it is time to end it.

Mr. Hees said he has no intention of reinstating the man.

DOCTOR PREDICTS

A University of Toronto medical expert said a diet that is low in animal fats will go a long way in reducing the chances of heart and arterial diseases.

However, Dr. C. C. Lucas, professor of the Banting and Best department of medical research, told the association convention that more study still is necessary.

"Some animal fats raise the level, some vegetable oils depress it," Dr. Lucas said. "No drastic alteration in the menus, such as complete elimination of eggs or bacon or butter, seems to be indicated, although reduction of intake of animal fat . . . may be desirable."

Harold M. Jackson of Simcoe was elected president of the association.

Honorary president is Health Minister Phillips.

MINOR HOCKEY

President Mel Richards and his merry men of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association appear to be headed for one of the busiest seasons in moppet puck-chasing history. According to a release yesterday the BMHA expects to have around 1,000 youngsters under its aegis by the time the fix has taken off for wherever it holes up in the winter time.

Up-to-date, Mel points out, some 610 boys have signed to play, but some 300 or more were home with Old Man Flu and were unable to sign. It is anticipated, Mel said, that once all the boys are registered the number will reach 900 and possibly a 1,000 or more.

It was also pointed out by the BMHA that the rule which requests each boy to fill out a registration form filled out and signed by a parent or guardian, will be rigidly enforced. As with the rule which covers the presentation of a birth certificate before January 1st. If one is not produced by this date, the boy will be suspended until such time as the certificate is made available to the BMHA.

This is understandable. The birth certificate and the rule saying they must be produced, will be enforced to prevent possible skulduggery on the part of individuals who believe and practice in the "Win at any cost" system. This unfortunately has been done before to the detriment of the game, the leagues involved, the individuals concerned and especially the young players. This in other parts of the province district, not in this city.

Present plans call for the peewees and bantams to begin operations on Saturday morning, November 9, with the squirts, midgets and juveniles seeing off on a Wednesday, November 13th. There will be eight teams in the squirt, bantam and peewee leagues, six in the midget brigade and two in the juvenile ranks.

Speaking of minor hockey, what is expected to be the best-attended annual meeting of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association in its long and honorable term of existence will be held at the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, on Friday and Saturday, November 15 and 16. The "boys" are back at their old stamping grounds at the "King Eddy" after a 21-year appearance there broken last year with the convention held at the Royal York.

That was the year the story went the rounds of the party of Stratford moose-hunters who visited the hinterlands of the northern part of this neck of the Ontario woods bound and bent on obtaining a couple or three bucks, deer, that is. It appears they shot a couple of deer and draped them across the hood of the car.

Then one decided he'd go back for a moose. He tramped for a couple of hours through the brush and emerging from a thicket alongside a roadway he saw his quarry. It looked like a big brute there in the evening haze with its head hanging down and antlers in plain right.

The "mooser" let go four shots at his prey, gulped a couple himself and war-whooped back to where the boys were supposed to be. Later he discovered the gang had gone back to camp, and he had pumped four bullets into the party automobile. The deer on the hood had fooled him. Gad, we were always under the impression palaverwahy Chick Appel of the Beacon Herald could tell the difference between a moose and the family jalopy.

In serious vein, OMHA Jack Christie will likely chair the most successful convention in the association history. Secretary Gary Moffatt says that team entries are rolling in and all signs indicate a bigger year than ever in the season coming up.

The OMHA has completed negotiations for a vastly improved insurance plan for this season. If not supplied before convention time, the details will be discussed and given to delegates for home promulgation.

Gerry James Sets Record in West Scoring

WINNIPEG (CP)— Gerry James, hard - rushing Winnipeg Blue Bomber fullback, collected 12 points in Bombers' lone game last weekend to set a record in individual scoring in the Western Interprovincial Football Union, with all clubs except Calgary Stampeders having one game remaining.

James has 112 points on 16 touchdowns, one single, three field goals and one single. The former record of 110, which included nine touchdowns, was set by Calgary import end Bob Shaw in 1952 when a touchdown was worth five points.

Statistics compiled Tuesday by The Canadian Press showed that James holds a 16-point lead over Johnny Bright, Edmonton Eskimo fullback, who has scored 16 touchdowns for 96 points. Bob Bright and James are only two touchdowns short of the WIFU record of 18 set in 1955 by Ken Carpenter of Saskatchewan Roughriders.

One point back of Bright with 95 points is his teammate and slack-binding end, Joe Moha. Mohr's has two touchdowns, a WIFU record 49 converts, nine field goals and seven singles.

Eskimos' shifty Jackie Parker, who doubles at quarterback and halfback, dropped from the runner-up position to fourth place with 91 points as he went scoreless in Edmonton's single game during the weekend.

Chuck Dressen Named Coach Of LA Dodgers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Baseball's Charley Dressen today was back in the type of job he knows and likes best—on the field, and with the same town club, the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"We hired Dressen because we believe he is the best coach in the business," said Dodger vice-president E. J. (Buzzy) Bavasi, who announced the signing at a press gathering Tuesday.

Dressen's salary was not disclosed. However, the veteran baseball figure last week reportedly signed his $25,000-a-year front-office job with the Washington Senators of the American League.

Dressen said he quit because he wanted "a more active job in baseball."

Dressen said he wanted to make it clear right off the bat he has no ambitions to manage the Dodgers—a chore he did ably in 1951-53-57.

EX-BOMBER COACH DIES

West coached football at South Dakota State University from 1919 to 1928 and then went to North Dakota University as coach until 1935.

Glenn Hall Scores Another Shutout Over Old Buddies, Hawks Tie Blues for Second

By KENNEDY WELLS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

James Richard Thomson has another bright page to add to his memory book—his 16th National Hockey League goal.

Each of those goals must be engraved permanently on his memory since it took him more than 11 NHL seasons to score them. But of Tuesday night's goal he can be particularly proud.

It gave Chicago Black Hawks a 1-0 triumph over the once-fearsome Detroit Red Wings—their second consecutive win over Wings and goalie Glenn Hall's second consecutive shutout over last season's first-place finishers.

Thomson's blue line shot at 12:56 of the third period also vaulted Hawks over Boston Bruins into a second-place tie with New York Rangers and for the first time in many seasons they took the league's cellar tender. Detroit dropped to fifth with the loss.

SCORES IN BUNCHES

Though his goal total has been low Thomson, who played 11 seasons with Toronto Maple Leafs on defence before going to Hawks last summer, can point to the fact that he scores them in bunches—two in 1946-47; four in 1946-48; three in 1951-52; two in 1953-54 and four in 1956-55.

No. 16 came after he took a backward pass from partner Bob Hull and let one go that hit the net at a sharp angle with goalie Terry Sawchuk on the other side of the goal.

Until then the two teams had battled on fairly even terms with Hawks having a slight first-period edge which they surrendered to Detroit in the second.

DESPERATE PLAY

They fired 12 shots at Hall in a desperate third-period bid, but it was Sawchuk and their ex-teammate was too much for them.

In all, he stopped 26 shots for his third shutout of the season, only one less than his total through 70 games last year when he was voted to the NHL all-star team.

Sawchuk came up with a fine stop-saving feat early in the offensive support from the team which once mounted one of the league's most awesome attacks.

Tonight Toronto Maple Leafs bid for their 4th consecutive bid for their third home-ice victory, but their chances look stiff against the powerful Montreal Canadiens. Red Wings will be trying to climb from their fifth place spot with a victory over New York Rangers in New York.

Dutchies Romp Over Beaches

TORONTO (CP) — Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen scored almost at will Tuesday night and romped to a 49-4 victory over the winless Toronto Balmy Beaches in an Ontario Rugby Football Union game. The win extended Dutchies' league-leading margin to three points over second-place London Lords.

Halfback Buck McCoy counted two touchdowns to lead the winners in scoring with Mike Norcia, who counted a touchdown and six converts. Other Dutchmen touchdowns were scored by Nat Fagnan, Al Romine, Tex Robinson and Ken Clarke. Al Kitchener counted a single point when the Beaches' Jim Murray was injured after recovering a Kitchener fumble behind his own goal line.

George Ellis accounted for all of Toronto's scoring with a single and a 32-yard field goal in the last quarter.

ALL-TIME SCORER WAY

The visitors had it all their own way from the opening minutes of the game. Don Celeri took advantage of a porous Beaches pass defence to run up a 22-0 first-quarter lead. Dutchmen held a 29-0 halftime lead and were ahead 43-0 after three quarters.

Celeri connected on 23 of 34 pass attempts for 371 yards, on three of eight passes tried for 51 yards. The hard driving Kitchener-Waterloo halfbacks also had a field day at the expense of the Beach line, rolling for 271 yards on the ground. Toronto ball carriers gained only 99 yards rushing. Dutchmen ran up 30 first downs to Beaches' 10.

WRITERS NAME IBBOTSON

LONDON (AP) — Derek Ibbotson, the world's fastest miler, Tuesday was named Britain's "sportsman of the year" by the Sports Writers Association.

Ibbotson clocked the world record of 3:57.3 for the mile at a London meet last July.

Eskimos Put Toronto Student On Player List

TORONTO (CP) — Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Interprovincial Football Union have put Toronto high school quarterback Norm Turner on their negotiation list, it was reported here Tuesday.

Syd Halter, WIFU commissioner and Canadian Football Council registrar, confirmed the action by telephone from Winnipeg.

The action gives Eskimos exclusive rights to Turner should he decide to turn professional. But Turner is reported planning to attend the University of Western Ontario next year. Halter said he has informed Eskimos that if Turner goes to college, his name will be taken off their list.

The action brings to a head problems of college draft which have plagued practically all coaches in the last few years.

INELIGIBLE FOR DRAFT

Joe Poirier, an end with McGill Redmen of the Intercollegiate Football Union, had a summer tryout with B.C. Lions and played one exhibition game. Before leaving for McGill he signed a six-year pact which under the present rules makes him the property of the Lions and ineligible for the college draft.

Buster Brown, a lineman with McGill, was a member of the Big Four Hamilton Tiger-Cats' 1953 Grey Cup team. His name is still on the Ticats' protected list and if he returns to professional football, he is Hamilton property.

Halter and other football officials feel every college senior should be eligible for the draft regardless of any connection with a pro club before or during his college career.

Halter predicted legislation to make the college draft all-powerful will be introduced at the next CFC meeting. The CFC is composed of the WIFU and Big Four Football Union teams.

Russian Wins Swim First

STOCKHOLM (AP)—Igor Novikov of Russia pulled off another first Tuesday by winning the 200-metre swimming event in the 1957 world pentathlon championships. His time was 2:35.6.

Finland won the team title in the swimming event with a total of 2,855 points. Russia was 20 points behind and Britain third with 2,815.

Russia now has a 10,703-point lead in over-all team standings after four events. Sweden is second with 9,724 points, Finland third with 9,581, Hungary fourth with 9,315 and the United States fifth with 9,287.

Eddie Shore Picks up Bob Senior

KINGSTON (CP)—Bob Senior, goalie for Kingston CKLCs of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A eastern division has been ordered to turn professional by Springfield Indians of the American Hockey League.

Coach Bun Cook said Tuesday night Eddie Shore, Springfield general manager, telephoned him about the order.

Senior, last year with Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, signed a C-form with Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League. Springfield purchased his contract last summer and had until Nov. 15 to exercise their option of having Senior turn professional. Kingston purchased Senior from Dutchmen for $600. He has allowed nine goals in three games this season.

Eddie Shore offered to make arrangements for spare goalie Norm Defelice to play for Kingston. Defelice, who spent part of last season with Boston, would have to be waived out of the AHL. Western Hockey League and Quebec Hockey League to play for Kingston.

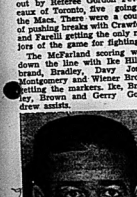
McFarlands Rally to Edge Pembroke in Senior Sizzler; Bradley Catches Fans' Eyes

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

The up-from-bed McFarlands had the shakes last night. They shook off injuries and the flu, and then the hot and heavy Pembroke Lumber Kings to win 5-4.

The Macs at near full strength, survived a wobbly start to lead 2-1 in the first period, split a brace in the second and divided four in the third with the win-hungry lads of Lesner.

It was a hard-hitting, sizzling senior hockey battle from the start and the Macs' accolades go to Goodie Bell and new-comer Barton Bradley. Bell was sensational in the nets, especially when the Macs were man-shy, while Bradley in his debut performance scored a honey of a third-period goal and assisted in another.



The Macs apparently had the victory in hand in the third period but they failed to reckon with the hard-hitting Kings. Down two goals with less than three minutes to go, they tossed everything into the attack and narrowed the margin to one with the clock ticking off the seconds.

The Kings pulled their goalie and almost 1,500 fans were on seat-edge. The McFarlands, again sparked by Bell, threw back the sextet of Kings forwards, and skated off with their second win in three starts. They share the top rung of the standing with Pembroke and Cornwall, each having four points.

While the battle was a fast, furious hard-hitting affair, only seven penalties were handed out by Referee Gordon Fevereau of Toronto, five going to the Macs. There were a couple of pushing freaks with Crawford and Farelli getting the only majors of the game for fighting.

KEITH MONTGOMERY
two-way effort

The McFarland scoring went down the line with Ike Hildebrand, Bradley, Davy Jones, Montgomery and Wiener Brown getting the markers. Ike, Bradley, Brown and Gerry Goyer drew assists.

GORDIE BELL
"a stuff said"

Nobby "Ole Polecat" Clarke was just that to the Macs last night scoring two with Gerry Plamondon and Joe Glesebrecht getting the others. Jack Glesebrecht, Vic Fildes and Bruce Glesebrecht each had two helpers with Jim Maxwell getting one.

The Macs were minus the services of Tony Poeta whose injured leg is not in shape, and Johnny Murdiglan and Keith MacDonald, who is added the "flu to an injured knee. Hildebrand was forced to juggle his troops at times but he came up with a winning combination with Keith Montgomery playing one of his best games since joining the Macs.

It was scrambly push-heavy hockey in the opening minutes of the game with the Macs apparently unable to get untracked. The Kings had the better of the play in the first four minutes, at times hemming the Macs behind their own blueline.

The big heavy Kings were hitting the foemen hard and had their plays disorganized. Barton Bradley set Davy Jones up beautifully in the goal mouth but the slim forward missed the pass by inches.

Pembroke opened the scoring after six minutes of play when Gerry Plamondon picked up Jack Glesebrecht's rebound on Bell's doorstep and beat the Belleville goalie.

A minute later Kowalchuk got the gate for elbowing but the Macs defence held. Bill Gebrand picked up a loose puck at the 13-minute mark and blasted a waist-high shot from close in to tie the score.

Benoit and Farelli started a shoving match and both got waved for two minutes. The Macs were getting their plays organized and drove in on a power play. Keith Montgomery took Bert Bradley's pass from the point and his screened drive went past Plumtner Craig in the Pembroke nets to put the Macs one up.

Crawford and Farelli tried to toss a few punches with four minutes to go and both were given major penalties by Referee Gordon Devereaux of Toronto.

Both teams unleashed savage gangring attacks with the Kings being outshot 12-10 in the frame. Goodie Bell was sensational at times, especially when the Macs were a man short on two occasions. Craig at the other end turned back the goalmouth gangling plays of the McFarlands time after time.

Davy Jones drew the first sentence of the period midway through the heat and the Kings poured on the pressure. Moe Benoit, Lionel Bodley, Paul Payette and Minnie Menard put on an outstanding display of penalty-killing with Goodie Bell standing out.

Back at full strength the Macs got under a full head of steam and swarmed around Craig's hideaway. Moe Benoit crashed into the boards and laid on the ice while play went on. Finally the big defenceman got to his feet apparently unhurt and got a big hand from the crowd.

Ken Campbell drove in alone on Bell on a fine passing play but missed the open corner.

With less than two minutes to go Wiener Brown spearheaded a play, drove to the Kings' blueline and shot Davy Jones' goal-mouth pass. Davy whirled and backhanded a beauty past Craig to put the Macs two up.

Menard got the gate for hooking and a fan was tossed out of the arena by police by the referee's order for protesting too strongly. The sentence proved costly for less than seventy seconds later Bert Glesebrecht scored his first goal of the game on a Pembroke power play, taking a pass from Goodie Bell as he stood in front of the net.

The Kings swept to the attack in the final frame but met a stiff-checking Macs defence. Bradley raced back and tore in on Craig but O'Connor went down flat to stop his drive. At 7.57 Nobby Clarke flashed down the left boards and beat Bell through with a hard cross-ice drive to tie the count. The pressure was terrific at this point with both teams sweeping in on power attacks. Bell stopped Clark twice from close in and Craig was kicking out hard McFarland drives.

"Wiener" Brown stood the crowd on its feet when he blasted home Gerry Goyer's pass from close in with Ike in on the play and two minutes later came the thrill goal of the night. Bradley slipped into the clear on a breakaway, was dumped heavily near the goalmouth and while flat on his back reached out to flip the puck over Craig to put the Macs two up.

Then came Clark's second goal and you know the rest.

The teams:

City Will Have Junior 'B' Club In New Loop

Belleville will have a Junior "B" hockey club!

Fifteen players with the promise of more to come met with the usual handful of interested citizens at City Hall last evening and decided to form a team to enter the newly proposed OHA Eastern Ontario Junior "B" league.

The meeting was conducted by Mel Richards, president of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association and recreational director "Red" Doran. They presented the facts to the players pointing out that it was strictly up to the boys themselves whether they wanted to play junior three or not.

The boys were told that it would be on a strictly amateur basis. They were warned that whoever was in charge of the team would stand for no nonsense. They were told that practice time would likely be scarce but that the arena spokesman had promised them as much ice time as possible. They were warned that it was possible the boys would have to pay out of their own pockets to rent practice ice at times. Doran and Richards put no punches in impressing on the players that they would be formed it was "because you fellows want to play." They were told that the manager and coaches would help them in every way possible but that co-operation worked on a two-way basis.

The boys then expressed their wish that the club be formed.

Mel Richards will manage the team, aided by Bill Brennan, Art Black and Don Foster. "Red" Doran and Pete Jones will look after the coaching duties.

Richards explained, when asked about a sponsor, that arrangements were being made at the present time but nothing was definite yet. The team will start practice as soon as ice is available.

The proposed loop will hold a meeting at City Hall tonight at 8 o'clock, under the chairmanship of OHA president Lorne Cook of Kingston. Representatives are expected to attend from Peterborough, Kingston City, Belleville, Trenton, Royal Military College of Kingston and Queen's University.

Eastern Senior 'A' Division Standings, Scoring

(For release Wednesday P.M.)

Reg Grigg of the Cornwall Chevies scored three goals and assisted on four more in his club's first two games, to take an early lead in the Eastern Ontario senior "A" scoring race. Grigg's seven-point total is two better than his nearest competitors. Tied for second place with five points each are Tom O'Connor, Bobby Attersley and Charlie Burns of the Whitby Dunlops; Moe Savard of Cornwall and Ike Hildebrand of the Belleville McFarlands.

Bob Senior of Kingston CKLC's and John "Plummer" Craig of Pembroke Lumber Kings, have identical records in the goalie scoring race. Both have allowed nine goals in three games for a 3.0 average. Ray Fredrick of Cornwall, follows with a 3.5 mark in two games played.

Will Probe Walker Status

TORONTO (CP) — Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds and officials of three hockey associations have agreed to a hearing Nov. 6 to determine Soo's interest in Tom Walker.

Greyhounds, who play in the Ontario Hockey Association Northern OHA Senior series, signed Walker in spite of a ruling by the associations which awarded the player to Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen.

Walker played last season with Stratford Indians, now defunct. Kitchener claims him but Soo claimed he was a free agent and signed him.

The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association upheld the ruling and turned down an appeal by Walker, Soo obtained an eight-day injunction restraining the three associations from preventing Walker from playing with Greyhounds.

The injunction ran out Oct. 25. Walker played three games for Soo during the eight days, including a 1-1 tie Oct. 24 against Kitchener when he scored. Greyhounds' goal. He has not played since.

Notice of a hearing for a permanent restraining order was served on George Dudley, CAHA secretary-manager. Bill Hanley, OHA business manager, is expected to receive police today.

Soo officials originally planned the hearing for today but the delay in service caused it to be set back a week.

Tabbies' Toohy Fined Fifty By Big Four

OTTAWA (CP)—Ralph Tooby of Hamilton Tiger-Cats has been fined $150 by the Big Four for running onto the field in an effort to prevent a Montreal Alouette player from catching a pass during a Big Four Football Union game Oct. 19.

Montreal protested the game, won by Hamilton 18-15, but a Big Four meeting in Toronto during the weekend rejected it by a vote of 6 to 2.

In the final minute of play, Tooby, a halfback, ran onto the field without a helmet in an effort to stop Montreal halfback Art Powell. Montreal claimed it should have been awarded an automatic touchdown.

Movie Team Being Planned For Ann Sothern, Lucille Ball

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A movie teaming of Ann Sothern and Lucille Ball? It could happen, and the results should be hilarious.

The two top TV comediennes played buddies in the first 75-minute version of I Love Lucy. The combination was so great that a movie teaming is being planned for them.

This is one of the many enterprises I learned about in a chat with Ann, once the Private Secretary of television and now her own boss. She's got everything going from a sewing centre in Sun Valley, Idaho, to a TV series about firemen.

"What's doing? Everything," she said. "Lucy and I hit it off real good, and we may do the movie together. Strangely enough, we had never worked together before, though we were both at MGM at the same time.

NEW SERIES

"Television? I'm going to cut down on the guest shots. I've got another series in the works for me, and it should be great. And I've got another series I've been working on for two years.

"It's about firemen, and I've spent hours at firehouses doing research. It's the only exciting line of work that hasn't been done in a TV series, and it has great possibilities. Firemen don't just put out fires; you find them everywhere — at drownings, riots, auto crashes, disasters and so forth."

What about Private Secretary. No more of that, she said. The trade couldn't imagine why she would quit the show when the ratings were still good. But she said she just couldn't work with the co-owners of the show, and she filed suit over financial accounting.

MADE MILLIONS

She went four seasons on the series, making 104 hour shows. Each of the hour work and friction on the show is in the report that Private Secretary has already netted $3,000,000 in syndication. And the foreign market is just being tapped. Ann's share of the proceeds: 25 per cent of the first 78 films, 42 per cent of the last 26.

Meanwhile, Ann doesn't remain idle. Besides playing night clubs, she has a number of enterprises. She owns 1,150 head of cattle on Idaho acreage. And a year ago she opened Ann Sothern's Sewing Centre in Sun Valley.

"The shop has done great business," she said. "So much so that we had to add gifts and other lines. It's all the buying myself, and this summer I did some of the selling, too. It's a great thing to get away from Hollywood and be treated just like a member of the community, as they treat me up there."

Junior Habs Tackle Russ On December 1

MONTREAL (CP)—The Junior Canadiens, who make their home club in Ottawa as an amateur farm club of the National Hockey League Montreal Canadiens, will meet Russia's hockey team in Montreal Dec. 1.

The announcement Tuesday by the Montreal Forum said all seats will go on sale at the public box Thursday at a $2 top.

The Russians have defeated Canada in the world tournament two years ago, will make a seven game tour of Eastern Canada. They will open their series Nov. 23 in Toronto against Whitby Dunlops. Allan Cup winners who will play in the world tournament this winter. Games will also be played in Windsor, Kitchener, Sudbury, Kingston and Ottawa.

Meeker Home To Think Over Maritime Offer

TORONTO (CP) — Howie Meeker, former National Hockey League player, coach and manager, said Tuesday he has not made any agreement with the St. John's station on admission on a coaching job there.

"They made me an offer and I came home to think it over," said Meeker, who spent most of his professional hockey career with Toronto Maple Leafs.

Meeker said he has arrived at a financial agreement with the commission. An announcement to that effect was made in the Newfoundland capital Tuesday.

He said, however, he plans to return to St. John's to look into the matter further.

The job would entail helping to train 2,000 junior and senior hockey players in the St. John's area and prepare two all-star teams for the Newfoundland playoffs.

Trappers Hook Wolves Again, Dutchmen Win Over Soo 5-2

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Howie Hornby is haunting Sudbury Wolves.

Twice in two nights Hornby, whom Wolves traded to North Bay Trappers, has been instrumental in Sudbury's defeat in the Ontario Hockey Association - Northern OHA Senior A action.

Monday he had a goal and an assist as Trappers downed Wolves 5 - 4 Tuesday night his clubbing got best Wolves 4-3.

Other action in the loop saw Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen return to form with a 5-2 win over Soo Greyhounds.

In an OHA Senior A eastern division game, Belleville McFarlands edged Pembroke Lumber Kings 5-4 to move into a tie with Pembroke and Cornwall Chevies at the top of the standings.

CAME FROM BEHIND

Trailing three times, Sudbury hit back to tie the score before Hornby's winning goal scored with only 16 seconds remaining.

George Gosselin, Ches Koneczny and Stan Maxwell scored North Bay's other goals. Sudbury scorers were Joe Malo, Norm Guimond and Jimmy Logan.

Dutchmen's win over Soo keeps them one point behind the league leading Trappers with a game in hand.

A second-minute goal by Jim Uniac put Dutchmen in the lead and goals by Charlie Brooker, Jerry Flanagan, Joe Martin and Xen Laufman settled the issue. John Bailey and John Lumley scored for Soo.

FOUR GOALS IN THIRD

Pembroke hit strongly after trailing 2-1 against Belleville, but were unable to top McFarlands in a four-goal final period.

Playing-coach Ike Hildebrand, Keith Montgomery, Barton Bradley, Dave Jones and Wiener Brown scored for McFarlands.

Jerry Plamondon, Bert Giesebrecht and Knobby Clarke, with two, scored for Pembroke.

In tonight's OHA-NOHA action, Chatham Maroons are at home and Greyhounds while in the OHA eastern division, Cornwall will travel to Ottawa to meet Canadiens.

Baby Canadiens Wallop Barrie

OTTAWA (CP)—Captain Ralph Backstrom fired four goals to pace Ottawa-Hull Junior Canadiens to an easy 10-2 triumph over Barrie Flyers in a Laurier Cup hockey game Tuesday night.

The win made the Junior Habs' record two wins and one loss in Laurier Cup play.

Bob Rousseau accounted for two of the Ottawa - Hull goals while Terry Gray, Dick Dawson, John Annable and Jean-Claude Tremblay scored singles.

SETTLE $100,000 SUIT

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — A $100,000 suit against Rochester Red Wings baseball club, filed by a woman spectator hit by a batted ball, Tuesday was reported settled for $2,250.

Mrs. Ida Sanow, 55, of Rochester contended she could not see the ball because of crowds standing in the baseball aisles. She claimed the baseball club violated a city ordinance prescribing that stadium aisles be unobstructed.

TO TALK CONTRACT

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions directors will decide next Monday if coach Clem Crowe is to get a contract for the 1958 Western Interprovincial Football Union season.

General manager Herb Capozzi said Monday night the meeting has been called to review the past season and plan for next year. Lions lost their chance of making the playoffs this season when they lost to Edmonton Eskimos Saturday night.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER
(Author of the new "Astrology and You.")

The Stars Impel—They do not compel. What you make of your life is largely up to you."

Wednesday, Oct. 30, 1957

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) — M. is quite trying. Pals are in a good bit of a mess and want you to get their chestnuts out of the fire, which you cannot do too without burning yourself. Take a little trip out of town. Help them to build up their character.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) — Guard your good name today by being wise as Solomon and patient as Job. P.M. spend the evening with wonderful friends or relatives and have an inspiring time; retire early and commune with God.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) — Spend the day hours analyzing ways and means to ion off time and energy in your daily tasks. Printed matter is replete with fine ideas. Read it. Tonight, make out checks, repay loans, etc. Get credit higher.

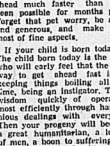
CANCER (June 22 to July 21) — Self-control and dignified assurance, fascination, can today help you to go along with associates who is upset and is going around in circles. Have patience, so long as you maintain balance, P.M. meet with loved one and laugh it off, have fun.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) — A good day to complete unfinished business, small tasks that need immediate attention. Avoid friction over some annoying chore that comes up. P.M. fine for meeting with good associate and having real meeting of minds.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) — Besides attending to other vital matters, don't fail to get going on much-needed repairs to property, holdings, buildings. You have procrastinated too long already. The same with personal charm. This is important.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov 21) — In A.M. opportunity arises for you to straighten out an annoying and depressing affair very close to you. The best way to assist upset pal is to steer clear of it all. P.M. good for ideal pastime. Be gay.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Chance is present today to rid yourself of some worry for which there appears to be no real basis of fact. Evening is then good for ideal time at home with family, giving a dinner party.



CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Never relinquish your principles, though today may find you taking a big chance with finances, present security. P.M. there is an opportunity to enjoy the company of close friends, relatives or good neighbors.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Better stick to own private immediate matters today and avoid that one in authority who is angry and would vent his spleen on you. Tonight, get your finances in better shape, just in case you one day decide to make a change.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) — All sorts of opportunities come your way today to help you get ahead much faster than has been possible for months past. Forget that pet worry, be alert and generous, and make the most of fine aspects.

If your child is born today—The child born today is the kind who will early feel that the best way to get ahead fast is by keeping things boiling all the time, being an instigator. Teach wisdom quickly of operating most efficiently through harmonious dealings with everyone. Then your progeny will become a great humanitarian, a leader of men, a boon to suffering humanity, a son or daughter to be proud of.

Disgruntled Farmers Attack Ontario Marketing Schemes

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Disgruntled farmers have stepped up their attack on two of Ontario's 19 marketing schemes while a third is enjoying an uneasy truce.

Groups of hog and peach producers are circulating petitions in their respective industries, asking the provincial government to alter the powers of the Ontario fresh-peach marketing board and the Ontario Hog Producers' Association.

The dissidents represent those who feel a farmer should do his own marketing.

In the tobacco industry, where a new marketing board was set up by the government after a vote among growers last spring and then was promptly challenged by a group of dissidents opposing groups have let up in their warfare because of the speed to market this crop without conflict.

The new marketing scheme was defended Tuesday by association President Caroline McInnis.

He announced an emergency meeting will be held Nov. 4 to discuss "the ways in which the Trade is interfering with producers' business."

He blamed the Ontario Ship pers and Truckers Association for most of the pressure which led Agriculture Minister Good fellow last week to announce a vote among hog producers next year to decide whether the plan should be continued.

He said it had taken 17 years to build up the scheme which now controls marketing in 12 counties. It was "terrifying" truckers and shippers should "bring it to a standstill."

The resolution among hog producers flared up Monday night in Aylmer, 15 miles southeast of London, where 200 producers at a meeting agreed a petition calling for immediate withdrawal of the marketing board's powers.

It was circulated by Theodore Parker, a Perth County farmer who has been at odds with the scheme since its inception four years ago.

He said the big packing houses have the system of marketing hogs through stipulated assembly points—"the more hogs there are in the assembly points, the quicker the prices go down."

He said the Ontario Farm Products Marketing Act, which governs the various marketing plans, violates civil and property rights of the individual, "compulsory marketing and restraint of trade."

At Vineland, in the heart of Ontario's fruit-growing Niagara Peninsula, a group of 35 growers met, drew up plans and formed The Ontario Fresh-Peach Growers' Protective Association.

They elected as president John Freeman of Port Dalhousie, one of four growers who face court charges of failing to give information to the marketing board about their peach crop.

They began circulating a petition which, if signed by 10 per cent of the province's 3,000 growers, would be reason for Agriculture Minister Goodfellow to call for a vote on the marketing scheme.

Mrs. Oliver Ransom of Vineland, secretary of the new association, said it would be easy to get the necessary 300 names on the petition. She said 155 of 180 growers in the Leamington area near Windsor have already sent a petition to Mr. Goodfellow.

REDS SET UP CELLS

WARSAW (Reuters) — Communist party control cells will be set up throughout Poland to "appraise the activity and attitude of every party member," it was announced here Monday night. The decision was contained in a resolution adopted by the 10th plenum of the central committee of the Polish United Workers (Communist) party at the close of its three-day plenary session last Saturday.

'Severe Verdict' Against Zhukov Reported Coming

Italian Communist Paper Likens Him to Napoleon

ROME (AP)—Italy's Communist party organ today predicts Russia's leaders will issue a "severe verdict" against Marshal Zhukov and hints he will be accused of "Bonapartism."

The Moscow correspondent of L'Unita says the ruling Presidium of the Communist party central committee has completed a two-day session on the case of the ousted defence minister Tuesday night.

The dispatch, by Giuseppe Boffa, suggests that Zhukov, like Napoleon, had wanted to advance from command of the armed forces to fulfil a "political ambition perhaps unlimited."

Boffa says the Presidium's decisions will be published and discussed in party assemblies. The Moscow press and radio still have made no mention of Zhukov beyond the bare announcement of his ouster.

CLEARS CENSOR

The L'Unita dispatch was prepared by Soviet censorship. Communist reporters have been given more information by the censors than other Western reporters.

NEED: Boffa's METHOD

Just what yardstick the government will use for measuring a "fair share" has not yet been made clear. There was a suggestion in some quarters the formula might be farm production costs.

Currently, price support has been extended to butter, eggs, pork, skimmed milk, feed and fish. In most cases the support price is below the current market price.

The new legislation, it is understood, would be applicable virtually to any or every commercial farm product. Products to be covered will be determined by legislation but the way will be open to have the cabinet add other items to the list later.

The scheme would be administered by a board, as in the existing operation, and there would be an advisory committee probably made up of producers and perhaps consumers.

AT SUPPORT PRICE

Under the operations, farmers can sell their products to the government at the support price of the market fluctuates that level. In most cases, the government must be the storage of products and then tries to sell them at home or abroad when the market is in a better position.

In recent years, quantities of butter and other items purchased periodically as market prices fell below the support level. In some cases some skimmed milk also has gone into government stocks.

Since December at the Conservative leadership convention, delegates have backed a resolution pledging the party on obtaining power to improve the condition of agriculture.

"... We will adopt a policy to bring about a fair distribution of surpluses in the export market and also give our farmers greater economic opportunities in the domestic field," the party said.

Earlier, a support price for butter is 58 cents a pound wholesale. Producers have been upset by talk of an increase when the current support program ends next spring. Officials said it is almost certain they will get a boost under the new legislation.

GOVT. PLANS NEW PRICE PROPS FOR FARM PRODUCTS

Likely to Lift Aid On Federal Funds

OTTAWA (CP) — The government proposes to introduce a widely-extended system of price props for farm products in new attempts to stabilize farm prices and increase the flow of revenue to producers.

Involved will be a lifting of the limit on federal funds available for this purpose, boosting the ceiling by $50,000,000 to a new high of $250,000,000.

Agriculture Minister Harkness gave notice of a Commons resolution Wednesday, the customary preliminary move before legislation is introduced. Both Hon. Paul Martin (L—Essex East) and Hazen Argue (CCF—Assiniboia) urged in the House that details be published and discussed in party assemblies. The Moscow press and radio still have made no mention of Zhukov beyond the bare announcement of his ouster.

Russians Plan Second Sputnik Launching Nov. 7

LONDON (CP)—The Russians plan to launch "Sputnik No. 2" Nov. 7, the 40th anniversary of the Russian Revolution, the London Daily Worker's Moscow correspondent said today.

The correspondent, Sam Russell, said the new "sputnik" will be bigger and better than the satellite now circling the earth.

"So far nothing has been officially announced and conditions may make it impossible to launch it on that particular day, but the plan is there," Russell said.

The United States, meanwhile, conducted another missile test at Cape Canaveral, Fla., Wednesday night. The device was described as a Jupiter A, believed to be an improved version of the Redstone missile which has a range of 200 miles.

END COMING SOON

New precautions have been made that Sputnik's carrier rocket may plunge to the earth soon, and that Sputnik itself will follow in a few weeks, perhaps by the end of the year.

The sphere and its rocket section have been streaking around the earth at about 18,000 miles an hour since Oct. 4.

Moscow said Wednesday night that Sputnik's rocket section will come crashing to earth soon, but that the sphere probably will last several more weeks.

At Cambridge, Mass., Dr. Fred L. Whipple of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory reached about the same conclusions. He said the rocket may fall to earth in the first two weeks of December.

Both Whipple and Moscow indicated part of the rocket section might affect the blasting direction from outer space. Whipple predicted the rocket would burn up in flame from air friction about 90 miles above the earth.

Health Minister May Call Parley On Hospital Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—Health Minister Monteith said Wednesday his department is giving "intensive consideration" to a possible federal-provincial conference on hospital insurance.

Hon. Paul Martin, former Liberal health minister, asked in the Commons whether such a meeting would be held before the end of the same time as the federal-provincial fiscal conference scheduled to open here Nov. 25.

Mr. Monteith said he didn't know.

William L. Houck (L—Niagara Falls) asked whether Mr. Monteith had received a letter from Premier Frost of Ontario suggesting elimination of the rule that six provinces representing a majority of Canadians join a federal-provincial hospital insurance scheme before it can become effective.

Mr. Monteith said he had not received such a letter. If he had, it would be a matter of government policy.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: Scattered showers have ended, and a mild sunny afternoon is expected in Southern Ontario. Further north, clouds are expected to persist. The forecast for Friday is for more rain in both Northern and Southern Ontario as another storm centre moves into the province from the Prairies.

Hallowe'en Gradually Becoming Restrained Celebration in Canada

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hallowe'en is gradually becoming a restrained celebration in Canada. The activities of pranksters yearly become more serious.

Police and school officials attribute the decrease in vandalism to entertainment sponsored by service clubs and home and school associations for children.

These community - sponsored parties are held in most large centres to curb traditional Hallowe'en pranks. At the parties children receive prizes for the best costumes besides the usual treats.

Inspector William Mathews of Montreal police, a typical case, said the children are "a pretty good bunch of kids on the whole." He said no real vandalism has occurred in recent years and credited service clubs and school parties with keeping teenagers off the streets.

Another factor credited for the drop in vandalism, a Canadian Press survey shows, is the shell scare during the days of United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund. Many schools take advantage of Hallowe'en to collect money for this fund, ask big householders to "shell out for UNICEF."

Quite active, sponsored by the Canadian Communities of UNICEF, is to raise funds for relief of destitute children overseas.

Although police expect little trouble, most departments are keeping their forces at full strength to deal with any emergencies.

Japan Requests Britain Suspend Nuclear Tests

TOKYO (Reuters)—Japan has asked Britain to suspend her projected Christmas Island mid-Pacific nuclear tests this winter, the Japanese foreign ministry announced today.

The ministry announcement said Japan's request was made "on humanitarian grounds because Japan feels that continued nuclear tests are bound to have a harmful effect on mankind.

STRIKE ENDS

MONTREAL (CP)—A strike of 1,200 workers at Canadian Vickers' shipyards here ended Wednesday when the employees accepted a new contract providing wage increases ranging from 15 to 35 cents an hour.

IT'S A WHATNICK, MAYBE?

U.S. army Sgt. John Campbell examines a cone-like metal object that was found near Angeles Crest highway. The object is about three feet long and weighs about 10 pounds. Army officials, after carefully examining it, could not decide what it was for. Authorities said that crude lettering on it read: Russian government, but they are convinced it is the creation of a practical joker.

Debate on Syria Postponed As Compromise Said Likely

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) — The quiet diplomacy of Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold appeared today to have warded off an East-West voting split in the United Nations General Assembly on the Turkish - Syrian border dispute.

Shortly after Hammarskjold announced Wednesday night that he planned a statement, possibly today, on the Western proposal that he intervene in the dispute, Assembly President Sir Leslie Munro of New Zealand ruled a debate suspended on resumption of the debate until 10:30 a.m. EST Friday.

The Western proposal was aimed at thwarting a Soviet-backed Syrian resolution called for a UN commission to investigate Syria's charges of Turkish aggression.

Faced with two opposing resolutions the assembly considers today, Munro said he made the postponement on the grounds there had been a "general request for more time for consultation."

This followed persistent reports Wednesday night that some kind of compromise settlement was in the works, and Munro's ruling was regarded as having been definitely primed at aiding this.

Neither Syria nor the middle powers, until Wednesday, had been inclined to call formally on the assembly for action. Syria and Russia had been content to keep the issue in world prominence through the assembly debate, and the Western position—with strong undercover backing by the United States—had been all for a cool, secluded air for the dispute under mediation offered by King Saud of Saudi Arabia.

Syria, however, precipitated the assembly action by tabling Wednesday morning the resolution calling for the fact-finding commission. The middle powers countered immediately with one calling for Hammarskjold to extend his good offices in the dispute.

Irish Sweepstake Showers $1,400,000 on Chickens

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

What would you do if you won a few thousands of dollars in a sweepstakes?

A Calgary housewife burst into tears. A Vancouver sawmill manager yawned and went back to bed. A low-paid Preston, Ont., worker was amazed at the number of new friends he suddenly made. A Kitchener father of seven didn't take time off work and said he'd stick with his 1951 car.

The Irish Sweepstakes Wednesday showered about $1,400,000 among hosts of Canadians holding tickets drawn in connection with Cambridgeshire Handicap.

Three persons held $140,000 tickets on winning Stephmoiia, one half each and five others $56,000 tickets on Heritiere.

Two — possibly three — Canadians had $28,000 tickets on Fairy Stone, third. One ticket holder listed for Fairy Stone failed to show up in the official sweepstakes result and a check was under way.

Besides the fat slice of more than $625,000 on the first three horses, there were 283 Canadians each drawing $1,100 for tickets on $2 of the original 83 entries. Thirty - eight horses started Wednesday.

About 1,500 persons won residual or consolation prizes ranging from $2,300 to $56.

The winners:

For $140,000—Mary Schiedel, 41, Kitchener; William Richardson, 22, Trenton, Ont.; Manny Allen, Calgary.

For $56,000 — Larry Bernier, Kitchener; Ronnie Ellsworth and E. L. Burt, both Toronto; Harold Smith, 54, Port Alberni, B.C., and Harvey Ashman, 32, North Bay.

For $28,000—Hugh McLeod, 50, Toronto; Donna Patricia Aubert, 4, Vancouver. An H. K. Lean, hometown unlisted, was the uncertain winner.

Thomas J. Malleck, 72, a third Hamilton winner, split $140,000 with a niece, Patricia, 12, in Buffalo.

Reactions varied from Mr. Ashman, who "died half a million times" after making the correct decision, to Mr. Bernier, father of seven small children, who didn't even take time off from his work to listen to the race. And sawmill manager Howard S. Ivey yawned and went back to bed.

Mr. Smith said the only difference the windfall will be that he'll take more than his customary two weeks' holiday. He will keep his job.

Miss Schiedel, a rubber company employee, said she'll use her $140,000 to "do something for my mother." She'd think about other plans.

The wife of Mr. Allen, a travelling salesman, said at Calgary she was too excited and flustered to say anything.

Mr. Ashman, a manufacturers' agent, said part of his $56,000 will go to building a camp for under-privileged children. He will meant "security" to Mr. Bernier.

ALBERTA VOTES FOR FREER SALE OF BEER, LIQUOR

64 Per Cent Favor More Legal Outlets

EDMONTON (CP) — A firm vote in favor of a greater variety of liquor outlets was recorded in Alberta Wednesday. Whether this will eventually mean such things as cocktail bars will be determined by the government.

Results of the liquor plebiscite, first in Alberta since the province voted to end prohibition in 1923, showed roughly 64 per cent of those voting favor a wider variety of outlets for sale of liquor, beer and wine.

The government, however, made it plain before the vote that the results would only be an expression of opinion and not binding on anyone. It also made it clear it would retain responsibility for making any change in existing conditions.

FAVOR MIXED DRINKING

In the Calgary and Edmonton areas, which led the trend to the affirmative vote on the outlets question, voters also were heavily in favor of allowing mixed drinking in beer parlors, a privilege enjoyed by other municipalities.

Any change in the beer-drinking privilege would not be automatic but depends on the government. The liquor control board has yet to be tested by legislature last spring to permit mixed drinkink in beer parlors, but it has not yet been raw fit.

Premier Manning, at Ottawa for a conference on oil exports with Prime Minister Diefen baker, was expected to make a statement there today.

The question posed on a province-wide ballot Wednesday was: "Are you agreeable to the sale of beer, wine and spirituous liquor subject to a local vote?—brought that response from the voters in unofficial counting Wednesday night:

Yes 162,490, or 91,388. Reports were still to come from 506 of the 2,935 polls.

14 DAYS TO GO

Some outlying polls were not expected to be heard from for several days, but the official count will be posted in 20 days. Before that time, no action is expected on the results or in the types of outlets permitted is expected for government officials say the government decides the vote represents a sufficient portion of public opinion to merit a change, it will amend the Liquor Control Act to permit a local vote on outlets other than for beer.

Steps then also will have to be taken to arrange for a local option and the local vote carried out before any type of outlet other for sale of liquor can be established.

At present liquor and beer by the bottle can be purchased at government liquor stores. Beer by the glass and bottle in beer parlors and liquor by the glass in government beer parlors.

About half the estimated 550,000 eligible voters turned out.

Fifty Children Unhurt When 13 Vehicles Collide

Three Adults Hurt as Bus, Truck, 11 Cars Hit in Fog

TORONTO (CP) — Fifty children escaped unhurt today from a chain-reaction vehicle pileup involving a school bus, a transport truck and 11 cars on fog-shrouded Highway 10.

Four persons were taken to hospital in Brampton, two miles south of the accident scene. Hospital authorities said one of them, John Lagemann of Toronto, may have to undergo a leg amputation. He was transferred later to the Toronto General Hospital.

The pileup began when cars driven by Harry Kenney, 16, of Brampton district and Ted Fisk, 17, of Owen Sound, collided in front of the school bus, bus driver Wallace Foster, 35, of Cheltenham slammed on his brakes.

Bob Blahm, 16, of Owen Sound, riding with Fisk, suffered a crushed foot. Also admitted to hospital were Allen Fox, 36, of Orangeville, with head cuts, and Cecil McKenna, 41, of Orangeville, with cracked ribs. Four persons were treated for cuts and bruises.

Visibility was limited to 10 feet by the fog and drivers on the Toronto barely avoided a direct collision between his transport and the bus. The truck grazed the side of the bus and plowed into the wreckage of the two cars ahead, bowling over three persons on the road.

Three more southbound cars hit the back of the bus, knocking four of the children to the floor.

Two northbound cars piled into each other trying to avoid the wreckage, and four more going the other way collided or spun into the ditch for the same reason.

Polite Gunman Robs Blood Bank Of Four Pints

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP)—A polite gunman, who was careful not to point his weapon at a fellow-human, robbed the Spokane blood bank of four pints of blood Wednesday. "I won't use my gear," the robber told Billievelyn Miller when he entered the blood bank. "I'll just use a gun instead. Do what I tell you."

She said the man, who appeared "very calm and sweet," held a small pistol in his left hand as he leaned over the counter where she was typing blood samples.

"I'd like to have five units of low titer (reaction) type O negative blood," the gunman said quietly and in technically-correct language.

Miss Miller replied there were only four pints of such blood in the bank and the man said he'd take them. After getting the blood, the man asked for four containers of tests — hookups of plastic tubes, filters and needles used for giving the blood. Then he walked out.

Non-Strikers Carry Arms to Work Following Blast Near Texas Plant

DAINGERFIELD, Tex. (AP)—Non-strikers carried arms to and from the Lone Star Steel Company plant here today after an explosion shook a nearby area Wednesday night. The blast was the latest incident in a series of outbreaks of violence.

The white, 41-year-old father of seven said: "I don't know what the conduct of violence. It seems to be to just individuals."

Gatehouse guards displayed a small arsenal they were keeping for workers who carried them in their cars.

Texas law is a bit ambiguous about carrying weapons and officers here have not argued the matter.

Morris County district attorney Harry Williams said: "I don't know what the conduct of violence. It seems to be to just individuals."

The blast site. Most reports indicated the blast occurred somewhere in that vicinity.

Daingerfield is a small town about 100 miles east of Dallas, in East Texas.

Chinese-Born Scientists Share Prize in Physics

STOCKHOLM (AP) — A Scottish-born biologist today was awarded the Nobel prize for chemistry for his fundamental research on the matter inside the simplest of cells and two Chinese-born nuclear scientists shared the prize in physics for helping understand the stom and the universe.

The chemistry prize was awarded to Sir Alexander Todd who has been professor of organic chemistry at Cambridge University since 1944. Todd, 50, is chairman of the British advisory council on scientific research.

The joint winners of the physics award are Dr. Chen Ning Yang, 34 year-old professor of physics at the Institute for Advanced Study, Princeton, N.J., and Dr. Tsung Dao Lee, 30, professor of physics at Columbia University in New York who is on leave and also at the Princeton Institute.

The removed important obstacles to the understanding of the functions of the atom and the universe by proving that the parity law in nuclear physics was wrong.

AWARDS WORTH $42,000

Each award carried a cash value of about $42,000. They are the last Nobel prizes of 1957.

Only Three Die From Polio

OWEN SOUND (CP) — There have been more cases of acute due to poliomyelitis in Ontario this year, and in each case the victim has been under 15, Dr. Leslie Ontario Health Minister Phillips said today.

The victims, all of whom lived in Toronto, were an 18-month-old girl and a boy and a woman, both 30.

Dr. Phillips said there has been a total of 58 cases of polio in the province this year, 47 of them paralytic and three fatal. Of cases, Dr. Phillips said, two had received one dose of vaccine, three had two doses, and two had the full three doses, but the remaining 40 had not had any.

FREDERICK WM. BUDARICK

Palmer Rapids

In ill health for the past few months (Fred) Frederick William Budarick died at the home of his sister, Mrs. Jardell Hartwig, of Boulter.

He was born at Palmer Rapids 66 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Christian Budarick. He resided in Palmer Rapids on the homestead his entire life, except for the last few months when he was ill.

Surviving him are three sisters, Mrs. Annie Hartwig, Killaloe; Mrs. Gertrude Cook, Belleville, and Mrs. Ardell (Bella) Hartwig, Boulter. Also surviving are two brothers, Robert and Martin of Boulter. Predeceasing him were three sisters and a brother. Also surviving are twenty-four nieces and nephews.

He attended Palmer Rapids Evangelical church.

The funeral was held from the home of his sister, Mrs. Ardell Harwig at Boulter, to Palmer Rapids Evangelical church. The funeral was largely attended by all of the community in which Mr. Budarick was very highly respected. Service was conducted by Rev. W. W. Wicks, assisted by Rev. A. Jenkins. Two of the nieces played the hymns were sung at the funeral, "Nearer My God to Thee" and "There Be Any Stars in My Crown".

Relatives and friends from Killaloe, Bancroft, Pembroke, Rosenfeld, Boulter, Schutt and Belleville attended.

The bearers were relatives and interment was in Palmer Rapids Evangelical cemetery.

MRS. BRUCE L. KEEGAN

As the result of a traffic accident in Kingston five days ago, Mrs. Bruce L. Keegan, 192 Kings Court Street, Kingston, died in Hotel Dieu Hospital in Kingston on Tuesday, as the result of injuries received.

She was born in Truro, Nova Scotia, 43 years ago, being the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Kent. After receiving her early education Mrs. Keegan entered Aberdeen Hospital in New Glasgow and graduated as a Registered Nurse. After her marriage she resided for some time at 25-A Chatham St. in Belleville and later moved to set a staff nurse at the General Hospital in this city. At the time of her death she was on the staff of the Kingston General Hospital. She was well known and highly respected, while a resident in this city.

A member of Christ Church, she is survived by her husband, Bruce L. Keegan; one daughter, Patricia Ann, eight, at home; two sisters, Mrs. Lenora Bigelow of Truro, N.S.; Mrs. John Veelands of Halleybury and four brothers, Sidney Kent of Kingston; Walter Kent of Sault Ste. Marie and Donald and Graham Kent of Kingston.

Hastings-Frontenac Liberals Will Not Name Candidate Until Leader Appointed

Liberals in the riding of Hastings - Frontnac will not name a candidate for the next general election until a date to be set following the National party convention at Ottawa in January.

This was the decision at an intended nomination meeting held in Marmora town hall Wednesday afternoon when party members felt naming of a candidate should be delayed until after the new party leader was chosen.

Party delegates from the riding named to attend the convention were Carl Heath, Marmora; B. Bjarnuson, Bancroft, and Melville Good of Parham. Alternate delegates to the convention are Ross Heard, Bancroft; J. A. McAlpine, Bancroft, and Ronald Woodbeck, Coe Hill. The meeting also saw the appointment of an acting secretary for the Association in the person of Mrs. Lionel Edmonds of Norwood. The appointment was made necessary by the resignation of Mr. Gordon Monroe of Madoc.

Mr. James Sinclair, Liberal member for Ontario, told the meeting that the riding of Hastings-Frontenac is a safe seat. It was important because the affairs of the people in the riding are important and could not be looked after by an absentee member such as was proposed by the Progressive Conservatives in the person of Dr. Sidney Smith, Minister of External Affairs.

SHOULD BE READY

When the time comes for the next general election Mr. Scott said he hoped the people of the riding would be ready to elect a "representative."

But Mr. Smith would be that "representative" unless the Liberals were prepared to meet him with a candidate if possible.

Referring to happenings on parliament hill since the June 10th election, the speaker declared that across Canada there was an apprehension growing that this was not what they voted in on June 10th.

"The catastrophe has already happened and it is just time for the people to realize it," stated Mr. Scott.

He said that the people of Canada were beginning to get uneasy about the Prime Minister Diefenbaker who, he said, was "everywhere except where he was expected" and who had put his desk in Ottawa".

Mr. Scott said Mr. Diefenbaker had "backed away" from the offer of freer trade between Canada and the United Kingdom and had thus far given little indication that the government intended to carry out many of its election promises.

Mr. Diefenbaker had also failing the election campaign that never again would there be an other general election except in the House of Commons. He then turned around and became a Conservative for the post.

The promised Senate reform, had also failed to materialize, Mr. Scott said.

CRITICAL OF FIRING

The speaker was also critical of the firing of St. Lawrence Seaways foreman for accepting the support of a political candidate in the last election.

The action of the government in firing the man was not democratic and Canadians should be uneasy about what would take place in the future, Mr. Scott said.

Other "alarming situations" at Ottawa were the delving into special funds to pay for pensions and other current expenses.

"Sooner or later they will run out of places where they can get their hands on money and take they will have to tax."

Turning to international affairs, the speaker decried the current trouble between Turkey and Syria as being as close to a catastrophic explosion as could be.

Film Council Will Purchase Two New Screens

The regular monthly meeting of the Belleville and District Film Council was held Tuesday evening at the Corby Public Library and was featured by the screening of the film "Meeting the Emotional Needs of Adolescents."

During a business session the executive gave authorization for the purchase of two new screens while arrangements were made to have one projector repaired. Purchase of a new projector was discussed but the matter was laid over until the next meeting.

Miss Dunrie was given the opportunity to attend a workshop to be held at Oshawa in the near future while Mr. Faulkner will again conduct classes for projectionists. Two new Christmas films will be purchased for use during the Christmas season.

Mrs. Wanda Sine conducted a discussion at the following introduction of the film "Meeting the Emotional Needs of Adolescents" stressed the importance of a proper introduction for any film presentation.

The audience was divided into four groups for discussion under their leaderships of Rev. Ralph Timothy, Mr. Maddocks, Mr. L. Kelly and Mrs. Sine. Specific problems for discussions were assigned to each group.

Following the showing of the film the four groups entered a vigorous discussion of the varied problems presented in the assigned problems.

Film Council president Mr. Bert Frink advised that the film would be available for booking during the annual Visual Education Screening of a second film on Social Development, completed the program.

Soviet Proposes All UN Members Consider Arms

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) — The Soviet Union Wednesday formally introduced a proposal to replace the United Nations disarmament commission with a permanent body made up of 82 UN members.

The Russians announced their intention to present such a proposal when they set that time a Canadian spokesman called the proposal "cynical" and the U.S. called it indicated Russia's unwillingness to negotiate.

Some Belleville Children Plan UNICEF Hallowe'en 'Shell-Out'

There is one good thing which can be said for television commercials.

This magnificent movie, first shown many months ago, has played a return engagement and has elicited thousands of votes of praise, those who saw it the first time as well as those who have missed it.

The timing of the re-run was particularly happy, as far as the Canadian UNICEF Committee is concerned. This group, composed of delegates of Associations Association in Canada, is sponsoring a UNICEF "shell-out" on Hallowe'en. (UNICEF stands for United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund.) The "shell-out" is similar to sponsored walks, fun runs, dinners, dances and the like, and in other Canadian cities, some years ago, the idea is that instead of asking for "treats" children will request donations to the fund.

Proper organization of a "shell-out" campaign involves much time and effort — as Kinmen can testify. Here in Belleville Mrs. Arthur Watson and Mrs. Lou Miranda in Mrs. Margaret's-on-the-Hill endeavored to obtain sponsors for a UNICEF "shell-out" in Belleville but failed. However, some of the children in the Parkwood Heights area were so taken with the idea that they plan to be out wearing UNICEF "shell-out" stickers tonight. It is to be hoped that this group will be generous response — and perhaps next year some Belleville organization or organizations can put the affair on a really paying basis — paying in benefits not only for the needy children who will be aided by the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund but also for the children who receive "shell-outs" and those citizens who answer their appeals.

Youth Dared To Face Future By 'Y' Speaker

Mr. Gordon A. Hodge, National Y.M.C.A. secretary for youth work, according to a group of high school students at the Y.M.C.A. last night, "Dared them to face tomorrow."

"Change, up to now," he said, "has been gradual, but rapid changes in technology, social organization and in beliefs have brought along perils that have to be faced with resourcefulness and ingenuity. Change is so rapid that we are afraid to not know how to lead youth."

Mr. Hodge was the main speaker at a banquet sponsored by members of the boys and girls Hi-Y clubs.

The speaker challenged youth to possess "courage based on principle, placing high value on a healthy, dynamic moral philosophy and religion. This is necessary," he said, "to enrich and strengthen every area of life and to provide a sense of direction, inner sanctions, a source of power and a dominating purpose in serving fellow men."

"You must be a healthy and fit person," he continued, "and an intelligent and reasonable one too — using historical facts, thinking for yourself, seeking fresh ideas and prizing intellectual integrity."

"You must also be emotionally adequate. This is essential for self realization, to normal social relations and to effectiveness in all endeavors.

"Must be self reliant and responsible person — responsible for your own growth and your own conduct.

"Be co-operative — placing high value on friendliness and getting along with others — and you must be accurate — involving fun, relaxation and sets of satisfaction."

The speaker was introduced by John Buchan and thanked by Linda Peoples. Jean Hartwell chaired the banquet. A colorful and impressive induction ceremony followed the banquet at which 23 new Hi-Y members were initiated.

Guests attending the banquet were Mr. Arnold Lee, president of B.C.I.V.S. and Mrs. Orr, Misses Greta Bunding and Norma Clarke, school and "Y" mentors for the Girls' Hi-Y Club, Mr. R. Clarke, "Y" mentor for the Boys' Hi-Y Club, general secretary, D. G. Diamantides, and representatives of the Key and Keyettes clubs.

Clarence Jones Found Guilty Of Manslaughter, Sentenced To Eleven Years in Prison

PICTON (Staff) — Clarence A. Jones, 53-year-old Picton grocer, will spend the next eleven years of his life in Kingston penitentiary.

Jones was found not guilty of murder but guilty of manslaughter in the gun-shot slaying of his wife at their cottage three miles east of Picton last July.

Defence counsel Arthur Martin brought the trial to an abrupt close this morning when he entered a plea of guilty to manslaughter at the Supreme Court sitting.

The jury accepted the plea and did not leave the courtroom. After two minutes deliberation foreman Gerald Ackerman told Mr. Justice Dalton Wells the jury found Jones not guilty of murder but guilty of manslaughter.

Justice Wells immediately imposed the sentence of eleven years.

Speaking to Jones prior to sentence the judge said: "You have been found guilty of a serious case of manslaughter with many extenuating circumstances."

Mr. Martin entered the plea of guilty to manslaughter in view of the medical evidence introduced Wednesday. Mr. Hall accepted the defence counsel's plea, because, according to Mr. Justice Wells, the Crown "did not prove that Jones meant to kill his wife."

Mr. Justice Wells felt that if the jury had returned a verdict of guilty of murder, the court of appeal would quash it.

The cases for the Crown and defence closed Wednesday after Mr. Hall had called 14 witnesses and Mr. Marlin summoned seven.

Expert medical witnesses introduced by Mr. Martin yesterday testified that Mr. Jones, daughter of the gun-shot slaying of his wife, Mary, on July 17, is a very sick man mentally and attributed his illness to his being a chronic alcoholic.

Most of the Crown witnesses during the trial testified that the Jones' were heavy drinkers and when the case for the defence was introduced, most of those witnesses stressed Mr. Jones' unusual drinking habits.

Dr. Kenneth Grey, a Toronto psychiatrist, who is an associate professor of psychiatry at the University of Toronto and author of a medical-legal text book said, "His brain is so damaged that he will never again be normal."

Dr. Grey was of the opinion that Mr. Jones "would likely commit the act again" if he were allowed to get drunk. The accused, according to this expert witness, was "incapable of forming intent" to shoot his wife and even if he did slay her, he would be "unable to appreciate the consequences of his act." Further, "he was unable to apply his ideas of right and wrong at the time this happened."

DEGREE OF BRAIN DAMAGE

The doctor attributed these peculiarities to a "degree of brain damage caused by chronic alcoholism," which had downgraded the accused over the years from a dapper dresser and clear thinker to an illkempt man who did not appear to have cared about further success at his business.

Dr. Gerald Allison, Picton, examined Mr. Jones shortly after he was lodged in jail on July 17 and testified: "Clarence told me he got the rifle to intimidate his wife into giving him a bottle of whisky which he thought was missing. He thought that if he had it he would have trouble getting it from her."

All Mr. Jones wanted to do was to scare his wife into giving him a drink. Dr. Grey said his tests revealed that Mrs. Jones had consumed "perhaps up to 14 or 15 ounces of whisky" before she died.

Dr. G. Allison said: "I am convinced that the man did not remember what happened. I attribute that to the mental shock sustained from the knowledge that his wife had been wounded and died. He is a very, very sick man."

Both Mr. and Mrs. Jones had been advised by Dr. Allison and Dr. S. W. D. Hart, of Picton, to quit drinking or seek help in an institution. Dr. Hart recalled an incident some time ago when Mr. Jones was taken to the Prince Edward County hospital suffering from alcoholism and, when he refused to disrobe and became cantankerous, the doctor had him removed to jail.

Mr. Jones was "always under the influence of alcohol" when Dr. Hart visited him.

Dr. W. D. Hay, Kingston pathologist, told the Crown Attorney that Mrs. Jones, who had been shot once in the left side of the neck, had lived for "about one hour" before she died and that "perhaps 30 minutes of that time she spent completely unconscious."

GIVES CAUSE OF DEATH

Dr. Hay attributed the cause of death to internal and external hemorrhaging. Mrs. Jones would have required major surgery and numerous blood transfusions for a chance of surviving, but they would have had to be given "within a few minutes" after she was shot. He told Mr. Martin that Mrs. Jones would have been unable to walk to the bed with her wound, although police found her covered on a day bed in the sun porch of their Glenora Road cottage. Dr. Hay believed she had been sitting slumped in a chair when she was struck.

Henry J. Funk, a biologist from the Attorney General's laboratory in Toronto, found traces of blood on several articles seized by police in the cottage, but could not swear that all samples were human blood. The bullet head which Corporal Reg. Rackham of the Belleville C.I.P.R. detachment found on a window sill in the porch bore traces of blood.

Leonard Johnston and L. C. Hicks, both of Picton, told the court that Mr. Jones had become a heavy drinker and was frequently under the influence.

Mr. Hicks said: "Clarence was a good shot until he started drinking." We once considered him one of the best shots in our (hunting) camp."

Mr. Jones' brother, Leonard, 49, testified that Clarence had become a very heavy drinker "these last few years" and at times he was not able to drink much liquor before becoming intoxicated.

Will Continue Price Supports For Turkeys

OTTAWA (CP)—Farm spokesmen were informed today by indications that the government will continue price supports and import controls on turkeys for some time.

However, federal officials said that while turkey imports have been restricted under the present support, some of the birds may be allowed into Canada for the Christmas trade if Canadian production falls behind demand.

"I don't think we would allow the Canadian price to get out of hand," one authority said.

The support program, started last July, contained no termination date. This caused some uneasiness among Canadian producers who do their hearty marketing in the fall and early winter.

Native of City Named Justice Supreme Court

OTTAWA (CP) — Appointment of Kenneth Gibson Morden of Toronto as an Ontario Supreme Court nod appeal court judge was announced today by Justice Minister Fulton.

He will succeed Frederick Drummond Hogg, who has retired.

Mr. Justice Morden, 50, is a native of Belleville, Ont. He was graduated from the University of Toronto and Osgoode Hall.

During the Second World War, Mr. Justice Morden served in the Queen's Own Rifles regiment. He left the army with the rank of lieutenant-colonel in 1946.

He is married to the former Elizabeth Helen Marquis of Brantford Ont. They have two children.

The government also gave notice on the Commons order paper of measures to provide one additional Ontario county court judge. He is still not named.

58 Flu Deaths In Ontario

OWEN SOUND (CP) — There have been 58 deaths in Ontario traced directly or indirectly to influenza since the current outbreak started, Health Minister Phillips said today. It represented 1.1 deaths per 100,000 population, a ratio that stood comparison with any other province in Canada.

Dr. Phillips said that in the majority of the fatal cases, in Ontario, the victim suffered, occasionally at least from some other physical ailment such as bronchitis, nephritis, asthma or similar afflictions.

He sad the influenza outbreak is on the wane in Ontario. "We believe the peak is well past," he said.

Ava Gardner Makes Sudden Dash to London

LONDON (AP)—Actress Ava Gardner hid out in a London hotel today with a mysterious swelling on her face after a sudden incognito dash from Madrid.

The Savoy Hotel would not admit officially that she was there at all.

But a friend who got to Miss Gardner's room said Wednesday the actress was staying in bed and insisted that she had "just a touch of Asian flu."

She was not accepting any phone calls and no one would say why she had come to London.

Miss Gardner flew in unexpectedly from Madrid, where she arrived two weeks ago with Italian actor Walter Chiari.

When she stepped off the plane at London airport she was wearing dark glasses and doing her best to hide the face swelling with a silk scarf and an upturned coat collar.

Junior Stamp Club Members Enjoy Hobby

TRENTON (Special) — Members of the Junior Stamp Club who meet on Monday afternoons at the home of the youthful president, Donald MacDonald, son of Dr. and Mrs. W. A. L. MacDonald are very enthusiastic about their hobby.

The boys, who exchange stamps and sell them among themselves, enjoy various games at their meetings, all of course, with a stamp collecting connection. Sonny Bell, who acts as treasurer of the group, looks after finances. James Marchese, one of the members, has had an article on stamp collecting accepted for publication in an American youth magazine.

J. G. Crean, one of Canada's most prominent industrialists was the guest speaker at Monday night's meeting of Trenton Rotary Club, which took place at Consmo. Mr. Crean, who is a past president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, was welcomed by John Carrell, Trenton Rotary president.

SNIFF LIKE SNUFF

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia says it has an effective Asian flu treatment serum that you sniff—like snuff. A visiting Russian medical scientist said Wednesday the powder is on sale at Soviet drug stores, no prescription needed, and that it can cure the flu in one day unless there are complications.

ALL HALLOWS EVE

Tonight is Hallowe'en. Tonight the legends say, the witches and hobgoblins and the leprechauns and other weird people of make-believe land come out of their ghostly mists to prey upon earthlings.

Tonight figures, small and large, will appear out of darkness, rap, some of them timidly, on front doors and demand their Hallowe'en toll of apples, candy or what have you. Others, in the greater minority and who should know better, may resort to vandalism of a minor nature. Small property damage may be caused. Tomorrow morning property owners along business thoroughfares will likely arise to find their window fronts decorated with designs in soap.

Be this as it may. Hallowe'en pranks like other things, have kept pace in this rapidly-changing world. Celebrations today consist largely of make-believe, masquerade, treating the kiddies and parties. The large-scale property damage or as was popular in rural districts many years ago, the locating of "everything that was not nailed" to ridiculous locales has practically disappeared.

Time was when a farmer would arise to find, if he had not taken the necessary precautions, a wagon atop a mow-roof, a mower nestling on his front lawn; a cow in the henhouse or his prize team nibbling hay in a barn four miles away. If he looked around he might find his milk cans in a horse manger, a couple of pigs hobnobbing with the sheep in their pens and a dozen other misplaced articles or animals.

The prize prank, in those days, was the upsetting of the privy of Chic Sales emporium. Dusky figures would converge on the lonely building. Came concerted pushing and slowly the building toppled over on its side while giggling perpetrators would disappear in the darkness. Rarely, and it is known to be true, the faithful isolation booth was occupied at the time of its downfall.

Science has changed these opportunities for mischief. We believe the day of the intentional mischief maker and property wrecker is on the wane. Rather it is the love of make-believe and masquerade that prompts people to celebrate Hallowe'en.

Nature never runs into the pattern of human beings a love of wanting to be or act like someone else or something else. That is substantiated by the fact that on Hallowe'en the small knots of children - - and grown-ups, too - - like to adopt the characters of others, of fictional or real figures, comic heroes and heroines, western heroes, tramps or whatever character strikes their fancy.

Legend also has it that the Druids of old invoked Satanic spirits to wreak death and havoc upon their enemies. But it is a far cry from Stonehenge and those dreary times to the marvellous world of science in which we live. Science has yet to touch the magic and mystery of modern Hallowe'en. Like Christmas it has developed into something that as a man once said "is a joy for the kiddies."

And oldsters can be changed by the magic of the evening into "kiddies" too. Masquerade parties are fairly common where Dad and Mom can enjoy all their love of make-believe. After all, the enjoyment and benefit derived in an evening of fun of this kind more than offsets the rapidly-diminishing amount of actual damage caused by the minority.

STRANGE VOTING QUALIFICATIONS

A few weeks hence a plebiscite will be held in Alberta to decide whether or not to set up a compulsory egg marketing board.

Consumers, who are vitally concerned about the price and quality of eggs, will have no vote in the plebiscite. But the vote will not be confined to those whose livelihood happens to be egg production. Anyone can qualify as a voter if he can show that he has been in the province for one or more hens.

Now obviously anyone who makes the egg business his livelihood has to keep a large flock of hens, maybe several hundred, or even a couple of thousand. Apart from the consumer, it is the egg producer who makes the big living selling eggs who will be most effected by the plebiscite. It's his freedom, his right to produce quality eggs that will fetch a premium price, that is at stake.

The way the vote is planned, however, it looks as if every farmer every rural housewife who keeps a handful of hens in the backyard just to produce enough eggs for the family breakfast, is going to have the final say as to whether the province should adopt compulsory egg marketing.

Owning 20 or more hens seems like a strange way of qualifying as a voter, even in Alberta's bizarre compulsory egg-marketing plebiscite.

The Splendors of October

By John Gould in Christian Science Monitor

The lingering warm days of Golden October have been extremely salubrious this fall, and we have had the usual lingery about getting harvest things under cover. There is as of this writing, we haven't had a frost here on the ridge, and my onions are still "pearlies" growing on the flat rock where onions have been sunned these many years.

There must be a folk saying about the kind of weather we've had, but I doubt anticipating dire consequences, but I can't recall it. To oldtime home science sayings are gather pithy folk sayings and make anthologies of them, perhaps we should invent some saying or other to cover the present situation.

Gin October's frosties all abeigh,
Our bane'll jingle into the hay.

I doubt if that sounds like a folk saying, and I would judge it to mean that a late winter is threatens a late spring. It is safe, anyway, for a late spring is usually followed by a late fall and in the next anthology, documenting folk sayings for this century and showing the extreme wisdom of untutored observation.

• • •

The open barn door of October days has largely passed. Things have changed, and freezing nights and the installed storage bins have made the open October barn door less essential.

Time was that about frosty, striking early in September, we began closing the doors to the dooryard, and for a few weeks things sat between field and doorstep, and picked over and packed and picked and flxed up. The October barn door was a catch-all, sons of all sorts, and you peeked by the big doors shut each night to keep out the chill. You opened them each morning to admit the warm morning sun. Much of that is gone, and the doors in the barn doors is no longer done.

• • •

It's been long years since I've traced any seed corn. Today we have hybrid corn, and depend on professional seedsmen, but in the old days every one was tracing time. We kept the biggest and fullest ears, dried them well, and hung them in long braids to be hung over wires in the open chamber to dry, and we saw to it that with the unvarying pattern of lacework, snag them slightly, and see to it that there could go on and on forever if he had easy enough. I remember the farm where I won prizes at the fairs, and many an oldtimer kept his "seed" and his "ears" and won many blue ribbons with it.

But as of October, this seed-corn would be suspended on a smooth pole, not yet fielded, moved to permanent storage, and it would shine like gold, hanging down past the lintel.

• • •

Pumkins and squash were a big part of the October tableau. Now two or three big blue Hubbards can be cut up and cooked off, then packed in cartons and tossed into the freezer — and that's the end to the winter's supply — but there used to be more to it.

First came the selection of the very biggest of each variety for seed. Then you sorted out the good ones for family use. Pumkins and squash require warmth for storage, and you'll do well in an apple or potato cellar. The best ones were lugged up attic and laid around the big chimney.

Then the rest would be put on the poles strung the length of the tie-up, over the heads of the cattle. Body warmth of the animals protected them, and they were handy to feed out. Since hogs and cows can't bite into a big squash or pumkin too handily, we had to smash them down. A two-pound pumkin, bursting to bits on the floor, casting seeds in all directions, is a fine sight. So is the appreciative clamor of a hog wading in to take advantage of the offer.

But in October the squash and pumkins would be carried out from the fields, along the sides of the barn floor, on the ground floor under the doors, and as we had russets and nodheads and middenheads and other savory kinds not so much admired now, the aroma would be memorable. There was a smell, too, when we traced onions the same as corn. It was different from potatoes, because the women had a way of always picking the biggest and when they were visiting with a parting knife the whole thing could collapse if it were not well made. If a woman would start at the bottom and work up, a trace would remain, but she wouldn't do that.

There was always a big bunch of caraway seed tied with binder twine and hanging from a nail in the barn, and always a big sack other of dill. In Grandmother's time, for she was an herb doctor, there would be all other bunches from which she would get flavoring for meat and pickles, but you had to know more than ordinary to get the right weeds. She knew. She had herb-drying rooms, and kept some drying on barrel heads in the fun.

• • •

And there would often be dried apples, brown as to the tongue, threaded and festooned on the clothesline or strung on twine from into the barn clapboards. There would be a couple of stacks of Love Letters, corn husks against the haywrack wheel, for these threshed out, were shelled by hand and so didn't get the field drying of the other dry husks. They were always warm and the sun mellow, and a blue jays would come around. And maybe some geese would honk south, and all in all there is much to say for October.

How Ranching Was Started

Montreal Gazette

Tom Lea's two-volume history "The King Ranch" is a considerable interest for Canadians, who share the heritage of the cattle country with those of the United States. For Captain Robert King, riverboat captain turned rancher, was one of the first, and certainly the most influential, of the pioneers in introducing cattle ranching to both countries.

When King bought his first tract of South Texas grassland in 1853, as Lea explains, there was no West, as we know it today, either in the United States or Canada. Cattle were coming west in the United States were farmers, not cattle men. But King had lived and travelled much in Mexico, where North American cattle ranching was born. Even the word "ranch" comes from the Mexican "rancho").

King copied the Mexican ranching methods and extended them on sound business and scientific principles until his enterprises, totalling well over a million acres and 100,000 head of cattle, were the largest on the continent.

The King Ranch did not always follow Mexican practice, however. The tradition of "bronco busting", made famous on the screen and in rodeos, has never been followed there. The King Ranch operators have always believed that "busting" too often means just that: the horse's spirit broken forever. As breeders and sellers of fine horses, as well as fine cattle, the Kings rated this as a poor business method.

Instead, the wild horse is brought into the home corral and gradually "gentled" into accepting the company and the touch of humans. A bridle is added, later a saddle. Only when the horse is used to carrying the rider with a man mount him. The process takes weeks instead of hours but it involves no crippling of the horse's natural spirit.

Lea's story has its share of high adventure in Mexican wars and the Civil War. But it also includes a fascinating record of how the science of North American cattle ranching was developed.

Collections Of Lifetime

Brockville Recorder and Times

Sometimes having the flu and being home sick in bed proves a blessing in disguise. It is usually during the convalescing period that most persons suddenly realize what a mess the house is in. But at work every day, they haven't really had time to look at the cobwebs gathering on the ceiling — or the conglomeration of junk which has gradually accumulated over the summer on what, maybe six months ago, was a tidy desk.

A person could lie in bed and look at each item for hours on end, without doing anything about it. Probably nothing but thought arises as to what would happen if they died and some unsuspecting person in the clean up job found the debris. The contemplation is usually electrifying enough to cause them to leap out of bed and spend the next three days throwing out the things that aren't absolute necessities.

People collect the darnedest things — old pencils, pieces of string, price tags, buttons, sorry looking clippings for which they have long forgotten the significance — all sorts of trash that they never seem to get around to throwing out. Probably the best thing to pass from this earth—and their furnishings go up for sale. Prospective buyers peck through a drawer here and there, for the world to see, are the collections of a lifetime. Each peeker through a keyhole.

The fact that they aren't going to be around this world forever is quite acceptable, but it seldom occurs to people that the morrow might be the popping off day. Of course, if they could not carry back with them the pawing through these odds and ends that seem to have piled up over the years, they have no worries. On the other hand, a good big bonfire could solve this growing problem.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

WATCH THAT BECKONING HAND

We would all have been very rich, happy, healthy and many other things had the human heart can desire if we had just taken advantage of circumstances as they arose.

Look at this chap called "the self-made man." How did he differ from other people? Not just that he has made a success of things financial, but that he has been alert to take advantage of circumstances as they presented themselves. For we can be sure that round about us all the time are very good opportunities for us to better ourselves. We walk right by them every day and fail absolutely to see the value. This does not mean that every chance to get in the habit of doing do not get beyond the oral cavity, that is, do not enter the throat at all. The boundry between the oral cavity and the pharynx or throat is the anterior pillar, a fold of mucous membrane which arches down on either side behind the tonsil — posterior pillar.

It follows that quiet rinsing of the mouth gives the same effect, and benefit or otherwise, as the most impressive gargling.

Mind, this is not to say that gargling never does any good. I just said I believe it can do no harm even though it may do no good. There is no inconsistency in this teaching, as you will see if you stick around.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

What Good Does Gargling Do?

In medical school and in hospital, it seemed that we had paid little attention to gargling. But in practice, I learned the hard way that the people set great store by it. So I fell in line and approved whatever gargling my patients preferred. I believed it could do not particular harm even if it did no good, and it gave me something to do for they'd realize they were getting treatment.

I wouldn't do so today.

An investigation of gargling, made by a physician some years ago, disclosed some interesting facts, chief of which was the fact that liquids used for gargling minister, the Rev. James Ketchen, took charge in 1833 and served for twelve years. During the following three years the church was without a minister, then the Rev. James George became minister and after being here a year he resigned and it was not until 1850 that the Rev. William McEwan was inducted into the charge and he did excellent work. However, he was called to another congregation and in 1854, the Rev. Archibald Walker, a native of Scotland, became minister and he was succeeded by the Rev. James Smith; he left to accept a charge in Hamilton. It was at this time that the Rev. M. W. Maclean became minister and he was the much beloved pastor for over thirty years when he resigned owing to poor health. It was during his ministry that the church was burned and the new church erected. Since his time the ministers have been the Rev. R. S. Laflaw, the Rev. A. S. Kerr and the present minister the Rev. R. G. Stewart.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

FELLOWSHIP

The more we associate with others, and learn from them, the nearer we get to God. There is a possible fellowship awaiting us all. Right here I would like to tell about the fellowship of those who are hobby, or who are collectors of something from which a love of knowledge and new knowledge is gained.

For years I have been a modest collector of books, rare books, and etchings, and it always a rare event when I find another whose tastes and enthusiasm dovetail into my own. A fellowship is immediately established. We learn from our friend and he from us. Collecting keeps youth alive.

Many years ago I had a friend who collected old colored and broken down early American furniture. He was an artist and craftsman himself and restored this furniture to examples of beauty and usefulness, for it made his home a delight of beauty, and a delight to all who looked upon it.

When I was collecting etchings I asked the advice of a man who did the same. We would talk about the rare ones to differ, and about the search to gain them. It added something enriching to the mind and heart. For many years I concentrated on the etchings of Alphonse Legros. The fellowship of one of me years to gather was presented to the Metropolitan Museum of Art in Legros in memory of my mother.

I have had the same fun collecting the work of authors whose works I treasured. All this, I am sure has added years and joy to life and given to me friends whom I might never have met or known. An undying fellowship.

Negroes' Lot In Detroit

St. Thomas Times-Journal

There is no city in the United States so well-situated for the welfare of St. Thomas as Detroit, and what happens there may influence St. Thomas.

Those who have visited Detroit since before World War II have been struck by the large proportion of Negro citizens now seen in the streets. In 1940 there were 149,000 Negroes, or 9.2 per cent of the population. Today there are 373,000 colored citizens, or about 20 per cent of the residents.

The influx of Negroes is due to big opportunities for colored labor, skilled and unskilled, chiefly in the automobile factories, and the building and housing and other difficulties.

It is interesting to note, therefore, the attitude of the white citizens toward this influx which is constantly growing. Fifty-eight per cent were in favor of complete integration in the schools and 42 per cent were against. On letting white and colored children study together 77 per cent would allow it in schools only, 44 per cent in the homes and 12 were totally opposed at any time.

NATO Summit Meeting Will Be Best Since Pact Formed

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The forthcoming NATO summit meeting sounds like the biggest thing that has happened in the North Atlantic alliance since it was formed.

Russia's Sputnik diplomacy has apparently jolted Western leaders into a newly-hardened conviction that their safety lies in a freer exchange of efforts and ideas within NATO.

Seldom has public opinion been more stirred than by the knowledge that Russia is ahead in development of the intercontinental missile, the "ultimate" weapon. Then there was the drama of the Sputnik whirling around the earth.

WARTIME RECALLED

Indecision, especially in Washington, was swept away by these events and Prime Minister Macmillan of Britain was quick to respond to the new feeling there.

The tone of the resulting conference between President Eisenhower and Macmillan was reminiscent of the unprecedented cooperation achieved by Winston Churchill and President Roosevelt during the Second World War.

Gone—or nearly gone—was the American emphasis on security that has hampered joint Western development in scientific matters. It was replaced by an eagerness for freer exchange.

ON THE SPOT

But behind these events were earlier, more subtle changes in thinking. Britain has moved closer to Europe, as is shown in the economic field by her wish to become a member of the proposed free trade group.

The U.S. has found itself more and more committed far beyond its borders, as is shown by its attempts to hold the lid on the Middle East cauldron.

Observing all this was Paul-Henri Spaak of Belgium, the new NATO secretary-general with the Churchillian air and unusual gifts of intellect and persuasion.

Spaak was Johnny-on-the-spot at the Washington conference to invite Eisenhower, Macmillan and other heads of government to the NATO meeting.

CHANGING NATO

Spaak heads NATO's 15-nation coalition which represents a total population of 450,000,000, but he never forgets it is designed to resist expansion by a Communist-ruled empire totalling 900,000,000.

The current thinking reflects a determination to formulate positive policies, as opposed to the idea of dashing around to plug loopholes as they are punched by the Communists.

Rumblings of change have been heard in NATO for two years. L. B. Pearson, then Canada's external affairs minister, was one of the committee of Three Wise Men who recommended last year expansion into non-military fields of co-operation and exchange. Spaak has been one of the heartiest exponents of this.

Women Robbed In Apartment At Gunpoint

TORONTO (CP)—Two women were robbed of $3,500 at gunpoint Wednesday by three well-dressed bandits and left tied up and gagged on the floor of an apartment.

Police said the women were Mrs. Pearl Nicela, tenant of an apartment on Regal Rd., a women's clothing designer, and Mrs. Elizabeth Small, a cosmetics saleswoman.

Apartment superintendent John Malcolm, who was scheduled to do some repairs in the apartment, found the women and untied them. They had been gagged with masking tape.

Three Persons Die in Hospital From Injuries

KINGSTON (CP)—Three persons died in hospital Tuesday night from injuries received in two separate automobile accidents last week.

Dead are Cpl. Daniel Leslie, 39, a photographer at the RCAF station, London, Ont.; William Grover Cleveland, 50, of nearby Odessa and formerly from Glace Bay, N.S.; and Mrs. Kathleen Keegan, 43, of Kingston and formerly from Truro, N.S.

Leslie and Cleveland were injured last Wednesday near here in a head-on highway collision in which Mrs. Maria Ann Leclair, 69, of Ottawa was killed.

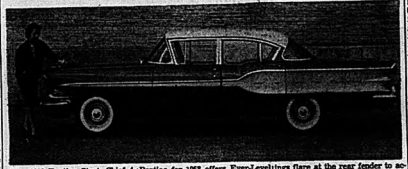
Mrs. Keegan was injured in an accident Friday night on a Kingston street. Police later charged Victor Ponte of Kingston with careless driving.

Cleveland is a native of Belleville and has been living in Odessa and working at the Kingston Military Hospital.

Mrs. Keegan was born in Truro and was a nurse at Belleville and Kirkland Lake before coming here a year ago.

No Increase For Members Says Diefenbaker

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Wednesday there has been no consideration and no intention of increasing the salaries of members of Parliament.



He was replying in the Commons to a member who asked for assurances that the government is not thinking of suggesting an increase.

Members of the Commons and the Senate now are paid $6,000 a year plus a $2,000 tax-free expense allowance.

Quintes Split Grid Games With Trenton

By ALLAN SILLS

Quinte Saints and Little Saints split a twin bill with Trenton in Bay of Quinte district rugger games played Wednesday.

In the junior game the Little Saints trounced Trenton 31-0, following a slow start. Quinte broke into the lead on T.D.s by Locke and Green and a rouge by Follwell. Quinte started to roll in the second half as they scored three unanswered majors. Locke, on a 48-yard run, Follwell on a 7-yard sneak and Wardle on a 9-yard plunge, picked up Quinte's points.

Anselstine and Fitzpatrick sparked Quinte's drive throughout the entire game. Fuller, Buddle, Townsend and Green picked up the majority of Quinte's tackles.

G. A. Scoyne and Bowman displayed a fine effort in a losing cause.

The Senior game was a different picture, with the Saints bowing 4-0 to Trenton. The game was a hard-fought contest as Quinte suffered its first defeat. The fixture was marred by penalties and fumbles with the Saints on the losing end of both.

Trenton scored their points in the second quarter on a field goal by Anderson and a rouge by Cottrell.

Quinte's dual of Garrison and Aquino matched yard for yard with Trenton's Cottrell and Scott in a fine competitive ground gain.

Morris, Jamieson, Green, Kerr, Bell and Locke sparked Quinte's defence.

REDS SPEED ICEBREAKER

MOSCOW (AP) — The newspaper Soviet Fleet says today shipyard workers in Leningrad are making an all-out effort to launch the world's first nuclear-powered surface ship—a 16,000-ton icebreaker—by Nov. 7, the 40th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution. The ship's hull is assembled up to the top deck, the paper says, and "hundreds of people are working on the stern, bow and midships."

British Railway Union Chieftain Hits Wage Freeze

LONDON (AP) — The leader of 400,000 British railwaymen sounded an angry new challenge today to the Conservative government's wage holddown.

The government, meanwhile, won a 307-to-258 endorsement in the House of Commons of its refusal to grant wage increases demanded to meet the higher cost of living. The vote was on party lines.

"The government has created a crisis atmosphere," said James Campbell, head of the National Union of Railwaymen. "It must be held responsible if a crisis develops."

Campbell said his union still is bent on obtaining an unspecified but "substantial" wage increase for its members. The Macmillan government had warned the British transport commission, which runs the state-owned lines, that it will not subsidize pay increases out of the treasury.

ECONOMY STRAINED

A test of the government's determination might result in a costly railroad strike which would winch off much of Britain's crucial export trade. Success by the railwaymen in winning raises might open the doors for raises all across the strained British economy.

Some 7,500,000 British workers besides the railwaymen are demanding pay raises totalling approximately £400,000,000.

Ending a two-day economic debate in Commons, Chancellor of the Exchequer Peter Thorneycroft restated the government's refusal to help with pay raises.

"The government does not intend to find any more cash than they have already found or undertaken to find," he said. "Wages have been running ahead of the nation's ability to pay them or to find the goods to match them and that is what needs to be kept firmly in everybody's mind."

Many Ballots Rejected in Montreal Vote

MONTREAL (CP) — Checking of the vote-count in Monday's civic election continued today in another important figure cropped up—the number of votes discarded.

Le Devoir says more than 14,000 votes for mayor and two classes of aldermen were rejected as spoiled, illegally cast or for other reasons.

They could be important in an election where Senator Sarto Fournier, mayor-elect, defeated incumbent Jean Drapeau by a majority of only about 4,000. But if it is not known if the figure is too high or normal.

Mission Work in India Topic at St. Andrew's W.G.

St. Andrew's Women's Guild held their regular meeting on Tuesday evening with Mrs. G. Shaw presiding. The minutes were read by the secretary, Mrs. Billy, and the treasurer's report was given by Mrs. P. Tonner.

Mrs. George Durno read a paper from the Scripture lesson, on Corinthians. The business part of the meeting was opened and closed with prayer and the singing of hymns with Mrs. W. Smith at the piano.

Matters pertaining to the coming bazaar were discussed, and it was decided to purchase 12 metal tables. Arrangements were made for a congregational social evening after the evening service on anniversary Sunday in November.

"Aspects of Mission Work in India" was the subject of the paper for the occasion, Mr. Matthews, a teacher on the staff of the Quinte Secondary School. Mr. Matthews divided his talk into two parts, the work of the Christian missionaries before India won her independence, and the work since India had attained her status of independence, tracing the history of British rule from the time of the East Indian trading company to a private firm to the time when Queen Victoria proclaimed its incorporation under the jurisdiction of the British Government, due to the maladministration of the company.

OPPOSITION PROBLEMS

There were problems of filling government positions until the British promoted a plan for the education of native Indians to bringing in Christian missions to assume the work of education, medical service with dispensaries and clinics, and social welfare work.

Prejudice and suspicion on the part of the Indian people towards the missionaries, the Hindu religion which was a well laid to penetrate, and the custom and work of the Christian agnatic problems which the early missionaries had to face.

Mr. Matthews gave great credit to these pioneers for their courage, perseverance and kindness. Once the prejudice was broken down, the way was opened for evangelistic work. Today India is wide open to Christianity, but the speaker warned that unless Christians can offer the Hindu something better than his own religion offers, their labor is in vain. India has a great field for the splendid efforts of the Christian missionaries.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. R. Ward, and appreciation for the talk was expressed by Mrs. H. Millan.

Refreshments were served by the Welcome group, and the members enjoyed a social visit after the meeting.

Christ Church C.C. Holds Social Get Together

Christ Church Contact Club enjoyed a social get-together on Monday evening when all present played military whist. This was a pleasant contrast to the previous work meeting, at which articles were prepared for the Bone Factory Indian Residential School Christmas parcel.

The winners for military whist were Marjory Bunnett, Joan Taylor, Mary Rompen and Marjorie Niles.

The Hallowe'en theme was carried out in the table decorations, serviettes and candles, as hostesses were Betty Morrice, Goldie Miller and Alice Wonnacott served delicious small cakes and cookies.

The evening's entertainment was in charge of Thelma Saunders' group.

After refreshments, a cup and saucer were presented by Florence Lennox to Joan Taylor, who is moving to Toronto this week.

WEDDINGS

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Andre Melancon are pictured following their recent marriage in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel. The bride is the former Miss Madeleine Yvonne Fortin, Registered Nurse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Fortin, of Belleville, and her bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Melancon of St. Alexis, Quebec. MELANCON — FORTIN

Tall bronze standards of white-gladioli mingled with branches of berry foliage adorned the sanctuary and altar of the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, on Saturday, October 16 at 9.00 a.m., for a lovely autumn wedding when Madeleine Yvonne Fortin, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Fortin, became the bride of Joseph Andre Melancon, of Trenton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Melancon, of St. Alexis, Quebec. The Reverend Peter Murphy, officiated in the double ring ceremony. White satin bows designated the guest pews.

Miss Dorothy Grant, church organist, presided at the console of the organ and accompanied the soloist, Mr. Robert Burke, in the singing of "Ave Maria," "Panis Angelicus" and "On This Day, O Beautiful Mother."

Given in marriage by her father, the radiant bride wore a lovely, full-length bridal gown of nylon tulle and Chantilly lace featuring a long torso basque, accented by panels of French Chantilly lace at back and front with bouffant skirt of nylon tulle appliqued with rose cutouts of lace. Her finger-tip veil of illusion tulle was held by a Juliet cap of lace outlined in sequins and seed pearls, and she carried a semi-cascade of white carnations and trailing ivy mingled with dream net puffs.

She was attended by her sisters, Miss Elaine Fortin as maid of honor, and Mrs. Thomas Purcell, as bridesmaid. Both were gowned alike in waltz-length sapphire blue velvet fashioned on empire lines with matching back satin bow and full-length streamers. They wore matching shoes and hats, and carried semi-cascades of pink and white carnations intermingled with fern.

Mr. Gilbert Melancon of St. Alexis, Quebec, attended his brother as a groomsman, while Mr. Thomas Purcell was usher.

Following her ceremony, the reception was held at the Gold-en-Acre Inn, Kingston Road, where the guests were received by the bride's mother, attired in a dusty-rose shadow gown of cascade satin with matching accessories and corsage of Dynamure Sweetheart roses.

She was assisted in the receiving line by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a two-piece ensemble of grey with matching accessories and corsage of red roses and button 'mums.

The bride's table was daintily appointed with white damask and centred by a three-tier wedding cake topped by pink Sweetheart roses and lily-of-the-valley, and misted about the base with white tulle. Tall, white candles in candelabra and the bridal bouquets accentuated the nuptial note.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls and Buffalo, the bride chose a grey suit with black and white accessories, and corsage of red, Sweetheart roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Melancon will reside in Belleville.

Guests were present from Toronto, Bracebridge, Hamilton, Shannonville, Trenton, Montreal, Quebec and St. Alexis.

Previous to her marriage the bride was entertained at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Laurent Laton, with Mrs. Mary Boyd, Mrs. Ella Parks, and Mrs. Jean McDonnell as co-hostesses.

A presentation by the staff of First West, Belleville General Hospital, of which the bride is a staff nurse.

COX-LARUE

A pretty but quiet wedding took place October 25th at 8 p.m. at St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill, when Shirley Anona LaRue, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. LaRue, became the bride of William Cox, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cox of Belleville. The rector of the church, the Reverend L. Arthur Page, officiated.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attractively attired in winter white suit with pale blue hat. She carried a prayer book crested with white carnations and white streamers.

Mrs. D. Parker, the bride's attendant, wore a pale blue ensemble with pink carnation shoulder corsage.

Mr. Charles Cox of Kingston attended his brother.

After the reception, which was held at the home of the bride's parents where the bride's mother received, dressed in beige with black accessories and corsage of pink carnations, the young couple left on their wedding trip; the bride travelling in her wedding suit with pale blue accessories. On their return, they will reside in Kingston.

Factors Governing Personnel Relationships Outlined to Club

Understanding the human element will insure a successful employer-employee relationship, Bi-Kel Club members were told in a recent address by F. Beeby of Northern Electric Company.

Mr. Beeby, assistant superintendent of inspection at the local plant, told the members that since some of them will probably become executives and as such will be dealing with other people, they should understand complex human personality.

"Human relations equals the attitude of the supervisor toward his workers," he said. Mr. Beeby described the history of supervision dating back to Egyptian slavery where force was used, through feudalism, the forming of guilds or unions, which led to the free enterprise system of better wages and working conditions, and finally to the mass production system of today.

"The use of human relations in place of brutality, fear and force, led to the development of leaders rather than drivers," he explained.

Mr. Beeby said the two factors in a worker which influence his success or failure in a job are his knowledge, which includes formal training, skill training, experience and his emotions.

"When knowledge and emotions are in tune this makes way for success, but if they are opposed, conflict results," he said.

The speaker stated that in a recent survey of industries, workers listed the following 12 factors as desired in their job: job security; good treatment by supervisors; good relationship with fellow workers; good working conditions; good company loyalty; interesting work; appreciation of their work; extra pay such as bonuses; special benefits such as insurance; attention to complaints; opportunity for advancement and opportunity to make suggestions.

"Further disturbing a worker's emotions, the survey discovered, were "health, finance, domestic affairs and affairs of the heart" he said.

The real answer to combatting frustrations resulting from inner conflicts lies in counseling, particularly of the non-directive sort — making the worker responsible for his actions; stimulating a drive for growth, and allowing reflections and repetitions without limitations or interruptions.

A dissatisfied worker will usually turn to his local union for this non-direct counselling, he said.

Mr. Beeby was presented with a token of appreciation for his informative talk by vice-president Tom Mitchell.

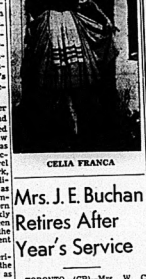
Mr., Mrs. Roy Atyeo Celebrate 40th Wedding Anniversary

Life is full of surprises, and some are not too happy, but last Friday evening one occurred at the home of Mrs. E. Pickard, 76 Alexander Street, a girlhood friend of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Atyeo, 194 Charles Street, in honor of their 40th wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Atyeo were married on October 24, 1917 in the United Missionary Church, at St. Catharines by the Reverend C. N. Good, are the daughter and son respectively of the late Mr. and Mrs. M. Culp, of St. Catharines, and the late Mr. and Mrs. J. Atyeo, of Vineland, Ontario.

The evening was spent in a social time with approximately 30 friends present from far and near among whom was Mrs. Edgar Latimer, of Toronto, wife of the first pastor of the Alliance Tabernacle the Atyeo's home church. Games were also enjoyed, but the highlight of the evening was the mock wedding with Mrs. Simmons, of Trenton, the blushing bride, Mrs. Harry Whitaker, of Belleville, the beaming bridegroom, and Wilbur Wright, of Belleville, the bridesmaid, while "Doc" Daugherty made a fine and upstanding officiating minister with Mrs. Bill Austin doing the honors of groomsman.

The bride and bridegroom on entering the living room were presented with a corsage and boutonniere, respectively, and later, beneath an archway adorned with streamers, and wedding bells, cut the lovely anniversary cake donated by the immediate family with its pink and white decorations, topped with "40th Anniversary" and flanked by tall, white candles in silver hold



For approximately 45 years Mr. Atyeo was employed with the Canadian National Railway, and during all this time as engineer was free of accident. Since his retirement, his main interests have been his family whom he visits frequently, not to mention his care of the hydrangeas; while Mrs. Atyeo's chief interest, like that of her husband, is that of her family, her church and her home.

They have four children, two sons, Gerald Atyeo Bile, of Hudson Heights, an engineer with the Bell Telephone Company, and Dr. Ralph Atyeo, M.D.C.M.; Hull, C.O.G. who recently returned from England and France. Two daughters, Mrs. Russell (Margaret) Perkins, of Reddendale, Ontario, and Miss Dorothea, at home. They have five grandchildren.

Mrs. Mary Baragar, prior to presentation, on behalf of the assembled guests, Mrs. Atyeo with a floral, Royal Doulton centrepiece and two ruby-colored bon-bon dishes, and Mr. Atyeo with a leather wallet, in commemoration of their 'ruby' wedding anniversary, read the following address, entitled, "The Marriage," and "The Anniversary."

Mr. and Mrs. Atyeo were the recipients of many congratulations and good wishes on this happy occasion for continued health in the years that lie ahead.

CELIA FRANCA

Miss Celia Franca, artistic director of the National Ballet, which comes to the city on Nov. 9th, was regarded as one of the brilliant young dancers of the flourishing British ballet before she came to Canada some six years ago.

She had been a star four years with Sadler's Wells. For another two years she had been director of the ballet and ballet mistress of the popular Metropolitan Ballet in London. As a choreographer, she created a number of popular new works including "Khadra," for Sadler's Wells Theatre Ballet and television ballets for the B.B.C.

Miss Franca comes with her marked gift for leadership and organizing ability she devoted herself to creating the first company in Canada. She has brought it to international recognition on the highest level on this continent. New York, Washington and other U.S. audiences and critics as well as those in Canada have acclaimed its grandiose premiere. Here in England, the slender, darkly lovely Miss Franca has been a notable active figure in most of the major developments in recent English ballet.

It is with such rich experience she is able to present the great classics of ballet such as "Swan Lake," "Sleeping Beauty," and others in the repertoire of The National Ballet, together with "The Willow," "Winter Night" and the ever popular "Offenbach In the Underworld," all of which are to be presented on the program here in November.

Mrs. J. E. Buchan Retires After Year's Service

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. W. C. Vaughan of St. Catharines was elected president of the Ontario Women's Hospital Auxiliaries Association Tuesday. She succeeds Mrs. J. E. Buchan of Belleville.

Other officers elected: Vice-presidents: Mrs. W. P. Telford, Owen Sound; Mrs. C. W. Riordan, Rockcliffe; Mrs. William Smolkin, Perth; Mrs. E. D. Cruikshank, Hanover; Mary Whalen, Sudbury; Mrs. D. O. Lynch, Kirkland.

Secretaries include Mrs. O. J. Stahl, St. Catharines.

Treasurer is Mrs. Vance Glazebrook, Sault Ste. Marie.

Tuesday, Dr. D. J. Griffin, general director of the Canadian Mental Health Association, told delegates that the basic role of volunteer workers in mental hospitals is to keep patients in contact with society.

Pumpkin-Colored Dresses Favored By Designer

MONTREAL (CP) — Clothes designer Guy Laroche, who gave his views for couture, is in Montreal plumping for pumpkin-colored dresses this winter.

Laroche, 34, handsome, and a bachelor, is one of the young Parisian aspirants to the design kingship held unchallenged since 1947 by the late Christian Dior, whose whimsy whipped hemlines up and down the world over.

Laroche modestly refused to comment on his chances of succeeding Dior. He has a tie-up with the same Montreal department store that Dior had, however.

In the main, he favors youthful fashions. Youth means color—such as his current favorites apricot and pumpkin.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Mr. H.J. — My daughter wants to marry a fortune hunter.

Wilma J. — Tom won't take a cent from anyone!

* * *

Mr. H. J. — Why will girls of 19 insist they know more than their parents when their parents are only trying to save them from disaster?

My daughter met and fell in love with a young man at college. My wife and I liked him very much and we let them become engaged. Two days after the engagement was announced the young man's father came to me and arrogantly asked me to support Tom through medical school. I had previously had the idea of making the kids a very substantial wedding gift in money which would have helped him through his studies — but I'm certainly not going to give a cent to a fortune hunter.

We are trying to get our daughter to break this engagement. We see the whole thing now. This fellow had to marry into a family with means in order to continue his studies. This kind of match my daughter can do without.

* * *

Wilma J. — Neither Tom nor I had the slightest idea his father was up to anything like this. Tom is so furious with his father he says he'll never speak to him again. Tom is no fortune hunter. He knew nothing about me or my family until after we had gone out quite a lot.

Tom says he believes his father has enough money to see him through his medical studies, but he thinks his father has decided my father can afford it better. In any case, he says he knows his father will never finance him now he has said he can't do it. Tom says he won't take a cent from anyone now and he won't become a doctor. My father says Tom is just trying to "brazen it out."

Tom and I won't give each other up, but it's awful to marry with all this bitterness between our families and with my parents refusing to talk to Tom.

* * *

The Council: Fortune hunter? Defies your terms, sir!

In our book a fortune hunter is a man who wants to live on his wife's money while he basks at the more fashionable resorts and leases away the family gold to the head track and on the roulette wheel. A young man who accepts money to finance an education which will not only enable him to support his own family, but to make a useful contribution to society is hardly in the same category.

Possibly Tom's father's approach was a bit brash and Mr. H.J. was upset by it. Perhaps he has good reason to feel Tom's father could or should take on at least part of the financial burden for Tom's education. Still — is that a good reason to shame a young man who has already passed all the eligibility tests for a non-in-law, and to destroy the happiness of a daughter?

We have a rather large-sized suspicion that these two fathers are cutthroat businessmen who are ready to haggle to the death over a quarter. Tom's father saw a way of saving the money salted away for medical studies and Wilma's father is furious at him for scoring. If this is the game, these fathers ought to be ashamed of themselves and should try to arrive at some compromise. If Tom's father refuses to foot any portion of the bill, Wilma's father ought to undertake it willingly. Tom ought to accept it in the full recognition that this is no "hand-out" but an investment in the future.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECHMAN

"THE FATHERS" AND THE RECEIVING-LINE

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

I'm having a problem with "the fathers" about their standing in the receiving-line at our wedding reception. And the problem is for different reasons My father is a very sociable man, friendly, outgoing, loves to be a host. He thinks that, instead of standing in the line, he could be of more help if he circulates among the guests, since there will be many out-of-town relatives and friends to be introduced to in-town guests, and many other host-responsibilities he'd like to see over. I can see his point of view, and am inclined to agree with him . . . but Mother is uncertain about this, and wants me to ask you if it is always considered a "must" for the bride's father to stand in the line all during the receiving.

The bridegroom's charming and gracious mother is delighted to be in the receiving-line, but his father, who is apt to be quite self-conscious, very, very much prefers, he says to be free to talk with their relatives and friends. What should we plan about these two fathers and the receiving-line? — R.N.

You've made out a very good case for the two fathers, and my advice is that you let them do exactly as they prefer. This will be completely proper (please assure your mother), since it is optional whether or not "the fathers" are members of the receiving-line. Having them do as they wish will doubtless yield a rewarding co-operation!

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

I have always thought that a bride should walk on her father's right as they go up the aisle. But yesterday I went to a large fashionable afternoon church wedding and the bride walked on her father's left. Can you explain this or have I had the wrong idea?

— Roberta M.

It's true, as you thought, that generally the bride walks on her father's right as they go up the aisle. However, occasionally a clergyman prefers to have the bride walk on her father's left, and so instructs her at the wedding rehearsal.

CONFUSED ABOUT HOME IMPROVEMENT LOANS?

Joe Beaver Explains

They're so easy to get . . . so simple to arrange — you'll wonder why you waited to make the improvements you've been wanting.

Beaver Lumber BUDGET PLAN lets you make home improvements easily . . . without straining your pocketbook. Many home owners have never heard of a lumber yard home improvement loan. Of those who have, many are so hazy as to what sort of projects can be financed with this plan, that needed repairs and renovations and changes are simply put off and never get done. Many other people don't know how to go about making the necessary arrangements for a loan and give up in frustration. Beaver Lumber hopes to clear up these misunderstandings and show you that it is easy and inexpensive to get a Beaver Lumber Home Improvement Loan.

Here's everything you need to know . . .

Who Is Eligible?

Any home owner who has a good credit standing and a reasonable equity in his home. No endorsers are required and no security has to be posted.

What Improvements Can Be Financed Under Beaver Lumber's Plan

Generally speaking, any repair, alteration or improvement to an existing structure, including detached garages. To list just a few . . . finishing attic and basement rooms, adding rooms, re-roofing, new flooring, modernizing kitchens, bathrooms, interior and exterior painting, etc.

Where Do I Apply For Advice?

Beaver Lumber Building Supply Centre on Church Street, Belleville. Qualified Beaver personnel will organize the entire project and arrange a suitable budget plan. If you like to "do-it-yourself" Beaver Lumber has plans for you too.

How Do I Arrange For Credit?

All you have to do is fill out a simple application form. All transactions are confidential and no co-signers are required.

Are There Limits as to Amount and Time Allowed for Payment?

Yes. The minimum credit is $100 and the maximum $3,000. The repayment plan provides for equal monthly payments over various periods, ranging from 6 to 36 months. After the cost of your job has been determined, a payment plan to suit your budget is worked out.

What About Down Payment?

No down payment is required, but you are reminded that it isn't good business to take on payments larger than you can afford to pay out of your income.

What are the Carrying Charges?

Carrying charges vary depending on the number of months you choose to pay. Whichever plan you select though, you'll see that our interest rates are lower than those charged for any other commodity you might buy on time.

Is Everything Handled With One Loan Application?

Yes. This plan not only includes materials supplied by Beaver Lumber, but also those of other suppliers and trades such as plumbers, electricians, painters, masons, carpenters, etc.

Who Handles the Contracting?

This is entirely up to you. However, Beaver Lumber personnel are experienced in working with the contracting trades and suggest that you take advantage of this experience by allowing us to make the necessary arrangements. In this way you are guaranteed of a quality job, at reasonable prices, with a minimum of inconvenience to you.

Can I Do the Job Myself?

By all means! The same loan arrangements are available to "do-it-yourselfers" and to give you a hand, Beaver Lumber will rent you specialized tools to help you to do a professional job. Here are just a few of the tools available . . . tile cutters, linoleum rollers, glue spreaders, hand staplers and spot nailers, insulation blowers, power sanders, etc.

BEAUTY

By MME. QUI VIVE

SURROUND YOUR HOME WITH AN AURA OF FRAGRANCE

ed out and dressed up with new accessories . . . and while there's a certain amount of confusion in the doing, the results are always beautiful to behold. So you look forward to the day when you can stand in the doorway of a room and survey your work with satisfaction.

Did you know, however, that fragrance can play a wonderful part in adding glamour to the over-all picture? Yes, indeed . . . and here's how:

To help camouflage the odor of freshly painted rooms, try spraying the air of those rooms with lots of fragrant cologne or toilet water. (An aerosol container would be perfect for this.) The scented liquid will not eliminate the paint odor completely, but will do much to reduce it.

Putting your Summer clothes away for Winter? Hang a few sachet pillows on the loops of clothes hangers when placing them in your garment bag. Then zip the bag up tightly, and when you open it next Spring your garments will be wreathed in scent. Incidentally, if you are in the habit of using moth crystals in the garment bag, you will be pleasantly surprised with the way in which sachet helps to counteract their strong chemical odor.

Weekend guests so appreciate your letting them know that you are glad they came, and one of the nicest ways in which to say "Welcome!" is to add a fragrant note of hospitality to their room. Surprise your visitors by placing guest-size cakes of perfumed soap with their towels. Spray their room with cologne before they arrive. Place a few sachet pillows into their dresser drawers. Your guests are sure to comment on what a gracious and thoughtful hostess you are.

Treat your lamp bulbs to a shower of fragrance by spraying them with an aerosol container of cologne or toilet water. When you switch on the lamps, the warmth of the bulbs will waft the scent upwards so that the room will be subtly scented.

Fragrance plays its part in laundry chores also. When washing lingerie, handkerchiefs, gloves, pour a few drops of cologne into the clear rinse water. The fragrance will cling to the fabrics, giving them an extra dimension of loveliness.

A few drops of cologne added to the last rinse water does wonderful things for lingerie.

This is the season when homemakers from one end of the land to the other are busy as the proverbial bees getting homes in ripple-and-span order for the Winter. Walls are being painted, upholstery recovered, closets clean-

Women's Activities

ST. ANDREWS WMS

IVANHOE — St. Andrew's Presbyterian W. M. S. met at the home of Mrs. Morley Haggerty on Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Harold Thompson presided and opened the program by reading a poem "Thanksgiving".

The Scripture, Psalm 96, was read by Mrs. A. Hassall, followed by prayer led by the president.

The key word "Thanksgiving", was prepared by Mrs. John Wright and read by Mrs. Morley Haggerty.

Thirteen members responded to roll call by reciting a Thanksgiving Bible verse. An invitation was read to attend a bazaar held in Bethesda United Church on November 14. A nominating committee was appointed to bring in a slate of officers to December meeting. Mrs. John McInroy; Mrs. William Donnan, and Mrs. A. Hassall.

A reading, "Thanksgiving," was given by Mrs. Harry Thompson and a Thanksgiving meditation was read by Mrs. William Donnan.

A chapter in the Study Book was reviewed by B. Fleming, followed by a poem "October" read by Mrs. David Fargey. A solo, "The Man of Galilee", was rendered by Mrs. Milton Shaw. Reading, "Old Fashioned Thanksgiving" was given by Mrs. John McInroy.

B. M. Fleming thanked the hostess for opening her home.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants.

Holloway Street United Church Bazaar, Tea Most Attractive

In spite of dun-colored skies, the assembly room of Holloway Street United Church was gay with bronze and yellow chrysanthemums, and every window ledge were golden pumpkins with smiling faces and here and there black witches riding broomsticks caught the eye. Over all was the hum of happy voices, and the enticing aroma of fresh home baking. This was the annual bazaar and tea sponsored by the church family as a whole. The pastor, the Rev. Coleman officially opened the event, wishing the conveners, Mrs. G. E. Dobbs and Mrs. Outingdyke and all those who had given of their time and talents every success.

Receiving were: Mrs. H. Brown, Mrs. R. C. Ellis and Mrs. A. C. Campbell, and the treasurers for the day were: Mesdames S. Westover, F. Rayfield, B. McMurray, F. Scott, T. Ketcheson and J. Shaw.

ATTRACTIVE TEA TABLE

Inside a reserved area was the attractive tea table with its Scotch lace cloth in grape design, centred with a large, golden pumpkin filled with golden and bronze-toned 'mums and sprays of green and here and there a tiny, black witch sat atop a slender rod. On either side were tiny pumpkins holding tall, black, flickering candles, and at either end the shining silver services, presided over by Mrs. T. P. Townsend, Mrs. E. Hubbs, Mrs. B. Moorman, Mrs. J. T. Wilson, Mrs. A. R. Denyes and Mrs. C. Sinfield. The tea room was convened by the Evening Branch of the W.A. under the convenorship of Mrs. J. Joblin.

Those who assisted included: Mesdames M. Armstrong, M. Richardson, R. Hartland, G. McCauley, E. Blakely, H. Lawrence, J. Bateman, R. Revoy, I. Digby, G. Sine, T. B. Cress, J. Bush, W. Oliphant, W. John, F. Liddle, C. Ketcheson, C. Holmes, C. Wannamaker, F. Harrison, J. Canning, A. Kingston, Reid, Cunningham, I. Yateman, C. Lowther, E. Keeble, A. Cone, A. Kerruish, J. Townson, Bailey, H. Harper, R. Dorland, I. Knight, K. Dickens and H. McKibbon.

HALLOWEEN MOTIF

The various booths, each with its Hallowe'en motif and garlands of russet and gold were arranged around the room with the home cooking and country store in the alcove, as well as the aprons, aprons and hand pieced quilts. As usual the home cooking comprised all manner of dainty confections of pies, cakes, tarts, nut breads. In charge of these were Mrs. A. Smith, Mrs. M. Hick, Mrs. L. Hendricks, Mrs. J. Twiddy, Mrs. Adams and Mrs. J. Quinlytyke, members of the W.A.

An especially attractive booth was that of the aprons with its bevy of all kinds, shapes and materials, including the half and all-over style; pretty gingham; paisley pattern; black and white checks, and colorful prints. Mrs. G. Coulter, Mrs. R. E. Kilbank, Mrs. R. E. Burnett, Mrs. F. Cooke, Mrs. L. Reid, Mrs. H. Brown, Mrs. D. Cook and Mrs. Cameron were in charge.

PRETTY FANCY WORK

The sewing and knitting booth had pretty luncheon cloths, embroidered pillow slips, socks, baby knit wear, and lacey doilies, lace-edged handkerchiefs, mitts in many colors, a very pretty baby dress in white nylon, tea towels, children's aprons, fancy hot plate mats, and pansy edged doilies, and a host of other nice articles. These were convened by the Energetic club with Mrs. T. Poste Mrs. A. McMillan, Mrs. K. Parks, Mrs. B. Walton, Mrs. E. Moynes and Mrs. A. Briscoe in charge.

The novelties, under the convenorship of Mrs. A. Lucas, Mrs. C. Templer, Mrs. Peake, Mrs. A. Burrows had an assortment of many articles, pepper and salts, wall plaques, handpainted water glasses, golden glass relish dishes, cosmetics, costumes jewellery, knitting bags, mottoes, baby bootees, lamp shades, crocheted heart-shaped cushions and fringed place mats.

SUMPTUOUS SWEETS

The candy table, convened by the Evening Auxillary, with Mrs. F. Fox, Miss D. Craig, Mrs. C. Vader and Mrs. R. Doxee in charge had a sumptuous supply of the sweets and all-over style; pretty gingham; paisley pattern; black and white checks, and colorful prints. Mrs. G. Coulter, Mrs. R. E. Kilbank, Mrs. R. E. Being Neighborly To Newcomers Joy to Woman

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. Mae Beatty is a housewife whose great joy in life is being neighborly to newcomers. In fact, in 12 years, she has paid 4,680 calls to families of every description who have moved into North Bay.

As "hostess" with Welcome Wagon Ltd., an international organization dedicated to community service, Mae has just returned from New York where 62 hostesses were honored for achievement.

As goodwill ambassador, Mae has made many families feel at home in no time at all. Just ask the wives at the RCAF air base. When military personnel and their families descended on North Bay in 1951 wives of the airmen were confronted with the same problems of where to shop, which church to attend, where to send the children to school, and where to meet new friends.

FRIENDLY EMBLEM

Carrying berribboned basket under her arm — the friendly emblem of all Welcome Wagon hostesses — Mae would enter the homes, answer all questions and help the newcomer feel at home.

From her basket she plucks descriptive folders, giving details on all aspects of community life plus gift coupons offered by neighborhood merchants.

Her own family has grown accustomed to their mother's role of unofficial welcomer. Daughter Virginia, 16, and Susan, 11, have never had any complaints about the time their mother spends away from home.

Mae's husband John, a job printing manager of the daily North Bay Nugget, says he was a little uncertain at first but has long since become reconciled to his wife's civic activities.

In her many calls Mrs. Beatty has calmed troubled waters. She has been instrumental in lining up Red Cross homemaker services while mothers-to-be are in the hospital. She has also aided in arranging calls on invalids who need attention and cheering up, and has expedited the flow of gifts to patients.

In her 13 years as a Welcome Wagon hostess Mae has never met with a rebuff.

"The door always seems to be open," she said. Today she has two assistants and the job is more challenging than it ever was.

WOMEN OF THE MOOSE

Convocation of the Women of the Moose was held in West Toronto on Sunday at the Canadian Legion Hall, on Dundas St. There were 200 women in attendance.

The chairman for the day was Deputy Grand Regent Kathleen Henry, of Lakeshore chapter, Toronto.

The roll call of Chapters took place with chapters being represented from Brockville in the east, to Sault Lookout, Windsor, and from Vancouver, British Columbia, and some chapters from the United States.

There were 29 College of Regents present all in their caps and gowns with stoles and tassels denoting their years of service.

NEW CANDIDATES

The meeting opened with West Toronto "proteming" for Port Arthur, St. Catharines chapter did the balloting on new candidates, the initation of new candidates was done by West Toronto chapter.

Former Deputy Grand Elva Stephens addressed the new members and told them how to gain recognition in the Women of Moose.

Chairman for the capping ceremony was Deputy Grand Regent Kathleen Henry, who read off each girl's name and the actual capping was done by Former Deputy Grand Regent Sylvia Peckham, of London, Ontario and Deputy Grand Regent Margaret McGee, of Toronto.

The College of Regents formed a guard of honor for girls receiving caps. There were 20 chapters present, and of these there were 3 Junior Graduate regents to receive their green beanies. The local chapter girl to receive her green beanie was Nellie Scrymgeour of Bettes St.

The endowment fund march was led by Niagara Falls.

A short talk was given by Ruby Clarke, of Toronto, on the "Scholarship fund for College of Regent to the girl graduate at Mooseheart our child city."

There was a lively luncheon served at noon for the girls and after the meeting closed in the afternoon tea and cookies were served before each chapter left for home, with Deputy Grand Regent Kathleen Henry wishing each a safe journey.

Great International Auxiliary Sponsors Colorful Bazaar, Tea

Soft, glowing lights shed their gentle rays upon an animated scene yesterday afternoon in the Odd Fellows Hall, Front Street, when the Great International Auxiliary held its annual fall bazaar and afternoon tea. The many guests and patrons who, nothing daunted by the unpromising skies, found many attractions within the spacious room where booths of merchandise were displayed in attractive manner, each booth being decorated in the autumnal shades of beige and golden browns.

The booths were arranged around the three sides, and across the eastern end was the pretty tea table; and in pleasing position near by the guest tables, each with its snow-white cloth, centred by a little vase of yellow and bronze 'mums.

Receiving into this busy mart were the receptionists, Mrs. C. Fisher, president of the G.I.A. assisted by Mrs. P. Kerr, G. D. D. while receiving the tickets at the door, were the treasurers, Mrs. T. Crosier, Mrs. D. Fisher, and Mrs. C. Henley. Receiving the tickets at the tea room, was Mrs. Raynor.

LOVELY CENTRED TEA TABLE

Presiding at the white, damask-covered tea table with its lovely centre of bronze, yellow chrysanthemums, flanked by tri-branched candelabra, with tall, yellow candles, were: Mrs. G. Prechette, Mrs. L. Grey, Mrs. G. Clapper, Mrs. H. Drury, Mrs. W. Storms, and Mrs. J. Reid.

Those who served included: Mesdames A. Vanstone, E. Goodman, G. O. Gulliver, W. Gray, J. Gallagher, A. Bigonoise, R. Jones and M. Petts; while Mrs. J. Cunningham and Mrs. H. Batchelor replenished the teapots.

Mrs. A. Clarke and Mrs. J. Payne, assisted by Mrs. E. Pigden, Mrs. W. G. McGee, and Mrs. T. Collyer, had charge of the fine selection of aprons of many designs and shades of material there were half aprons, and all-over aprons, in mauve and gray, in circular flounce effect; aprons in terrylene, in green and frilled; yellow aprons edged with metallic ric-rac braid; and aprons in red and white candy stripe with border of blue; and a white and black nylon and many fancy cottons and prints.

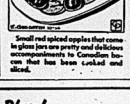
NUMEROUS NOVELTIES

On the novelty booth there were numerous colored mitts, socks, bootees and hoods; dish cloths, cretonne knitting bag, fancy pot holders, cups and saucers, vases and a lot of pretty African violets in flower. Convening these were Mrs. F. Parsons, assisted by Mrs. M. Boyd and Mrs. H. Levitt.

The homecking booth, which extended across the western end was convened by Mrs. A. Bush and Mrs. W. Morgan, with their assistants, Mrs. W. T. Hammett, and Mrs. N. Robb. Bought by the eager customers were apple, lemon, pumpkin, peach pies; date and banana loaves; individual mincemeat pies, and taffy tarts, as well as date squares, and cans of sauerkraut. One luscious cone is tendered.

Formation, Aims Of BPWC Outlined At Dinner Meet

The regular monthly meeting of the Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club was held recently at Latimer's with the president, Miss Hilda Collier in the chair.



With a national membership drive beginning, a letter from the national president, Maude Rayley, was read which sparked the campaign. It was announced that Miss Margaret Potter is the winner of the 1957 scholarship presented by the club to the most deserving graduate of Belleville Collegiate and entering training at Belleville General Hospital. The 1956 winner, Miss Patricia Rowland, received a cheque for her second year, and a note of appreciation from Miss Rowland was read.

DINNER SUCCESSFUL

The Lisa Sergio dinner in September was highly successful, a full report being given by the convener, Mrs. S. McFadden.

Acting public relations chairman for the newly formed Belleville Citizens' Association, Mrs. Dorothy Brown, spoke on the formation, aims and ideals of the group. In quoting a recent speech of President Eisenhower's wherein he said: "We must be careful to represent in the best of our ability both sides of an argument, because in so doing, we remove bitterness," Mrs. Brown stated that, "he could have been speaking to us." Pointing out that the organization stems from the grass roots of the people, she closed by saying, "As our numbers increase, so also will increase our influence for good in civic affairs."

The speaker was thanked by Mrs. D. Ellis.

Small red spiced apples that come in glass jars are pretty and delicious accompaniments to Canadian bacon that has been cooked and sliced.

Witches, Cats Feature Legion Bazaar, Tea

Witches, skeletons, pumpkins and black cats added a festive note to the annual Canadian Legion Women's Auxiliary Tea and bazaar held in the Legion hall yesterday afternoon.

The Hallowe'en theme was carried out not only in the decorations, but also in the home-cooking and the tasty and attractive refreshments served to the visitors.

Jack-O-Lanterns, black and orange streamers and cardboard black cats, witches, skeletons, and pumpkins adorning the walls and tables transformed the small hall into a "witches' den." Hallowe'en waxed figures, candles in small orange baskets adorned each table, while the head table held a centrepiece of white and yellow 'mums, and white candles.

The six booths were heaped with home-made candy, (Hallowe'en variety), homecooking, (pies, including pumpkin; varieties of cookies, cupcakes, and cakes from chocolate to date and nut loafs); knitted goods which included baby clothing; sweaters; needlework; crocheted doilies and pot holders; wrapped surprise packages and colorful cotton print aprons. Child and doll aprons also were a quite popular innovation.

A white elephant table contained blanks, linkless knacks, figurines, jewellery and dishes, while the Country Store table contained groceries, from canned goods to home-made preserves.

In charge of the bazaar and tea were: conveners, Mrs. Violet Terry and the auxiliary president, Mrs. Jeffs; pouring tea, Mrs. David Bradford and Mrs. J. Slater; serving, Mrs. J. DeHoop; ticket seller, Mrs. E. Ash; helping in the kitchen, Mrs. E. Blair and Mrs. L. Heim; and in charge of raffles, Mrs. H. E. Dolder and Mrs. W. Haley. Those working in the booths were: aprons, Mrs. Betty Hodge and Mrs. Amy Horsten; knitting, Mrs. Marion Watts and Mrs. Velma Culloden; home-baking, Mrs. Ricky Beaumont and Mrs. Shirley Benn; candy, Mrs. Einor Batchelor and Mrs. Shirley Heasman; Country Store, Mrs. E. Meeks and Mrs. Irene Reed; and white elephant, Mrs. G. Spencer and Mrs. C. Daniels. A basket of groceries and a beautifully decorated fruit cake were raffled off.

RAWDON

Young Couple Presented With Space Saver

RAWDON — Last Friday evening friends in the Carmel Community and surrounding territory and relatives gathered at Jubilee Church hall, at Carmel and tendered the newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bailey (nee Marlene Hadley), a presentation party.

Mr. Doug Fyear was master of ceremonies and Mrs. Arthur Fyear officiated at the piano. All enjoyed a delightful sing - song of sentimental selections.

Readings were given by Miss Jean Grills, of Carmel, and Robert Hoard, town line, and musical selections were contributed by Mrs. Gerald Clancy and Mrs. A. Fyear. Vocal selections were also contributed by Misses Dianne and Betty McAdam, and the Misses Carol and Jean Sharpe.

ADDRESS READ

Miss Marion Carlisle read an address of appreciation and Tommy Grills made the presentation on behalf of the two communities, Carmel and Williams school section S.S. No. 4, and friends of Hoards Station, of a brown upholstered space saver with leather trim.

Frank and Marlene each voiced grateful thanks for the lovely gifts, and for program and party in their honor, and invited the group to visit them when they are settled in their new home.

Refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.

Rawdon

RAWDON — Mrs. George Carlisle, vice-president Belleville West Section; Mrs. William Wilkins, Baby Band secretary, and Mrs. Percy MacMullen, literature secretary of Belleville Presbyterial, attended the Mac-oc W.M.S. sectional rally at Beulah-Ivanhoe United Church on Friday.

Several folk were inconvenienced for a period of over three hours last Thursday evening when a resident's telephone receiver was inadvertently left off the hook. The Belleville office had to be notified before the matter was cleared up and everyone could make satisfactory connections.

Mrs. Alton Hadley and daughter, Miss Barbara Hadley, Mrs. Ronald Hadley, all of Rawdon; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Scott, Moira, attended a party at Carmel hall on Friday evening for the newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bailey.

On Friday evening of last week, Springbrook W.A. served their church supper to a large group of patrons. Unfortunately the program entertainers did not appear, thus causing disappointment.

SECOND LOW RENTAL HOUSE COMPLETED

Rawdon friends, who have been interested in the Trenton Disabled Persons' Club, sponsored by Miss Eva Morrison, will be glad to know that their second low rental house is completed and that one of their crippled members and his bride will take possession November 1st.

In the month of October the club sponsored a successful rummage sale and now they are busy making plans for their fourth birthday party, combined with their Christmas party. Miss Morrison and her assistants have done marvellous work in helping disabled persons to find a greater degree of happiness in life.

Mrs. Herbert Smith and Mrs. Percy MacMullen attended the W.M.S. rally of South Napanee section at Deseronto United Church on Thursday.

Rev. W. G. Fletcher of Rawdon circuit, spent a few days last week at Kingston.

Mr. Burton Wrightman spent a few days last week in Toronto.

Mrs. Charles Dunham and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Dunham and family were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Fellow, Bird's Creek.

Mrs. Minnie Sine, Carmel, is ill at her daughter's home.

Miss Betty Rollo returned to to Winnipeg, Manitoba, on Wednesday after a holiday with her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Hutchinson.

Mrs. Don Johnson, president Mount Pleasant W.A., and several other members attended a convention at Cordova United last Wednesday.

TEST AUSSIE ROCKET

CANBERRA (AP) — An Australian-designed two-stage rocket was launched to a height of 80 miles at Woomera rocket range today, Supply Minister Howard Beale disclosed. Beale said the rocket landed 90 miles away. A considerable quantity of scientific apparatus was recovered.

Labor and Co-op Groups Reach New Agreement

OTTAWA (CP)—Officers of the Canadian Labor Congress and the Co-operative Union of Canada have developed a working agreement in which the congress will encourage its member unions to channel their funds into co-operatives.

Past frictions between the CLC and the co-operative movement, partly due to co-operatives' employee dealings, have been ironed out. Informants said Wednesday the 1,000,000 - member congress and the 900,000-member co-operative union have set up a committee to work in three ways for the interests of co-op and congress members.

1. The CLC will promote use of credit unions — co-operative credit societies—by members of its affiliated unions.

2. It will encourage use of co-operatives' insurance facilities for investment of union funds, such as those tied up in union-company pension plans.

3. The CLC will encourage use of union money in building homes for workers. They would be both large apartment buildings for small families and co-operatively built individual homes.

CO-OP EMPLOYEES

One effect expected from the new liaison is better labor relations between co-ops and unions representing their employees. Co-op executives, themselves often not too well paid, have looked on their workers as dedicated persons not too interested in their pay cheques. Sometimes this has left them cool to union organization among their employees.

In a joint policy statement the congress and the union say co-op employees would have wages and working conditions on a level with those of workers in comparable "profit" enterprises.

"Co-operatives freely recognize the right of their employees to organize for protection and advancement in accordance with the requirements of the law," the statement says.

Chairman of the new committee is Donald MacDonald, CLC secretary-treasurer. He was organizer of the Co-operative Society of Sydney, N.S., and managed a Sydney co-op store some years.

Committee secretary is Breen Melvin, national secretary of the Co-operative Union of Canada.

Ten Premiers Will Attend Tax Conference

OTTAWA (CP) — All 10 premiers have agreed to attend a federal - provincial conference here Nov. 25 and 26 to review present tax-sharing agreements. However, two of them—Manitoba and Saskatchewan — have asked that the question of aid to municipalities be included on the agenda, along with other topics.

Letters from all provincial premiers were tabled in the Commons Wednesday by Prime Minister Diefenbaker. They were in reply to his letter Sept. 16 proposing the conference and suggesting the dates.

There has been no official statement, in Mr. Diefenbaker's letter or elsewhere, of what proposals the federal government will make to modify the present tax-sharing agreements with the provinces.

Most premiers in their letters did not go beyond a statement they will attend the conference.

Premier Douglas of Saskatchewan, however, urged that the meeting deal with three questions of "unfinished business" from previous federal-provincial talks: Aid to municipalities, resources development and the national hospital insurance plan.

100 Million Planets Could Support Life Says Leading Astronomer of Space Age

EDITOR'S NOTE: Man has always been fascinated by the possibility that life exists elsewhere in the universe. A leading astronomer says 100,000,000 planets could support life. Now, with the opening of the space age, are we on the verge of finding out? This is the third of four articles.

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP)—Are we the only humans living in this incomprehensibly vast universe or ours?

Only by exploring space can man begin to answer this question nagging him nearly since the time began.

"We are not alone," declares Dr. Harlow Shapley, Harvard astronomer.

There are billions upon billions of stars or suns in the universe. There could be 100,000,000 planets situated at the right distance from a sun, possessing oxygen and all other conditions for our kind of life, Dr. Shapley reasons.

Very likely, human astronauts will never be able to visit much more than the other planets of our sun—Mars, Venus, Jupiter, Saturn and others.

By picking up enough speed once they were in outer space, cruisers might reach any of our planets within days.

Then men could learn whether there is life, even fantastically different forms of life, on these —some arid, some terribly hot or cold, some bathed in poisonous fumes.

What is the meaning of Mars' "canals," of Jupiter's strange markings? Are the asteroids, the belt of flying chunks of matter between Jupiter and Mars, really the remains of an exploded planet?

NOT HOPELESS

The chances of learning about life in other solar systems are not entirely hopeless.

Men in space could build giant telescopes, far more powerful than any on earth. Earth's air distorts starlight, makes clear seeing difficult.

Some astronomers believe space observatories could help learn secrets of the birth of the universe, or whether life exists on other planets.

Both American and Russian scientists are talking of putting telescopes in the sky. They could take pictures, or use TV eyes.

Space opens vast new frontiers for good or bad, depending on how nations use the new potentials and powers.

A space station hung some 23,000 miles above the earth could provide instantaneous television for half the world at a time.

Other satellites at chosen heights could survey the world with telescopic and TV eyes, or radar prying into any country's secrets. Military men see them also as potential bases for launching guided missiles with atomic warheads to impose the will of the sky-master nation.

NO MONOPOLY

Rocket and space control though, is not likely to become one nation's monopoly, many scientists believe. Checkmating is more likely. War in space, aimed at destroying an unfriendly space station, is mentioned as a possibility.

Prof. Hermann Oberth of Germany, a space pioneer, proposes a giant mirror, composed of many facets, above the earth. It might be 60 miles in diameter, focusing the sun's rays upon the earth, as you might do with a magnifying glass.

For bad, it could be aimed to burn an enemy's country, Dr. Oberth says.

For good, part of the mirror could be used safely to light large towns at night, or to melt dangerous Atlantic icebergs, open Arctic waters to sea lanes, counteract night frosts threatening fruit crops, even perhaps alter temperatures and cloud movements to bring rain where needed

STIRLING

Grand Patriarch Addresses Encampment 2080 Banquet

STIRLING — Stirling Encampment 2080 tendered a banquet Saturday evening in honour of Grand Patriarch, E. E. Wooch, North Bay, in the I.O.O.F. hall, Charlotte street. The ladies of Laurel Rebekah Lodge, No. 211 catered for the turkey dinner.

Following the meal, Raymond Rose, District Deputy Grand Patriarch introduced the head table which included the guest of honor from North Bay; Noble Grand Robert Hulin, of Stirling I. O. O. F. 230, and Mrs. Hulin; Cliff Gunter, Trenton, a Grand Lodge officer; Mrs. Ray Rose, Ralph Hubbs, Grand High Priest and Mrs. Hubbs of Picton; Past Patriarch Earl Fox and Mrs. Fox; Chief Patriarch Ivan Sine, and Mrs. Sine.

Bro. Harry Mawson, Trenton, voiced thanks to the ladies for the bountiful dinner and Noble Grand Olive Whitehead replied. She expressed thanks to Sisters Mabel Barlow and Hazel Mumsby who convened the banquet and all others who assisted.

PROGRAM

The program was presented in the main lodge hall with D.D. G. Patriarch Raymond Rose as Master of ceremonies. Mrs. Bruce Stapley officiated at the piano for the assembly singing.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Richardson contributed several duets, Mrs. Percy MacMullen gave readings, Mr. Jack Bush rendered several selections with Mrs. Robert Hulin as accompanist.

Brief messages and greetings were presented by grand secretary Cliff Gunter, and Grand High Priest, Ralph Hubbs.

A group of children, pupils of Miss Barbara Woodbeck, delighted with tap dance numbers. Bruce Woodbeck and Brenda Campbell gave a duet number, followed by four girls, Barbara Montesmmy, Joan Nunn, Marlene Bruce and Jiesela Feiguth. The last selection was in Indian costume given by Billy Bentley and Brenda Pole. The children received a hearty ovation for their entertainment.

GUEST SPEAKER

Past Grand Patriarch Earl Fox introduced the guest speaker. He said Brother E. E. Wooch, of North Bay, joined New Liskeard Subordinate Lodge in 1914 and he has gradually climbed the ladder of Oddfellowship and is now Grand Patriarch of the Grand Encampment of Ontario.

In Bro. Wooch's address, he paid tribute to work of his predecessor, Earl Fox, who has been so successful.

This year there is a combined program for all Encampments based on Lodge emblems. He gave a universal picture of fidelity and service. He warned the members of the two little words, "they say", which causes many heartaches and difficulties in this old world.

CHARITY ANALYZED

The lessons taught in the Odd Fellowship and also in the ladies' branches is the principal function of lodge work. The centre link in the chain is to hold the other two together and should be regarded as such. The speaker gave an alphabetical analysis of the word 'charity' and all that it implies, and brought out many new and interesting points along the way as he graphically lectured the work of the C. P. and T. departments. He paid tribute to those who are responsible for the care of deceased members at Barrie, Ont., and he gave a bird's eye view of youth education and all it involves.

LARGEST FRATERNAL ORGANIZATION

Brother Wooch pointed out the I.O.O.F. is the largest fraternal organization in the world. The I.O.O.F. had the unique honor of laying an emblem at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier and of attending the Coronation ceremonies at Westminister Abbey by special request of the Queen.

He closed his informative address with the aims and objectives of this year of Odd Fellowship and pointed out that the prestige of the order does not need any improvement but membership does need to improve in that category.

The Grand Patriarch was given an ovation for his thought-provoking message.

Wellington

WELLINGTON — Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wright arrived home on Saturday after spending a week with their daughter, Mrs. Allan Noble, and Mr. Noble in Kitchener.

Mr. and Mrs. Foster Jackson and family, West Lake, were Sunday evening dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wright. Mr. and Mrs. Doug Crew and Judy, Picton; Mrs. George Gregory, Brighton, and Mr. Ross Gregory of Toronto, were Sunday afternoon callers at the same home.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Regensburg and family, of Moira, and Mrs. Ellen Vanderwater, Belleville, spent a recent Sunday with Mrs. Laura Wight.

Ross Bovay, O.P.P., Campbellford, spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Bovay.

Mrs. Cecil Fritz returned home on Saturday after spending a week in Windsor the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lavender.

The Rev. Ray Running and Mrs. Running, of Newmarket, are expected to spend the weekend here. Mr. Running will be the visiting pastor at the Pentecostal church on Sunday.

Miss Noreen Foster, Kingston, is at home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Foster. Weekend guests at the same home were: Miss Helen Foster and Mr. Don Urry, both of Kingston.

The CGIT are planning to hold a tea in the Sunday school on November 9th.

Sorry to report that Mr. John Frankish is ill in the Belleville General Hospital.

Nearly all the children in and around Wellington have either had the flu or are now in bed with it.

Dr. and Mrs. Ron Baird of Toronto, were weekend guests of Mr. Mrs. Sarles and Dr. Sally Sarles.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas McCoy and Dougie, of Toronto, spent the weekend at their cottage here.

Mr. and Mrs. Bailey, Mrs. Clifford Channel and Mrs. Robt. Watt attended the funeral of the late Mr. Fred Mallory, in Trenton on Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Charles Greer was the weekend guest of Mr. and Mrs. George Greer, Trenton.

Mrs. Carman Burr spent the weekend in Toronto, the guest of Mrs. J. Gair.

Mrs. Sprague is spending some time in Guelph, the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Ellen McMillan.

Among those who attended the annual Deanery meeting at Belleville, were: Mrs. R. Blower, Mrs. W. A. Davern, Mrs. J. H. Lavender, Mrs. E. Matthews, Mrs. Dayton Murphy, Miss Ruby Nash, Mrs. S. Tripp and the Rev. R. Gale.

Mrs. Tom Boyle returned home on Sunday after attending the funeral of her sister in Winnipeg.

St. Andrew's Junior Auxiliary held its regular meeting in the town hall Thursday evening, in the form of a masquerade party, each member bringing a guest.

Following a parade, prizes were given for the best masquerade costume to Donna Lynn Smith, Lana Harrington, Norah Hamel and Sandra Lavender.

Games were enjoyed and refreshments, consisting of sandwiches, cookies, candied apples, candy and cider were served.

Miss Susan Grey read an address to Mrs. Roger Cronk (who has been the leader of the J.A. for the last two years, and is now leaving to reside in Prescott). Miss Nancy Smith presented Mrs. Cronk with some beautiful jewelry on behalf of the members of the Junior Auxiliary.

Mrs. Cronk thanked the members and their mothers for their co-operation during her term of office. Mrs. Ricky Blower will be the new leader of the Junior Auxiliary.

The ladies' Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion held their first card party in the Legion hall on Monday evening. Eight tables were in play. After a couple of hours playing refreshments were served by the committee in charge.

Tickets were sold on a lovely centrepiece. This will be drawn for at the next party on Nov. 18th. Prize winners for the evening were: Euchre: ladies, Barbara Pettingill and Ethel Broadbridge; men, Joe Lavender and Ann Harrington. Cribbage, Hilda Moore, Annie Broadbridge; men, Donald Upton and Lily Reid.

COUPLES' CLUB

The regular meeting of the Wellington Couples' Club met in the Sunday school rooms of the United church on Monday evening. Mr. Ross Pierson acted as president in the absence of Brian Cronk. The business discussion was the final plans for the rally to be held this Sunday.

Gordon and Reta Parks had charge of the devotional period. The program was in charge of Oscar and Ruth Conley. All were delighted to hear Mrs. Clifford McFaul tell of her interesting trip to Europe last summer. Dawn Cronk had the recreational period. All enjoyed refreshments, sandwiches, pumpkin pie and coffee.

MISSION BAND

Recently 13 members and two visitors met for another meeting of the Alice Tayler Lindsay Mission Band. Mrs. Laver led in the Thanksgiving worship service taken from "The World Friends." Marlene Parks and Patsy Greenfield presented the offering. Mrs. Gibson read a Thanksgiving story after which everyone repeated the closing prayer. Mrs. Laver explained a "check-po" or a school kit and each one was asked to bring 10 cents to the next meeting to furnish a check-po.

Nancy Foster and Peggy Lane received their Mission Band pins, having memorized the purpose.

Japanese fans were made and treats passed by Sandra Denard and Linda Holmes.

For the next meeting Sharon McNeil and Dorothy Parks will supply treats. Members are reminded to bring their thankoffering envelopes.

SMALL MYSTERY

AIRDRIE, Ala. (CP) — A proctor stolen from the Airdrie Bailey public school at Christmas, 1953, was replaced with a $600 projector. Now the original projector has been returned by mail from Vancouver, without any explanation or name of the sender.

BACK INTACT

SUNDIAL, Alta. (CP) — Roy McFaul lost his wallet containing $80 two years ago while farming land now owned by G. Palmer. Mr. Palmer recently found and returned the wallet, weather-beaten after its stay in the fields but otherwise intact.

Senator Davies of Kingston Hits Back at Senate Critics

By BERNARD DUFRESNE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator W. Rupert Davies says those who raise the cry "Senate reform" should also state just what they want changed.

"Let us hope there will be no more talk about reforming the Senate unless someone has a constructive plan to put forward," the Liberal Senator from Kingston said Wednesday in the Senate.

He said Prime Minister Diefenbaker often spoke of Senate reform during the last election campaign. (Mr. Diefenbaker did explain just what he meant by reform.)

Senator Davies, 78 - year - old newspaper publisher who has sat in the upper chamber for almost 13 years, said senators are not "a lot of overpaid, doddering old men who know very little about legislating in the country's interest."

"That is far from being the case."

HITS CRITICISM

Senator Davies, president of the Kingston Whig-Standard Company Limited, was criticizing those who consider the Senate an unimportant branch of Parliament.

"I object very strenuously to constant criticism of the Senate as if it were an unimportant branch of the Parliament of Canada," he said. "It is, in my opinion, a very important branch and it is composed of a group of very able, thoughtful and representative Canadians."

Senator Davies also criticized those who urge Senate reform but fail to state just how they want it reformed. Just exactly what should the Senate do that it is not doing today? he asked.

He disputed newspaper editorials saying the Senate is not representative of Canadian men and women of nationally recognized ability. Such newspapers did not understand the Senate and had not taken the trouble to examine the work which the Senate had done and still was doing.

PRAISES APPOINTMENTS

Conservative senators recently appointed by Prime Minister Diefenbaker all were outstanding in their respective fields, he said.

Mr. Diefenbaker had done well so far in his selection of new senators. He could be trusted to do just as well in the future.

Senator Davies said the Senate is made up of men and women with a vast array of experience in many fields. There were 29 lawyers, 16 farmers, six doctors, eight newspaper men and one newspaper woman, six educationists, 25 businessmen, a machinist, a printer, a dentist, three interested in radio and television stations and 33 financiers.

Many senators also had qualifications other than their professions or trades. Nine (had served as federal cabinet ministers, 13 were former provincial cabinet ministers, four were members of hospital boards, 21 had previous municipal experience, seven had been mayors of cities and towns, 28 had sat in the Commons and 19 in provincial legislatures.

HALLOWE'EN

Children of Vancouver can expect to see a new face added to the gallery of horrors traditional with Hallowe'en. The abominable Sasquatch, mythical creature of British Columbia's Cascade mountains, is expected to make its debut at parties.

Ernie Kyin, president of the company which supplies masks, has had a special one made and he says it looks "horrible." The mask is a special feature of the Hallowe'en stock this year.

Community dances and parties for youngsters and teenagers and bon-fires and fireworks displays are also featured celebrations.

Edmonton stores will feature a special "shell out bag" with a small bag of candy inside.

Winnipeg's Hallowe'en will be a children's night with youngsters making neighborhood rounds in costume, asking for apples and candies. Hotels are making no preparations for parties.

Toronto's Casa Loma, which last year staged one of its biggest dances, has only a small private party booked this year.

Montreal youngsters seeking handouts are frequently asked to sing, dance or recite a piece in return for apples popcorn and candy.

Window soaping is still the most popular Hallowe'en prank in the Atlantic Provinces but most children will be active with the UNICEF appeal. Some "trick or treat" groups still make the rounds but service club parties are expected to attract a large number of children.

In Saint John, N.B., children customarily go from door to door saying "help the poor." They wear rubber masks and plastic costumes.

Hallowe'en, the eve of All Saints' Day, has been observed by Christians since the Eighth Century. In ancient times Romans had a festival at this time of the year in honor of Pomona, goddess of the fruit of trees.

Poor Gates Hit Hockey In Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—A Laurier Cup hockey game between Ottawa Hull Junior Canadiens and Guelph Biltmores, scheduled for next Tuesday, Nov. 5, has been postponed until later in the season.

Officials of the Ottawa Auditorium where Junior Habs home games are played said reason for the postponement was poor gates because of competition from football. No date was set for the postponed game.

On the Tracks

NEW YORK (CP)—Running at odds of 1 to 10, shortest of the New York racing season, undefeated Idun easily won the $69,600 Fritzelle Stakes at Jamaica Wednesday and set a season's money-making record for two-year-olds.

With Bill Hartack in the saddle, Idun led all the way for a 1½-length victory and the $58,675 first money. The win lifted her winnings to $290,953, shattering the previous mark of $219,000 set by Tim Flight when she won seven times without a loss in 1951.

Owned by the stable of Mrs. Charles Ulrich Bay, Idun continued in 1:45 3-5 for the 1 1-16 miles. Lopez moved up in the final strides to take second by a head from Big Fright.

At Boston, Manteau outfought the favored Assemblyman in the stretch to win the $59,600 Yankee Handicap by a nose at Suffolk Downs.

Time for the 1¼-mile race was 1:69.3. Ambehaving was third.

Russ Capture Hari[illegible]

STOCKHOL[illegible] Pole won the cross country race, final event of the world pentathlon championships Wednesday, but Russia captured the team title and swept the first three places in the individual standings.

Igor Novikov, Russia's outstanding pentathlon athlete, finished fifth in the 4,000 - metre cross country event won by Eino Pyrpkiski of Finland in 14 minutes, 38.8 seconds.

Novikov increased his individual point total to 4,769, compared with 4,445 for his countrymen Alexander Tarrasov, Nikolai Tatarinov gained third for Russia with 4,348 points.

In team standings, Russia had 13,538 points, with Finland second with 12,172. The United States was fifth with 11,588.

Bil DeWitt Could Be It

CLEVELAND (AP) — William O. (Bill) DeWitt, former general manager of the old St. Louis Browns, has "discussed" with the Cleveland Indians' executive committee the job of Tribe general manager. The Cleveland News predicted Wednesday DeWitt would be appointed within 10 days.

DeWitt flew here Monday and held a 10-hour interview with some of the Indian executives.

He was quoted as saying he wasn't offered the job as general manager and I didn't apply for it, but we did discuss the post, and "I definitely would take the job under the right conditions."

The Indians notified Hank Greenberg Oct. 16 that his contract as general manager would not be renewed.

Last year DeWitt was assistant general manager of the New York Yankees and at present is a baseball coordinator" administering a $500,000 fund put up by the major leagues to stabilize the minor league structure.

Quebec League

TROIS - RIVIERES, Que. (CP) Ken Hayden scored three goals yesterday night to pace Quebec Aces to a 6-1 win over Trois-Rivieres Lions in the Quebec Hockey League's only game.

The outcome did not change the standings. Quebec is in fourth place in the five-team league with eight points, one less than Montreal Royals and four more than Trois-Rivieres.

The only Trois-Rivieres goal came at 6:39 of the opening period by Mel Pearson. Jean Marie Cossette and Bob Sabourin tallied to put Aces ahead at the end of the first.

Riders Name Awards Nominees

OTTAWA (CP)—Ottawa sports writers and commentators have elected tackle Kaye Vaughan and end Bob Simpson as nominees for Schenley awards.

Vaughan received most votes for outstanding player of the year and best lineman. Simpson topped the poll for outstanding Canadian player of the year.

Sports reporters in each city with an entry in the Big Four or the Western Interprovincial Football Union name candidates for the two awards. Further balloting will decide the winners, to be announced Nov. 28.

Drop Hugo From Larks' Lineup

MONTREAL (CP) — Indications are that Tom Hugo, Montreal Alouette star centre, will be given a rest when Als and Toronto Argonauts meet in two games to close out the Big Four Football Union schedule.

The teams meet in Toronto next Saturday and in Montreal the following Saturday. Als are out of third place, are assured of a playoff berth. Argos are out of the playoffs.

Hugo, lame back, ankle injury and all, played in the last two games, both close wins for Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Coach Douglas (Peahead) Walker said Wednesday Hugo shouldn't have been playing at all last Saturday. Bob MacMillan, former McGill Redmen centre, is expected to take over Hugo's chores.

MARK LASTS ONE DAY

TORONTO (CP)—For the second successive day, a new Canadian record for seven furlongs was established when West Four ran the distance in 1:22 3-5 to win Wednesday's featured Spring Moon Purse at New Woodbine race track.

Junior B Loop Organized In District

Belleville, Kingston, Peterborough and Trenton entered the newly-formed Eastern Ontario OHA junior "B" hockey league at a meeting held here last night.

Gananoque, while they were not represented at the meeting, sent word that they will likely enter a team. Royal Military College of Kingston and Queen's University declined to enter, Queen's giving the trip to Peterborough as their reason for doing so.

The loop will meet again next Wednesday night when a schedule will be presented for approval.

The teams will play a 24-game schedule, expected to open around November 15. The top four teams will meet in the playoffs with the winner advancing in OHA junior "B" playdowns.

Each club must post a $200 bond, which will be returned providing the team completes the schedule. The bond from any club which does not finish the schedule would be divided among the other teams.

Local referees will be used but will be appointed by OHA business manager Bill Hanley.

Belleville's squad will commence practice under coach-manager "Red" Doran and Pete Jones as soon as ice time is available at Memorial arena. All junior age players are welcome to attend the practices.

FIGHT SUBSTITUTE BOUT

CHICAGO (AP) — Cuba's Kid Gavilan and Walter Byars of Boston will box in a 10-round welterweight "substitute" bout at the Chicago Stadium Wednesday, Nov. 20.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

WHO WAS WHAT?

One of the most vicious things ever to be produced in hockey, the "C" form, got in its nefarious work down around Kingston way.

A paper symbol of professional hockey dictatorship, the "thing" cost or could cost the Kingston CKLC senior "A" hockey club some $1,600 in cash.

But the question arises: Was Kitchener smart and pulled a "fast one" or were the Kingston officials asleep at the switch?

Just in case you're wondering what this is all about, the Kingston club secured the services of a native son, one Bob Senior, who was the net policeman for the Western Ontario champions, the Kitchener Dutchmen, last season.

They secured him at the price named by Dutchie manager Ernie Goman, some six hundred smackers. Goman may have had tongue-in-cheek when he asked the price and mayhap could have been a bit pressured when Kingston picked up the tab.

However, that is the way things happened and everything was hunkey-dory. Kingston had itself a goalkeeper and the Dutchmen had six hundred smackers.

But Kingston had not reckoned with one Eddie Shore, who is a hockey horse-trader of certain ability, was a player of note, and is now manager of the Springfield Indians. The Indians club is a farm team of the Boston Bruins.

It seems Mr. Shore figured he needed a goalkeeper. He looked around, probably dug up the files and found the cute little "C" form with the attached signature of one Bob Senior, now playing with a Kingston, Ontario, senior "A" club. What difference did that make? Senior could have been a playing coach of the Alaska Eskimos, the long talons of professional hockey encased in the mail mitt of Shore would have reached out and grabbed him.

So Mr. Shore, safe in his blanket of the professional "C" form, politely informed the Kingston club he wanted Mr. Senior and in case the Kingston club objected there was nothing they could do about it. And under the cruel professional laws Mr. Shore did not have to pay Kingston one lecent-weeney cent for Mr. Senior. That was it. Senior had, like any other youngster who signs the nefarious agreemenh, inked his hockey life to the Boston Bruins and Company. And there is nothing he can do about it.

But Eddie Shore is a generous, bighearted gentleman. Never let it be said that Eddie would let a fellow chum like Bun Cook, one of his former National Hockey League foemen, now coach of the Kingston CKLC's, down.

No sirree. Sure, Shore was taking Bun's prize goalie, because Mr. Shore, needed him. But, actually, he was not "stealing" or claiming Senior. It looked like he merely wanted a horse-dicker.

In fact Shore stressed that fact when he told the Kingston club, "we'll give —oops—let you have one Norman DeFelice. Now there's a goalie, fellas, what is a goalie. He'll be a star in that league of yours. Meantime, I'll take Senior just in case."

"Oh, yeah, there is one other little thing, which you probably won't mind," we imagine Shore said or thought, "if you want this guy DeFelice, it will cost you $600."

And we imagine, the venerable Shore chucked in his teeth chuckled and went about his business. Meanwhile up in Kitchener, we surmise Manager Goman was not surprised at the turn of things. He probably knew when he tabbed Senior $600, and Kingston paid it, that the Kingston club did not know of the "C" form. So what? It was there, for anybody to look at.

It is time the OHA did something about this "stealing" practice on the part of the professional clubs. We recall that Frank Buckland when he was the OHA prexy said he would bring the matter up before the CAHA—and he did, but that august body is apparently scared to death of Campbell and Company Incorporated.

There should be—and we are hearing out the brains against a stone wall—some recompense for "amateur" clubs who pay for the services of players who are picked up by people of the Shore ilk. As it is, the pros are eating their merry way-joking who and what they want, regardless.

Our idea of justifiable homicide is the demise of a professional hockey league scout at the hands of an incensed but wise parent after the said scout has approached the offspring with a "C" form for signature.

Would Like To Join Argos, CRU Says 'No'

TORONTO (CP) — Hal Ledyard, quarterback cut by the Big Four Ottawa Rough Riders Oct. 18, says he'd like to discuss a contract with the ofttrade-dwelling Toronto Argonauts—but a Canadian Rugby Union ruling says he can't.

The quarter job in Toronto is wide open—Argos have managed only two victories in 12 starts this season—and Ledyard says he wants to play in 1958 and would be happy to join Argonauts if it can be arranged.

But because he holds a CRU card the Rough Riders still have him sewed up. The CRU card, an eresential with every professional football player in Canada, is intended to give the CRU a method of controlling eligibility of players.

When a player is cut, however, he is released from his civil contract but not from the obligations of the CRU card. As long as the card is held, a player isn't eligible to negotiate with other teams—even though he is no longer being paid by the team that cut him.

"Now, Kid! Forget all about clever boxing an' go out there an' hit him in the puss!"

Rookie Goalie Stands Out As Richards Star up Front; Red Wings Clobber Rangers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Leo Broderick was sitting around with no plans other than to watch Wednesday night's National Hockey League game in Toronto as a spectator when along came coach Toe Blake of Montreal Canadiens and told him to get his goalie's togs.

Broderick, a 19-year-old property of the Junior A Toronto Marlboros, just laughed.

"It's no joke, son," Blake said. "We need you."

Broderick filled the need to perfection. His steady performance almost earned him a shutout as Canadiens downed Maple Leafs 6-2.

The league-leading Habs thus fattened their margin to five points over New York Rangers and Chicago Black Hawks, tied for the runner-up spot.

BLANK RANGERS

Detroit Red Wings pulled out of a slump to blank Rangers 4-0 in the other game and pull into a fifth-place tie with Boston Bruins, only a point behind New York and Chicago. Leafs remained in the cellar, four points.

Broderick got his big chance by virtue of circumstance that could have been potentially disastrous for Montreal. Jacques Plante, Canadiens' regular netminder, was floored by an influenza attack before game time and Broderick was the spare goalie provided by the home club under NHL rules for such emergencies.

"I was pretty nervous through out the game," Broderick said in the dressing room, "but the Montreal players covered up well for me and I didn't have too many tough shots to handle."

JUST 20 STOPS

He had but 20 stops while his new mates were hammering 32 on Toronto goalie Ed Chadwick and holding Leafs closely in check for most of the game.

The Richard family accounted for half Montreal's total, Henri getting a pair and his older brother, Maurice, a single. Don Marshall, Claude Provost and Jean Beliveau also scored for Canadiens.

It was rookie's night also at New York, where Don Poile's first NHL goal gave Wings all the margin they needed. Gordie Howe, Alex Delvecchio and Gord Hollingworth scored later.

FIRST FOR SAWCHUK

Though outscored 2-0, Rangers swarmed all over the Detroit zone in the first period. Goalie Terry Sawchuk turned aside 12 drives in that session to get a good start on his first shutout of the season.

Wings' performance, was the more impressive because two regulars were missing — veteran defenceman Red Kelly who hurt his knee five days ago, and Gord Strate, injured in Chicago Tuesday night.

Detroit made its shots count, forcing Gump Worsley to make but 20 stops in the New York nets while Sawchuk faced 32.

Akins Listed Second in Welter Class

NEW YORK (AP) — Virgil Akins of St. Louis today was listed second among contenders for the world welterweight crown vacated by middleweight champion Carmen Basilio.

Monthly ratings by Ring magazine placed Akins behind Isaac Logart of Cuba, who had been the No. 2 contender behind former champ Tony DeMarco of Boston Akins knocked out DeMarco in the 14th round of a scheduled 15-rounder Tuesday in Boston to bring about the shuffled ratings. DeMarco now is third.

Akins, who had been sixth in the division, also won the magazine's fighter of the month award.

Grid Heroes Wear Girdles

NEW YORK (CP) — And when there is the wingding of a wingdah who swaddles the waddle in a girdle.

The word is out that there's something new in college and professional football in the United States.

Those in the know claim more than 90 per cent of today's weekend heroes encase themselves in the two-way stretch. It serves a much more functional purpose than assisting in the bulge battle, although style plays a part.

The football girdle was developed to replace the bulky, uncomfortable leather, rubber and canvas pads players used to strap on to protect their hips.

The girdle, made of nylon and elastic, is much lighter—weighing only eight ounces or some five pounds less than hip pads—and furnishes just as much protection to body contact.

Lane Defeats Zulueta in 10

CHICAGO (AP) — Southpaw Kenny Lane, after a methodical 10-round victory over Orlando Zulueta, has a new distinction today.

The Muskegon, Mich., battler was awarded the No. 1 contender's spot in the junior welterweight division by the Illinois Athletic Commission.

The 140-pound class has been dormant since 1935 but commission chairman Frank Gilmer says: "We've revived it with the hope of stirring up a world championship at this weight."

Doc Kearns, Lane's manager, is all for the idea but he will have difficulty convincing the National Boxing Association to recognize the junior welterweight division.

CAN'T GET TITLE SHOT

Kearns is having a hard enough time getting his tiger a shot at the title of the legitimate lightweight bracket. Lane has been the NBA's No. 1 contender of this 135-pound class for eight months.

"We can't get champion Joe Brown to fight us," said Kearns. "I've had a $50,000 guarantee open for him for two years and it's still there for his taking. Do what's wrong with my boy becoming the world junior welterweight champion?"

Lane won a unanimous decision over Zulueta at Chicago Stadium Wednesday night to register his 16th straight triumph and a total of 49 against five defeats in his career. He weighed 139 pounds, three more than his Cuban opponent.

There were no knockdowns and it was just a case of Lane wading in and spearing the speedy but ineffective-punching Zulueta.

Adams Tells Fans 'It's Me Don't Blame These Nice Kids'

DETROIT (AP)—Jack Adams, whose Detroit Red Wings have been hustly booed almost ever since the National Hockey League season started, has pleaded with the home fans to "save your catcalls for me—don't take it out on a bunch of nice kids."

The veteran general manager, now in his 31st year with the Wings, said he is "disillusioned" at the reaction of Detroit fans and said he would even wear a red hat "so they can give the hell to me."

Adams' comments were made prior to Wings' 4-0 shutout of the second-place New York Rangers at Madison Square Garden Wednesday night. It was Detroit's fourth victory of the season and lifted them into a fourth-place tie with the idle Boston Bruins.

BLAMED FOR TRADES

Red Wings have dropped five of their first nine games—two of them to Chicago Black Hawks—and most of the spectators are blaming Adams for trading away all-stars Ted Lindsay and goalie Glenn Hall. Cheers greeting the same Sunday night when the fans got their first look at Lindsay and Hall in Chicago uniforms.

Hawks came off with a 3-0 shutout after Detroit players, except right winger Gordie Howe, was booed during the player introductions Tuesday night in Chicago Hawks won 1-0.

"We're off to a lousy start there's no denying it," said Adams. "But I've been prouder of this team than I have of any of our championship outfits. This is a good bunch of youngsters and they don't deserve all this riding."

EFFECTIVE AT HOME

Red Wings have been particularly ineffective at home. Adams believes the vocal disapproval on Detroit ice was "organized."

"I've been in hockey a long time and I've never seen such a thing," he said. "But everyone should understand that the Red Wings haven't had a full team since 10 minutes of the opening game. We've had four players hurt and another fellow (Gyle Fielder from Seattle of the Western Hockey League) didn't work out like we thought he would.

Adams insisted the Wings will feel better long. "We've got legs and we've got guts."

Cougars Win Hockey Protest

SEATTLE (AP)—A protest by the Victoria hockey club has been allowed and Western Hockey League president Al Leader has ordered a replay of part of the game won Oct. 23 by New Westminster.

The replay date is to be agreed upon by the two teams.

Leader's report said New Westminster scored in the third period to take a 5-4 lead after 7:13. The Victoria coach protested that an offside should have been called and a melee followed.

Leader ruled the referee should have assessed a bench penalty against New Westminster, which would have left the team one man short for two minutes.

When replayed, the game will be resumed at the 7:13 mark with a New Westminster player—selected by the coach—in the penalty box for two minutes. A Victoria player also will serve a 10-minute misconduct penalty but the team will have six men on the ice.

The New Westminster coach, fined $25 for his part in the fracas, will not be permitted to direct the team in the replay.

Akins to Give Tony DeMarco Return Match

BOSTON (AP)—Virgil Akins, hard-pounding St. Louis church deacon, Wednesday agreed to meet Boston Tony DeMarco in a 15-round return match here Jan. 21 or 22.

Akins, 29, knocked out Tony Tuesday night in the 14th round of a savage fight at Boston Garden, billed by Massachusetts as for the world welterweight championship.

The National Boxing Association refuses to recognize Akins as titlist.

If a national television hookup with Boston-St. Louis fight can be arranged, the two welterweights will fight Wednesday, Jan. 22, otherwise on Tuesday, Jan. 21, without television.

MARTIN TO BUFFALO

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League Wednesday assigned defenceman Frank Martin, 24, to their Buffalo farm club in the American Hockey League, subject to immediate recall.

LA Giants Hint Big Change in Coaching Staff

NEW YORK (AP)—The purge of major league baseball coaches which began almost immediately after the 1957 season closed, is likely to continue right through the winter.

Besides the seven who have been released and the two who have quit on their own, at least four other so-called managers' right hands are certain not to return in 1958. Several others are in the doubtful stage.

The San Francisco Giants may have an entire new coaching setup under manager Bill Rigney. Cincinnati Redlegs will make a coaching change soon as will the New York Yankees and Pittsburgh Pirates.

The world champion Milwaukee Braves, who gave the axe to three of their four coaches, still need a third base coach.

SEEK RIVAL PLAYER

If St. Louis Cardinals can persuade a rival National League club to part with a certain utility player, he will become a Redbird coach. Otherwise, veteran catcher Walker Cooper, who was given his release early this year, will be re-hired.

Giants, having accepted the resignation of Tommy Hendricks, are about ready to announce that Davey Williams, last year's third base coach, will be working for the club in another capacity, probably as scout. His place is expected to be taken by Ferris Fain, former American League first baseman.

Charlie Keller, who returned to the Yankees as coach this spring when Bill Dickey was forced to leave because of illness, will remain on his Fredrick, Md., farm. Dickey's return depends upon his health.

Pirates are expected to name a new coach soon to replace the veteran Clyde Sukeforth, who had decided to retire.

The October coaching casualties so far have included Connie Ryan, Charlie Root and Johnny Riddle, Braves; Billy Herman and Jake Pitler, Dodgers; Whitlow Wyatt, Phillies; Cooper, Sukeforth, Pirates. Wyatt was hired as coach of the Braves, as was John Blanchard, an old buddy of manager Fred Haney's. Bill Posedel, who managed Portland last season, replaced Wyatt as pitching coach in Philadelphia.

Bears Wallop Cleveland 4-1

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — Willie Marshall, the league - leading scorer, counted twice to spark Hershey Bears to a 4-1 victory over Cleveland Barons in an American Hockey League game Wednesday night.

Dunc Fisher whipped a long shot into the net to give Bears the lead in the first period. Ed Sandkovich made it 2-0 early in the period before Jimmy Moore got Barons only goal. Marshall scored both goals in the final period.

Soo Blanks Chatham 3-0

CHATHAM (CP) — Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds blanked Chatham Maroons 3-0 Wednesday night to pick up their first win in three games against southern members of the Ontario Hockey Association-Maroons are OHA Senior A League.

It was Maroons' third loss in four games as they were frustrated by the brilliant netminding of Greyhounds' Don Campbell.

Cleland Mortson sent Greyhounds ahead at 6:42 of the opening period with an unassisted goal. John Bailey and John Offidani closed out the scoring in the second period.

Four Golfers Tied for Top In Diego Open

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The San Diego Open golf tournament moves into the second round today with four players tied for the lead.

Pacing the field of 136 are Arnold Palmer, former U.S. amateur champion from Latrobe, Pa., defending champion Bob Rosburg, Napa, Calif.; Don Whitcombe from Alameda, Calif., and Charles Sifford, Negro national champion from Palladel.

Each of the four turned in seven-under-par 65s in opening round of the $20,000 tournament Wednesday.

They have a one-stroke lead on Doug Ford, Mahopac, N.Y.; Fred Haas, El Paso, and Lloyd Mangrum, Apple Valley, Calif.

Tied at 67 are Al Balding, Toronto; Mike Fetchick, Yonkers, N.Y., Bob Inmast, Detroit, Dow Finsterwald, Tarpon Sp., Fla., and Bill Monti, Los Angeles.

Most of the low scores were posted before a steady rainfall started early in the afternoon. Altogether 14 players broke par 36-36—72, and another 14 equalled it.

Lords Wallop Golden Bears

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—London Lords assured themselves of at least second place in the Ontario Rugby Football Union by dumping Sarnia Golden Bears 29-20 Wednesday night.

The victory moved Lords to within a point of the league-leading Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen and set the stage for Saturday night's crucial encounter with Dutchies in Waterloo.

Sarnia Lords were knotted at 14-14 at the end of the first three quarters but Lords erupted with three converted touchdowns while holding Sarnia to an unconverted major in the last quarter.

Jim Waddell, a member of Lords earlier in the season, scored two Sarnia touchdowns and veteran Angelo McAffer added the third. Gene Lekenta kicked a pair of converts.

Quarterback Dave Doane came up with another outstanding performance as he threw two touchdown passes and passed to Ed Dearmon for another. Pullback Ron Sage and halfback Bobby Fiveash scored the others. Don Wright converted all five.

HOW'S YOUR I.Q.?

TODAY'S INSURANCE PROBLEMS ANSWERED

QUESTION—

I own a house that cost $20,000 to build. I carry $15,000 fire insurance on it. If the house is damaged or destroyed by fire, will they pay me the cost of the damage or $15,000, whichever is less, or the full value of the house, which is the replacement value on today's market?

ANSWER—

You would be entitled to recover only the actual loss sustained, up to the limit of your $15,000 policy. It is advisable to carry insurance up to the full fair value of your house so that you will not be penalized by co-insurance in the event of total loss.

Bob Masterson Resigns as Stamps' Coach

CALGARY (CP) — Husky Bob Masterson, general manager of Calgary Stampeders for the last two years, resigned from the Western Interprovincial Football Union club Wednesday, five days after he is reported to have hit a player in the face.

Masterson's resignation was accepted "with considerable reluctance by the directors," club president Mervyn Dutton said.

The ex-general manager, who was head coach at the University of Toronto before joining Stamps, said he resigned because "recent publicity has resulted in a highly embarrassing situation for myself, my family and the club."

The publicity surrounded a slugging incident in which Masterson was said to have hit halfback Harvey Wylie on the mouth while the team was on a train out of Regina last Saturday preparing to go to Winnipeg.

ACCOMPANIED TEAM

The slugging was first reported by Gordo Hunter, sports editor of The Herald, who had accompanied the team.

He quoted the halfback as saying Masterson had walked down the aisle of the car and "shoved me." Wylie shoved Masterson and then the ex-general manager "hit me on the mouth."

Masterson was quoted by Hunter as saying he was walking down the car with a suitcase in each hand and "when I passed the group of players one of them gave me a hard elbow in the ribs."

"I dropped one bag and swung around instinctively and then moved out with a backhand and hit somebody. I didn't even know it was Wylie. Certainly, it has nothing to do with Harv personally."

KEEP WIN STREAK

Tony Curtis Says Good TV Nothing But Good Film

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — "What," asks Tony Curtis, "is good television but good film?"

Live television, says this talented young actor, is a spot in which a performer can too easily drop dead.

"Live television simply isn't any good for me personally as an actor," he said. "I've got a reputation. I've got to protect myself. And how can you protect yourself in live TV? Suppose you forget a line with the girl in your arms? You're dead. There's no re-take."

Curtis will soon make his dramatic debut—on film. In Canada, to be seen over CBS-TV Nov. 10 (9 p.m. EST), Curtis plays the role of a Mexican bullfighter who fights to overcome the fear he suffers after a serious goring.

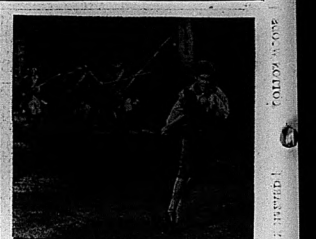
"Cornada is a simple story," he said. "I believe that a television story line has to be as simple that if you go away from your living room set for a couple of minutes you'll know what's going on when you come back. "The trouble with a lot of TV shows is that they have too many characters. They go out to the refrigerator for a bottle of beer and when you come back there's somebody new on. You can't figure out what's happening."

Curtis typifies the viewpoint of many a film star who has been reluctant to make the transition to live television.

He still would like to find the time to try some more TV filmed dramatic shows and has some interesting ideas.

Curtis would like to do a filmed TV version of Gulliver's Travels and one of Aladdin.

"Television should do such things straight, as they were written and as they're known," he said.



An answer to "what is good television but good film" was nobly expressed Monday evening in David Susskind's superb live production of The Prince and The Pauper on (CBS-TV).

It had the scope of film, but the immediacy of live theatre.

Leslie Slote's excellent TV adaptation hewed closely to Mark Twain's original story. Though not designed as a vehicle for a star, its stars glittered in the fine performances of Toronto-born Christopher Plummer, Rex Thompson and Rosemary Harris. One of the outstanding productions of the season, it should be repeated at an hour when more youngsters would be awake to see it.

Ella Fitzgerald Songstress Sees Rock 'n' Roll Decline

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Heartening news of a decline in rock 'n' roll is reported by Ella Fitzgerald, considered by many pros to be the greatest of the pop songstresses.

"I think it's losing popularity," she observed. "The kids seem to be going for a nicer kind of music.

"When I used to sing a ballad at a jazz concert, the audience would start getting restless, waiting for me to get going on a jump tune. But now I can sing three ballads in a row and they'll listen quietly."

Though she sings jazz, Ella nixes 4 'n' r.

"I just don't like it," she said. "I've tried for an ary rate. At first I think, the songs were too suggestive. The kids got too wild when they heard them. It was a natural reaction — one girl starts yelling when she hears Elvis and another one thinks she should, too. Pretty soon it's a riot.

UNDERSTANDING JAZZ

"But I think the kids are getting so they want to understand jazz. Some of them listen now and appreciate when they hear something good."

The same is true in Europe, she said. She tours there four months a year, singing before packed audiences. They're quiet and attentive, she said, listening carefully for the nuances of jazz.

Ella is back home to do a movie, the W. C. Handy film "St. Louis Blues. She plays herself in this one, singing The Beale Street Blues. A couple of years ago, she played a dramatic role for Jack Webb in Pete Kelly's Blues.

"I'd like to do more acting: I think it's good to be able to do different things," she said. "The only trouble is that I'm shy. I can dance and do comedy at home, but when it comes to doing it in front of an audience, I get nervous. I'm not sure people are going to like me."

John A. Dewar Wins in Soviet Quiz Program

MOSCOW (AP) — Two Canadians have won prizes in a Russian quiz program.

Moscow radio said the two were Mrs. Walter Bell, who won a Russian-made camera, and John A. Dewar, who won a Russian record. The broadcast said only that the Canadians live in Ontario. It added that the prizes will be delivered to the winners but gave no other details.

The quiz program was begun a month ago as part of English-language broadcasts beamed to the West.

Hemingway's Long-Awaited "Sun" Arrives

The eagerly-awaited film version of Ernest Hemingway's first and most talked of novel, "The Sun Also Rises," in the form of a Darryl F. Zanuck Cinema-Scope production, is now at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre.

Starring Tyrone Power, Ava Gardner, Mel Ferrer, Errol Flynn and Eddie Albert, the story of people caught up in the turbulent currents of "the lost generation" immediately after the First World War, features Gregory Ratoff, Juliette Greco and newcomer, Robert Evans.

Filmed for Twentieth Century-Fox in CinemaScope and De Luxe Color in Paris and Biarritz, France, Pamplona, Spain, and Mexico, the picture was directed by Henry King, who also directed Hemingway's "The Snows of Kilimanjaro," an earlier Zanuck production.

Supporting the superb cast of top stars are Marcel Dallo, Henry Daniell, Eric Cunningham, Danik Patisson, Eduardo Noriega, Jacqueline Evans, Carlos Muzquiz, Rebecca Iturbi and Carlos David Ortigos.

Announce Plans For Shrine Game

MONTREAL (CP)—The committee handling the Canadian Shrine East-West football game have announced details of payments and other arrangements for the players who will participate in the Dec. 7 game in Montreal.

Proceeds from the annual game go to the Shriners' hospitals for crippled children in Winnipeg and Montreal.

The committee, through coordinator Tex Coulter, said particular attention is being made this year to ensure the best possible relationship between the committee and the players to be chosen by football fans.

Each man on the winning team will receive $250, those of the losing team $250. In event of a tie, the amount will be $300 for each player on both teams.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER
(Author of the new "Astrology and You")

"The Stars impel . . . They do not compel! What you make of your life is largely up to you."

Thursday, Oct. 31, 1957

Aries (March 21 to April 19)— Pursue your goals with enthusiasm and intelligence today. Impress others with real perspicacity and efficiency, especially any associates. Learn to cooperate by giving and take. Don't be a doormat.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20)— A perfect day for doing your work with such precision and beauty that all those in authority are much impressed and extend the support you require and should have. Take it in your stride. Be humble.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21)— You are thoroughly inspired today, so leave no stone unturned or waste a second going after your hopes and wishes. Excellent for increasing prestige, position in life — all civic, social, business, too.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21)— Every sort of chance is present to increase abundance if you start plucking early this A. M. and carry through until late evening. Also, home life can be improved immeasurably. Growth is yours. Work at it.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — This is a day when friends, associainances, even competition are willing to back you, provided you are busy and expansive with them. Let your devotion and loyalty be your reward for favors today — a grateful smile.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 23) — Invest in fine, new gadgets and machinery on the market that will take much of the hard work out of your daily living. Also, make those improvements in property. Paper, paint, shingle, increase value.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — An ideal day in which to enjoy yourself, be busy with artistic talents, yet also getting out and mixing up system in sports, tennis, golf, etc. Take in some fine TV or radio programs and meet famous entertainers.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)— Now is the time to get the confidence of members of your family by sitting down quietly and discussing things amicably. Then you understand what the problems are and can assist wisely and deepen love between you.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21) — Many fine benefits with others possible today, but you have to get out and dig, be where they are. See those partners and customers you have neglected of late. Ask for advice, name friends, get orders.

Capricorn (Dec. 23 to Jan. 22) — Practical affairs concerning your holdings, your job, take full time, energy and attention today, which is as it should be. Endeavor to put in new gadgets, systems, everywhere for greater efficiency, ease.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)— The stars are with you today, so make the most of wonderful aspects. Dress perfectly, make appointments and keep them with clocklike precision, get results everywhere. Have a corking day, Aquarius!

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20)— Very wise, silent analysis of current conditions and situations brings out best way of adjusting or ameliorating them quickly and efficiently. Get assistance and cooperation of family, however, secretly.

If your child is born today . . . The child born today is the lucky and fine type who will be born with an indomitable will that will take him or her to goal set upon by the proverbial, straight line. Yours is the duty to teach right ethics and principles, however, that the mind and energies may be channeled properly. Then the chart is wonderful for all great government, other equally important work.

CAMPBELLFORD

Official Opening Is Held Of 4-Room Separate School

CAMPBELLFORD — A special mass at St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church marked the opening of a new four-room separate school here on Sunday, when the Very Rev. Father Joseph O'Sullivan of St. Peter's Cathedral, Peterborough, officiated at the service. Later, opening ceremonies were held at the school itself, where a number of guests were on hand for the occasion.

Parish priests from all parts of the Peterborough Diocese were in attendance. Following the ceremonies, hundreds of guests were taken on a tour of inspection of the new building, built at a cost of about $73,000.

William G. Holmes, chairman of the Campbellford separate school board, acted as chairman. He introduced a number of guests who spoke briefly. Mayor Douglas R. Mayhew congratulated the school board and Father J. C. Maloney, parish priest of St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church, on the new building, which he said was a great asset to the town.

MANY PROBLEMS

The Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, minister of agriculture for Ontario, said that school boards faced many problems, one of which were lack of funds and lack of qualified teachers. Thirty thousand new students are entering Ontario schools each year, he said, and it was gratifying to know that these students would have modern up-to-date facilities such as those found in the new Campbellford school. He said modern education has a far from the days of the "little red schoolhouse". He added that he hoped the students would be proud of their new school, and that they would make full use of the facilities and so benefit by education.

Ben Thompson, MP for Northumberland, said that education brings tolerance and understanding in life and he hoped the students realized this and would take advantage of the excellent opportunities afforded by schools such as the one in which he was speaking. He said the cost of education was great, but that it was one of the most important expenditures a community could make.

Father J. P. Collins, a former pastor at St. Mary's R. C. Church, brought congratulations, and paid tribute to Father J. C. Maloney for his efforts in having the school constructed.

Contractor Fred T. Fry of Campbellford, who did the actual construction work on the new building, handed over the key to Father Maloney, and thanked him for the school board for their cooperation during the construction of the school.

EFFORTS APPRECIATED

Father J. C. Maloney said that he appreciated the efforts of the Ontario Government toward assisting education in the province, and told Mr. Goodfellow that his government could be proud to know that educational grants were providing a better life for today's children. He said the old school, which is now being used by the district high school board, was built to accommodate about 50 pupils and that enrollment had grown from 64 students in 1950 to 122 in 1957. He said onyl three rooms would be used in the new building at present, but the fourth room would be needed in the near future.

Father Maloney thanked Mr. William Rothwell, principal of the Campbellford Public School, for his efforts on behalf of the children of the separate school, and said that the safety patrols and the sports activities arranged by Mr. Rothwell, in which students of both schools participated, showed the excellent co-operation which existed.

SEVEN PRINCIPALS PRESENT

Seven of the ten principals who have taught here since 1921 were on hand for the opening. They were Sisters St. Louis, Dorothea, St. Teresa, Mary Charles, Alma Dominica and Edwina. Sister Alfreda and Sister Agnes, absent, and Sister Immelda is deceased.

Following the opening ceremonies, scores of visitors were taken on a tour of the new building, where they were given an opportunity to see the modern educational facilities embodied in its design.

"I think I'll call my sister in California again, tonight!"

MR. TWEEDY by Ned Riddle

"How do those buyers expect us to sell this junk?"

IRISH

"I just can't get excited," said the elderly Mrs. Mallock, 71 and whose 12 children are still living. Bill Richardson said at Treadmore the money couldn't have come at a better time.

"Things couldn't have been much worse for us," said the 22-year-old father of two. "We were really scratching to keep alive."

Mr. Richardson said he has been holding down two jobs, earning a total of about $40 weekly before taxes. A clerk at CKOC-RCAF base here, he worked two nights a week in a local billiards club.

SUDDEN FRIENDS

He said he was amazed at the number of friends he suddenly made after he drew a horse in the sweepstakes.

Youngest winner was Miss Aubert, 4, of Vancouver who cried when her mother awoke her with the news.

She knows it is "lots and lots of 20 cents." She sees it as "some extra popsicles, a ranch and a pony."

The parents plan to seek legal advice on the handling of the money. They are sure they will put at least part of it in trust for the girl's education.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES

SHANNONVILLE — On Sunday anniversary services were held in Shannonville United Church and a congregational dinner for church members and visitors were in attendance.

The front of the church was adorned with lovely baskets of mums of various colors.

The Rev. C. G. Coleman of Holloway St. United Church, Belleville, conducted the services and preached impressive messages at the morning and afternoon services.

At the morning service Mr. Tom Bailey rendered a lovely solo, "Jesus Lover of My Soul," and the choir sang a selection. At the afternoon service the choir contributed another selection with the solo being taken by Miss Gail Juby. Mrs. Harry Sine presided at the piano.

A baptismal service also took place at the afternoon service when Kerry Lewis and Calvin Clarke, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Lewis and Mr. and Mrs. Clarke, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Stratton received the rite of Holy Baptism by Mr. Coleman.

African Safari Results in Fine Films of Animals

CALGARY (CP) — An Alberta sportsman went on a three-week safari in the African jungle recently. He came back with some fine films of wild life and tales of thrilling experiences, but no shots were fired on the expedition.

R. A. Johnson, 38, saw two male lions fight, was chased by a rhinoceros and managed to take pictures of some of Africa's most colorful and exciting wild life.

"Anyone with $600 and the two-way plane fare of $1,258 can do it," says Bob, unreeling 2,500 feet of movie film for his neighbors.

He had a $100 movie camera stolen by an Arab at Bengazi, and finally arrived at Nairobi, the famous Kenya safari base.

Supplies and equipment included a station wagon, a driver-interpreter and guns and cameras.

Driver Muzee, of the Nandi tribe, pulled Bob through some tough moments. Once he repaired a broken fuel tank while a rhino prepared to charge near the 12-mile Ngorongoro Crater.

SAW GREAT HERDS

In the area, teeming with wild life, Bob saw herds of wildebeest and zebra 50,000 strong. The rhino ignored the game to turn on the little safari.

He began a charge at the wagon several times, says Bob, but swerved off when Muzee leaned on the truck horn.

No shots were fired by the party.

"It wouldn't have been sport but slaughter," said Bob, explaining that hunters can walk within yards of animals who only stare back in curiosity.

"One shot would have frightened them off for miles and I wanted to shoot them on film anyway."

The one animal he always dreamed of hunting — a wild buffalo—escaped a bullet because of Bob's camera eye.

"It's much more difficult to shoot a buffalo with a camera from 30 yards than to shoot them with a gun from 100 yards," he laughs.

He took 450 still pictures on the 1,250-mile expedition.

Exporters Will Likely Sell Less to France

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian exporters likely will sell less to France in the future because of a 20-per-cent tax on all imports imposed earlier this week by the French government.

But Canada, which exports mainly raw materials to France, may not be hit as hard as countries selling finished products.

The trade between the two countries in recent years has been hemmed in by currency restrictions, stemming largely from France's chronic shortage of dollars.

As a result Canada sells little to France. Last year Canadian exports were valued at roughly $35,000,000. About 80 per cent of this total was for copper, pulp, synthetic rubber, asbestos and flat lead. All are basic products needed by French industry if production is not to be curtailed.

During the six-month period ended June 30, France's exports to France totalled about $17,000,000, an increase of more than $2,000,000 from the corresponding period in 1956.

The imposition of the tax this week is viewed as completing the devaluation of the franc began last August. It is seen here as a last-ditch effort to improve France's balance of payments position and to increase her diminishing foreign currency reserves.

TRUE MUSIC LOVER

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A 20-year-old hi-fi record fan chased his mother out of their house Saturday, wounded a policeman in the arm, sniped at other officers and finally surrendered after police fired tear gas into the house. Police said the battle began when William J. Busch Jr., ran his mother from their home after blaming her for breaking one of his records.

Critics Hail Nine-Year-Old Galt Pianist

TORONTO (CP)—Critics hailed nine-year-old Galt youngster Tuesday "as an extremely talented pianist with surprising strength, control and tone of quality for one so young."

Virginia Belfer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Belfer of Galt, was guest soloist at the opening concert of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra's Secondary School Series held at Massey Hall.

With pigtails bobbing, Virginia captivated her audience of 1,800 students with the second and third movement of Haydn's piano Concerto in D Major.

"Keep an eye on her," says George Kidd in a review to be published in today's Telegram. "It is an amazing talent that may if properly fostered place among the great musicians that Canada has developed."

Virginia gave her first full recital last May. She has played publicly for organizations.

"The child is a prodigy," says her teacher, Mona Bates of Toronto. "She has the authoritative touch of an experienced musician."

Plane-Spotting Line Useless To Detect Missiles

OTTAWA (CP) — Plane-spotting equipment used in the $200,000,000 Mid-Canada warning line will be useless to detect intercontinental missiles, informants said Tuesday.

This means that if the government wants to convert the line eventually into a missile-detecting network, it will have to spend millions of dollars for an altogether new type of equipment.

The 3,000-mile Mid-Canada line along the 55th parallel went into operation only a few months before Russia announced successful testing of an intercontinental ballistic missile. The line is designed to detect aircraft flying no higher than 20 miles but the intercontinental ballistic missile reaches an altitude of some 500 to 600 miles at the top of its trajectory.

HAS PROPELLANT

Scientists here said the dangerous element in the Russian earth satellite is that the Soviet Union developed rockets to carry it up to roughly the same height to which the intercontinental missile will travel.

This means, they said, Russia has the propellants to power an intercontinental missile.

The missile will have to be detected soon after its takeoff—not when it is overhead—to provide time to track its path and fire the anti-missile.

The Defence Research Board now is heading every effort to develop a detection system, in cooperation with the United States.

HUGE FLU TOTAL

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—The influenza outbreak soared to a record 5,815 cases in Oregon last week, a 55 per cent increase over the previous week, the state board of health reported Tuesday.

Presley Show Looked Over By Vice Squad

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Elvis Presley, quiver - lipped hero of the fainting set, performed under the scrutiny of vice squad officers Tuesday night. They said they found nothing wrong with the show—from a standpoint of propriety at any rate.

The officers went to the Pan-Pacific Auditorium after complaints about the previous night when 10,000 of Presley's constituents went wild over his brand of song and dance.

Many parents who attended claimed Presley was manipulating his hips in a manner that was most vulgar, to say the least.

A local entertainment editor said the show was like "those screeching, wailing rallies which the Nazis used to hold for Hitler."

Police told Presley to cut out what critics called the sexy overtones of the show. Officers at Tuesday night's performance said Elvis reduced his gyrations and went through no bumps and grinds.
